He warned the Prime Minister that if secret sessions of a royal commission, or in any other way he attempts to make the Canadian National Railway System the scapegoat for the condition into which this railway policies have served to bring this country, or to cause it to have the state of any transgression monopoly in Canada, he will find such an infringement in this Dominion from coast to coast. We will make him wish he had never taken up the reins of office."

Record of Administration

In a speech which was littered with criticism of the fiscal and trade administration of the present government, the Dominion Liberal leader discussed the record of the administration. He declared that the country's taxa economic conference, asserting that the Conservative party had simply his attitude on tariff matters, against the subsitution for the word "Canada" and a more conciliatory attitude if the next meeting was not to be like "thanks for the mem ory."

He raised the Liberal banner of "Canada, a country among the countries of the world" and declared that the effort of the Liberal Party, if and when returned to power would be to bring about a change in the level prevailing prior to the change of government. Standards of living in Canada would be progressively raised, dumping would be permitted.

On the ground of extravagance and waste in its unemployment expenditures, Mr. King condemned the present government. He also blamed the administration for not appointing a committee of Parliament at the last session of Parliament, to administer unemployment relief. He asked why a board had been and not been appointed, particularly at a time of falling exchanges and currencies when, he claimed, its value would have been greatly enhanced. The legislation was available, but it had not been acted upon. He declared that Canada needed no Minister of Finance. Why was Mr. Bennett, much overworked though

Campbell May Race Again for New Record

New York, Jan. 13.—Sir Malcolm Campbell, British speed king, feels his streamlined car has the speed qualities of his world auto record of 245.773 miles per hour that he is considering a return to the United States within a month for another whirl along the sands of Daytona Beach, the famous Bluebird machine.

Sir Malcolm's plans have progressed so far that his United States representative, Bill Sturm of Indianapolis, will go to Florida this week for a conference with Daytona Beach officials. Sturm will discuss questions of financial support, which developed a hitch last winter, as well as a proposal to extend the British visitor's trip for speed acceleration.

"Campbell is thoroughly convinced that Wizard Smith, the Australian driver, will break his speed record, if given a chance.

As a result he has gone ahead pretty definitely with plans to bring his machine back here for another record attempt in February at Daytona Beach.

Ninety-mile Beach, N.Z., Jan. 13. —The attempt of Norman (Wizard) Smith to break the record of 14.65 seconds for the mile and ride with a flying start, was postponed today to await the next spring tide, January 22-27, or February 4-6.

Smith, a noted Australian driver, has been here a month trying out the hard sandy beach with a powerful car brought from England. His hopes to travel faster than the 245.773 miles per hour attained by Malcolm Campbell of Great Britain at Daytona, Fla., last year.

SCHOOL FOR DEAF

The Ontario School for the Deaf has launched an intensive campaign in an effort to locate all deaf children in the province of Ontario who are not attending a provincial school and to endeavor to induce parents to send such deaf children to the institution for training. The Public School Act makes it obligatory upon teachers to list information regarding the parents of all children who by reason of deafness or other defects cannot receive adequate education in the public school. It is true however that there are numbers of children who have not been so reported, and the fact was recently brought to light with the result that seventeen boys and girls have been entered this season to their upon primary work though they are older than the average age of that class.

Recently the school, through its organ "The Canadian" issued a special edition to create in the minds of the parents a proper attitude towards the School for the deaf which is not a sort of asylum or place of restraint but a modern institution of training. The attention has been brought to the press of the province to inculcate an interest in the work of the school with the results.

The foreword says:

"As before stated, this appeal is directed especially to newspaper editors because their combined publications reach nearly every family in the province, and so solicit the aid of service clubs, school inspectors, school attendance officers, clergymen, teachers and all other organizations and individuals who know of or may hear about any deaf children who are attending school. Every communication giving such information is to be addressed to H. B. Fotherly, M.A., Superintendent of the Ontario School for the Deaf, Milleville, and will receive careful knowledgement and attention, and, if desired, will be regarded as confidential."

The issue deals with every phase of life at the school. It is pointed out that children are quite as good subjects at the B.D. as hearing children would get in her schools. But the academic work is but one phase of the activities of the school for the Deaf. Scholars must be taught to do, as well as to know, "so we are as far as facilities permit, to prepare them to earn a livelihood when they leave school. Therefore instruction in various trades is a very important part of our work. For nine months out of every year, during the formative period of their lives, the child is the property of the public school, so it is incumbent to give them the useful care and effective training that children receive in well regulated homes, to promote the health of the pupils, all kinds of healthful sports and recreations are carried on with the pupils attain a high standard of efficiency, often winning honors and championships in contests with other teams."

"One of the many erroneous ideas native to the hearing is those classed deaf-mutes are mute in the sense in which they are deaf. They are deaf because their organs of hearing are impaired or deficient. Many people think that they are dumb because their organs of speech are defective. This is by no means a case. With very rare exceptions the vocal organs of the deaf are as perfect as those of the hearing. As far as we know, never had an organically dumb pupil this School. The deaf cannot talk just cause, and only because they don't know

As deaf children cannot learn to speak by natural process of imitation, they must be taught artificially—by showing them how to manipulate the tongue lips to produce the various sounds ed in speech, and then to combine them syllables and words—a long, involved, difficult but often gratifyingly successful process. But while this is a wonderful achievement, few of the deaf acquire the ility to speak in the natural, pleasant ses that others do. Also, because they cannot hear their voices, therefore don't know how to modulate their tones, t, by means of hyten expressions and rious other devices, very gratifying progress has recently been made in enabling deaf to speak with greater distinctness d more pleasing tonal effect.

TO THE SUN, IN WINTER

By Aline Michaelis

Where have you fled, O, golden sun—
To what strange realms afar.
Beyond the paths where planets spun,
Beyond each silver star?

O, sun, upon the Summer sands
Your ardent kiss I knew;
Behind me lay the golden lands;
Before, sea's tranquil blue.

But now on this dim Winter morn
In vain I seek you here.
I would be lonely and forlorn
On this deserted sphere.

But for the golden dancing flame
That flickers on my hearth
And, laughing, whispers where it came—
How sunlight gave it birth.

It tells of sunlight's golden dower
To earth long eons through;
It sings: "Why, in the Winter hour
Spring will come back to you!"

SINCLAIR LEWIS has gone to Georgia to seek a quiet spot in which to write his new novel. Sinclair will likely choose a "Main Street" town and mingle with the "Babbitts" and have the time of his life. He knows that the pettiness of small town life which provided the teeth for his caustic novel "Main Street" sinks into insignificance when occasion calls for the exercise of those neighborly big-hearted qualities which constitute the real small town life that is not displayed so prominently as some of the lesser virtues or vices.

WHEN ONE READS the story of creation in two hundred words and then glances at the battalions of words stretching column after column in the Sunday newspapers describing some trivial thing, one wonders why the Bible should not be included as a text book for budding newspaperment

FORMER CHICAGO EDITOR started out to get local color on foot and hitch-hiking. He got into trouble down Georgia way over a four-dollar transaction and was sentenced to serve a six-to-twelve year sentence in the chain gang, which from all accounts is another form of slavery, convicts being farmed out to contractors and kept in camps under the rifles of guards. The newspaperman escaped after serving two months and is now a fugitive from justice. police authorities in several states having been asked to watch for him and place him under arrest on return to the chain gang. He has managed to keep his liberty and has written his experiences in a book called "I Am a Fugitive From the Georgia Chain Gang," under his name, Robert Elliott Burns. When the Georgia authorities read the book they will be more than ever eager to get him back on the chain gang to give him material for another and even more thrilling book on Georgia and justice. Strange things have happened on those Georgia chain gangs and it is little wonder that Georgia folks are not proud of them and just a big bit sensitive at any discussion of them.

TRUST IN MATURITY

Courage and self-confidence are natural characteristics of youth. It is therefore not surprising to hear that Roland Robinson, age 34, Britain's youngest M.P., believes that young men will soon supercede those of mature years as the dominating force in world affairs. But it is to be feared that young Mr. Robinson has arrived at his conclusion without taking sufficient thought, thus displaying one of the very reasons why the rule of youth which he predicts will not come to pass.

There is no cause to believe that the modern youths has any greater capability in matters of government than the young men of past generations. There have been individual exceptions, of course, but on the main the experience, stability and wisdom of age are to be preferred to the immature judgement of younger men. True, the young man has his place in public affairs. His optimism, earnestness and the freshness of his point of view are valuable. To say, however, that the world is ready to dispose with the sound judgement that comes only with maturity, wide knowledge and deep understanding of men and affairs is to express a too superficial opinion. Both youth and age have their place, but it is safe to say that age will continue to dominate in the councils of the world. And it is well that this is so.—Toronto Telegram.

SECURITY—BOOTLEGGING

The second week of the unofficial embargo against purchase of foreign securities, or of Canadian securities held abroad, finds the large investment houses observing the government request unanimously, while some smaller houses and enterprising individuals are reported to take advantage of the profits opportunities offered.

In 1929 when an embargo of this kind was declared the same thing happened. Certain individuals made a lot of money by boot-legging securities across the border, and similar activities have started on this occasion.—Financial Post.

MOTOR LAWS

In view of some of the decisions in the courts of Ontario the question may well be asked: "What is the use of considering motor laws anyway?"

Some time ago a learned cadi held that a motorist could drive on any side of the road so long as he did not endanger another user, the pedestrian. And the St. Thomas magistrate decided a motorist consequently upheld by the County Judge—that a motorist driving on a left-hand turn without taking in the centre of the road, or holding out his hand as a signal.

If the commonly understood and established rules of the road, and the recommendations without the force of authority, of the Highway and Legislature gave them legal weight. —St. Thomas Times-Journal.

TO IMPROVE TRAFFIC LIGHTS

The National Safety Council of Traffic Engineers has undertaken some interesting statistics concerning the use and abuse of traffic lights. Among other things, it is shown that a driver requires that "stop and go" lights only sixty per cent have proved successful in preventing accidents. These devices were found after investigating 350 "stop and go" intersections in American cities, where records showed accident experience before and after installation of the system. In thirty per cent of the cases installation of "stop and go" lights was followed by increases in accidents; in ten per cent of the cases, the signals had no effect one way or the other on accidents. The result of this study is that an entirely new mathematical basis will have to be recommended as to the method of timing the lights. The formula has been approved by the Institute of Traffic Engineers of the United States. It should be used in accelerating traffic control.—Montreal Star.

Police Dept. Does Not Pay for Self

Sudbury, Ont., Jan. 13.—For the first time in years, the Sudbury police department failed to pay for itself in 1931, closing the year with an operating deficit of $11,229.62.

In 1929 the police commission after paying all expenses was able to turn $22,000 back to the city treasury and in 1930 took in $17,369 more in fines and costs than it cost to run the department. In 1931, the total revenue from the police department was $20,854.25 and the total expenditure $40,854.08.

Leap Year Racket is Topsy Turvydom Happy Returns of Quadrennial Unsought

When good Pope Gregory mounted his dais one day a long time ago, called all his learned men together, and went into a huddle on the thing, and emerged therefrom with a brand new calendar to take the place of the one that had mapped out, and which would take the astronomical wizard, a fortune teller, a mathematical expert or a good guesser to dope out just what the day would be a week from the day after Friday would really be Friday when it should be Friday, then he started something that has kept the men talking (and the women hopping) ever since.

Webster defines it: "Leap Year, a year containing 366 days, the additional day being added after February LEAPS over the day of the week and falls on the next week name to that which it fell the year before"—you will notice the word 'leap.' Whether that meant that the women leap forward and the men leap backward, or leap in long bounds to and away from the scene of action, or something like that, we do not know. It has been said that salvation lies in flight, rather than flight, so we presume that leap year means just what the word says.

If you think that the whole thing is a stale old joke—as we did before we started to look up the thing from various angles off on the side lines—then let him wrestle with a problem or two that has been his maiden aunt, who has never given up hope, and her former bachelor who are hard put to figure out new ways and means of getting out of the whole thing gracefully and in a dignified manner.

It is a fact that marriage licenses are being dished out by Mr. Holmes in the city hall since the new year started, in greater numbers than ever for the first week of other years, but whether or not the swains are being led into the proverbial parson's mousetrap, and determined young women with the light of victory gleaming in their eyes is something we have been unable to find out. Even our earnest pleadings have had no effect on the secretive Mr. Holmes who seems this year just the same as any other when such permissions and marriage licenses are concerned. And it is also a fact that there have been a number of inquiries of late from corresponding months of years past, but Mr. Holmes has been mum on the subject.

So how that can be accounted for is a mystery. But many offers the solution that they have, in an unguarded moment said, or stuttered "yes," when they meant 'no,' and before they knew it they still stick to the ship. The same man, who is also the proprietor of the local five and dime, is attempted to be funny when he found out what he was after and the information for. He came out with the assertion that it was only the young and inexperienced looking fellows who were to be found looking over the little tray of rings he keeps, and not those who by their lads have yet been in. Also here's another thing: many of the rings are of a size that are not marked with the ring size. So how do you make that out?

Then we went out on the streets and questioned our quest. We asked a few old married men what they thought would be good advice to pass along to the shivering bachelors. And the answers they gave were just about the ones we thought they'd get. One man said for them to move away some place where nobody knew them, and let on that they had been married and were now the fathers of 11 children, all small. Another suggested that they inform everyone that they had moved to the moon now, and were paying alimony to three of them. Another suggested that they move out to the "Devil's Hole" and take up residence in one of the caves there and if they hear anyone coming to run into the cave and barricade the door. If that was too far away from their work let them put up a tent in the middle of the highest point in the city and be equipped with a telescope so they could see anyone coming, erect barbed wire all around the tent and guard and then set up a machine gun at the only gate. Another one suggests that they wear false whiskers, sew ichaeon, and expectorate constantly on the sidewalk or wherever else they happen to be, whenever a real good point comes from a man who has been married for seventeen years and has nine children. He said it was not necessary for them to move out of town; that if they just kept away from public dances and other places where the feminine element happen to gather then they would be comparatively safe as long as they; 1st, cultivate a virile whiskers pursuade; 2nd, write no letters to any one of the fair sex. 3rd, do not engage in any conversation whatsoever with them. 4th. Hire a servant to answer all telephone calls, and 5th, Drive your car to and from work, and take the back streets as much as possible—when home is reached look the door and do not go out nights.

In those five simple rules we believed that there is an excellent chance to say absolutely nothing, or an even break that you will escape the year without becoming entangled in any foreign engagements.

And while it is true that you should stick to the bargain if you are taken off your guard and stammer a "yes" when you should say "no," there is a way that has been given to us whereby you may purchase your freedom and that we are willing to extend to you that we are willing to save your friends and when life's journey is over you will enter the Home where Good-bye is never said.

The gathering was called to order by Lloyd Robinson and the following address was read by Mr. Harper Bateman:

Dear Mrs. Seeley and Mack:

"We your neighbors and friends, have heard with deep regret that you are about to move a little farther away from us and that this place will no longer be your home. But we are glad to be reminded of the fact that "Here we have no continuing city but we seek one that glorifies journeying to our Heavenly Home". Every year brings its changes in our neighborhood and we are constantly losing old friends and unless we are very careful soon we will soon be left very lonely.

"Like as a flock of sheep withdrawn
Loosed on the watery main,
Another place of pasture finds—
Its freshes—parts again
So it is with us forever
Leaving our less restless see.
We meet—we greet—we sever
Drifting scientific.

"We could not let you go without expressing our deep regret at parting with you here, where we have so many times enjoyed your hospitality.

"We are glad to know that you are not going far from us and that we will still be your neighbors.

"We can also well enjoy many years of health and happiness. You have been true friends and faithful neighbors and we part with sympathies when we were in trouble, you ever ready to lend a hand when help was needed, and we feel you have earned a rest.

"As a slight token of our sincere respect and esteem we ask you to accept this money; and whatever you may purchase with it may it always remind you that we are with your friends and when life's journey is over you will enter many Home where Good-bye is never said.

OLD RIVALS LOCK HORNS

Junior Battle Tomorrow Night Has The Fans By The Ears

After winning their opening game of the season at Campbellford on Monday night by the score of 8 to 1 the local Cubs take on the Trenton juniors at the Arena Gardens on Thursday night. The Trentonians defeated the Campbellford Juniors by a score of 5 to 0 last week and will no doubt give the local lads a merry battle. The winner of the game will go into the lead of the local junior group and a large following of Trenton fans have signified their intentions of attending the game here. Trenton were not in the local junior group last year but in previous years the games between these two clubs have always been of the highest calibre and feeling always runs high when the teams of these two towns hook-up.

The Trenton team will be led by their veteran goal tender, Champion, who will be defended by Lambert and Batten on the defence; Jack Kidd, a new boy, will look after the centre ice area while Dolsen and Mattis cover the wing positions. The subs will be picked from Willie, Richards, Jordan and Milligan. Coupled with the regulars these alternates will go to make a real classy team and a battle long to be remembered should be seen at the Arena on Thursday night.

Either Scopp or McGee will guard the twine for the Cubs and will be defended by Sherry and Ethier on the defence. McDonald, the local lad's star centre man, will be flanked by Harper and Jimmy or Billy McGuire. The substitutes will be made up by Carl Morgan, Bowen and Glover.

Coach Tommy Thompson has converted Carl Morgan into a front line player and after Monday night's game he had showed enough promise to be awarded a regular position on the forward line. Harper, Nickol and Goyer also turned in a creditable exhibition and the locals will surprise the fans with their hockey ability. The combination of plays by MacDonald, McGuire and Harry Morgan are fast meeting perfection and the work of Sherry and Ethier on the defence, is getting better each day. Shad Ethier, especially, is improving his hockey by leaps and bounds and teams well with Bill Sherry, the fan's favorite defenceman.

The locals are out to go into the lead of their section and must win Thursday night's game to head the fast travelling Trenton club.

The following night, Friday evening, the Belleville intermediates take on the Cananoque team in their second home game of the season. Joe Smith of Kingston, has been appointed referee for Thursday night's game here.

DOUG BRENNAN EARNED HIS PLACE WITH LES PATRICK

Lester Patrick of the New York Rangers is a pretty shrewd judge of hockey talent. He ought to because he's been in the game long enough. Early this year, Lester was running around in circles trying to find a defenceman because he only has one defence man to start the season with. That was Lionel Conacher. But happily for Lester, the Pacific coast league was caught in the financial depression, and a lot of good material went loose. Amongst them one Doug. Brennan, an ex-Peterboro Junior and Senior O.H.A. player. Doug. was asked to report to Lester Patrick and started at the same time as Hildebrandt. Nickol had Goyer also turned in a creditable exhibition. The Rangers will surprise the fans with their hockey ability. The combination of plays by MacDonald, McGuire and Harry Morgan are fast meeting perfection and the work of Sherry and Ethier on the defence, is getting better each day. LEADERS IN DIVISIONS WIN

Leafs Trounce Falcons And Rangers Win From Bruins

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 13 (CP) — The smooth working machines of Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Rangers, leaders in their respective groups in the National Hockey League, clicked in full turn last night and as a result each club is today comfortably seated at the top of their divisions.

While Rangers enjoy a 13 point margin over their nearest rivals by virtue of their overtime victory in Boston, Maple Leafs have not such a firm grip on their league honors as only three points separate the Montreal-Toronto band from the second place Americans who defeated Maroons 2-0 in New York. Defencemen Shiers.

Backed by the excellent work of four defencemen who combined to account for no less than six points Maple Leafs reversed a decision on Detroit Falcons in Toronto and finally bagged seven goals to defeat Detroit 7-4. Wilbert Cude of their four rear-guard performers fighting in the second and at least one goal Maple Leafs had decided edge in play over Falcons for sixty minutes and but for the excellent work of Alec Connell in the losers net, Toronto would have tallied several more counters. Harvey Jackson and one Primeau, two popular members of Toronto's "kid" forward line each garnered two points and are now tied for scoring honors with Hooley Smith of Maroons and Bill Cook of Rangers. Clancy, Levinsky, Horner, Day, Blair and Cotton figured in Gut Boucher's tallies while Kilrea, Smith, Young and Aurie were the marksmen for Detroit.

FOREGO CHANCES IN PLAY-DOWNS

Intermediate Champions Will Not Play Off For Senior Title

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 13 (CP) Intermediate champions in the Ontario Hockey Association will forego their Allan cup elimination play-down chances, it was decided at an O.H.A. executive meeting here last night. Unusually mild weather and resulting postponement of schedules was responsible for the change.

Junior and senior champions will continue as in other years. It was decided to extend date for declaration of group winners in the intermediate series from Feb. 8 to Feb. 12. Conveners of groups have been asked to rearrange schedules but to allow games already played to stand.

The executive expressed a wish that clubs play games on artificial ice wherever possible. It was said more than 175 games have been postponed this season, in the intermediate and junior series.

300 M.P.H. Not Impossibility

New York, N.Y., Jan. 13—Sir Malcolm Campbell, British speed marvel, still believes an automobile can be made to travel at 300 miles an hour and he has hopes of proving it one of these days. Perhaps within a month, perhaps in a longer period.

MEET "BUSHER"

Jackson is one of the hard working forwards on the Toronto Maple Leafs "kid" line-up and he is certainly proving his worth this season.

Current Sport

By The Observer

On Thursday night the hockey fans will have an opportunity to see the local juniors in action when they meet the fast Trenton aggregation at the local arena. After their recent victory in Campbellford, the lads are set to take the lead in their group by whitling the visitors "to camp." The fans who attend the junior games will receive a pleasant surprise in the improvement of the juniors' playing. Coach Tommy Thompson had been working overtime in his endeavors to whip the Cubs into shape and the loss of Card and Wilson only made the local kids try all the harder, with the result that they are now playing a smart brand of combination.

Doug. MacDonald, Jimmie McGuire and Harry Morgan are about the smartest forward line that the Belleville juniors have turned out in a number of years. Nickol, Carl Morgan and Goyer are teaming very nicely and make a smart second line. Scopp is tended a real clever game in his debut as a Cub goaler and with other nights and with the acquisition of Ethier the locals have two real smart goalies. Bill Sherry and Shad Ethier are a hard-hitting pair of defence and other and Bill showed Shad his brother's spirit when he broke into a fight which Ethier and Hendy started in Campbellford. He serious damage was done and the players had a big laugh over it after the game.

Coach Hislop had Bob Scott and Jack Lemmon out for practice Tuesday and Tuesday nights. Bob has returned to the Intermediate Model C skates and was tearing up and down the ice like a youngster. Lemmon is a natural left wing player and if he can get into condition he will have little trouble catching a berth on the team. Lemmon is a real smart left-winger when he played for the Belleville juniors a few years ago and will take him quite some time to get into shape for the hard schedule which is so prevalent in the big six league. The Intermediates face a real smart team tonight when they battle the R.M.C. team in the latter's rink. Cadets were intermediate champions last year and have a fast, tough club to beat this winter, although they lost two of last year's players.

Next Monday night the Belleville and District Ladies' Softball League will hold a meeting for the purpose of introducing the new constitution and by-laws to the team managers. The executive have worked long and hard on same and have a little set of rules, etc., and it is the hope of the executive that all team representatives will be at the Y.M.C.A. ahead of time on Monday. President Frank Deacon will be in the chair and the meeting will get under way precisely on time. Considerable business is to be disposed at this meeting, therefore they cannot waste any time waiting for the late-comers.

We have been recipient of a letter from Peterboro informing us of the fact that Ted Delaney is arranging an amateur boxing bout in that city on January 22. The promoters would like to see a team of Belleville boxers go to the Kawartha City on that date. We do not know of any boxers available on any particular night as Harry Robinson has planned to take Scotty Kline, George Semmler, Harry Fraser, Art Angell and Morris to Kingston on Friday night. Robinson was unable to procure a bout that is worthy of Belleville high school boy champion, or for Jack Parks, but he feels assured that if a return bout be staged then bouts will be arranged for those two lads as well as the rest later.

Coach Ralph Morden has started in earnest to train the Belleville basketball team. They work out three times a week at the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium and are fast rounding into shape. Coach Morden has no less than fifteen players lined up for his club and feels assured that with a little practice they can be rounded into a smart basketball team.

Charles Paddock, former University of Southern California star, who held most of the world's sprint records several years ago, is training for a possible indoor campaign for the 50-yard dash and the hope of being put on the Olympic team.

LEE STARS

Losers on Defensive in Last Frame Although Two Goals Down

Playing their first home game of the season, the Campbellford intermediates went down to defeat before the more experienced Queen's aggregation by the score of 4 to 2 last night at Davidson's arena. Good hockey was impossible due to the condition of the ice, which was covered with water. The game was rather clean considering the softness of the ice which usually had a tendency to encourage rough play. Referee Bill Green only had four penalties all evening. Three of these were handed out to Campbellford and one to Queen's.

The opening period saw the combinated Queen's team out-skate and completely out-score the 'homesters' when Bobbie Lee bagged two goals and Squires on a solo effort scored one for Queen's. Fred Ingram and Buster Whitton each notched one counter for the home club and the period ended three to two in favor of Queen's. Despite the rumours which were quite prevalent locally early this week to the effect that Murphy would not be seen in a Queen's uniform again this year and that Squires was indisposed all these stories were upset when the two husky, hard-hitting defence men appeared on the ice last night.

The second period opened with the players having to resort to individual rushes due to the softness of the ice. Barney Reist turned in one of his best games of the year and his pass to Bobbie Lee made the score 4 to 2 for Queen's. Only one penalty was handed out this session and that went to MacKay of the home club. The condition of the ice in the final canto was so soft that good play was impossible and the period ended with no scoring by either team.

The combination plays of Lee and Reist were the features of the game while the home team resorted to individual playing. Much to the surprise of the fans present the Campbellford team seemed to resort to defensive hockey when they were two goals behind in the final twenty minutes. These tactics were roundly criticized by many of the n New Zealand and the smaller lanity Canada has available for port.

CHEESE WELL MATURED HAS GREAT FUTURE

Shorter Periods

"In recent years," Dr. Ruddick id, "the practice in the retail trade s been to sell cheese in smaller ckages while in taste, and then ter wholly in Canadian. In former s the period during which each ese is sold corresponds to the rela- quantities of the two methods ket. It means that New Zealand ese is kept in the warehouses ths and Canadian for three or r months.

While I do not think the status our cheese has yet suffered to ect seriously, I consider it a ious fact that the exportable sur- s should be reduced as much as ible. It would be a rather serious indictment for reason whether or not that is hardly worth the changing over. The people of Manchester district where New land cheese suits the taste much better than in other dis- ts."

Demand For Matured

Dr. Ruddick mentioned the in- easing demand for Canadian ma- red cheese. This demand, he said, ises from the fact that the supply English and Scottish cheese of h quality, is on the decrease ow- to the growing demand for milk ly consumption. There has a great improvement, he said, in the handling and distribution milk in England in the last seven eight years and, with a consider- le amount of propaganda being rried on, the consumption of milk much larger than it was a few ars ago.

Few Complaints

It is this particular channel for e disposal of Canadian cheese that ds most encouragement for the ture. The quality of cheese consumer ought, because there is no other ntry from which the United ngdom that fills this demand so well as Canada does. It follows wever ,that to develop a satis- actory matured cheese, the quality milk must be controlled to be up h with and the boxing of the ese and its care in the cheese d warehouse must not be neglect- in any way.

Few complaints had been made, Ruddick said in regard to the lity of Canadian cheese. Com- laints related more to the condi- n of the surface of the cheese, such fring from boxing too green; boxes not ong enough to protect it against heat and care in the curing room cold weather.

Most serious of complaints, he de- ared, is the growing objection to quality of Canadian cheese made cold weather. "They say they are ch, flavourless and generally unat- ractive. They don't seem to want ese at any price. They prefer to ve their requirements with New aland cheese."

"LADIES OF THE BIG HOUSE" TENSE DRAMA

"Ladies of the Big House", featuring Sylvia Sidney, Gene Raymond, Wynne Gibson and a distinguished supporting cast, was announced as the feature offering at the Belle, tonight and Thursday. It is said to be a more powerful and tense drama than Warner Berry's famous, "The Big House", which will be remembered by Belleville screen fans.

Life tears them apart on their wedding day, but their love carries on. Nothing could have been more harmless than the tonsil-like that prayed upon their chances for happiness, yet they carries on, snarling the dangers, braving the hardships that seemed to mark them for a life time of sorrow, fighting back at life with the courage that only a strong elemental love can bring, and winning a glorious victory in mutual happiness.

"Ladies of the Big House" is big with the vital urge of humanity that throbs, battles and forces that surge around it, the forces of misplaced justice, traitorous friends, social tradition—all the mad clangor that makes life the exciting drama that it is.

The characters of "Ladies of the Big House" are genuine and believable. The action —and there is plenty of it, is swift and, exciting. The suspense is terrific. The acting is superb. And most of all there is the spiritual lift to this story that will carry the spectator to the heights of human understanding reached.

A very funny Tom Howard comedy titled, "Swimming Instructor", the famous Radio favorites, "The Mooney Sisters in a dandy offering", "Close Harmony" and the popular Metrotone Sound Newsreel are announced for exhibition on the same program.

Wallace Beery and Jackie Cooper as a team, in "The Champ", the sensational drama of the prize fight border, is announced for exhibition at the Belle, commencing Friday.

Beery and Jackie play father and son in the vivid new story, in which the redoubtable Beery is seen as a former fight champion, now down on his luck, living with his son in a border resort and trying to make a "come back" from Rich and Ronce Ates play featured roles in "The Champ".

MARIAN MARSH IS HERE TODAY

Marian Marsh, who in less than a year has made a name for herself known to theatre-goers all over the world, may be seen today at the Capitol Theatre in her first starring vehicle, "Under Eighteen", which was filmed at Warner Bros. studios while the embryonic star was still in her seventeenth year.

Miss Marsh, leaping from obscurity to fame, appeared in rapid succession with leading lady to John Barrymore, Edward G. Robinson and William Powell, whose enthusiastic recommendation caused the producers to raise her to the rank of star without further delay.

"Under Eighteen" presents Miss Marsh in the appealing role of a child of the poor who strives with the untrained eagerness of youth to win a place among the idle rich, where she learns to her sorrow that shop where she earns her meagre living. If she learns to wear expensive clothes and to act in a different way, it is not with-out overcoming many obstacles, and through the bitter experience of her human mistakes and inconsistencies.

The excellent supporting cast includes Warren William, Regis Toomey, Allen Jenkins, Joyce Compton, Emma Dunn, J. Farrell MacDonald, Dorothy Peterson, Norman Foster, Dorothy Appleby, Maude Eburne, Claire Dodd, Murray (Kinell) Paul Porcasi, Mary Doran and Walter McGrail. Archie Mayo who directed "Miss Marsh's first picture, "Illegal", directs "Under Eighteen".

Matinee ladies will be the free gift of silverware on Thursday night.

Preceding the feature picture will be the comedian closet, who— by devious and various means—keep themselves from going to sleep, are not the ones who, as dear old Izaak Walton sanctimoniously complains upon which no furrows rest. No, ma'am! There are fools born and you mustn't break them. One has to do with sufficient patience. Even steam engines have limited endurance. The human mechanism is marvelous and delicate, one of its most marvelous elements is that it responds well to well occupied-tive forces.

Consider what a cheap form of beautifying sleep is! You don't pay much for it.

It is an advantage to sleep well, soundly, dreamlessly. Healthy individuals do. Restlessness, insomnia, affliction endured by those individuals who are not in good health. Improper diet causes disturbances. Blow up on the dental, avoiding heavy articles of food, foods that are not easily digested.

Think not that the term beauty sleep is fanciful. It is a quality-creative. It freshens the complexion, and complexions are subjects of much attention.

Convalescents Like to Help

By Constance Cameron

Probably the most trying time of a child's illness comes when he is well enough to get up yet isn't quite strong enough to do so. He wants something to do, yet often is hard to please and is easily bored with the simple amusements offered.

A good thing to remember at this point is that amusement for its own sake is usually without satisfaction, to anyone, young or old, but the addition of a purpose often makes the same activities interesting.

A child who makes simple toys while getting well, with the thought that they are to be taken by him-self and mother to a children's hospital or home, is likely to take a keener interest in them and derive more satisfaction from their making than when the fashioning is obviously designed to keep him still and quietly.

Old magazines from which pretty colored pictures may be cut, along with discarded catalogs, etc., out of which the pictures may be pasted, make scrapbooks which will interest other children as well as the child making them.

Old strings of beads and colored buttons may be dumped into a bowl to be strung by a little patient as a gift for some little girl.

Paper dolls are easily made from small stockings, stuffed with soft material for the body and head, a portion for the head, arms being fashioned from fingers of cotton glove. Clothing for them, which does not require sewing, can be made from odd pieces of gay colored cloth, including capes and gowns, which mature the joy in the insertion of the doll's head, etc.

There isn't the same sparkle in the eye.

At this stage, the average human being, instead of thinking of a quiet evening, getting to bed early, is wondering how to wear out a rich evening. Different eyes, it is not without overcoming many obstacles, and through the bitter experience of youth her human mistakes and inconsistencies.

"Those women who must be seized by a passion for shamooing their hair along about midnight, or who choose their hour to clean out the medicine closet, who— by devious and various means—keep themselves from going to sleep, are not the ones who, as dear old Izaak Walton sanctimoniously complains upon which no furrows rest. JIM THE CONQUERER

"Have you confidence in this Jake Hagerman, Mr. Ashton Hackett queried.

"How do I know? He's a perfect stranger to me. However, his father and grandfather were both my cronies in the old days, and never cared enough about money to get it into crooked or unfair channels. I'm a great believed in heredity. I have a certain faith that Jake Hagerman is equipped with a complete set of Hibernian inner parts. I've never known a highly courageous man who was a weak man. The crooks of this world are recruited from the weaklings, my boy. However, you should I worry about a smear of sheep? I don't care two hoots in a hollow if they all stand in a stall. I'm only interested in promoting for Roberta a journey to Alaskaland, in order that she may see the other side of the picture. Jake Hagerman interested I've discovered that and it he fails to fall in love with Roberta I'll be much disappointed in the lassie I've selected as my heroine. I've placed Bobby under a tremendous obligation. He has made it impossible for you two to share a delightful secret in common—all of which is to the good. Roberta will be the ace of tankard on the hard, macadamized road to success. She is intending to lose my fortune I drive her to the station. I'll see her competitors and also Bobby out of her set, in which she might find temptation. Bobby is to be the promoter I think I'm just about the right matchmaker."

"But you're giving Don Jaime a free field."

"And why not? He's short and fat weighing about two hundred pounds. He's a nice enough fellow as fellows go, but he's not the ideal mate for a girl of Roberta's temperament. He'd be content to live on my fortune. I'm not going to leave my fortune to any fortune hunter. Jake is not a fortune hunter. He's a self-made man. He's got a fine head on his shoulders, and his father was a fine fellow. Jake is willing and ready to do all this, scatter fatigue germs, distribute nourishment to tissues, muscles, the very blood streams therefore, it is little wonder for us to pite into bed, case the mind of whatever it needs to be eased from worry and give Mrs. Nature a chance. She is a whole first-aid station.

SLEEP IS A BEAUTY BUILDER

By Helen Jamieson (Mme. Qui Sleep is a Beauty Builder

As Benjamin was fond of saying and slightly sooth for that old-time term "beauty sleep." It was a big piece of beauty held forth by adults when themselves stayed up until all hours. It was almost as silly as to have children of her own, too smart, to fall for brief cruel saying or beauty clear nothing of beauty sleep. talk, she knows only too well that a good night's rest does more to plump out her face and her figure than all the beauty and anti-flabby treatment devised by slick manicurists and beauticians.

During waking hours the physical mechanism is under strain. Cells are wearing out. Muscles are getting tired. Fatigue bugs are gnawing at your vitals! After twelve or fifteen hours of any kind of activity—golf, motor, mixing with people, playing with the house guess who has dropped in for a few days talk, she knows only too well that the physical cells is on the skid.

Reddy Takes Home a Treat

By Thornton W. Burgess

Farmer Brown's Boy was putting something down on the barn floor.

Despair, then joy; a fall rebound—The whisp of life spins swiftly round.

—Old Mother Nature.

Nothing lasts forever, neither good times nor bad times, joy nor sorrow, and it is well that it is so. Light follows darkness and in turn darkness foll.ws light. It always has been so and it always will be so.

Reddy Fox lay behind some barrels in a corner of Farmer Brown's barn and shivered with fright as he listened to the barking of Dogs and the sound of angry voices out in the field. Presently he heard a word that was being said, but he knew that it concerned him for there were the voices of the Dogs and hunters who had been chasing him. If they came into that barn it would mean the end for him. He was so hungry and so tired that there was no longer any speed in his legs. Do you wonder that Reddy was almost in despair?

After awhile the sounds outside ceased. There was a long time after the occasional stamp of a horse's hoof and the low contented lowing of cows in their stanchions. These did not trouble him in the least. He was used to the sights and sounds of the barn. Presently he slipped out from behind the barrels and looked around to see all about for a possible opening through which he might escape. There was none and Reddy crept back to hide again behind the barrels.

Presently the door opened and closed. Reddy knew that it was Farmer Reddy wish that his heart wouldn't beat so loudly. Someone began to whistle softly. Reddy knew then that it was Farmer Brown's Boy who was coming. He felt a little easier. He had long known that Farmer Brown's Boy was a friend. Cautiously he peeped out from behind the barrels. Farmer Brown's Boy was putting something down on the barn floor. Then, still whistling softly, he went out, closing the door behind him.

"If only he had left that door open," thought Reddy mournfully.

Once more there was no sound save those made by the contented cows. Reddy lifted his sharp nose and sniffed. Then he crept out and stealthily he crept out of his hiding place. Keeping with every step ready to spring forward like a flash he crept toward the thing Farmer Brown's Boy had left on the barn floor. As he approached closely he quivered all over. There was the smell of food, good food in things. Reddy walked all around that big pan of food. Long and hard he sniffed. Nobody but a fool would be so suspicious of everything except everything that looked good had anything to do with.

But that hunger and he was not long to be denied and soon Reddy was gulping down such a feast as he had not known for a long time. With every mouthful he felt his strength returning. When he could eat no more there was still a good bone with a lot of meat on it. This he took back behind the barrels and lay down to rest and wait for what might happen next.

For a long time nothing happened and at last Reddy took a slight nap. He was awakened by a slight noise outside the barn. The door opened just a little but no one came in. Reddy's ears caught the sound of footsteps and they were going away. For a long time Reddy waited. Then he crept out. That door was still open. The opening was just big enough for him to pass through. He was tempted to rush out. He didn't. He cautiously stole over and peeped out to make sure that no dog or hunter was waiting for him. Then he turned, ran swiftly back to the barrels, picked up the bone in his jaws and once more approached the door. As before he peeped cautiously.

The way was clear. He was sure of it. He slipped out, darted around the corner of the barn and fled at top speed across the snow-covered Green Meadows, straight for the Old Pasture. And how he ran! Reddy could feel his strength had returned. Farmer Brown's Boy watching from a window in the house, chuckled happily.

"I've brought you something," said Reddy proudly as he laid the big bone with meat on it at the feet of Mother Fox and then stood back and watched her pounce on it with keen eyes to tear the meat from it. He knew just how hungry she was and what a treat it would be to her, and somehow he quite forgot all the trouble he had had. Life is full of that.

Six pistol shots rang out and Reddy Fox leaped high in the air and leap by beside Bill Dingles right rear tire. A dose of shrapnel two seconds then six more shots and six more puffs of smoke beside the other tire. Farmer the horseman pulled up, turned and jogged quietly up to the station. Dingle, without a look at Reddy, stepped the reins over his horse's head, and then slowly and with a dignified step, upon which he climbed laboriously and disappeared into the station.

"Did you see, Mac Roberts?" Mignon's voice inquired. "He was all smiles! A smiling murderer! Ugh!"

"Maybe Heaven is more apt to nourish a villain, Mignon. Nor can a man on a running horse do accurate shooting. The range was too long and all the bullets dropped short. Instead of their hits pelting on the fat pony is the rascal's son?"

"He bounced up and down on the herd and was coming on at an easy gallop; behind him a boy on a small pinto pony labored to keep up.

"There's the man that killed your Uncle Tom," Mr. Dingle almost his should have his liberty restricted to the limits of his own property and his life in danger, so when they met up on the range it was a case of shoot on sight. Uncle Tom was within his rights in shooting Reddy Fox, as it was a case of an old man again a young man, an' he couldn't run away as usual. But your Uncle Tom never had a chance, nobody. But you've ally defended his own life an failed to do a good job. An', of course it wouldn't be safe for you to live in a cattle country. They got all the cattle they want on this side, an' they can't be got. Ninety per cent of the population of this country is greasers. You can buy 'em for five dollars."

"I have been informed, Mr. Dingle (Crooked Bill had been her peacemaker) that you have committed a very reprehensible crime to kill a sheep-herder in this country."

"It's almost the principal outdoor sport. And I got a pioneer and a mind bustin' anybody. All that ver- him is Can he sit away with it? Personally, I'm not a bit ashamed of it, but I got my private opinions, an' they're private. I just instantly don't look right for you to be the pace of——"

Mr. Dingle raised his glance from the station platform and gazed steadily at the approaching figure of cattle. He appeared alert, poised for flight; however just what was in his mind to say remained unsaid. Just he was profoundly interested in a horseman who was galloping around the flank of the herd, evidently with the intention of passing on in front of it.

"I wonder if I'll be mosyin' along, ma'am," said Mr. Dingle. "We can discuss our matters when you come to the Antrim ranch."

The horseman had now cleared the herd and was coming on at an easy gallop; behind him a boy on a small pinto pony labored to keep up.

Oils Fail to Make Any Headway on Toronto Board

Toronto, Jan. 13.—Toronto stock exchange market strengthened today without enlisting public support in the way of greater participation in the market.

Walkers was a prime mover on the advance in the early trading and moderately active compared with recent sessions. Short covering is believed to have figured in today's movement which carried the stock up to 3¼.

Ford of Canada reached 19½ in the second hour. Canadian Dredge recovered to 11. C. P. R. advanced ¾ to 10¾. Brazilian firmed to 12 and International Nickel was firmer at 19 and better.

Oils made no headway today. In fact both Mid. and Vulcan showed were some easier as compared with last night. International Petroleum was unchanged.

Goldalgh Flow, which today published its annual statement showing a net loss on the year's operations, was unchanged at 4½.

MINING MART TONE FIRMER

International Nickel and Noranda Advance Somewhat

Toronto, Jan. 13.—A stronger tendency among interested bears, reflecting an upturn in industrial boards, relieved the general dullness on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange market in the forenoon session today. The big portion of issues were unchanged and what few movements occurred were of irregular character. International Nickel and Noranda staged a fair recovery, Dunlop selling up 50 at $18.25 and the latter 40 at $5.60 when taken. Hollinger and Beaver were quiet and Aiax and Oleo up a cent apiece, showing the only changes in the oil section.

Golds were quietly mixed in their action, Lake Shore turning over at $28.75 for a loss of 10 from last night's final and Teck Hughes regaining 5 to $5.05. Barry Hollinger, which has announced plans for capital reorganization, dipped a couple to 8 and Canadian Malartic lost a cent to 6½. Moffat-Hall and Bidgood were fractionally stronger.

Record of Heat Broken as Mercury Rests at 53 Deg.

Jack Frost Looks Far Away With Unusual Heat Registered

WAVE IS GENERAL

King Winter's chief lieutenant, Jack Frost, wore a discouraged look yesterday when he peeped at the nearby thermometer and found to his disgust that the mercury had climbed on a warmer breeze had scuttled all records as far as January last records were concerned. The mercury at eight o'clock this morning stood at 51, but at noon, under the spell of a warm sun which beamed from a cloudless sky and scattered clouds, it rose another two points and broke all existing records as far as January heat is concerned, in the memory of any local resident.

The warm wave is not confined locally but has made its condition felt all over the province. In Toronto, at eight o'clock this morning the mercury perched triumphantly at 56 degrees above, the warmest on January experienced in that district since 1878, when the mercury registered 57 1-3 degrees.

Records kept for the past ten years in Belleville show highest and lowest temperatures for January since 1921.

Another unusual weather fact obtained from a very old resident of this city who has kept close tabs on conditions as they appear informs us that not for over forty years has Quinte's Moira River been as free of ice as it is at the present time. The last footbridge especially ice has always been in evidence on the river long before this but as far as can be said there has been any signs of it and odds 'now will there be this winter.

COAL BIN AND MILD WEATHER

Few Hours Tell Tale and Upset Apple-cart

Pessimistic pruning sometimes, though its more or less common appearance in an editorial room would not be greatly considered trait, creeps into the inner sanctum of the editors (general, city, sports, financial, etc.) and a little dash of caution about a mild, open, acceptable winter's end and spring is thrown in—slips along the day of publication, and perhaps, sometimes, a cautious away ready to put on their right coats when they leave, haul out last years' rubbers, and put their overcoat pockets so far down in their overcoat as to be out of sight, square their shoulders, holler for more heat, recall how cold it was in '00, ring up the pump house to find why the thermometer is not registering lower, and renew their predictions of early fall, for a long severe and trying winter. Perhaps late in January it's all set, now, to continue frosty, frigid weather, and February and the middle of April, anyway. That storm overcoat and the snow-shovelling and, just furnace fireplace, piles of real coal heaving, is done with for the season, and you'll look what old mother nature hands them, after her usual slip-up of eighteen hours or thereabouts, back to coal and coal again, generally satisfactory winter, that has been promised and not met the test of satisfactory since the season started, but the tale has been dumped and it remains to be seen if the fate of predecessor with a drop of temperature for a half day.

RELICS TAKEN FROM MUSEUM

Find Car in Hamilton Loaded With Relics of War

Hamilton, Ont., Jan. 13—Constabulation reigned in the police station here following when the department was notified that a car was standing in front of the Royal Connaught Hotel with a board including a machine gun.

Police officers were sent to the scene and the abandoned automobile was seized upon by the men. In it were found a German machine gun, four rifles used in the Great War, of bygone days, a large quantity of ammunition, guns and a huge knife such as carried by Gurkha troops. The car in which the trophies lay had been stolen from Harry Smith, 224½ James Street North, last night.

Investigation at the Armouries revealed that the machine gun had been taken from the museum. It was discovered that the prized German machine gun, which had been used by the Kaiser's son, was the only one in the collection of specimens had vanished. A compartment containing old weapons had also been broken into and some ancient relics removed.

Letters to the Editor

Editor Ontario Intelligencer:
Sir:—

After reading the statement by Mr. E. T. Austin of Toronto, whether or not regarding the water supplied by the Belleville Water Works, the question arises as to the consistency of the statements made on various occasions by the late council, who have represented that the said city water supply was now perfect since the installation of the filtration plant. Surely after spending the enormous amount of money last year for the purification of water, marine matter from Lake Simcoe should be kept from entering the city of Belleville.

Thanking you in anticipation of publishing this.

I am, yours truly,
A Water Drinker.

Police Court

Only one case was presented before Magistrate Mikel this morning. The accused, a young Toronto man, had been found guilty of the charge of his child last Thursday and sentence was reserved until today. When the young man was brought before His Honor he was informed, by the court, that he must pay $5.00 per week, from now until May 1st, and $10.00 a week from then on for the upkeep of the child. The sentence stipulated, by the court, that due to unemployment he had been allowed to pay the money for the child's upkeep in this manner but would endeavour to meet the payments hereafter. Two years suspended sentence was imposed upon the accused should he fail to keep the above agreement he is liable to the imprisonment.

The great problem of a Dominion-wide relief is the problem of the country without saving Mr. Hoover.—Passaic News.

Quebec Beckons Winter Sports' Devotees

Winter sports in wide variety; excellent accommodation and good company are the order of the day for those who make Canada's ancient Capital, the historic city of Quebec, their winter headquarters. Here, overlooking the mighty St. Lawrence River and set in surroundings of unsurpassed beauty, is a city whose history rivals that of the romantic capitals of Europe. On the site of the residence of the French Governors' stands the grim Citadel. The Canadian Pacific Railway's world-famous hotel, the hub of all activities, has established reputations as a great hostelry is giving special attention to the development of the various winter sports that have been added to the program for their comfort. In addition to the toboggan slide on Dufferin Terrace and the hotel's great rinks, curling rinks will be the means of the following of rarely fame. THE BEASTS OF TARZAN, No. 11.

erally had Tarzan landed on the sleek hide of he deer with a force that sent the animal to its ee, then he grasped a horn in either hand. With single powerful wrench he twisted its neck before animal was ever aware of its merciful fate. Now e lion was roaring in baffled rage close behind n. Like a flash, Tarzan swung the deer across shoulders and leaped for the tree.

He caught the limb in his mighty grasp and, at the instant Numa sprang, drew himself and his prey out of reach of the lion's cruel claws. There was a thud as the baffled cat fell back to earth. From the safety of a higher branch, Tarzan looked down with grinning face at the gleaming yellow eyes of the other wild beast which watched him so hungrily from the ground.

At length the ape-man tired of his sport and swinging over into the branches of a nearby tree climbed to a dead fork in its trunk. Here, with some twigs, he rubbed up a small fire and cooked himself a juicy steak. Never in the choicest of his exclusive London clubs had food tasted better! Could his fellow peers in the House of Lords have seen Lord Greystoke thus!

When he had finished, he left the balance of the carcass in a high fork of the tree where he had dined. And with Numa trailing below him, still keen for revenge, he made his way back to his tree-top shelter. Here he slept until the sun was high the following morning. The next few days he spent in completing his weapons and exploring the jungle.

UNCLE'S VISIT

Little Mrs. Letitia Weston hung up the receiver; and, with the assistance of her small, began to busy herself before the mirror.

"So Tom's unexpectedly old uncle of the fusty ideas and the rollies books is in the city, and is coming up alone. And I must receive him in the most gracious manner. Well, 'manner' dear, there is no need to caution your little wife about that. If only he could see how I shall welcome Uncle Jonas of the silliest hour and the big coals out west. Now Nora, just a few touches here, and then over there. There, that is just right. I am pink enough any way, Nora. You know, Mr. Bissell calls me 'Sweet pea,' because I am so pink-and-white."

Then Weston and Letitia had been married three years; but Letitia never had met Uncle Jonas. Tom's old bachelor uncle and his hope of one day becoming a millionaire. Jonas Weston was a rough-and-tumble westerner who had made himself of money on a cattle ranch, but who never had spent any of it on personal polish.

It was seldom he left the ranch, except on specific business connected with the marketing of his cattle, or the purchase of a pumping outfit to relieve the terridity of the range when the rainfall was low. But now he had decided to pay Tom Weston, his nephew, a visit. He had heard of the wife, and had been eager to make her acquaintance, primarily for the purpose of making an estimate of Tom's judgment in selecting a life partner. Uncle Jonas had been waiting sometime to hear the announcement of an heir in the Wes ton household, but none had been forthcoming.

In this matter he had been seriously disappointed. According to his mind, these city people cared little about children. Apparently they had no time for them. Uncle Jonas had run his fingers through the hair on the back of his head many times in thoughtful attitude over the childless situation in Tom Weston's household. At last he had planned a visit. He had arranged affairs at the ranch so that he felt it safe to be away for a fortnight; and here he was in the city.

"What is that, Nora? A car is stopping before the house, you say—a taxi?" Letitia fluttered about from before the mirror. "Why, of course, it must be Uncle Jonas. There, that will do. No; never mind, Nora—I know it will be Uncle Jonas' idea that I should meet him at the door."

Mrs. Tom Weston tripped lightly down the hallway; and the door knocker hardly had fallen, before the door was thrown open and Letitia stood in a most bewitching pose before the big man, somewhat past middle age, who stood in the entrance. There was an unmistakable air of the well-to-do about him; and Mrs. Weston felt fully assured of the identity of her visitor.

"Oh, this must be Uncle Jonas!" she exclaimed, with a little uplift of the chin and a perfect halo of smiles.

"Great, little un! An' this here must be Tom Weston's wife, Letitia! Uncle Jonas should eat his arms —" am beside myself with delight!" bubbled Letitia. Thinking she caught Uncle Jonas' sun-brown ed face between her small palms and kissed him again and again gleefully.

"Why, by the livin', I believe yuh air glad to see me." Uncle Jonas cleared his throat, and he mused, as Letitia marched him inside to the drawing room, that if Tom had been looking for something real pretty to gaze upon regularly, he certainly had found it.

But the rancher passed his fingers through his back hair, and his face flushed for a moment as that thought recurred to his mind that no children had been announced in this household. Despite Letitia's graciousness, Uncle Jonas felt sharp resentment.

"No;" he told himself, "this little butterfly could never have succeeded with trundle beds and lullabies. But I'm glad to see her, anyhow, little livin'!"

However, Letitia vivaciousness was not altogether displeasing, although there were hyphens and hyphens in Uncle Jonas' thoughts. Letitia rattled away with a splendid fund of small talk, some of which amused the westerner, and some of which might have been expected for an old fogy of his standard. Presently a girl appeared in the doorway and Letitia looked up expectantly.

"What is it, Norah?" she asked.

Uncle Jonas pricked up his ears, and a broad smile moved his features. Norah, the girl, was all ears, as he turned away his head, to chuckle under his breath:

"Nurse is it? The sly kids not; to have written me all about it; when Tom told me the news he said that matter was so dinged close to his heart."

"I have finished his bath, ma'am" "An is a nice, fat baby, the livin'! Uncle Jonas exclaimed to himself, in transports of joy.

"Very well, Norah; you may put on his little suit," directed Letitia. "He can be downstairs, soon."

"And the little red-topped boots," exploded Uncle Jonas, no longer able to contain himself. "He shore yuh don't forgit the boots!"

"What, Uncle Jonas, I hardly thought you would be interested in —"

"Interested? Interested? Say, look a hear, young woman; I am a regular sport myself. An' I don't like to tell you, ye're a pair o' sly 'uns, not to let me know about it. What does the little fellow look like, anyway?"

"Why, Mr. Bissell says he is a thoroughbred, just like his father." Letitia was growing enthusiastic.

"Bissell? Who is Bissell?"

"Why, he is a great sportsman—Tom's best friend. Tom and Mr. Bissell are like brothers, you know."

"Well, I guess he must be all right."

Letitia nodded toward the girl. "You may go, Tillie," she said, "and be sure you use manicure his little nails carefully."

"And bring him down here quick and fast, girl; do you hear?" Uncle Jonas waved an arm through the air, at the same time chuckling delightedly.

"Well," declared Letitia to herself, "this certainly is a new side to Uncle Jonas' character; but I am delighted to find it."

"You know, Letitia," began Uncle Jonas confidentially: "I know we are going to get along famously, you and me, for I always have taken a likin' to you in the past few minutes."

"Oh, Uncle!"

"Yes! An' I've jest decided to bank a pretty nice dot here for you an' Tom."

"Uncle Jonas, you are an angel!"

"Not by a dinged sight, girl—not yet! By the way, what is the little pets name?"

"Why, you must know that we would not have thought of naming him anything but Jonas, Uncle dear. We agreed on the name right away."

Uncle Jonas laughed heartily. "Took—good for you!" he exclaimed.

Just at this time Nurse Tillie entered, bearing Jonas in her arms. Uncle Jonas gave one look, relieved himself of a snort that might have done credit to a hippo potamus lap-ding knee-deep in cayenne pepper, and cleared the room between himself and the hall doorway in a bound. Letitia remained in sudden terror, and flew after him. But the street door closed in her face, cutting short the sound of another snort from Uncle Jonas.

"Jonas" was a half-grown bull terrier out for his morning constitutional.

450 BIRTHS IN YEAR 1931

This is Considerable Increase Over Previous Year

In the vital statistics of the city of Belleville recently released by the city officials it shows many marked surprises during the year 1931.

There was a considerable increase in births and a decrease in both the deaths and the marriages. The decrease in the marriages is probably due to the result of the depression which was so prevalent last year.

There were 450 births registered in Belleville last year which is 39 of an increase over the previous year. Of this 213 were male and 237 were female. Although there were 132 marriages registered they, however, showed a decrease of 19 over the previous year, while the deaths showed a decrease of 8 over 1930. In the deaths reported 127 were male and 118 were female making a total of 246 deaths in Belleville in 1931.

The births given out monthly showed January had 19 male births and 17 female births making a total of 36, February had 14 male and 11 female making a total of 35; March recorded 21 male and 18 female, making a total of 39 births for that month; April had 17 male and 17 female giving 34 births as a total for the month; May saw 20 male births and 17 female for a total of 37 births; June saw 20 male and 26 female, making a total of 46 for the month; July 19 male and 18 female, total 32; August 20 male and 16 female, totalling 36; September 20 male and 25 female, totalling 45; October 21 male and 32 female, totalling 46 for the month; November saw 13 male and 23 female with a total of 34; December gave 15 male births and 19 female for a total of 34 births for the last month of the year.

The deaths by months were as follows: January, 13 male, 11 female, total 24; February, 7 male, 14 female, total 21; March, 10 male, 11 female, total 21; April, 13 male, 10 female, total 22; May, 9 male, 9 female, total 18; June, 12 male, 8 female, total 20; July, 13 male, 8 female, total 18; August, 11 male, 7 female, total 20; September, 10 male, 11 female, total 26; October, 19 male, 8 female, total 19; November, 4 male, 10 female, total 14; December saw 10 male deaths and 13 female deaths for a total of 23. Betrothal Moon

By N. Florence Leech

Robert Sutton's eyes travelled searchingly from group to group as the guests of the Princess Anne Cottage Hotel mingled out of the dining room. It was a typical carefree, bright-clad summer resort crowd, and guiltily he realized that he was here for the especial purpose of making one girl unhappy. But how was he to find her?

"She's skinny and dark and probably a wisp of hair will be in her eyes," was all he had to go on—just a thin girl in blue, and nearly was a blonde and a fat one hurried by, hair blowing across her face. How to pick—

"No thanks; I'm going out to watch the waves," a slender brunette was saying, as she turned her back on a table of bridge players.

"But, Lola—Lola Dayton—" an exasperated voice called after her.

Robert swung around eagerly. It was Lola Dayton he was looking for.

The girl had started toward the tiny summer-house overlooking the ocean and in three steps he overtook her.

"Pardon me; but are you Miss Dayton?"

She lifted surprised grey eyes to his, and a wayward wisp blowing like a strand of dark hair across her uncurbed cheek.

"Yes," she answered, in a deep, rather husky voice, "but why?"

"A mutual friend asked me to look you up. I have a message for you." He noticed as he spoke that she wore only one ring, a heavy Greek seal ring on her left finger. What had she done with Paul's diamond?

"And the friend—" she was asking.

"Paul Koontz."

"Oh!" There was apprehension in her voice and she flushed darkly.

"I'm Robert Sutton, his childhood friend, and that is why I promised to tell you myself. Why was he floundered helpless! She was so little, so appealing, so pretty. Paul was a brute; how dared he treat her so carelessly? Why was he surrendering anyone so adorable?

Lola laid down her unringed hand on Robert's. "What is it you have to tell me?" she asked, softly.

Without violition he lifted her hand to his lips. He must be crazy, he decided, swiftly.

Three days later this, when Robert returned from the west, he had mentioned to Paul that he was going to Virginia Beach. His friend asked if he would do him a favor.

"You are my best friend" he reminded him, "and this is your chance to prove it." Paul went on to say that he was engaged to a splendid girl, but he had discovered that their engagement was a big mistake. He had known her only two weeks, and he had been swept off his feet.

"Why did you stop loving her?" Robert lifted with unfeigned curiosity.

"I didn't love her. I merely thought I did," Paul had answered indignantly. "Why, we haven't anything in common. She likes biology and has a laboratory at home, and she is more interested in bugs than in fixing herself up. I want my wife to be essentially and wholly feminine; frilly and cuddly, and crazy about me and nothing else."

Robert unwillingly agreed to bear the news of the broken engagement. "But I'm sure to like her than if I wrote a letter," Paul had insisted tactfully.

So now Robert was holding Lola's hand, and trying to soften the blow to her pride and heart. She listened quietly, but color burned in her cheeks, and her eyes were bright with tears.

"Don't—don't, let it bowl you over," he begged. "Let's go to the casino and dance."

She laughed on a sudden, high note of hysteria. "To be sure, John Alden," she cried. "On with the dance! How brave she was! He determined to do all in his power to help her to forget.

Next morning he rose at five o'clock to take her swimming; and when she appeared in a scrap of red bathing suit, he wondered why Paul did not consider her slender body, her slim face, beautiful.

For three magic days they danced and swam and played tennis together, then she began pointedly to avoid him. "She hates me for the news I brought, and she can't pretend any longer," he thought, melancholily.

He tried to make himself agreeable to other girls, time, by failing in this, tramped the beach in solitary misery, or sat sulking over a book; for the aching loneliness in his heart made him realize that he had loved Lola from his first sight of her.

Though she loves Paul, and as a friend of both of them I must try to bring them together," he decided, manfully. "I'll go back home and talk to Paul."

There was no train until night, and to fill in the time he strolled up the beach, and stopped to rest on a tumble-down beach-hut, abandoned on the sand. He sat inside the door, leaning against the wall, and closed his tired eyes. Then he opened them quickly for someone over in the shadows was sobbing; someone lying on a ragged bit of canvas, and too absorbed in her grief to hear his intruding footsteps. He rose and backed out, but struck his arm a reverberating blow. She raised up on an elbow, facing him.

"Lola," he gasped.

"Oh, it's you." Her eyes were swollen with weeping, her voice a husky whisper.

Impetuously he fell on his knees beside her. "Lola, dear, don't cry so. Listen, Lola; I'm going to Richmond tonight, and I'll bring Paul back to you, I promise—"

A choking half-sob, half-laugh. "No, oh no; you mustn't—"

"But you love him—"

"I do not!" She sat up straight, and smoothed back her hair out of her eyes, and with a grimy handkerchief scrubbed her flushed face.

Watching, he remembered that Paul had said she wasn't feminine enough. Foolish, foolish, Paul. He folded his arms tightly to keep from encircling her drooping shoulders.

"I don't love Paul," she repeated, slowly. "I took off his ring a week ago, intending to return it when I see him."

"Then why have you avoided me?"

"—I didn't want your pity. You thought I was jilted and you were sorry for me. I couldn't endure that."

"I wanted you to be happy, for I love you. I've always loved you, and only loyalty to Paul has kept me silent," he declared earnestly.

She placed her small, brown hand on his knee. "What a lot of time we've wasted," she whispered.

His eager arms drew her close. "But oh, my dear,"there will be a moon tonight," he answered. "A golden, betrothal moon."

MANY AFFAIRS CONTRIBUTED

Wholesale And Retail Prices Must Come Closer Together

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 13 (CP) — "Cost of living index numbers with very few exceptions fell much lower in 1931 than in 1930 which may be taken as a favorable development since most authorities consider that wholesale and retail price levels must come much closer together before a substantial improvement in business can be anticipated," says a report on prices movements in 1931 issued today by the Bureau of Statistics.

With regard to world conditions the report says: "A pronounced degree of instability in political and financial affairs during 1931, prevented much improvement in the disorganized condition of price levels. Elections in Great Britain and Australia, governmental crisis in Germany, a change of government in France, a flare-up of hostilities between Japan and China and other lesser happenings, all added uncertainty to affairs to economic, necessary and tended to complicate the restoration of prices to normal relationships.

Embarrassing Moments

"Good Bandit" Gives Self Up

Last of Gang Yields With Blessing of Parish Priest

Ajaccio, Corsica, Jan. 13.—While the assembled villagers of Moca Croce cheered and wept, a fugitive from justice named Etiori, last of the so-called "good bandits", has surrendered to the authorities.

He gave himself up yesterday with the blessing of a parish priest as an example, to "bad bandits" whom the police had been tracking in the Corsican woods for months.

Etiori took to the bush 26 years ago after the killing of a man and woman in a vendetta and the slaying of a gendarme who pursued him. Since that time he had acted as arbitrator in the region, dispensing rough justice to the country folk, who honored him.

He twice was condemned to death by default.

CANADA IS NOW OVER GOVERNED

Not a State Which is Not Bankrupt or on Verge

Hamilton, Ont., Jan. 13 (CP) — Senator George Lynch-Staunton, K. C., last night told the men's club of Do Park First United Church there was no reason why people should suffer want "if we lived within our means."

Senator Lynch-Staunton said Canada was over-governed. "There is not a state in this empire which is not bankrupt or on the verge. The government has interested itself in everything at the people's expense. Parasites swarm everywhere and every fifth person is employed in the service of one government or another."

Toronto, Jan. 13 (CP)—Arrest of two and disclosure of a lottery scheme involving more than 70,000 followed a raid yesterday by police on a downtown office, charged with conducting a lottery, Diana Keith Mason, 38, and Jules Colterman, 33, both of Toronto, were arrested. More than 70,000 slips were confiscated in the raid.

Tickets for the lottery, police say, were being sold in connection with a dance, sponsored by the Swiss Canadian Aid Society, to be held here Friday night. According to information printed on the tickets, cash awards here were to be given away. First prize was $10,000; second, $5,000 and others ranged from $2,500 down.

Has Head Full of Cube Roots

New York, Jan. 13—Urbane L. Barrett, Los Angeles lawyer, appeared before the New York City University Mathematics Club and revealed the details of a secret he has held for 27 years. But he would not reveal the secret itself—he studied whereby Barrett extracts the cube root of figures ranging from thousands to trillions without writing a single figure.

Barrett fell upon his mysterious process while "riding a cow on the Texas plains."

He called for a number and one of the club members supplied 714,689,230,912,792. Before the normal individual could recite the number itself Barrett announced:

"The cube root of that number is 89,589."

Barrett said his mental trick is only a hobby and had no practical value, he added, since a slide rule or an adding machine is just as fast and not nearly so troublesome.

MISS M. SLADE MAKES PLEA TO CARRY ON

Although Gandhi's Voice is Silenced, No Truce Should Come

MORE HOMESPUN

Asks Natives to Buy Cloth and Dresses Made at Home

Ahmedabad, India, Jan. 13 (AP)—Miss Madeline Slade, daughter of a British Admiral, made a plea to Indian Nationalists, today to carry on the civil disobedience campaign of Mahatma Gandhi.

"Now that Gandhi's voice is silenced behind prison walls," she said, "it is all the more our sacred duty to carry out his dearest wish — spinning and weaving homespun."

If Indians have fulfilled this wish previously, she argued, Gandhi would not now be in prison. "If the whole nation wore homespun," she said, "we would have had strength and unity such as would have made it impossible for the British to have iron heels upon our heads.

"We must repent and mend our ways. It is better and cheaper to wear homespun cloth, made by our own brothers and sisters, than to exist under foreign domination with clothes however fine and cheap."

Before he was arrested, the Mahatma instructed Miss Slade, known now as Mira Behn, to do nothing to warrant her own incarceration. For this reason, up to now, she has confined herself chiefly to spinning and quiet work among the inmates of Gandhi's institution here.

BLIZZARD IS TAPERING OFF

One Frozen in Blinding Snow Storm in West

Winnipeg, Jan. 13—A roving three-day blizzard that caused one death and severe damage to communication wires in the West last night tapered off, giving way to a forecast cold wave slated to reach its worst tomorrow. All three prairie provinces are to share in the downward shift of temperatures.

Less than 100 yards from his home at Glen Ellen, Sask., the frozen body of 16-year-old Lagar Taylor was found today. He had visited a neighbor some distance away Monday night and left for home a few minutes before the blinding wind and snow storm swept over the country near Rosetown.

JAPAN'S "OLD FOX" AND FAMILY

Here is the first intimate photograph of M. Inuyoshi Inukai, new Premier of Japan, made as the family circle, at their home in Tokyo. Left to right are Mrs. Tsuyoshi Inukai, Premier Inukai, Mrs. Nak ako-San, his daughter-in-law, and one of the Premier's many grandchildren. The venerable statesman rarely has the opportunity for family reunions when he is directing his country's Manchurian policy, so this photo may be regarded as distinctly unusual.

SENTENCED ON THEFT COUNT

Wilfred Smith of Wellington, to "Pen" For Two and Half Years.

PICTON, January 12.—William Watson, Henry Russell and Percy Vancoit appeared in the local police court before Magistrate J. E. Cainan this week charged with theft. They pleaded guilty and were fined ten dollars and costs. The charges were laid after two hens and a fifteen gallon can of coal oil had disappeared from the home of Mr. James Kavanagh of Cherry Valley last November.

Wilfred Smith of Wellington, appeared in County Court, Wednesday before Judge E. H. McLean charged with breaking into the safe in the office of the Hogg and Lytle plant at Wellington. The evidence was heard on Wednesday and the Judge reserved sentence after finding the accused guilty until Thursday morning. His Honor then imposed a sentence of two years and six months.

The charge against Smith arose out of a series of robberies from the cash register of the Hogg and Lytle Company office at Wellington. The robberies were first noticed about October 21st, and continued over a period of three weeks, the last robbery occurring at noon on November 20. On the night of Nov. 20, the safe was blown, and the cash register broken into.

Provincial Constable Loveless had been notified by Ralph MacDonald, an employee of the firm, that money was being missed and they had taken note of the number of the bills in the safe. Bills with numbers corresponding to those noted were later found in possession of Smith. It was brought out in cross examination that six sales had been made and that some of the bills had been given out in change, and no record of the numbers on the bills having been kept track of. However, witnesses were able to account for these bills until a time after the last robbery. The accused had given Clifford Cleave, a garage man, a $2 bill for the use of his car and this bill was one of those having numbers that he had been asked to watch for. He had notified the village constable, Charles Pearce, who in turn notified Provincial Constable Durnford at Picton who arrested Smith. A one-dollar bill that Smith had given his wife, also bore the number of one of the missing bills.

In cross-examination it was brought out that Smith had attended a raffle at Brighton on the eve of the safe blowing. Asked if he had any other means of income other than work, Smith replied that he had, stating that it was boot-legging.

4 MEN UNDER UPSET COUPE ONE INJURED

John Walsh, of Huff's Island, Suffers Chest Injury

DRIVER HELD

Accident on Bay Bridge Investigated By Police

One man, Mr. Jack Walsh, Huff's Island, lies in Belleville General Hospital with severe chest injuries and badly lacerated hands, the driver of the car, Mr. Wm. Adams, also of Huff's Island, is in the city police station, and two more men, Mr. Henry Wallbridge and Mr. Morris Lee are at their home, suffering with minor injuries as the result of a motor accident which occurred on the Bay Bridge at twelve-fifteen this morning.

Answering a telephone call to the Bay Bridge at that hour in the morning, Sergt. Harman, in company with Police Constables Gow and Izard found a coupe overturned and the party in various positions underneath the machine. After some effort the officers managed to extricate the men and immediately rushed them to the office of Dr. Morgan. After receiving treatment at the doctor's office, Mr. Walsh, whose injuries were found to be of a rather serious nature was despatched in the ambulance to the hospital. The other three men were turned over to Traffic Officer Print who questioned them at length and immediately placed Mr. Adams, the driver in the cell. The other two men were allowed to proceed to their home on their own recognizance to appear in Picton Police court in the morning, together with Mr. Adams, who will probably be charged with negligent driving.

How the accident occurred does not seem to be known. It is thought however that the slippery roads, together with the fact there were four of them in the coupe were the contributory causes. The car evidently struck the east railing of the bridge and turned over, pinning the men under the machine. That the accident was not of a more serious nature was surprising to the officers who state that the car was a complete wreck. The young men are all residents of Huff's Island. Walsh according to hospital reports spent a very satisfactory night.

Obituary

MR. BENSON SINE

On Monday, January 4th, Mr. Benson Sine passed away at the home of his son William on the 4th Concession of Sidney.

Early last August Mr. Sine contracted asthma, but though he received every medical help possible, other complications arose which his system was unable to stand so he gradually weakened until the end came.

Mr. Sine was born in Rawdon Township June 15th, 1851, being the youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Sine. He was thus in his 77th year at the time of his death and was the last survivor of a family of thirteen children.

He was a man of quiet, homeloving disposition and though interested in all public affairs took no active part in them and was a member of the former Methodist Church now known as the United Church.

His wife, Miss Theresa Kemp predeceased him about fourteen years ago and since then he has made his home principally with his son and son, William, though several months were spent with a younger son Everett who at the time lived near Trenton.

He is survived by three sons and two daughters, William of Sidney, Everett and Thomas of Harwood; Mrs. Frank Watson of Orillia and Mrs. Geo. Clark of Toronto.

One son, Bidwell died when about 7 year of age, another son Aaron, was killed in the Great War and one daughter Mrs. Jas. A. Hill of Montreal died 13 years ago.

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. E. B. Benedict, who held a short service at the house, and then the cortege proceeded to Wallbridge United Church where he preached a most impressive sermon.

During the service Mr. Wm. Wickson rendered a most appropriate solo "God will take care of him."

Interment was made in the family plot in Frankford cemetery. The bearers being Messrs. Percy Grover, Wm. Wickson, Frank Woods, Chas. Fisher, Harry Grover and Hilton Sherry.

Miss Mildred Sine of Belleville, a niece contributed a beautiful wreath of flowers; Mr. and Mrs. T. Irwin and family, a basket of flowers; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Sine a spray.

A sad circumstance in connection was the burial of Dorothy Sine,8-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Sine at the same time and in the grave below her grandfather. She died early Tuesday morning in Peterboro Hospital and was brought to Frankford on Thursday.

Young Heiress Goes to Prison for 20-25 Year Term

Second Degree Murder is Verdict in Death of Garage Mechanic Lover

Helen Joy Morgan, 27-Year-Old Heiress Convicted

LONG TERM GIVEN

Prisoner Screams Denials of Charges at Close of Trial

Flint, Mich., Jan. 14—Miss Helen Joy Morgan, 27-year old heiress, was convicted today of second degree murder for the slaying last April 22 of Leslie Casteel, her garage-mechanic sweetheart, and immediately was sentenced from 20 to 25 years in prison.

Judges James S. Parker, of the Circuit Court, in passing sentence, recommended 20 years.

Miss Morgan, who screamed denials of premeditation of the slaying at the close of the trial yesterday, remained calm as the sentence was pronounced. Her mother, who has been her constant companion, also was unmoved.

A Genesee county jury of twelve retired farmers and business men returned the verdict after four hours and forty minutes of deliberation.

The case was given to the jury at 5:43 p.m. yesterday, and, after more than three hours deliberation, the jurors retired for the night at 9 p.m., continuing this morning.

FIRE DESTROYS SIDNEY HOME

Edward Dorian's House Caught Fire From Unknown Origin

Starting from an unknown origin, fire completely gutted the home of Mr. Edward Dorian, situated on what is known as the Institute Lane just west of Belleville, this morning. The house, which is of brick structure, is on the property of the Ontario School for the Deaf and belongs to the Province of Ontario.

The fire started in the back wood shed from where it spread in front to the southwest corner and then at back of the structure was a mass of flames. Mr. Dorian, who has lived since Christmas, rose and prepared her husband's breakfast after which she retired as she was not feeling well. The morning mail was finished about 7.30 a.m. and there was no sign of fire at that time. Mrs. Dorian stated this morning that there had been no one in the woodshed since 6.30 p.m. yesterday afternoon. The blaze was seen by Fire Chief Ponton at 9 o'clock and the local fire department were immediately notified. Chief Wm. Lynch took the No. 1 hose truck to the scene and they soon arrived upon the scene. Chief Ponton left the No. 2 truck at the No. 2 fire station at their posts in case of a further alarm.

When the firemen arrived at the scene of blaze, the fire had gained considerable headway. The fire started in the northwest corner of the woodshed and driven by a southwest wind it soon enveloped the whole back and front of the shed. The firemen battled the blaze as best as they could under the circumstances, as there is only one hydrant near the houses on that lane.

Before the firemen arrived most of the furniture was removed from the down-stairs quarters by the neighbors who aided in every manner. The wood-shed and back kitchen were completely burned to the ground as they were of a wooden structure. The upstairs of the house was completely gutted by the fire, while the down-stairs portion was damaged by water and smoke principally. The firemen succeeded in putting the roof for a considerable distance, from the top to the bottom of the house, and thus saved it from the fire, which was lodged between the partitions. The cause of the fire at time we seen in the basement after the fire was under way.

Mr. Edward Dorian, the occupant of the house, has been a very valued employee of the Ontario School for the Deaf for a number of years. Mr. Dorian has filled the position of fireman for the school for over 20 years and has a host of friends in Belleville and vicinity.

The Village Council has not yet been estimated but no doubt will be quite heavy as the building was a complete loss.

Life Preserver Washed Ashore at Collins Bay No Sign of Crew is Found

Midwinter Wreck in Lake Ontario is Feared

WRECKAGE FOUND

Craft May Be Scow or Tug, Mariners Say

Kingston, Jan. 14.—A shipwreck in the middle of January—perhaps the first in the Great Lakes' history—is suggested with the washing up on Wednesday afternoon near Collins Bay of wreckage and a life preserver bearing the name "Varuna."

Whether or not the craft the "Varuna" was and where she hailed from—her name does not appear in shipping records—is known by the nature of the wreckage to be a complete loss, and fears are expressed for anyone on board her.

She was not a large craft, mariners agreed as they viewed the flotsam washed ashore; perhaps a tug or scow.

The same wreckage, however, also convinced waterfront men that the Varuna was no hulk, no worthless old craft abandoned on the lake and left to find her own grave. The planking was heavy, fairly new and in sound condition, they said, with well preserved white paint covering while no caulking still clung in shreds to the timbers.

Several life preservers were found. One clearly bore the name "Varuna", all bore the inscription "Made for the Armstrong Cork Company", and "Inspected No.—" but the name of the inspector could not be deciphered. All were fairly new.

No sign of the crew could be found on the lake-shore or on Brothers Islands, where the greatest of the wreckage was discovered.

The fierce gale which raged for a short time on Wednesday is thought to have driven the craft into shallow water, where she broke up, unobserved on the lonely shore-line.

TENDENCY TO LET DOWN

Statement Made By F. Herns at West Ontario Dairy Meeting

London, Ont., Jan. 14 (CP) During the past year there has been a tendency among dairymen to "let down" in the care given milk on producing inferior and defective milk than in previous years, declared Frank Herns, veteran secretary of the Dairy Farmers Association of Western Ontario, making his annual report to the 66th annual convention of the association today. However, the chief dairy instructor and assistant secretary of Western Ontario reported that the majority of dairymen were making an unusual in endeavouring to supply good quality milk.

At the present time, owing to the depressed condition of the butter market, a careful watch must be kept on quality, he emphasized and urged co-operation. Mr. Herns reported producers if Western Ontario to maintain its high percentage of first grade cheese.

Dr. John A. Ruddick, retiring commissioner for Canada, delivered his valedictory address to the meeting this morning when he reviewed the work of the association since the Federal Government Department of Agriculture from the time of its inception in 1886. The convention passed a resolution of regret at Dr. Ruddick's retirement from the association of his services to the dairy industry and presented Mr. Herns presented him with a gift of a fountain pen as a token of the association's esteem.

The battered hull can be seen near the surface of the Lake, just a few miles from Fort Ticonderoga.

The Trumbull was 76 feet long and carried 45 men and three guns. Commanded by Colonel Wiggleworth. She was one of three vessels that survived the defeat of Benedict Arnold by the British under Sir Guy Carleton and Captain Pringle. The other survivors were the Revenge and the Enterprize.

REDNER GIVEN FULL DAMAGE

Judge Lavell Finds Plaintiff Cause of Accident

An interesting case was tried before His Honour Judge Lavell at the Court House this morning, the jury acting out of a bad motor car accident that occurred west of Odessa at Cooper's last. Bernard Redner of Redneyville with his brother, Keith Redner, were travelling west along Highway No. 2 and Mr. Marcus Plunkett accompanied by his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Black were proceeding east. Redner's car was about to turn to the north intending to go into the lane at the Cooper farm when Redner who was approaching from the east, when he noticed Cummings turning across the west bound track applied his brakes, turned to the right and tried to avoid the accident by passage in front of the Cummings car. He struck a line of trees in front of the Parrott property. Cummings claimed Redner's car crashed into his. Redner claimed that Cummings car struck him in the left rear wheel and the trailer attached to the Redner car swung around and damaged the Cumming's car. The Plunketts testified from where they were on the scene in taking statements from all parties that Redner was driving carelessly in the matter of speed. Evidence of Police Magistrate at Napanee Cummings, Napanee police constables brought action against Redner for the damages sustained by him. Redner defended the counter claiming for the damages that he had sustained. The jury after being concluded in Napanee, Judge Lavell's charge, brought in Redner the sole cause of the accident in making the left hand turn without complying with the provisions of the Highway Traffic Act and the rules of the road. Judge Lavell awarded Cumming's action against Redner and gave judgment for Redner against Cummings for the full amount of his damages together with Redner's costs and a sound fee of $15.00. Major R. D. Ponton, K.C., counsel for the defendant, Redner. W. B. Herrington, K.C., counsel for the plaintiff, Cummings.

F. G. OKE CO. WIN CASE

Collingwood Merchant Claims No Responsibility For Wife's Orders

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 14 (CP) — E. Topp, Collingwood merchant, was unsuccessful before Mr. Justice Garrow in action brought against Gordon Hall in a suit against F. G. Oke Co., Collingwood, operating in Toronto.

Topp brought action to have a memorandum that he signed on March 31, 1928, set aside. He also sought declarations that he was not responsible for any transactions of Mrs. Hazel Topp, his wife, or Mrs. Harris, with Oke and Co., and that the latter firm was not entitled to hold shares belonging to Mrs. Sarah Topp as security for any account other than a purchase that Topp made on January 11th or 12th 1932.

Mr. Justice Garrow dismissed the action. He granted, at the request of A. C. McMaster, K.C., the plaintiff's counsel, a fifteen day stay of judgment. J. W. Pickup appeared for F. G. Oke and Co.

MARTIAL LAW AT PEIPING

Peiping, Jan. 14 (AP) — Peiping was thrown into a mild state of panic last night when a rumor spread quickly informally and suddenly declared martial law. Subsequent reports that 200 members of the Japanese legation guard were marching in formation outside the legation quarter.

The gates of the city were closed, theatres were forced to stop performances and all street traffic was prohibited after 10 pm.

Japanese military authorities today denied any night manoeuvres were contemplated but reports continued to circulate that there were troop movements within the Japanese fortified area last night until 10.30.

The newspaper "Leader," owned by the Mukenitang, Nationalist party, said recent arrivals of Japanese reinforcements here have swelled the garrison to over 3,000.

"Oscar" Not a Man But Yet Severest Critic of Music

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 14—"Oscar" is only a robot receiver but he has become Leopold Stokowski's severest critic.

The gaze of the critic upon the concerts ago of cells and wires and automatic ears, the "frozen critic" has become an important personage in symphonic and scientific circles and is carefully guarded from public appearance.

Sitting like a figure in judgment in the gloom of the empty orchestra pit, the mystery mannikin listens as Stokowski directs the Philadelphia Orchestra at rehearsals He records every false note religiously and makes his impartial and accurate reports without fear or favor.

"Oscar," in appearance, is a full-fledged man, dressed in ordinary street clothes, but he has no arms. His ears, however, are his distinguishing feature. They are twin microphones Underneath his coat he carries a delicate apparatus common to engineers and the academy foyer with earphones, experimenting to test differences of tone.

CROWN ATTORNEY RESIGNS

Would Have Seen Grave Danger if Rates Raised

RECKONING DAY

Passion For Liquidity Was on World Already He Says

Birmingham, Eng., Jan. 14 (AP) — Sir Josiah Stamp, noted economist and director of the Bank of England told the Chamber of Commerce today that there is a great deal of "mischievous misunderstanding" abroad respecting the circumstances under which Great Britain departed from the gold standard.

The criticism began in the United States, he said, and has come also from Holland and Austria.

"What is meant is sort of paroxysm abroad to say that it was England who abandoned the gold standard. Not the gold standard which abandoned England and "and I believe it to be profoundly wrong."

We have increased the bank rate last July and August would have been a wrong and disastrous action, he said, and the balances which would have been attracted by such a method would soon have become a source of weakness.

"Any position maintained by such measures," he said, "would have to meet the day of reckoning, and the state of other countries now, three months later, shows not that they would have permanently postponed their demands. The passion for liquidity which makes everything else sold to move was on the world already."

Lamp Gives 6 Times as Much Light with the Same Current

70 Per Cent. of Current Turns Into Light

SPECIAL GLASS

New York, Jan. 14.—A new electric lamp giving six times as much light from the same current as an ordinary bulb was exhibited at the New York Electrical Society last night.

The lamp converts 70 per cent of the current into light, but it is all yellow, containing no other rays. It is there fore as efficient in producing light as the brightest motion picture flare.

The household salt shaker explains the source of this light. The bright radiance is produced when sodium ,the somewhat soft, white metallic element which is mixed with the gas, chlorine, to form table salt.

The lamp is a glass vacuum tube about a foot long, in it the sodium vaporized by the application of temperatures ranging from 300 to 340 degrees Centrade, the current causes the vapor to glow.

The new feature is the glass hitherto ordinary glass could not be used, because it is quickly turned brown, or even black, and ruined under the chemical action of the sodium. The light itself has been used by scientists for years ,but in the form of a flame, to study the properties of light rays.

Dr. Harvey C. Rentschler, director of research of the Westinghouse Lamp Company, who exhibited the lamp during a lecture covering the developments in science, said the new glass was perfected by Pirani, a German scientist.

English Theatre Producer Dies

Weybridge, Surrey, Eng., Jan. 14 (AP)—Arthur Bourchier, who married with the famous Drury Lane theatre for more than 40 years is dead today at the age of 66.

His real career began in 1881 when Sir Augustus Harris, who controlled the theatre, made him stage manager. In 1896 he took over the theatre and for 15 years starring in 1924 because of ill health.

until nearly eleven before the child was found.

The little lad went out to play with his sleigh and hockey stick and as he was in the habit of playing with other children in the area no fear of his absence. When he did not return for his afternoon meal, the aunt with whom he is living, gave the alarm and a search party was formed. The party found him near the sleigh in the dirt near the old railway track at the north end of the village but they became obscure and did not see him.

Finally the party started from the place where they found the body and from the door, the baby was found face downwards in one foot of water, apparently dead for sometime. Dr. Eagleson viewed the body, an inquest being found unnecessary. No arrangements have been made for the funeral as yet but as the time of the fatality was working at the Kaladar, Lyell and Northern Ltd., a father, one sister and one brother.

Chinese Boycott B. C. Salt Herring

2,800 Cases of Herring Piled on Shanghai Docks as Result

Vancouver, B.C., Jan. 14 (CP)—The herring industry of British Columbia is seriously threatened unless the government takes action to offset against Canadian salt fish entering China in addition to a short time, herring operators fear.

Since early October, it is stated, salt herring shipments for China aboard vessels sailing from Vancouver have been seized upon arrival at Shanghai, it is stated, and by August with the result that 28,000 cases of about 400 pounds each are piled up on the Shanghai docks, awaiting the boycott.

The boycott, it is declared, had its inception in Vancouver after a group of Chinese had interviewed over the Manchurian situation, formed a patriotic organization early in October.

Prevention Rather Than Cure Desired

Statement Made By Dr. Gardner to Dental Academy

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 14—Prevention of diseased teeth rather than their removal or cure is the new field in which public sentiment is directing the attention of dentists, Dr. Boyd S. Gardner head of the dental department of the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., told members of the Toronto Academy of Dentistry last night.

Pointing out that 70 or 80 per cent. of all revenue derived from dentistry in the United States was produced by replacements, he declared the public was being educated to the point where it would demand preventive action.

BRIDGE STREET TIE UP ROUND

Defeat St. Michael's 23 to 14 in Second Game of Playoff

After losing the first game of the play-off, the Bridge street basketball team last night decisively defeated the St. Michael's five by the score of 23 to 14, in the second game of the play-off in the local senior Sunday School basketball league, last night.

With each team having won a game apiece in the final match was keen to begin and both teams are practising faithfully for the third and final game, to be played next Wednesday night. On that night's play the Bridge street clan had a distinct edge over their rivals. On the other hand the St. Michael's team feel that they had an off night and will win the third game by duplicating their feat of last week when they soundly trounced the Bridge street boys.

The defence of the Bridge Street team was a little too good for their opponents and this resulted in the lowness of the score. Try as they might the St. Mike's forward line could not seem to penetrate the fast shifting defence supplied by the Bridge Street boys enough to score over 14 points.

The line-ups:

St. Michael's—Schrieder, Langton, Health, Hughes, Forest, Doyle and Bayeli.

Bridge Street — Bunnett, Wilson, Cowan, McIlroy, Spalling, Martin and Cook.

Referee—Ralph Morden.

The Uhwsia-Kayseri railway in Turkey will be completed in 1932.

Pepper attempted to pass the truck. His car, it is said, struck the rear left corner of the truck, overturned, to the right in front of the oncoming truck and finally came to a stop, still upon its wheels facing the southeast, in the ditch. The entire right side of the car was torn off.

Ontario Provincial Constables Kelly and Campbell of the Belleville district office, were returning from Marysville and arrived at the scene of the accident a very few minutes after it happened. Before their arrival, however, a passing motorist had taken Mr. Dawkins in the direction of Belleville police ambulance conveyed Mr. Locke to the hospital and the Provincial constables took Mr. Pepper there in their car.

The driver of the truck and his companion remained in town overnight. This morning they proceeded on their way after learning from Mr. Farnsworth that Mr. Dawkins injuries were not of a serious nature.

Provincial Constable Sykes investigated the accident and was upon the scene very shortly after it took place.

REVOLVER IS FOUND IN CAR

Picton Youth Fined For Possession and For L.C.A. Infraction

Wednesday night about nine officers of Cobourg Constable Isaard of the city police stopped a car, which was being driven north on Front street, by Herbert Bolton, aged twenty eight years, of Picton. With him was Jack Cole, aged twenty two years, of the same town.

In the car the constable found a case containing, it is said, sixteen pints of beer. Bolton, it is understood, acknowledged that he owned the beer, also that he had not a liquor permit.

Constable Isaard took the young man to the police station and then went in search of Cole's car which was also in Belleville, in this car, it is said, the constable found a thirty-two calibre revolver, fully loaded.

The car and revolver were taken in charge by the constable and upon returning to the police station, Bolton, it is said, admitted that he was the owner of the revolver. Cole was not detained by the police but Bolton was arrested and placed in custody.

When arraigned before Magistrate Mikel this morning Bolton faced a charge that using a motor car having a permit, did have a revolver in his possession. Although the charge was not on the person of accused this fact was explained that to him that when he had it in his car, it was legally considered in his possession. Mr. Bolton pleaded guilty to the charge and was fined the minimum fine of $50.00 and costs.

On a second charge that unlawfully did have in his possession liquor, he did have liquor in his possession, contrary to the Liquor Control Act, Bolton pleaded guilty and was fined $100.00 and costs or in default one month in the common gaol at hard labour. The gun was confiscated.

Dunlop Answers Hepburn Charges

Terms Liberal's Statements Insult to Public's Intelligence

Hon. E. A. Dunlop, yesterday branded the charges made by Mitchell F. Hepburn, Liberal leader, as an "insult to the intelligence of the people of the province," in reply to the attack on the Government's methods of financing made by Mr. Hepburn in a speech at Sarnia, Tuesday night.

The statement made by the Liberal leader that the Government intended to float a bond issue of 40 or 50 million dollars to meet its real deficit was flatly denied by Mr. Dunlop.

"A bond issue for this amount has never been contemplated by the Government," said the provincial treasurer. "A bond issue of 20 million dollars has been talked over, but when this will take place I do not know at present. It may or may not be offered before the forthcoming session of the Legislature. Mr. Hepburn said a week or so ago that the bond issue would be 40 million dollars. Now he increases it to 50 million."

The charge that the Government's deficit of $1,000,000 was the result of financial deficits involving a duplicate set of books and that the deficit was in reality many millions more that this sum brought a warm reply from Mr. Dunlop.

"It is no credit to the intelligence of the liberal party to have a leader making such wild and extravagant statements," said the provincial treasurer. "As to the Government having duplicate sets of books, why a boy just out of public school would not be led astray by such a statement. If we resorted to that kind of thing we would probably land in jail.

Employment in '31 As Against 1921-6

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 14 (CP)—Employment in Canada during 1931, says a report of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, was generally higher than for the six-year period, 1921 to 1926, although lower than in the last four years. Returns made to the bureau showed a monthly average of 97,242 workers during 1931. With 1926 taken as 100, the following index numbers were computed: 1931, 102.8; 1930, 113.4; 1929, 122; 1928, 111.6; 1927, 104.8 and 1921, 88.8.

Unemployment relief work, says the report had a stabilizing influence on the general situation, particularly on construction work. For eight months, activity in construction was greater than in 1930. Manufacturing was dull and with logging and transportation reported a low level of activity than other industries.

Ontario's Power Rights Along St. Lawrence Are Conceded by Dominion

Hon. J. Robert Cooke and Others at Ottawa Conference

QUEBEC OPPOSED

Hydro Board Will Be Undisputed Power Developer

OTTAWA, Jan. 14. — Provincial ownership of one-half the flow of water for power purposes in the International section of the St. Lawrence River has been conceded by the Bennett Government, it was reported here Wednesday following the seaway conference of provincial and federal authorities.

Joint development of the power with the Ontario Hydro Commission and United States power interests named is believed to be contemplated by the Government, in connection with any treaty arrived at. As far as Ontario is concerned, it is said, there is no question of any body other than the Hydro Commission undertaking the work of power development. Ontario has accepted the proprietary right of its Hydro Electric Power Commission.

In his offices in the east block here, Premier Bennett discussed the St. Lawrence waterway power development with Premier Henry, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Ontario Hydro commissioner; Hon. J. Robert Cooke, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Commission; Hon. W. D. Herridge, Canadian minister to Washington; Col. Hanford MacNider, United States minister to Canada, and Hon. William Finlayson, Ontario Minister of Lands and Forests. Nicholas Monsarrat, of the Federal Water Powers Branch and the Department of Railways and Canals were also present.

Step at Stages Expected

A step of the highest importance to Ontario power users has been taken if, as is understood, the Federal Government has recognized the province's claims to the ownership of the power. It is considered still too early in the negotiations for the working out of any detailed arrangement as to power development, but it is believed that the authorities have the creation of a Power Board in mind.

So far as Ontario is concerned, the Hydro commission would have charge of the development and distribution of the power on the Canadian side of the international section. under this arrangement, it is said, the commission would be represented on the suggested board. Similar representation, it is stated, would be afforded whatever interests undertake to develop the United States' half of the power.

Hydro's Position Known

Recently, after the progress of negotiations between Ottawa and Washington, the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission asserted to the Ontario Government the position that the Commission is the only body empowered to develop the power on the Ontario side of the international section of the St. Lawrence proposed deep waterway. It is said that the Commission advised that the Federal Government be notified that the Commission took this position, and regarded it as not open to question. It is reported here that the position was readily conceded, and that the Bennett Government had not entertained any other idea at any time.

While the report of the Federal Government's conceding the province's claim still awaits official confirmation, it was officially announced that Ontario's interest in the international section were discussed in this connection. The statement said, Mr. Cooke, Mr. Meighen, P. A. Oaby, chief Hydro engineer, and Dr. Thomas Hogg, another Hydro engineer, all joined. There was thus a direct inference that the power question was up.

Bennett Keeps Premier

The statement added that the meeting was held in accordance with Mr. Bennett's intimation that the provinces some months ago that their rights and interests in the St. Lawrence would be a matter of consultation. A further meeting will be held with Ontario, said the statement, at the request of the provincial statement intimated that the Quebec Government would not be interviewed until after the present session of the Quebec Legislature.

Quebec, Jan. 14. (CP). — Set against the project both as regards navigation and power development, Premier L. A. Taschereau declared, in a long address when he resumed debate in the Legislature on a resolution introduced by Hon. Athanase David, Provincial Secretary, in reference to the St. Lawrence Waterway and Power, that resolution asked the House to declare that Federal consideration of the waterway was "premature."

So Warm Here But So Cold on Coast

Los Angeles, Jan. 14.—For the first time in 59 years, snow fell at Santa Maria yesterday and Riverside was amazed to learn that the fifteen drop as a tang of real winter swept over southern California. Riverside had not witnessed a snowstorm since, 1892.

The unusual cold spell was caused by this section catching the "edge" of the severe storm which swept over the Rocky Mountains, it was according to Government weather observers.

Meighen to Go to Post in Senate?

tion is available of the report that Right Hon. Arthur Meighen will become Conservative leader in the Senate. When spoken to about it last night, Mr. Meighen made light of it.

The suggestion that he should be summoned to the Red Chamber comes from the fact that Hon. Wesley D. Willoughby, Government Leader in the upper House, is not expected to the best of health, while Hon. Gideon Robertson, Minister of Labor, who is leader in the Senate, has temporarily fallen a casualty to night-and-day work on the employment problem and unemployment.

Certain Conservatives would like to see Mr. Meighen back in Parliament where his outstanding ability is greatly missed, but it is believed the former Prime Minister if he comes back, would prefer the hurly-burly and the cut and thrust of the Commons to the peace and quiet of the Senate.

FIND CHESS BOARD MEN, IN TEMPLE

Discovery Made in Hills of Earth Built in Roman Period

Many Skeltons of Animals Found Among The Relics

New York, N. Y., Jan. 14 (By The Canadian Press)— Among recent findings reported by the Nubian Archaeological Mission south of the Great Temple of Abou Simbel, on the east bank of the Nile in Egypt, include a wooden chessboard mounted with silver laid in ivory and lapis-lazi bar containing ivory chess men, according to a special table from Cairo to the New York Times, Wednesday.

The discoveries were made in the hills of Dusha which are really mounds of earth built in the late Roman period by the Ethiopian rulers above subterranean tombs.

Starting work on one of tombs after removing many tons of debris, steps descending toward a door of stone were found. Behind these They were covered with skeletons of horses, camels and dogs which had belonged to the owners of the tomb and had been killed as sacrifices by the blow of an axe to accompany their master on his journey to the other world. The harness of the animals was sumptuous. Heaps of dangling of ornaments suspended on heavy silver chains which had evidently been attached around the necks and bodies of the horses.

In one of the tombs, the explorers found the bodies of four horses wearing a harness of silver inlaid with semi- precious stones. Beside them, in a heap, were the bones of four young men who had been strangled at the time of the death of the master—around their necks was still knotted the rope.

In another chamber lay a colt and forty-six dogs. Near them was the skeleton of a strangled slave having at his side a steel sword and a wooden drum.

Although the funeral chambers were plundered in ancient times they still contained many objects of interest. Including large wine jugs, grain coffers and clusters of pride dates, left for the dead for their use in the other world. Several pictures, imported from lower Egypt and Mediterranean ports, were marked with the name of a wine merchant written in Greek.

Various bronze objects were found in excellent state of preservation including some of young mummified a human face, with tyes made of garents encased in silver.

LAVAL FORMS NEW CABINET

Reorganized Ministry Includes Two New Members—Crisis Short

Paris, January 14—Pierre Laval, sturdy little Auvergnat, again became head of the French Government as Premier in the reorganization of his cabinet last night.

He also took over the portfolio of Foreign Minister, held for so short a while by Aristide Briand, and induced his old-time friend and predecessor in the premiership Andre Tardieu, to accept the post of Minister of War, vacated by the death of Andre Maginot.

Thus M. Tardieu will go to Geneva to represent France in representative to the disarmament conference on January 21.

Succeeding Premier Laval in the all-important post of Minister of the Interior, on which the outcome of next spring's legislative elections may hinge, is young Pierre Caou, a disciple of Laval and Tardieu.

To succeed Tardieu in the Agriculture Department, which controls the canes for France's great rural population, the Premier selected Achille Fould, young former Under-Secretary who was given ministerial rank.

YOUTH IS SET UPON BY THUGS

Bound and Gagged With Own Apparel and Left

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 14 (CP) —Returning to his home early this morning, Henry Dagenais, 30 year old Ottawa resident, was attacked by two men on St. Patrick Street. He was stabbed twice in the chest, gagged, bound and dropped into a yard behind an apartment house. Dagenais was without money but the men took his watch.

Shortly after the attack, Dagenais was found by two pedestrians and taken to a hospital. He had no idea as to the identity of his assailants.

The youth was attacked from behind. He had been gagged with his own scarf; his legs tied with his necktie, and his hands trussed behind his back with his handkerchief.

DROWNED IN FOOT WATER

Four-Year-Old Boy Loses Life Near Madoc Quarry

MADOC, January 14—(Special)—Ted Taylor, four-year-old son of Mr. Edward Taylor, Madoc, was drowned some time Wednesday afternoon, his body being found face downward in about one foot of water, 20 rods from his home, the little fellow apparently stumbling while at play. A search party composed of over two hundred neighbors in the village were active from six o'clock until nearly eleven before the child was found.

The little lad went out to play with his sled and hockey stick and as he was in the habit of playing by himself no thought was taken of his absence. When he did not return for his afternoon nap, his aunt with whom he is living, gave the alarm and the search party was formed. The party found Tommy's sled in the dirt near the old railway track at the south end of the village but they became obscure and led nowhere.

Finally the party started from the house again and twenty rods from the door, the baby was found face downwards in one foot of water, apparently dead for sometime. Dr. Eagleson viewed the body, an inquest being found unnecessary. No arrangements have been made for the funeral as the father at the time of the fatality was working on the new Highway being located at Kaladar. Left to mourn the loss is a father, one sister and one brother.

The capacity of these factories alone is sufficient to supply the entire Canadian requirements. Every can of fruits, vegetables and soups produced at the output of these factories, and deprives Canadian workers of at least a part of their living.

Add to the number of people employed in AYLMER plants, the thousands of farmers who grow the fruits and vegetables, the hundreds of other people who owe their livelihood directly or indirectly to the prosperity of these canning plants; and so, the endless chain goes on, even to the artist who designs AYLMER labels, the printer who makes the labels, the workmen who make the cans, the mills that roll the tin plate, the mills that prepare the lumber and make the shipping boxes. So we boldly ask you to do your part and select your AYLMER requirements from this list of LOBLAW Specials.

ARE THESE SIGNS?

The automobile show in New York is proving such a success that there is a growing belief that it is a fair indication of the approaching improvement in general conditions. Forty per cent more attendance and twenty per cent more motors are taken as a good index of the present situation which lends some hope. There is an air of cheerfulness about the exhibition.

Managers state that there is a sound reason behind the increase of interest.

Another view is that credit has been so liquidated during the past two years that men are led to believe that this is a sign of the slump's end. Paying off all the indebtedness incurred during prosperity is a characteristic of any business depression and if liquidation of credit may be taken as a measure of the duration of a depression the end of the present slump should not be far away.

American Bankers' Association Journal remarks: "For two and one quarter years there has been a heavy and almost uninterrupted decline in the outstanding volume of different kinds of indebtedness."

FATHER AND SON

The retirement of Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the Supreme Court of the United States on account of failing health starts the mind thinking of the father of the retiring justice, Oliver Wendell Holmes, author of "The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table," and the friend of the poet James Russell Lowell. Holmes, sr., gave a very pleasing picture of the people of his day. It is said that his songs and verse contain the quintessence of Yankee humor, while the lyrics of The Last Leaf exhibit that "atmospheric quality of humor" which is blended with pathos like the sun and the shower of an April morning. He also wrote a series of novels. Dr. Holmes practised until he was forty years of age and then gave himself to lecturing in anatomy, to journalism.

The name of the renowned father has been worthily borne by the distinguished jurist son.

ORIGINALITY SHOWS ITSELF

Though there has been suffering as a result of the business and political adjustments which have been the most marked thing about the world for over two years slumps are always the basis of new ideas and new movements. For instance the present impasse in the political world has set men thinking to try and devise ways and means to free from the shoulders of men the intolerable burdens which mistaken ideals have forced upon their shoulders. Business firms are creating new services, new products, packages, and are working towards the evolution of original ideas far more than they were in the boom era when quantity production seemed the beau ideal. Motorcar changes have stepped forward rapidly during the past two years and research is given the highest place.

THE CHURCH COMES THROUGH

The season is at hand for the annual meeting of a good number of the churches and financial surveys from the standpoint of the churches occupy no small place in the interest of the membership. Though increased effort the churches have been enabled to face the situation which has developed. This fact alone speaks well for the morale of the membership which has not collapsed but has rather been strengthened by the struggle to meet the situation.

The church of course has in the present situation an historic task—or opportunity to find a situation developing which is proving the truth of many a sermon delivered in the fortunate days of prosperity, and it has a task to aid in the reconstruction and revaluation of ideals.

The attitude of the church has been vindicated in the past two years or more.

LECTURES TO PRISONERS

Some prisoners in jails in Cardiff and Swansea, Wales, have protested after lectures on horticulture, that such were not included in their sentences.

But young men in the Portsmouth Penitentiary-are exercising their brains to pass matriculation examinations with success and fit themselves for a new life when they step across the threshold and the grey walls of the prison close behind them.

Of course the men and youths at Portsmouth have a choice, they elect of their own free will to study and prepare themselves, while evidently the Welsh prisoners were given lectures on gardening alone. But no finer interest in life could be created than that of stirring in them a sense of beauty as seen in flowers and in the garden.

If necessary it may be that judges when sentencing men to the Cardiff and Swansea prisons will sentence them not only to time but to study and attendance upon lectures.

"What did her father say when you asked him for her hand?"

"He wanted to know if I could support him in the same style that she did."

Blue eyes, pink lips,
Chubby hands and feet,
Come now; dream ship,
Sail in dream sea's fleet.

Blue eyes, closed now;
Chubby hands, relax;
Droop, head—white brow
Crowned with curls like flax.

Dream ship prancing
Over seas unknown;
Fairies dancing,
Sea-king on a throne.

Blue eyes, pink lips,
Funny hands and feet
Board the dream ships,
Very strange and fleet!

Dream ships sail on Over dream seas' foam;
Landing in early dawn
At the port of home!

ONE OF LATEST SENSATIONS of busy, dizzy Broadway is the police search for a man who stole an overcoat in an office and passed up all kinds of money and securities in an open safe nearby. New York Times puzzle expert ruminates on the case thusly:

"Perhaps the thief who stole only an overcoat from a well-known office, rejecting the contents of an open safe, had reasons more practical than moral. Some reporters concluded that his character was so high that he appropriated only the thing he accutely needed—the overcoat. But reflection upon the articles he left behind suggests that he may have taken the only really valuable thing from his standpoint.

"The thief spurned $2,000 in negotiable securities." Negotiable where? Negotiable at $2,000 when? Every day's list on the bond market makes those questions pertinent. He also left behind him several checks made out to cash. But there was a risk there if he presented them to the banks on which they were drawn.

"Even his rejection of the bottle of gin may not prove high character. Possibly it was synthetic, and he can drink only the imported kind. If the intruder will come forward and clear up these points he will probably prove the reporters to be mere sentimentalists."

SEETHING EGYPT

The ancient struggle of all peoples and of all times is now going on in the land of the Pharaohs.

So declare supporters of Nahas Pasha, leader of the Wafd, said to be the most powerful political organization in Egypt, which threatens to boycott the approaching election.

If the boycott is successful, the hope of the British Labor Government to conclude an Anglo-Egyptian treaty while in power will be dimmed, if not extinguished. For, writes the...diplomatic correspondent of the London Morning Post, Perry Robinson, Ramsay MacDonald has already declared that he can sign a treaty only if it is accepted by a freely elected Egyptian Parliament.

At present, as the press notes, Egypt is governed by its King and his chosen instrument, Sidky Pasha, who has devised a new Constitution and an electoral law to match. The Daily Telegraph-News-Chronicle, J. A. Spender avers that both the Constitution and the Electoral Law are "designed to increase the power of the King and the executive, and correspondingly to diminish the power of Parliament and people."

A bitter Egyptian opponent of the so-called "Egyptian dictatorship" is Mamdouh Riaz, who remarks in the Paris Revue des Vivants:

"By his pretended reforms, Sidky Pasha has destroyed the essence of the Parliamentary regime. Also he has put the possibility of an accord with Great Britain farther and farther away. The policy of the present Cabinet has damaged the aspirations of Egypt in their main objectives.

"To meet this attack on the rights and hopes of the Egyptian nation, the Wafd has rallied its ranks. It preaches resistance, the resistance of Nahas Pasha, who said: 'It is a matter of life or death'."

ROMANCE OF JEWELS

The Crown jewels of Bavaria were under the auctioneer's hammer yesterday. Though the fatuity character of the Royal House of Wittelsbach has had much influence on the welfare of Europe, from the lack either of resources or of desire for strife, its accounts did not amass a regalia of overwhelming splendor. But these jewels had some of those links with the fate of nations which often make the history of precious stones fascinating and invest this one or that with vivid interest as a work of magic. Who can recall without something of a thrill that in the British Crown, beside the diamond worn by Persian and Mogul conquerors, shines the ruby brought to England by the Black Prince and borne on his helmet by Henry V. at Agincourt?

No such military fame indeed is in the flash of the Bavarian jewels But the Wittelsbach blue diamond stirs the imagination. Whence it came first the experts record, but probably the seventeenth century Tavernier, who saw such huge and wonderful stones in the treasury of Aurangzeb, if not quite such huge ones as he described, brought this Wittelsbach diamond back from India. It came into the Wittelsbach family with a daughter of the Hapsburgs whose marriage was meant to end the secular rivalry of the houses which had devastated Germany. It did not avert the quarrel from which came the convulsion of the Seven Years War, shaking all the world and establishing the British Dominions overseas.—London Telegraph.

THE CANADIAN SHOE

The convention held in Toronto of the National Shoe Retailer's Association is a matter of interest to the general community. The shoe dealer's product touches mankind in a personal and intimate way. Whatever men, women and children may do without, they must have shoes. Thus the shoemen keep the populace on its feet.

Fastidious folk pay a great deal of attention to footwear; and therefor show their good sense. Of what use the most elaborate suites if the man down at the heels? No man can put his best foot forward effectively if he is not well booted. Hence the shoe dealers are particularly welcome.

There is eager curiosity to view the bewildering and beautiful array of styles on display in connection with the convention. More than that, these sample shoes, suitable for all occasions, indicate that Canadian manufacturers are well abreast of the times. Years ago there was, perhaps, some justification for the practice, by those who could afford it, of buying only footgear manufactured in Europe. Fortunately that time has passed.

Canadian-made shoes now satisfy the most exacting wearers, and it is gratifying to learn that fully 90 per cent. of the home market is supplied by Canadian Manufacturers. Apparently the tariff has had a good deal to do with this; but there has to be quality as well. Therefore, hats off to the Canadian shoe!—Toronto Globe.

PENAL SYSTEM

Mr. J. M. McCutcheon, civil service commissioner for Ontario, and secretary of the commission that recently investigated public welfare in this province, had some interesting things to say a few days ago in course of an address. He traced the history of the penal system and declared himself a reformist. Infinitely more confidence in modern practice than in the institutions of vindictive punishment of another day. Inmates of such places of incarceration, because of the treatment meted out, conceivably would leave on the expiration of their sentences with a dread of prisons, but with resentment in their hearts, even against the society which sponsored that kind of penal system. Under his practice, Mr. McCutcheon pointed out, calls for an environment where there will be the opportunity and reason confidence; to make the discovery that the state, instead of being the enemy, is the friend that desires to help rather than to hurt. Prisons where confinement is both educational and disciplinary, it is not difficult to agree with the speaker, may be expected to effect a greater number of permanent reforms than those where the treatment is entirely disciplinary.—Hamilton Spectator.

CRY FOR BROTHERHOOD

There is so much of loneliness
On this uncharted earth.
It seems each one's a prisoner
Within a cell from birth.

"Even the closest comrade
Never fully knows
Each individual heart
The spirit undergoes.

"There is such need for union
Such need for clasping hands,
Yet we deny the brotherhood
The human heart demands."
—Lucia Trent, in the Christian Century.

PROFESSOR IN FAVOR OF BEER

Says Wines and Beer Will Correct Trouble in States

Washington, D.C., Jan. 13 (AP).—Repeal of the 18th Amendment and passage of a law which permits "moderate drinking to replace the present unenforceable and intolerable measure" was urged today by Dr. Graham Lusk, professor of physiology at Cornell University.

Testifying before the United States Senate Committee considering the Bingham four percent beer bill, Dr. Lusk said the "introduction of light wines and beer to legitimate sale in this country under the Canadian system will, in my judgment provoke no injury whatever to the community."

"There is no drunkenness in France," he said, "except that of tourists from United States; there is greatly reduced intoxication in England; and our neighbors in Canada are just as fine people as are just as prosperous and honest (they have not had a single bank failure) as we are who have been made the victims of a false philosophy with regard to the regulation of human conduct.

"We have been cursed by making a crime of something which, in the case of wines, is entirely honest and right."

Liberal Leader Spent Quiet Day

Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 31 (CP) — After the meeting last night at which Premier Bracken addressed the Manitoba Liberal Association, St. Hon. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, spent a quiet day here. At noon he was the guest of J. S. McDiarmid at luncheon, and in the evening he will address a combined meeting of the Board of Trade and the Canadian Club of Winnipeg. At the evening meeting Mr. King will speak on "Some Changes in the Social Order." He will leave on his return trip to Ottawa, tomorrow.

Editor Given Jail Term

Dublin, Ireland, Jan. 13 (AP) — Frank Ryan, editor of the Republican newspaper An Phoblacht, was sentenced to three months for contempt of court today when he said he refused to recognize the jurisdiction of a military tribunal, before which he was arraigned on a charge of sedition.

At the expiration of the contempt sentence he will be tried on the sedition charge. It took six men to arrest him last month.

Locals Impressive Notching Second Victory of Campaign Defeat R.M.C. by 8-3 Score

Last Year's Champs Are No Match For Yellow Sweatered Crew

GAME CLEAN

Win on Foreign Ice Helpful to Local's Chances

Setting a withering pace, having a forward line that clicked like a machines, backed up by a sturdy defense and a superb goalie, the Belleville intermediates ran riot on Wednesday night in Kingston, defeating Royal Military College, last years' intermediate O.H.A. champions, by a score of 8-3 and were thus much better on the night's play. The period scores were 4-1, 1-1, 3) Winning this important fixture, the local team once more left the leader, Quenea, and on Friday night can draw to the top of the ladder by taking Gananoque. It was a good game, thrilling in spots and watched by a fairly large crowd, many being from this city.

Showed Their Coaching

It is an interesting fact to assimilate hockey knowledge but to put it into practice is another matter. "Bunny" Corbway, who has conducted the coaching duties of the team this winter, has imparted to the team knowledge gained in many hard fought campaigns in Kingston and the boys went out to show their coach how well he was and also made the Gentleman Cadets look ordinary as every team has done since.

Due to the injury sustained by Eddy Hird in the first game of the season, Campbellford, he was unable to play last night, but his place was ably filled by Jack Scott who, to the best of condition, he went like a house afire, but after the first period had to take a breather in the last game. At that time Belleville had a nice lead and he watched operations from the coaching box. Of particular interest to the local fans, who attended was the presence of Jimmy Scott in goal. The way he travelled for sixty minutes in his many new shoes one day wondering, how he has been off the team so long. But there are always some nice things are said about him and he sure played one sweet game in Kingston. He was smart on the forward line, could outskate any man on either team, and when moved back on the defense in the third period he proved a good relief for the puck carrier.

Have Real Calibre

The fans have a right to feel doubtful of the calibre of the team in comparison to other teams in the groups but were willing to be shown and Coach Corbway has shown in no uncertain manner. The locals laid over the opposition just like a tent and the time were there in danger. The title of champions had the title of champions had little edge and they simply stepped out and gave a high class exhibition of the winter pastime. Every man fitted perfectly into the general scheme of play and orders from the bench were implicitly carried out.

The locals had the edge in checked like fiends, and at all times took the wing men out of play and the puck carrier was invariably steered into the centre and they were really taken care of. R.M.C. had five of their last year's team out and they were not the real players out when by any means. The locals are sadly in need of practice, although their condition is excellent for the amount of work they had this winter. They played clean but had their work cut out to skate a little shy, when it came to finish around the net.

A REAL GOALIE

Les "Doc Scott" has many boquets for his excellent work in the hemp. True there were by him but on every one of the saves an art and by chance. The puckcarrier was right on the goal mouth and let the drive go and in two instances, he stopped the shot when only to be beat on the rebound. The team have confidence with Les in there. Weir and Hull early started on the offense and they were good going both ways, and Hull was a star. Every day in every way this boy is getting better and this winter is playing the best hockey since he donned the sweater. Hull made a contribution was three counters and an assist, a real night's work for a defenseman. Holway stepped hard into all, that came within his reach and he steadied the team, when they appeared to break in the second frame. A new forward line was tried and the move proved most satisfactory, Gordon McKeekin held down the pivot position with Campbell and Scott as his sides. True there was as much collusion as will be seen later in this line, but they did get the goals, McKeekin was hard to pass in the centre zone and his puck carrying was a treat. His passes were well timed and accurate and only for the work of White, the score would have mounted into double figures.

Never Played Better

Scott never played a perfect game and more heckler game than he turned in last night. He could outskate any man on the ice and his shots were just poison to White. He back checked at every opportunity and did not roam as is his custom. Archie Campbell showed the cash customers how right wing should be played and his lone goal was a most beautiful effort. His rushes were also were dangerous and his shot had White completely fooled on more than one occasion. When Hoonner trotted out his second line of Leishman at centre, Morgan and Hull there was not a bit of weakness apparent. Leachman sure will be play on Kingston ice and he certainly turned in a splendid effort. He gave two beautiful passes and scored a goal and was in the thick of the play at all times. Morgan was much better and is improving with every game and his shifty came through like a veteran. This line proved very effective and will show his real ability and Hebway with Bradley, Hird and Bateman to more accurate than formerly as his two goals will testify. St. Denis was the only Hird in the game with the scorer he plays hockey for Leachman sooner he will be a hockey player. Bateman has good hockey sense but it seems he takes the game as a joke and believe it or not, hockey is a serious game.

Cadets Are Smart

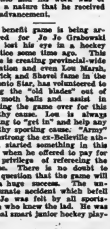
The Cadets showed a smart team despite the 8-3 beating they received and will be much stronger this winter, when it really hurts. In Irvin on the defense they have one of the finest players in this district. He is hard to stop on his rushes, hits hard, is a good body clean and is in there for the registered counters. The goal was the weak sider but at that, he was the best defenseman on the ice and would have fooled any goalie. Snipers like Scott, Campbell, Weir and Hull were not to be denied, nobody on the defense is not as good as his opponent, but it is a case of junior and will learn under the watchful eye of Professor Colling. J. Carr in centre ice is a star and he had a real old time with Mc-Keekin, who proved the best ice skater on the ice. He was checked although Carr helped himself to two counters. Bateman on the wing yeas team but Lane their left winger is missed. Fred Scott is a fine player, but that was a large order but he is willing and is coming fast. Orr, Bell, Dennis and Kalmsle were all used frequently and they at least put up the fight of their lives.

Play By Play

Bob Scott had the first real drive into the zone and White had to deflect it for a corner. McKeekin drove a penalty and the Cadets pressed but could not beat Tice. He was called upon to make a nice save close in repeated on Irvin, a mon-drive that Tice handled with ease but their wings better and break with Hull and Leachman and Weir was transferred to the opposition's end. Leachman carried in to corner and Hull took a shot that was a real drive on the passout. Leachman carried in to corner and Hull took a shot that was disallowed as the puck touched the net. Holway was hurt in the melee, taking a perfect pass from Mc-Keekin and he had hooked Mc-Keekin and in centre Ice Scott made it two, when he carried in all alone and let a beauty go that beat Tice, the corner came around the hemp and Weir scored the counter amid cheers the disgust of White. The Cadets turned on the pressure but Tice was there when Irvin laid him a fine pass. At that it was offside, but Weir was there to slam the puck scored one in the top corner of the twine without White even noticing it. Leachman was presented. 2nd Period

Campbell and Hull slapped in his own rebound, when he was allowed to coast in after making the drive. Blanchard was removed for a trip and Hull flashed the red light, when he took a pass from Leachman and Johnny not to be outdone took a pass from Weir and dented the hemp. Alex Weir got tired of giving passes, so he tried a lone hand and came in all alone all to score on White from close in. Tice was pulled out of the nets on a hard drive and before he recovered his balance, Scott shoved the disc over the blue line for the Cadet's second counter. R.M.C. continued the pressure and the local became slightly disorganized but Holway soon moulded them together and they held the opposition off till the end of the period.

Pace Blistering



The pace set by the time had been blistering but the teams settled down to methodical play and it was not as interesting. Jim Carr scored number three for the Cadets on a pass from Irvin's rebounds and a nice drive. He was close in on Tice at the line. The play ranged up and down for nearly ten minutes when Weir again broke from his own blue line and netted the rubber for the last marker of the contest. The game was exceptionally clean only nine penalties being handed out and four minor offences. Allen Mollenhauer handled a nice game but he was not pressed as the boys played the rubber rather than the man all evening. Both they fraternized the ball-end Syracuse stars 4-3 in the border city last night.

Taking advantage of Syracuse penalties to notch their four markers the Belleville Bulldogs were even in the first period, gained a goal margin in the second and closed held the cellar occupants to a single counter in the last session.

A feature of the Stars' attack was the winning combination of the Martin, Mackie and Wallis line, who accounted for all three tallies with each forward getting one goal apiece. Duguid led the Windsor assault, notching two markers, with Jennings and Hinsberger accounted for the other brace.

KEEP PEGGING

"What type of shot is most difficult for a goalkeeper to stop?" asked Clarence, Clarence Bubbs of Winnipeg. I should say that one of the deadly netminders would agree that an ankle high drive from in front of the net and shot in about the deadliest. Being ankle high it is below the goaltender's reach, unless he has "flopped" in front to save the shot, should be to the upper corners. Being from the front the shortstopper has time to slide to aim at. The further that shot is from the side the smaller the target presented being also further on, the less chance the goalkeeper has of stopping the shot. Speaking of goal shoks leads me to urge the hockey fans to encourage more scoring the game to devote much time to the study of the goal shot. How many present day coaches, I wonder, follow the system used by Lester Patrick and other former coaches of placing a keg on the ice net and having the puck practise hour on hour at the target. Lester Patrick the world famous player has learned his sharpshooting by shooting day after day at the keg. Let us not in America, for accuracy first, then speed.

Bill Cook is the only one mathetically inclined want to figure out the angle at which to hit the ice as he attempted to clear.

MIAMI BOUT CALLED OFF

Schmeling Decides There is Not Enough Loose Money in South

New York, Jan. 14 (By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Press Sports writer)—After installing the public for a couple of weeks with disputed contracts, modelsland arrangements and delays for no apparent reason, the Max Schmeling-Mickey Walker fight, scheduled for Miami, Fla., February 22, finally have decided to call the whole affair off.

Joe Jacobs, manager of the heavyweight champion, was the one who crossed the fans up with the final decision to cancel the proposed bout and the reason he gave was a report from his partner, Billy Carney, now in Florida that there wasn't enough loose money in Miami to make it worth while.

The decision, made public late yesterday afternoon, came as a distinct surprise to the fans.

HOWIE MORENZ DEFEATS HAWKS

Beautiful Solo Effort Scores Winning Goal For Canadiens

Toronto, Jan. 14 (CP) — Howie Morenz, speed demon of the National Hockey League and brilliant centre-ice star of the Montreal Canadiens, displayed one of the cleverest exhibitions of stickhandling ever witnessed by Chicago patrons last night, when he skated the full length of the ice to break a one-all tie and give his club their first victory in four starts.

While more than 10,000 roaring Chicago patrons looked on in amazement, the "Stratford Flash" came through with a dazzling exhibition by rounding his own net and flying through the Black Hawk zone to take a shot at Gardner. Although the Hawk goalie managed to stop the drive, Howie banged it into the net as he attempted to clear.

BULLDOGS NOW IN 3RD PLACE

Defeat Syracuse Stars 4 to 3 to Gain Position

Toronto, Jan. 14 (CP)—Windsor Bulldogs, last year's International Hockey League champions, climbed into third place in the league race, when they defeated the last-mid Syracuse stars 4-3 in the border city last night.

Taking advantage of Syracuse penalties to notch their four markers the Belleville Bulldogs were even in the first period, gained a goal margin in the second and closed held the cellar occupants to a single counter in the last session.

A feature of the Stars' attack was the winning combination of the Martin, Mackie and Wallis line, who accounted for all three tallies with each forward getting one goal apiece. Duguid led the Windsor assault, notching two markers, with Jennings and Hinsberger accounted for the other brace.

Current Sport

By The Observer

The Belleville Arena Gardens may be the scene of some big extra games than the directors anticipated for this winter. The executive of the O.H.A. have left a loophole visible that teams not playing on artificial ice must try to get their home games on. At present there are many 200 registered players registered by the parent body. If the weather continues to play mild both Campbellford and Trenton will have to play their remaining games here.

Joe Smith has been appointed referee for Thursday night's game between the Belleville juniors. Joe is a great favorite with hockey fans and is assured of good refereeing. The locals had a fine last-minute practice last night and Coach Trenton has moved Jimmy Jeffs Cube are ready for the fray. The kids look fine and if they can only learn to be combining much better of late. The forwards are all right, but it is their opposing wings out of the play.

Trenton juniors, under the coaching of Ross Burtt, have been regular visitors here of the past week and are reported to be in excellent condition. Their opponents, Belleville junior hockey matches which appeal to the fans of this district always bet all their energy into each game and the locals are known as all junior games are thrillers. The Trenton juniors themselves always attend these junior games as they know that they will be up against it. Tonight's game will be no exception to the rule as both teams are out to take the lead in the group.

According to the O.H.A. bulletin Campbellford have failed to fast one on the local intermediates when they turned Harry Ingram last Friday. Harry only received his certificate from the secretary on Thursday. Harold Buck, an ex-Belleville player, has been received permission to play with Kingston. Harold played at the same meeting in which Ingram's card was granted. The team will add considerable strength to the Kingston Fontes next season.

The local intermediates surprised even their best supporters when they won from the fast R.M.C. team last night. The Cadets were champs last year but they looked very ordinary last night. Their best goals went to work. Due to the absence of Herbie Morris, "Bun Spencer" has moved up a peg and filled the vacancy as centre. However he is not much praise cannot be netted out to Harry as he offered but half night. The locals should fill the old 'Pat' to the limit tonight when they battle the Gananoque intermediates here.

We notice, through the Toronto press, that Jack Bell, ex-Belleville boy, was unanimously selected as a member of the National Yacht Club of Toronto. Jack was a most keenly interested in sailing and will fill the position with credit to the taste. Last year he was Rear-Commodore for the N.C.C. of Toronto and it is only a fact of such a nature that he received his advancement.

A benefit game is being arranged for Jo Jo Grabowski who lost his eye in a hockey practice some time ago. The game is receiving considerable attention and even Lou Marsh, of Pick and Shovel fame in the Toronto Star, is interested in it, being the "old blader" out of his mouth. Lou says that he is putting the game over for this worthy cause, and that he is even willing to "get in" and help any worthy sporting cause. Howard Armstrong the ex-Belleville athlete, started something in this line when he gave the fans all the privilege of refereeing the game. There is no doubt but that the question that the game will be a huge success. It is a fortunate accident which befell Jo Jo as he is a fine young man who knew the lad. He was a real smart junior hockey player.

The season is now unofficially open for the annual battle the baseball players and the hold-out players. Bill Terry, of the Giants was the first actual player to refuse signing his contract for the year 1932. Bill's contract called for a 40 per cent cut in his salary for having any such large salary slump in wages. President Hoobam says that Bill should be received more than he was worth and that he will be with the usual "Oh, Yeah"!

Then the last session of the day is Babe Ruth's future contract. Nobody's offer has been brought to light on the subject but the baseball critics are all guessing that the "Sambino" will have to take a cut. The latest dispatch concerning Ruth says he was the recipient of a contract for $60,000 with a bonus clause which will make the total $80,000 but the offer received by him for the past two years was a record and that these boys may starve on such pickings.

FANS HET UP OVER JR. GAME

Trenton is Opposition and Leadership of Group at Stake

With the idea of leading their junior group, the Belleville Cubs will go to Trenton tonight to battle the Trenton juniors, who are tied with them in the local junior loop. The visitors have four of last year's junior players on their roster and have been thoroughly coached by Ross Burtt, of Trenton. The Trentonians defeated the Campbellford juniors by the score of 5 to 0 last week and feel that they can "take the measure" of the locals tonight.

The locals, under Coach Tommy Thompson, are fast rounding out into a real smart team in all departments and it is the expectations of the management that they will be quite far in the O.H.A. race. If the kids can win from the rivals tonight they will be in complete command of first place in their group.

The probable line-ups for the local aggregation are: Goal, Bill Mc-Gee; defence, Sherry and Ribier; centre, Mackie; wings, Hart and Morgan, and Jimmie McGuire; subs, Earl Morgan and Hamilton. Coach Trenton may use Chambers in the net, with Gray and Hamilton doing defence duty; Kidd at centre, flanked by Dolan and Mattie, last week's stars, on the wings. The forwards while the subs will be picked from Bell, Bateman, Dan and Milligan. Joe Smith of Kingston, will referee the tilt tonight for the evening.

Interest in Action

On Friday night the Gananoque intermediates will come here to battle with the local intermediates and a game of no mean ability is assured. On Jan. 25 Gananoque team is coached by that veteran player of other days, Mr. Stewart Langdon, the disputed playoff game of last year, Gananoque played in Kingston, has been granted protest. Tonight's game will be no exception to the rule as both teams are out to take the lead in the group.

According to the O.H.A. bulletin Campbellford have failed to fast one on the local intermediates when they turned Harry Ingram last Friday. WINNIPEG FIRE ARRESTS MADE

$100,000 Plot Charged Against Adjustor and Three Others

Toronto, Jan. 14—Sequel to the destruction by fire last June of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, three men and a woman were arrested in Toronto last night on charges of conspiracy to defraud fire insurance companies out of a total of $100,000.

An additional charge of attempt to fraud was preferred against Frederick Brownstein, alias Brown 33, of Euclid Avenue pendding the Toronto Quilting Company, one of those arrested. It is said that the Perler building fire originated in the offices occupied by his Toronto firm.

Charles Spratt, 39, of Arlington Avenue, associated with the Canadian Adjustors Bureau of Toronto and Miss Laura Rolland, 23, of Cerrard Street east, were taken before a magistrate police state after a auto chase from North Yonge Street down to Eglinton Avenue and then west to Bathurst, north on Bathurst to Fairlawn Avenue, left to Wood Side Road. There Spratt's car was forced into the curb.

Leo Wadden, 41, of Barrie Avenue, the third man, was located by detectives at his home.

Police Officials Probe

The arrests were made by Detective-Sergeant Harold Waterhouse and William Mallahan of the detectives Fred Storm and Lister Sill of the fire investigation department, Thomas Baird, of the Manitoba Fire Commissioner's office.

In a statement to The Mail and Empire last night, Mr. Baird said that the Toronto Quilting Company had shipped five carloads of cotton batting to Winnipeg on May and June Miss Laura Rolland was employed as stenographer in charge of the shipment.

Mr. Baird left June 19 to Baird said, the quilts valued approximately $100,000, was destroyed in the fire which destroyed the Toronto Quilting Company in the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

A few days before the fire, it was alleged, Spratt insured with Miss Rolland in Winnipeg. The first policy was for $50,000 on the building, a six-story brick structure at 165 McDermot Avenue and a guided and destroyed by fire stroyed."

Officials state that those arrested conspired to defraud the following fire insurance companies: Canada Fire Insurance, $15,000; Perth Fire Insurance, $15,000; Acadia Fire Insurance, $15,000; American Insurance Co. of Newark N.J., $15,000, and the Hamilton Sun Surety Co, $20,000

The fire was being held without bail for trial in Winnipeg.

Jones, who was confined to his home through illness, the meeting was held in charge Mr. E. A. Hogle, chairman of Deacons' Board. A very pleasing programme of music followed banquet consisting of numbers by Mrs. B. Doolittle, Miss Forman, Mr. Wilson and Mr. Alec Gordon. Mr. D. G. WALLACE BEERY AND JACKIE COOPER PAIRED IN "THE CHAMP"

Wallace Beery and Jackie Cooper as a team!

Smith is the unique combination heading the cast of "The Champ," Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer's vivid drama of life on the Mexican border, which will open Friday at the Belle for two days, matinee daily.

Beery plays a broken-down fight champion, and the hero of "Skippy" is seen as his son in a poignant heart-interest tale in which tender comedy and a few thrills are interminged. King Vidor directed the production, from an original story by Frances Marion.

Filmed in Mexico

Life on the Mexican border is vividly shown, many of the scenes in the picture having been filmed on Mexican locales, through courtesy of the Lower California government. The "riadeo" of the "prize racket," the Caliente races, actually filmed at the Mexican track, the great gambling halls of the "American Monte Carlo" and the striking intimate details give unique interest to the picture, most of this having never before been shown on the screen.

Among the dramatic highlights are the race, the sensational prize fight in which Beery essays his "comeback", the dramatic sacrifice for the sake of the boy, and the battle with the Mexican police.

A notable cast appears, including Irene Rich, Roscoe Ates, Edward Brophy, Hale Hamilton, Jesse Scott and Marcia Mae Jones.

Billy Rouse in a very funny comedy entitled "Rulimaka," a clever Talkartoon, Belle Sound - News, and a new chapter of the popular "Vanishing Legion" serial story are announced for presentation on the same program.

Paramount presents an exceptional vehicle for intense dramatic action in "Ladies of the Big House," which is being exhibited for the last time at the Belle tonight. This picture has a fine leading featured artists, Sylvia Sidney and Gene Raymond, two talented personages who have already won high public favor because each possesses high dramatic ability, a pleasing personality, and good looks, qualities essential to success. The picture has the strong punch of authentic realism in its prison scene. It is a dramatic story written by the convict-author Ernest Booth.

The oldest Protestant church in Canada is St. Paul's, Halifax which was opened for services in 1750.

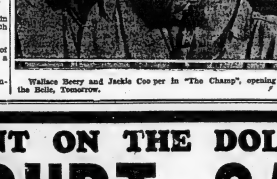
"UNDER EIGHTEEN" IS INTRIGUING COMEDY DRAMA

Last night a pleased audience at the Capitol received Marian March, Hollywood's latest find in "Under Eighteen" the story of marriage bewilderment.

Marian March, still under eighteen, is almost alarmingly the double of Constance Bennett and indeed her mannerisms resemble those of the great Constance.

"Under Eighteen" has the distinction of being Canada's newest picture and in sum, Belleville has the distinction of being the first city to have this feature.



The story of "Under Eighteen" is unique and that of a girl in love with a young truck driver, and who is employed at a fashionable modiste's establishment as sewing girl.

Her sister is married to a loafer, and finds it unbearable with the result that her younger sister breaks off her engagement with the truck driver because she has seen "too much of marriage" and co-mpany.

To help her sister secure a divorce, she calls on a wealthy philanderer and induced to dine in a swimming pool. The climax is a bombshell.

Marian March, Warren William, Mary Doran, and many distinguished stars are included in the cast of "Under Eighteen" which plays at the Capitol today and to-morrow.

To-night is silverware night, when Hatter Knives will be given to each lady patron.

The population of the world at the present time is about two billions.

Letters to The Editor

Editor Ontario Intelligencer:

Dear Sir,—The question in the paper re the marriage of girls together with its overhead, etc., is too intricate for anybody to solve save the merchant himself. Here is a simpler and better one.

A man entered a shoe store and purchased a pair of boots for $5.00, giving in payment a $10 bill. The merchant had not $5.00 to give in change, so he went next door and got two $5.00 bills for it and gave the customer one of them. After the customer departed in rushed the other man saying the $10.00 bill was bogus and demanding back his money. The merchant had to go out and borrow $5.00 from a friend to make goff. Now the question is: Who is out how much. We also must out besides the pair of boots.

Yours truly, ANON.

JIM THE CONQUERER

"When that man emerges you'll experience some more thrills" Roberta warned her maid. "I'm going to tell him some things about himself he has not, in all probability, been told before."

"Do be careful, Miss Roberta. He's so desperate—"

"I'll reduce him to pulp. I'm not afraid of his guns. I intend to protect my foreman. That is the duty of an employer. This Jim Higgins had his eye on me even when he was at Uncle Tom, but we can testify to his effort to kill her," Dingle, shall have him arrested and tried for attempt to commit murder. The blood-thirsty wretch!"

The station door swung open, and Don Jaime Higuenes limped out, stood as erect as his damaged underpinning would permit, bowed from the hips and all but swept the station platform with his sombrero. Then he straightened and took a mess—I mean Miss Antrim—I assure you, Roberta—"

"How dare you presume to address me?" Roberta cut in icily. "I am not aware that I have the dubious honor of your acquaintance, sir. Although I believe you are my uncle's slayer, Jim Higgins."

Jim Higgins' face without rancor nor did the pleasant smile that had been there disappear. Instead, addressing countenance fade the slightest. Roberta made swift appraisal of him. He was about forty feet tall, strongly built, lithe and graceful, with clear-cut, unlined, girl herself Roberta knew that this man was as much at home in the saddle as a pound of superfluous fat on him. His complexion was a reddish brown, a most agreeable color-scheme when taken in conjunction with crinkly jet-black hair and deep blue, laughing eyes.

His hat was a soft light-weight white beaver, broad-brimmed, high-crowned, and doubtless a horse. He wore an immaculately clean white drill shirt, open at the throat, sans cuffs and with sleeves below the elbows. His overalls were blue and tan and also clean. His boots, also, for which reason the excess had been turned in to a cuff, were his expensive high-heeled boots. His spurs were of the most incredible man's pattern, brass with silver inlays and steel heel chains; around his waist was a belt of hand-carved leather belt supporting two pistol holsters, empty at the moment. Also, on his belt Jim Higgins," re admitted, without a particle of shame and embarrassment, and from the left sleeve below the left elbow, a certain faint alighted manner of slurring his consonants, Roberta realized that Spanish was this man's mother tongue. Nothing of misfortune to be the instruments of an inscrutable fate that waited your delectable pleasure in the station at Sacro."

"Has anybody ever told you what a conceited ass you are, Jim Higgins?"

Don Jaime shrugged. "I dare say a few sheepmen have said harsh things about me—behind my back." "Do you mean to say, Jim Higgins?"

"Oh! no! Not even in self-defense".

Roberta had a feeling that she was not going to make much progress in the face of the man's debonair indifference. "I have suspected my uncle's murderer was such a fearless dandy, I could withering.

Don Jaime drew one of his pistols flipped six empty brass shells out of the gun with a deft turn and thoughtfully reloaded the weapon. "One is liable to scare most anywhere in this big, wide, open country, Miss Antrim. I suppose you entertained a suspicion that I was this a frontier murderer is physically as well as mentally unclean. I loaded the other pistol. "I'm sure I shouldn't be blamed if my parents preferred cleanliness to the usual brands of godliness. The tree grows as the twig is bent, you know."

"Was your father a man of vicious, Mr. Higgins?"

He nodded, "All the Higgins tribe have been scrappy."

"What do you mean by trying to shoot my foreman?"

"Why, its the open season on sheep-herders. We've allowed one a day, and old Dingle Bell is the first I've flushed in a week."

"He'll be the last you'll flush in many years if there is such a thing as law and justice in Texas."

"Oh, we're very law-abiding, Indeed! Very few of us on this side of the Rio Grande kill for pleasure or profit. You're going to have me arrested, I presume."

"I certainly am."

"Well, when the warrant is issued the sheriff will telephone me about it and ask me to come in and talk it over. He's too indolent to take the trouble to ride out to my place and put the bracelets on me. By the way, what are you doing around here, anyway? Is your intention to camp all night on this platform or are you expecting somebody to call for you? Is it possible that in a moment of weakness I permitted Dingle Bell away and thus deprived you of your transportation?"

"I have no excuse for leaving us stranded, Mr. Dingle would have detained it in any event. He rode up precipitately. And it's none of your business what we were doing here. However, I do not mind telling you that we are waiting for Don Jaime Miguel Higuenes to send a conveyance for us. Do you know Don Jaime?"

"I've known him all my life."

"What sort of man is he?"

"Oh, he's human, I'll admit him. Just a fair sample of a greaser. Will you ask Roberta Fox to come in? I'm mind having him around. Guess Don Jaime has forgotten more than I ever knew. I'm not certain Don Jaime knows you were due here today?"

"Why, I suppose he does. He—"

"Well, the hair must have slipped somehow or he'd have had his car here to meet you—yes, and a light escort, considering the fact that Dingle Higuenes prides himself on his punctuality and hospitality. I'll bet he's sent a couple of dozen men to search for you. Perhaps he's on this hot platform all day waiting for you. Don Jaime is very touchy just about brash his heart. I'm very sorry, Miss Antrim, but I cannot let Jaime, that unless I get word to Don Jaime, that you're here, he'll probably think that I have taken you in. And I know he isn't equipped for company."

Roberta's troubled gaze met the bantering brightness of Jim Higgins' crance now. "I suppose you have your humane moments, Jim Higgins," she observed tartly. "I am certainly going to prosecute you for the murder of Uncle Tom. I suppose I don't tangle yourself up in rash promises. I'll see what I can do. I may send word to Senor Higuenes that I'll dare you with an accident!" he exclaimed.

It did look that way. Instead of the pair of wonderful branching antlers which all through the fall had been carried as proudly as was but one and in place of the other was a bloody, ragged gash. With that one antler Lightfoot looked terrible, but handsome. He shook his head.

"I haven't had no accident," said he.

"Then how did you lose that antler?" demanded Reddy.

"I dropped off," replied Lightfoot, a bit sadly, "and the other is about gone, too. I'm sure glad I know that I always lose my antlers in winter!"

Reddy nodded. "I had forgotten it," said he. "Now you speak of it I remember. You must be very Hard times are felt by one and all, The big, the strong, the weak and small.

—Old Mother Nature.

Of course some feel hard times more than others, but no one wholly escapes. And those hard times are on the Green Meadows in the Green Forest and in the Old Pasture. Yes, sir, they were hard times. Snow and ice covered everything. The little people living there never know where the next meal was coming from. It was hunt, hunt, hunt and work, work, work to get enough food to keep alive. A few fared better than others as is always the case, but it wasn't easy for them.

Reddy Fox and Mrs. Reddy were among those for whom these hard times were hardest. It was seldom that either knew what it was not to be hungry. It was seldom that either got enough food for even three to have a full stomach. They looked fat and wide on the Green Meadows, but for the little people living in the Green Forest, along the Big Road and in the Pasture hunting only long enough for the sleep they had to have.

Reddy Fox was just hunting in the Green Forest he came to a path leading to the Big Road and he grinned. "This must be where Lightfoot the Deer is spending the winter. I'll just have a little visit. I believe I'll pay him a call and see how he is getting on," thought Reddy.

So he followed the path. It twisted and branched again and again but presently there were deeply trodden paths in all directions. He was in the middle of Lightfoot's "yard." That is what the place like Deer would call his home when in deep snow is called. With nose, ears and eyes all wide open Reddy was very careful to take long to find Lightfoot.

"Hello, Lightfoot!" said Reddy and then stood very still.

"Then how did you lose that antler?" demanded Reddy.

"I dropped off," replied Lightfoot, a bit sadly, "and the other is about gone, too. I'm sure glad I know that I always lose my antlers in winter!"

Reddy nodded. "I had forgotten it," said he. "Now you speak of it I remember. You must be very uncomfortable without them."

"I am," replied Lightfoot, "but I will be more comfortable when the new ones begin to grow. Just now I really haven't much use for antlers. There is no fighting here. Still I shall miss them until I get used to it," he added, a bit wistfully.

Just then Mrs. Lightfoot appeared. Seeing Reddy Fox. How do you like these hard times?" said she.

Reddy grinned. "I don't like them," he declared most emphatically. "I don't like them at all, but I suppose they have to be, just as Lightfoot has to lose his beautiful antlers. He does look funny with just one, doesn't he?"

"He never looks funny to me," declared Mrs. Lightfoot loyally. "Are you getting enough to eat these days?"

"Not enough," replied Reddy promptly. "I should say not! But I manage to keep going. Hard times cannot last forever. By the way, what do you know about hard times, Mrs. Lightfoot, if you can. You don't have to wonder where the next meal is coming from. You're never hungry. Are you there are well off."

"Is that so?" spoke up Lightfoot. "Much you know about it. You can go and come when you please, but we have to stay in these paths we have trampled out and know the snow is so deep that we cannot get about in it. What is more, we have to keep these paths open or else starve to death. Hard times! No one don't know what hard times are. Much you know about it!"

Reddy scratched his head. The one remaining antler struck a branch. "Ouch!" exclaimed Lightfoot as that antler fell at his feet.

The next story: "Reddy Learns a Few Things."

Roberta saw a long queue of teams drawing mowers the faint chatter of voices was drowned in the drone of the mowers.

Domens of hay wagons were being loaded and stacking the new-cut alfalfa hay; perhaps a hundred men were taking part in the pitching. The fragrance of the harvest came pleasantly to the girl's nostrils and it occurred to her that this valley had once been dry and barren until irrigation had made it a vast garden by men of vision, courage and faith. They had seemed a big, worth while thing to have done—something Homeric. There was drama in it—poetry, too. She knew no little man had done this, and that none but a big man could carry on with it. And her impatience to meet Don Jaime Miguel Higuenes increased.

Her gaze swept up through the Indian pueblo and were barked at and purred at by incalculable numbers of dogs of assorted breeds. "If Glenn Hackett were the overlord here he would banish these curs," Roberta thought, "and justify his act on the ground of sanitation and sanitation. But these peones must have their dogs and doubtless Don Jaime believes that. Let them have dogs—extension of liberal affair is it of his? I dare say he has dogs of his own."

LITTLE TRADE ON EXCHANGE

Toronto Board Witness Dull Day, Though Gains Held

Toronto, Jan. 14.—Trading on Toronto stock exchange this morning was restricted to a comparatively small number of active stocks, majority of which are inter-listed issues, all of these were stronger, holding yesterday's gains at the opening and adding to them as the session progressed.

Imperial Oil was a stand-out in point of activity, showing a greater volume than in weeks past. Although the price advance amounted but to a very small fraction, the stock only reaching 10¼ by mid-day, it closed at 10⅜ and International Nickel, up 11¼ were each comparatively busy in a much narrower trading market.

C. P. R. was a strong spot, advancing another half point to 17⅛. Canadian was up ¼ at 13⅜. Ford was advanced ¼ at 5⅝. Nickel exchanged to ⅛ higher at 10⅛ to 10¼. Smelters was unchanged. Bell Telephone sold at 130, the highest price, and Massey Harris, Canadian Dredge and Corporation, the chain stock issues were all unchanged.

RESUME CLIMB WITH VIGOR

Broad List Soars up From Two to Five Points

New York, N.Y., Jan. 13— The stock market resumed its climb with vigor today, after pausing to breath spell.

A broad list of prominent shares surged up 2 to 5 points or more, with rails still the prominent in the advance. Trading was dull at the start, but quickened after midday, with upturn in U.S. government in the bond market, after several weeks sagging spiral, was stimulating to securities generally.

Issues up 3 to 5 points included American Tobacco B, Liggett and Myers, B, American Telephone, Allied Chemical, Union Pacific and Eastman. Shares up 2 points or more included Air Reduction, Case Threshers, America Can, Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, Pe, New York Central, New Haven, Westinghouse, Johns Manville and others. Among the many issues up a point or more were Standard Oil of N. J. and General Motors.

The turn in the U. S. government obligations, the chain letter head of information from important banking centers and the Federal Reserve system was embarking upon a broad programme of credit expansion, stimulated the advance, open market buying of U. S. government securities and acceptances as well as encouraging rediscounting by members.

The tobacco shares turned upward on the announcement that R. J. Reynold's Co's. annual statement making the favorable showing of $3.62 a share for the year, the quarterly record common issues as increased from $1.25 to $1.50 per share. Oils showed little response to the favorable news that unified interests had been authoritatively reported well in advance of the announcement. There was little activity in the coppers, despite the continued firmness in the metal market.

COLD WEATHER ON WAY EAST

East Scored in The Matter of Temperature

The east scored heavily in the weather game today, with zero temperatures reported from Ottawa and sub-zero weather east of Winnipeg. Ottawa's mercury dropped to 24 below, the coldest spot in Canada, and the capital was closely countered with Moncton, N.B., where a high of 22 below "shivers" was registered. The best Victoria, B.C., could do was 28 above, and Saint St. Marie bettered that with 30 above. At eight o'clock Toronto started to come back from the zero isometer there registered 44 above, with a biting wind and blustery skies the sun shining brightly.

Northwest Territories, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba were all in the cold belt. Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island had all assumed a commanding lead as far as temperatures were concerned. The average temperature in seven Western Canada cities was 11 below zero. The average in seven eastern cities was 42 degrees above, and while the two extremes led to the setting colder, the east was warming rapidly. At Jasper, for instance, it was only two below yesterday while the mercury dropped 15 points by today. Edmonton showed a crazy 16 degrees lower, too. At Prince Albert, it was fairly warm yesterday—only two degrees below zero—today it was 30 through. Winnipeg was six above yesterday and four below today.

The east recorded as its highest point yesterday 56 degrees .1 Toronto, and Kingston had a like 1 change during the night. Before noon some decided January temperatures will probably be hung up.

PIANO RECITAL IS ENJOYED

Capitol Theatre Manager Adds Pleasing Touch to Program

Last night the audience at the Capitol Theatre showed appreciation of the reversion to "human" music.

Doris C. Holmes, the popular and versatile manager revealed himself as a pianist of considerable ability.

"Bits and Pieces on D Flat," a conglomeration of popular novelties arranged and added by Mr. Holmes was a wonderful mixture of which one likes finger work.

"Toujours L'Amour, - Toujours" (Love is Everlasting) made a marked contrast in its slow melody and full chords.

The final number, and perhaps the piece de resistance, was "Lies," the popular fox-trot song. This was played as it would be at a player-piano would "roll" it out, and as Jazz played would sound.

This programme will be repeated today and Friday, whilst the improvation will be a daily feature at the Capitol.

WHOLESALE VACCINATION

All 40,000 of Fitchburg, Mass., Citizens Will Be Inocula ted

Fitchburg, Mass., Jan. 14—Vaccination of the entire city population was held out by board of health officials today as the only means by which the port were reported. The total population of the city is 40,000. All except one are adults.

About 3500 of the city's 40,000 residents were inoculated yesterday and today six clinics began the wholesale work with the first installment batch of inhabitants. Those reporting in schools to vaccination are were ordered arrested and each person inoculated is checked off a certificate.

Doctors strove to trace the source of the germ believed to have been brought into the city by a French-Canadian family which had recently visited Canada. All of the cases reported are of persons of French-Canadian extraction.

Mayor Marcus A. Dorothy was among the first to be vaccinated yesterday. Members of police departments, employees at the city hall and the independent clerks of the court, 1,500 pupils of St. Joseph's School in the Cleghorn district were inoculated.

LIFE PRESERVER

Kingston, Ont., Jan. 14.—No trace has been found of the lost Canadian wreckage from which was washed ashore at Collins Bay, near here yesterday. No one in the district has knowledge regarding any bote of which name, or any boat reported missing.

The wreckage estimated the vessel was 23 or 30 feet long, and is in such condition that it does not appear to have come from the hulk of an abandoned boat. No "Varuna" is listed in available shipping records.

If the vessel from which the wreckage comes is a Varuna, it must probably be sailing under a new name, for the old-time steamer which used to ply the waters of the Bay of Quinte between Deseronto, Belleville and Trenton and made Sunday trips to the Thousand Islands more than ten years ago, was a craft of one hundred feet long at most, Trenton residents recall. It is stated, by Captain Jacob Rathbun and others, that the Varuna known to people of this city was commissioned about 25 or 25 years ago to carry freight parts about ten or twelve years ago when business on the bay lessened, the boat was laid up and has since failed to locate any trace of when the vessel ended its days.

Mr. Jack Robilin of Belleville when asked about the wreckage today stated that the lack of knowledge about the boat by reason of her length could be explained by the fact that she sailed unless of five or more tons have not to be registered by the owner. If your money and you get your boat, you don't have to, he said. "The sale does not pass through marine records."

The finding of the wreckage has considerable interest to Belleville and also to residents on the bay. The Varuna was a fairly large craft which carried steamers on the bay for many years. Sunday school picnics were a specialty on the craft in those days.

MANY PURCHASE MOTOR MARKERS

Motor license sales, which have been light all week, showed a rise in the recent warthing sent out by the department today, a time limit for the old markers, which, officially approaching, have been dispensed at the office of Mr. Kitchen this morning in greater numbers than ever. This morning when visited the room was crowded with numbers of men, who were making out application forms for their new markers, and a steady and consistent sale is reported. The staff working for the department in Belleville has given us January 15.

UNEMPLOYED AIR MATTERS

Various Problems Come Up For Discussion By Executive

Complaints were aired on Wednesday night at a meeting of the unemployed executive. Among them was one over the attention paid Canadians. Another complained Frank Street crossing.

The matter of relief affecting residents of Frank street in regard to the railway tracks which crosses the street and makes necessary a one mile detour by those who will to go to town was explored by several residents of that street, who were present at the meeting and asked that it be drawn to the attention of the council with regard to the building of the subway or viaduct under the railway property so that cars and other vehicles can enter and use the north end of the street without shut off.

A lesser claim by the members brought to the attention of the executive present was the question of whether or not a man who will not been permanent residents of the city for over six months should be given a job on relief work.

After considerable discussion a representative was temporarily appointed in the person of Mr. Goodland, who will be a member to consult the list kept in the office at the city hall and advise the clerk as to their eligibility for this work.

The question of whether or not it was compulsory to have every bed of the workers in the city hall scales, was if weighed slips should be given to Canadians for whose benefit it was intended. Mayor Ellis, of the Relief Board Committee, by the drivers who delivered the list, was referred to the executive, after some deliberation who will immediately ascertain whether or not this practice is legally enforced.

The next meeting will be sent Mr. W. E. Tummon, M.P., regarding grocery orders which are being turned soldiers, who come under the jurisdiction of the government, it is claimed that these orders are given stores, which do not contribute to local support, and Controller Baldree and seconded by Mr. W. McKenna, and the motion which was made was carried unanimously. The letter will be sent immediately.

Here and There

A new railway record, and a different one, was established recently when John Cassar, called at the Vancouver office of the Canadian Pacific Railway for his annual pay packet, found he had been 50 years service to his credit.

Canada's gold production in September fell about $1,000,000 to $20,222 ounces, as compared with 225,530 ounces in August and 178,291 ounces in September 1930. The Dominion has been a gold producing country for more than 50 years.

And now the eyes of the world are focussed on Canada, instead of all travellers, Santa Claus, who seems to have evaded economic depression and financial problems once more, has a good Christmas contract!

One can visualise thousands of pairs of skis being waxed, now that the snow is here, for the Arctic Ski will be "All aboard" for Quebec, Banff, Field or Revelstoke, or anywhere where there is a real good hill.

Pacific Coast ports, and indeed shipping circles throughout Canada, are mourning the passing of Captain James W. Troup, aged 76, a native of Portland, Ore., who died recently of 1914-1918. Besides, it's the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Sino-Japanese war reports are becoming gory—gruesome, even—as combat is popularly imagined. Chin Chow, for example is the worst scene of the war in this phase as was its namesake with the prefix "Ku," during the year of 1914-1918. Besides, it's the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The Regina Rough Riders get a rough ride from M.A.A.A. although they scored a whole lot of applause. The Montreal team found time to play football and the Mustangs, whom they had trimmed also 22 to 0 a week before. Between the devil and the Winged Wheel, so to speak!

"The Four Hundred" has long been synonymous with the people who do the right things. It is doubtful, however, if it should also be the total of the passengers on the first commercial flight the world by the new wonder-ship "Empress of Asia," which left New York on December 3.

There are 32,259 schools or colleges in Canada, taught by 33,144 teachers and attended by 1,063,213 pupils, according to the Dominion's population. The average expenditure per pupil on each pupil enrolled. Attendance is on the up grade, being 77 per cent for the whole Dominion, as against 84.7 in 1919. And the future of technical education is assured by the Ryerson Technical Editor, speed for radio. For Federal grants of $750,000 per year for 10 years, which means that the night schools will be able to run, to say nothing of the day courses in technical institutions. 896.

TREATMENT FOR ANEMIA

Liver Extracts to Be Injected Eliminate Many Difficulties

(By Merle Oliver, Associated Press Staff Writer)

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 14—A new and simplified treatment for pernicious anemia, eliminating many of the uncertainties and difficulties of present treatments, has been perfected by research scientists at the University of Michigan.

The new treatment involved injections of highly concentrated liver extract and obviates the necessity of eating dozes of pounds of liver extracts or substitutes administered by mouth, according to scientists rebel.

Experiments leading to this development were carried on during the past several months at the laboratories of the Parke, Davis Memorial Institute for Medical Research at University of Michigan under direction of Drs. Raphael Isaacs, and Cyrus C. Sturgis.

RATS ATTACK CHILD

One Child is Hurt So Badly Blood Poisoning Feared

London, Ont., Jan. 14—Rats invaded the home of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Avenue, here on two successive nights, attacking the two infant children. One baby, aged seventy months, was bitten so badly it was feared at first a finger and toe would have to be amputated to avoid blood poisoning. The child was sent to the hospital and the next night Stark slept with the other baby, aged six months. He was awakened by screams and saw a rat vanishing. The child's injuries had been bitten. According to Stark, the street is infested with the rodents.

QUOTA SYSTEM IS GREAT HOPE

Only Means to Save Saskatchewan Farmer

Saskatoon, Sask., Jan. 14 (CP)— Establishment of a quota system between Canada and Great Britain for agricultural products was last night visualized as one of the great hopes for Saskatchewan agriculture in 1932 by J. G. MacFarlane, president of the Saskatchewan Agricultural Societies Association, who presented his annual report to an executive meeting of the association held at the university.

Mr. MacFarlane also said a change in the system of obtaining credit from the countries of the world was essential to economic recovery and he believed war debts, to enable world buying power to increase, it was necessary 1932 was to be a better year than 1931.

Even adoption of these changes did not offer much hope for the present year, Mr. MacFarlane believed, but the 1932 harvest might tend to make next year more normal and would restore agriculture to a position more nearly approaching its old position.

Stagnation of the high rates of interest paid by one country to another would materially assist, he thought. He believed an international banking committee could render help in the situation, functioning similarly to the League of Nations, but dealing with the financial obligations and requirements of the countries of the world. Each country, under this system, would have its own committee, instead of borrowing in New York or London.

Grandmother at Duluth Says Lipton Courted Her When Poor

Duluth, Minn., Jan. 14 —A 67-year old grandmother, who has lived in Duluth 33 years, has admitted that it was she who was described by the late Sir Thomas Lipton as the one woman he loved.

At the home of her daughter, Mrs. Catherine Stewart, she broke her long years of silence and revealed her identity as the little girl to whom Sir Thomas proposed when he was a penniless lad in Glasgow.

Sir Thomas has been quoted as saying it was because his first love married another man that he chose bachelorhood.

Mrs. Stewart, a shy, grey-haired little woman, in relating her courtship by the great yachtsman years ago, wondered whether she had done right in disclosing the secret.

When Mrs. Stewart was Catherine McLeod back in a small village near Glasgow, she knew "Tommy" Lipton when he ran his modest business.

"Then he did not have many shillings to spare," she modestly said. "He had a horse and buggy and a wagonette, and I used to think sometimes that he deprived himself of other things to support his horse and carriages.

"I first met him at a party, and a few days later he asked me to go riding with him. Tommy was a handsome boy then—about 20 years old—with dark eyes and black hair. On one of his rides he gave me a picture of himself. I still have it.

"When he proposed to me I talked it over with my parents. They advised me, because I was so young and because Tommy was my first real sweetheart to wait a while."

After Lipton had left Scotland, Robert Stewart was Catherine McLeod's beau. They came to Duluth when their first child was five years old. Stewart, who was an engineer at a Duluth Hotel, died about fifteen years ago.

Koran Manuscript Stolen From Mosque

Jerusalem, Palestine, Jan. 14 — (AP)—A manuscript of the Koran whose value is estimated at $100,000 was reported today to be missing from the Aksa Mosque.

Authorities of the mosque would neither confirm nor deny the report, but it was said that the manuscript, inscribed on parchment more than 1,000 years ago, was missing a few days ago, at the Feast of Ramadan, when it was needed for the ritual.

Is Warmest in 56 Years For the Month of January

Toronto, Jan. 14—Once upon a time, away back in 1878, there was a Jan. 12 in Toronto warmer than yesterday, but most of us don't recall it. According to the Weather man's record of the film and misty mist, this particular January day of 56 years ago had a maximum temperature of 57 1-2 degrees, whereas yesterday's maximum was only 56.

There's only one explanation for the topsy-turvy weather of the new year, according to the Meteorological Office authorities on such happenings, and that is that Contrariness is getting up from the wrong or at least, the unusual place. Instead of coming from the north, it is coming from the south-west. Nothing can be done about it.

But the new winter overcoat will pay its prove to be a good investment, for, according to all indications, this exotic atmosphere is soon to be supplanted by polar regions health breezes customary at this time of the year. The warm air from the south is gradually veering back to the land whence it blew, and before night, it is said, Ontario will be more Canadian, atmospherically speaking.

It apparently depends upon one's whether weather like yesterday's, and that of the few preceding sunshiny, warm days is appreciated. For, while oldsters are congratulating one another upon the comfortable balminess of all surroundings, the altitude of the youngsters, with new Christmas skates, ockey stick and puck, undoubtedly is: "Aw, shucks! Let's move north."

Eureka Lodge Officers are Installed for Year 1932

Presentations and Congratulations Follow Ceremony

Installation of officers at Eureka Lodge, No. 233, A.F. and A.M., C.R., was held in the Masonic Temple on last night. Rt. Wor. Bro. J. C. Herity was the installing officer of the evening when Wor. Bro. Robert Sander was honored by the lodge when he became the rulingmaster for the ensuing year. The lodge room was filled to overflowing when the ceremony was called to order by Wor. Bro. Newton Thompson. After the regular business of the night the meeting was turned over to Rt. Wor. Bro. Herity, who assisted by his installing officers, carried out the work of installation in a manner which was highly commended by all present.

The work of installation on the lodge floor was in charge of Rt. Wor. Bro. J. C. Herity, assisted by Wor. Bro. J. Hall, Rt. W. Bro. C. J. Symons, W. Bro. F. Wiggins, W. Bro. Geo. H. Dawkins, Rt. W. Bro. the Rev. John Maldena, D.D.G.M., of Prince Edward District, Rt. W. Bro. J. W. Barlow, Most W. Bro. W. N. Ponton, Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge in Canada, Rt. W. Bro. H. J. Clarke, W. Bro. W. M. Barlow, Rt. W. Bro. H. B. Fetterly, V. Wor. Bro. George Dolmage, W. Bro. J. F. Houston, W. Bro. R. D. Adams, W. Bro. H. Asselstine, W. Bro. C. W. Browne, W. Bro. F. Wiggins, W. Bro. E. Liddle, W. Bro. F. Wiggins, W. Bro. E. Liddle, W. Bro. F. Wiggins and W. Bro. Bert Houston. In the absence of W. Bro. Leon Walmsley, who was indisposed, W. Bro. F. Wiggins assumed the duties of secretary for the evening.

After the installation of Wor. Bro. Robert Sander and his officers a fitting presentation was made to Mrs. J. C. Herity through her husband, Rt. Wor. Bro. Herity, of a gift befitting the occasion. Rt. Wor. Bro. Herity thanked the members of Eureka Lodge for their appreciation and kindness shown him and his good wife.

The past Master's apron was presented to Wor. Bro. Newton Thompson upon his retirement from the chair by Wor. Bro. H. Asselstine, who responded in a way that was fitting for the occasion. After many words of praise to the newly installed officers and the installing officers of the night the work of the lodge floor ended and the members repaired to the banquet hall where a delightful repast was enjoyed by all present.

The members were played to their seats by a march by the Eureka orchestra. Wor. Bro. N. Thompson occupied the toastmaster's chair for the evening and kept the meeting well in hand as he did not allow a dull moment during the entertainment program which was quite lengthy.

The usual toasts to the King and the Craft, the Grand Lodge and the Grand Lodge Officers were proposed and responded to. Rt. Wor. Bro. Chas. J. Symons proposed the toast to the chief installing officer of the night, in a very fluent and capable manner. Rt. Wor. Bro. Herity, in responding, quoted a very fine and fitting poem in appreciation of the many kind and encouraging words which had been said about him during the course of the evening. He was received with a hearty applause by the brethren as they all appreciated the great work which Rt. Wor. Bro. Herity had done for Eureka Lodge in past years. The words quoted by Bro. Herity was very fitting and appropriate for the occasion and highly appreciated by all those who had the opportunity of hearing it. The speaker assured the newly elected officers of his hearty support for the coming year and thanked the brethren for their kind remarks before closing.

In proposing the toast to the newly installed officers, W. Bro. H. Asselstine lauded them considerable and stated that they should be, and no doubt would be, an asset to the lodge this year. In response the newly installed Master, Robert E. Sander, thanked the members for the honor which they had bestowed upon him and assured them that with their assistance he would endeavor to make Eureka Lodge bigger and better during 1932. He also expressed his desire of the wholehearted support of the junior officers and the members for 1932 stating that if they all worked in unison there would be no doubt but that Eureka Lodge would have one of its best years in the history of the lodge.

Wor. Bro. N. Thompson thanked all the members for their support during the year. On behalf of the Eureka orchestra, which played many selections during the evening, Bro. Wm. Gerrie, Senior Warden, and the other junior officers were called upon and responded in a very capable manner.

W. Bro. Fred Wiggins proposed the toast to the visitors which was responded to by W. Bro. W. M. Barlow, of Moira Lodge; W. Bro. Fred Chapman of The Belleville Lodge; W. Bro. Black of Napanee; W. Bro. J. W. West of High Park Lodge, Toronto; Bro. Wilson of Toronto; Bro. A. Keeler of Stratford Lodge; W. Bro. Ellis of Iroquois; Bro. Law of Scotland and a number of other brethren present.

Rt. Wor. Bro. John Maldena, D.D. G.M. of Prince Edward District, was called upon on behalf of the Grand Lodge and congratulated the newly installed officers and also the work of the installing officers under Rt. Wor. Bro. Herity on their efficient work during the evening. He stated that it was very gratifying to have to make a report to Grand Lodge like he would have to turn in next summer, as all the officers of the lodges in this district were a credit to the craft.

During the evening the music was supplied by Eureka orchestra, twelve strong, under the direction of Bro. Reg. Hinchey. The selections played during the evening were highly appreciated and commented upon by all. "The March of the Pubycon" played by the orchestra was written and composed by Bro. Single Currency Within Empire Receives Favor

London, Jan. 14—A memorandum strongly advocating the introduction of a uniform monetary system for the British Commonwealth of Nations yesterday was adopted by the Federated Chambers of Commerce of the British Empire.

The memorandum declares that, since most Empire countries are now off the gold standard, the struggle to attract and retain gold has ceased; but, in order to remain competitive in the world's markets, the nations are obliged to force down prices by currency contraction, which has led to similar restrictions by other nations, neutralizing the first advantage and depressing prices below the cost of production.

This, the memorandum says, has reduced the purchasing power of 91 per cent. of the world's population. So-called overproduction, it continues, is really underconsumption, owing to restricted purchasing power.

No one nation can prevent this deflation, the memorandum contends, and the only group strong enough to take effective measures is the British Empire, within which members would institute themselves from external competition, while remanding their currencies, action which would make possible the establishment of a co-operation.

Ottawa, Jan. 13—How soon a uniform monetary system will be adopted by the British Empire is not known here. The proposal has been given some study by the Prime Minister, and pamphlets have been sent to Canada by the advocates of the system in the United Kingdom. The Banking and Commerce Committee in the Commons also heard the subject last session by A. P. Darling, former general manager of the Midland Bank of England, but no proposal for the adoption of a uniform system of currency throughout the Empire. Canadian bankers were not keen about adopting the plan, the proposed new monetary unit which Mr. Darling advocated.

No one knows whether the question of a uniform system will be on the agenda of the Imperial Conference. If so, it will be discussed after more vital matters have been disposed of.

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN, No.12.

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service)

By Edgar Rice Burroughs.

By this time Tarzan was convinced he had been left upon an island. Wandering his lonely way through the jungle, he felt strong upon him the desire for companionship. He almost regretted he had not cast his lot with the apes. They were better than no company at all. But he had seen nothing of them since that first day when he slew their king and subdued Akut.

Moving leisurely one morning, sometimes on the ground and again among the trees, Tarzan was attracted by the scent of Sheeta, the panther, upwind ahead of him. He wanted the great cat's strong gut for his bow and his hide for a new quiver and loin cloth. Swiftly he glided in pursuit of his beast.

Sheeta, himself, was stalking game and had taken to a large tree.

Beyond and below, Tarzan saw the tribe of Akut lolling in a small, natural clearing. And Akut was the closest to Sheeta. Hidden from the apes' view, the panther crouched. Tarzan cautiously gained a position in the same tree, a little above the huge cat. In his left hand the ape-man grasped his slim bone blade. Now with a hideous shriek the panther launched himself toward the great ape.

As the startled Akut looked up, he saw the panther almost above him, and already upon the beast's back the white-ape that had gained him that day near the great water. With one arm around Sheeta's fierce throat, Tarzan kept his arm grip upon the thrashing, squirming body. The other arm, which grasped a slender knife at the same time, and fell in mighty blows above the panther's heart.

Harmonizing Missteps

By N. Florence Leech

It was Saturday afternoon, and Drewry Tabb sat slumped in a big chair, wishing he hadn't been in a walk until morning to get a train home. The phone jangled, and he jumped to answer it.

"Oh, hello, Rose," he cried, plainly surprised.

"...couldn't possibly; I'm all tied up?"

—Well, if you insist. About 8.30. And say—Rose, how about dinner first?"

—Okay."

Drewry hung up the receiver with a click, his lassitude gone. He chuckled as he pictured Rose, cyrstal Rose, owner of the Tabbs Cat Tea Room. She had given him an order this morning, and now she wanted him to take her to a dance at the Cumming Hotel. Well, why not?

There was no harm in going out with her, and, pleased himself, as he bathed and dressed. She knew he was married, but knew also he was engaged to a boy down in Panama. They'd enjoy a friendly, platonic evening. Nobody would be the wiser, and nobody would be hurt.

Drewry Tabb sold gift shop novelties, chiefly to women owners of gift shops; and what he knew about novelties and about women was nobody's business. "Fragile, unnecessary, and—unusually in the way", was how he described both. But after a few years he tired of exchanging dinners and dances and flirtatious evenings for fat orders. So he married Grace Johns, the sweetest novelty of them all, and for a while was perfectly happy.

But gradually he became restless and dissatisfied. When he was home with Grace and the baby he was all right; but now that he had definitely cut the pleasure out of business, he discovered how pleasant some a hotel room could be.

Rose was waiting for him in the foyer of the hotel. Her frock was of turquoise blue velvet, long clinging, and flared at the bottom like an inverted morning glory. Her eyes were bluer than he remembered them. By the time dinner was over, he was—temporarily at least—drowned in their limpid depth. He forgot the order the squareJawed Hove woman rushed him. He forgot that Grace had mentioned wanting a new radio. Drewry was at of ours a novelty salesman, demonstrating his wares. Relinquishing his left hand, he pushed aside table and started toward the ballroom; and as they swung and dipped to the lilting music, he realized that he had forgotten how gracefully Rose danced.

"Harmonizing one-steps and two steps," the violins sang. He held her close, lost in the delight of the hour, and in her nearness.

"You're wonderful," he heard himself saying.

"Thats why Jack thinks," she answered demurely, and with a jolt Drewry remembered Jack Crane and her Jack.

The perfect evening was at its height when shock two jarred him. It was during the supper intermission, and he sat Rose very thinking an ice, when a portly, gray haired woman spoke softly to him in passing.

"Cholly!" exclaimed Drewry "that's Grace Uncle Bob. Wonder what he's doing here."

"Probably on business, as you are," Rose answered, indifferently. But wrongdoing discovered continues guilt, and Drewry was suddenly panicky. "Lucky Im going home in the morning," he thought. "I'll get in my explanation before he has time to talk to Grace."

But Drewry didn't leave in the morning, and it was the shock of three. "Arriving home Sunday noon," he had wired; but on returning to the hotel, he found a telegram waiting for him, instructing him to proceed to Barneyville at once. From Barneyville he kept to his schedule—and was in Atlanta, so it was another Saturday night before he turned his face homeward.

So now Drewry was genuinely worried. Grace, he knew, would let him alone, and that in itself looked portentious. What might not her friends tell her? Surely he'd always known enough about husbands and wives to know that innocent flirtation was no cause for alarm, and would never—never —not for ages, anyway, take a girl to a dance!

"You know your goods are okah, self yourself, Mr. Drewry," he told himself, but he felt like a broken-legged man trying to walk on when he entered his own front hall.

"So you're home," Grace remarked coldly, when he kissed her. "I've been waiting for you for hours," he answered, and took up the baby in his arms.

"I hope you enjoyed your week-end," she continued, taking the baby from him coldly.

"Now what did Uncle Bob tell you?" he asked," in an injured voice. "It's really very simple, if you'll let me explain."

Anger flamed in her eyes. "It seems that I've been simple," she retorted. "I've always believed everything that you told me, and now—now—"

The quarrel lasted through dinner, and a cold silence lay between them as they sat in the living room afterwards, each with an open book. He heard her crying in the night, and in the morning she looked feverish and tired. He made one more effort at reconciliation. "I did wrong, but I'm sorry. And I'll never do it again," he said, humbly, like a naughty little boy.

"Oh, shut up!" she answered. Somehow that stiffened him. Marriage was a matter of compromise, wasn't it, and of understanding and tolerance? It wasn't fair to her to be so bull-headed!

"Listen," he said, and a new note had come into his voice. "Remember how we used to dance together? We'd try out any kind of step, and, if we trod on each others toes or lost out in a glide, we'd hold the tighter, because we were partners. We're still partners, Grace, in the dance of life. Shouldn't we harmonize one-steps and two-steps and waltzes, because we love each other? He would say like lilting music as he spoke, but Grace and only Grace was in his mind.

She looked at him and strained to speak. The bell jangled.

"Telegram for Mr. Tabb." He signed for it, dropped it unopened on the table. "Read about Grace?" he urged.

"I guess you're right," she conceded. "Next time I wont—mind so much."

He ripped open the forgotten telegram. "Look!" he cried, and grinning, handed it over to her. It was from Rose.

"Jack arrived unexpectedly and we were married this morning. Leaving for Panama tonight."

"Tmph!" remarked Grace, "that eliminates one girl. How many are left, Drewry?"

Pop was trying to make his new cigar lighter work and ma was standing around grabbing smoked things strake and strake things, and mixed, saying, O dear, I see something on my mind, and the worst part about it is, I dont know what it is.

Yes gods youre in a bad way, why dont you write a letter to the paper, pop said

What I mean is, I made a New Year resolution at the first of the year, and I dont remember a thing about it except that it was quite important, I mean the general sum and substance of it has escaped my mind like water off a ducks back, in other words I haven't the faintest recollection of what the actual resolution was and I mite be break-ing it at this very moment in perfect innocence, ma said, I mean that an unwitting predicament? she said.

If it ever happened to me it would make a Hollabowick of me, pop said, and ma said, Yes, there of everything I would think of without thinking of it, I've packed my branes till there nothing left back, what do you think, William?

I think you must of forgotten it, pop said, and ma said, Well of course, any unborn child knows that, what I mean was, what resolutions do you suppose it could of been?

Id gidess by any chance make a resolution to have liver and onions on the menu at least twice a week all through the glorious year, did you? pop said.

Of course not, ma said, Ideer, ma said, and pop said, Thats what I was afraid of.

The worst of it is, for all I know Im breaking that resolution at this very instant, thats the reason I prays on me, ma said, Anyhow, I am breaking it, she said all excited.

Youre youre remembered it, pop said, and ma said, Yes, I made a resolution, but to forget so much, how learnt that the limit? she said Atlanta, so it will look pop said.

Probably meeting it could do even worse than that.

CANCEL DEBTS FORCE UNITED STATES' HANDS

Mussolini Points Way to Europe in Article in His Paper.

ARTICLE UNSIGNED

Is Known to Have Been Written By Il Duce Himself

Milan, Italy, Jan. 14.—Premier Mussolini advised Europe to-day in article in his newspaper, Popolo d'Italia, yesterday, to cancel international debts as the first step to the world's economic recovery.

The article, which was unsigned, but was known to be from Il Duce's pen, said this undoubtedly would leave the United States in such a position that it would have to follow suit by cancelling war debts.

It was Mussolini's second pronouncement through his Milan news paper, within three days of his personal views and therefore of the official policy of Italy.

The article today was spread across the front page of Popolo d'Italia, which since it was founded by Mussolini has been the nearest to an official Italian organ.

"Credit Not Issued"

The writer pointed out the moral effect that voluntary cancellation of reparations by European States would have on the United States. The American people could not, in the face of that, he said, insist on the payment of war debts, and thus appear in the history as the only profiteer of the war.

"It would be to the United States' own interest to make this gesture of renunciation, which would rebound definitely to its advantage," the article said. "Not only will she lose nothing but she will regain by other routes all she formerly cancelled.

"But the first step should be made in Europe. The United States cannot be expected to take the initiative. If in Europe that should place her in the position of facing the completed fact which she will end by accepting the more so because she will be unable in any way to revoke it."

Must Accept Declaration

"It is thus that the European creditors of Germany must accept the fact of her declaration of insolvency" Premier Mussolini continued.

"Is it believable that the American could recur to hostile acts in the economic and sentimental desire? No.

"The economy of the world is solid: Whoever in any part of the world damages it damages himself; customs reprisals call for counter-reprisals; a fall in one money places in immediate danger of ruin all moneys from that of the closest to that of the farthest country.

"The world needs the United States but the United States needs Europe and the world as never before."

McLAREN'S INVINCIBLE JELLY POWDERS

Roaring Box Stove Fires Old Time Winters Gone?

"O, Yeah!" is Phrase Used to Describe These Days

ON MEMORY'S WALL

"When the days begin to lengthen, then the cold begins to strengthen. Yeah! Though the ex-clamation is a deplorable one, it seems so appallingly descriptive with the fast lengthening days of mid-January and the continuance of mild, spring-like tinged weather, that its use, for once, seems justifiable.

Just when or where the couplet originated is not available traceable, nevertheless forty, fifty or more years ago at this time of year, it was as popular a greeting as the customary "cold weather we're having."

The good old days of zero weather and zero poor snow banks bordering the old board walks, with their first encrusted, protruding tall heads—how those old walks would crack on a clear, moonlit, star-spangled, mid-winter night. The days of cutters and sleighs with their bells and bearskin robes and hot bricks and warming pans, and the hot sleighs from the surrounding country, strawrilled with the family or neighbors huddled closely and in fur coats and mufflers, coming into town through pitch-holed roads to market and shop. The teams of horses white with frost where their breath had frozen along neck, chest and flank and the mufflers of the drivers white with their frosted breath also. The musical tinkle of sleigh bells of silver, brass, copper and iron filling the streets. The days of sleigh and ride parties on cold, soppy nights, to the home of some school teacher's parents, or that of a family, easy relative in the neighboring country-side. A group of couples and games, coffee, cider, sandwiches and cakes and then homeward bound, from beside the kitchen fire, getting hitched up again, and the twenty or so of the party homeward bound, and, the kick there was in holding your best girl's mitened hand, and the fervent prayer for more pitch holes in the road so you could be jolted against you and need your manly support. Oh Yeah! (There it goes again.)

The good old days of zero weather when whiskers of various trim and length were manhood's vogue and moustaches and bear-oil (questionable) kept them, and their flirtatious playmates, the whiskers, at bay, so that the days of coonskin, beaver and buffalo overcoats, fur caps and earlaps, mufflers and good homely knitted woollen underwear for men, and the days when the gentler sex wore real seal skin and Persian lamb jackets and coats and fur caps and caps to match of all shapes, with a dash of colour here and there, fur collars and fur muffs, fur gloves and woollen mittens, skirts of shocking length, corsets and busties, a few odd shirts, and petticoats, several layers of them. Stockings, cotton, flannel and wool, and—red flannel ones too, and an extra pair if the weather was real chilly.

The good old days of zero weather with the hoar frost high with snow, the cord wood piled in formation in the back yard and the backsaw shrilling cheerily. The pump in the yard or on the street, busy at about with ice and often requiring the steaming tea kettle to thaw it out, the good old days that eventually came from the spout, after much working of the handle and gasping of the pump and pumper, clear and sparkling and free from Lake Simcoe vertebrate lore. The youngsters about it estimating, the number of the day by sticking their tongues on the cast iron spout or pump handle. Goah! how they would stick on a real good old-time zero day. Shiney on rinks innumerable, and ably looked after, cleared and flooded by the youngsters and the gouncy folk of the immediate neighborhood. Bob and sleighs in Hambly's, Taylor's, Murney's, Church street, Catherine and Coleman street hills and tobogganing on the old slide at Hancocks on Dundas street.

Jack Miner, Canadian naturalist, who recently was appointed a member of a special Game Committee for the Province of Ontario, this week sits with the Committee in London, Hamilton, Guelph and Kitchener.

MEMBER OF COMMITTEE

The good old days of zero weather with the coal stove burning brightly and the ash heap in the back yard growing, or the old box stove roaring and mother hoarding the ashes for soft soap making. The berated apples in the cellar diminishing, and the stored sign-stuff waiting to spot. The frost on the windows being scraped and its patterns changing overnight. But the days are lengthening and though the cold is strengthening each twenty-four hours is bringing more and ever increasing minutes of daylight and winter will soon be on the wane.

Yes, as was said little time ago, another era, and look at the lengthening days of the winter of 1931-32 mud and muck, slime and slush and zero weather never. Manhood runnings down hare-headed and naked face, no real vaseline or bear oil, just scarfs as collar protectors, no real "fur" tichy red flannel, just some knee length, armless silk combination—no comment. And again some fur coats, flapping loosely, sleeveless fur coats, mitted gauntlets, dashes of colour here and there, but not where heretofore, in those good old zero days, hardly any skirt, busties not yet or few, corsets but very seldom, petticoat ever and skirts gone, just slips. Silk hose, shoes with negligible soles but bits of heel—hardly anything. No sleigh bells, just gasoline smells, no fur robes just electric heaters, no sleigh rides, just joy glides, no five foot snow banks, only murky pools no more bobs and sleighs, just policemen in their ways. No more roaring fires, fly swatting instead. Way no have an up-to-date couplet, that lisping children can learn and remember in old age, relative to our present and cut from memory that relic of by gone years. "When the days begin to lengthen then the cold begins to strength," Oh Yeah!

Adventurous Early Life of Poet Described by Professor Clarke

J. Masefield in Great Affection at Larry's Cafe

HIS POETRY

Intimate glimpses of John Masefield, his work, methods and his life in the United States as related by one who knew him when the poet laureate personally made the lecture circuit last summer for the Reading Club by Professor G. H. Clarke, head of the English Department of Queen's University, one that will long be remembered by the members.

From his talks with John Masefield and through critical study of his writings, Professor Clarke speaks with authority concerning the poet and his engrossing address was punctuated by many little anecdotes of an amusing nature.

Masefield is one of his American lectures said that "the English writers are less interested in men's minds as companions of men's spirits," and Professor Clarke pointed out that this was the great characteristic of this poet's work, his human sense of brotherhood. The king and the lowly man to him are alike just men. He has no class hatred for persecutors.

Although John Masefield is of a quiet, shy nature his early life was one of adventure. He sailed the seven seas, came to America at an early age when he was paid off by the ship, worked in factory, farm, and spent much time as bar-tender.

"American newspapers make much of the fact that Masefield was a bar-tender. They frequently remark that it seems a strange thing that a bar-tender should become a poet, when the facts" the case really are," commented Professor Clarke, "that a potential poet consented for a time to be a bar-tender."

For the owner of the cafe in which he worked in those days, Masefield has a great affection, and Larry O'Connor's present establishment boasts a large photograph of the poet-laureate, inscribed by Masefield. Larry O'Connor's cafe where Masefield saved his business by sending him this gift is the haunt of Larry's cafe and his association with the poet to the attention of "writing folk" for whom it has since been the favourite rendez-vous.

O'Connor admitted to Professor Clarke, who looked him up in New York that he was a writer, still a good worker, could not be entrusted to the delicate task of serving "mixed" drinks.

"He was a good lad," said O'Connor, "but of course I couldn't let him serve mixed drinks. It takes a real man to do that."

During his years in New York, all the spare time that the young bar-worker had was devoted to reading. He had actually gone through years of schooling but through his intense love of books, he has acquired a knowledge that would put many a college man to shame. At one time Masefield worked with a butcher he would take up the study of medicine or study the field of writing. Returning to England he chose the latter, working for many years on the staff of the Manchester Guardian.

Yeats and Synge are his special friends. Yeats is a descendant of the former was of the greatest encouragement to him when he began writing. Synge he met frequently in Yeats' room, and his three months visited a college in themselves. In chats with Professor Clarke, Masefield recalled those days and told of some of the early poets who influenced his writing.

Masefield writes in the open air, working about four hours a day. He usually completes one piece of work before beginning another. If he is diverted he returns to it, to finish it while strong interest persists. He is a severe self-reference for any one of his writings. When approached on the matter of punctuation, Mr. Masefield engagingly remarked that Dr. Johnson made defects in my punctuation are due to sheer ignorance."

Professor Clarke's definition of the art of poetry as "the fruit of strong excitement in the form of energy," Professor Clarke characterized Masefield as a great poet, combining the field of literature giving us essays, novels, plays, as well as poetry. His plays were beautiful but hardly great. Many of his novels were glorified pot-boilers. But as the greatest in the Shakespeare Sonnet tradition, he is one of three or four narrative poems. In his critical and editorial work, Masefield is very interesting, his gentleness, joy and his keen sympathy with those whom he likes making his criticisms particularly pleasing to the reader.

Professor Clarke concluded in his address an analysis of the poem, Everlasting Mercy. The poem has power and beauty of this poem are compelling. In the three phases show the development of the soul of Saul Caine, its hero. The first shows the life of the sinner, the second of his life as he is living it, the second tells of the inner peace, the spiritual new life and finally the joy and reality of spirit freedom.

Professor Clarke will be heard at a later date on the subject of John Masefield, when Mr. Masefield reads the lecture last evening will be eager to hear more of this favorite writer.

BREWMASTER BETRAYED BY SPELLING AT 500 BEE

Sault Ste. Marie, Jan. 14—At an old-time spelling bee conducted by the Rotary Club, Fred Haas, brewmaster at the Soo brewery, was spelled down on the word "prohibition." He immediately entered a protest claiming that he was not supposed to have acquaintance with the word. John Rusacy, a devout Catholic, was sunk on the word "pious," when he spelled "pius."

MONTREAL NO HIDING PLACE

Montreal, Que. (CP) —Montreal, the largest inland port in North America and the metropolis of the Dominion—is the most difficulty city in the world in which to stage a "disappearance," according to the local police.

Last year 1,300 persons were reported missing and of this number over 1,000 were traced and the cases docketed as "finis" in the archives of police headquarters, an enviable record when one considers that in Paris alone 27,000 people are listed on police blotters as "missing" yearly. New York has 25,000 reported "disappearances," while London police receive an average of twenty-six similar reports daily to bring the annual total to over 15,000 persons.

The Montreal detective force, under the direction of Inspector Victor Foucault, is responsible for the city's record of being a "tough place to pick as a "hideout." A special force of detectives is assigning and every day of the year they are kept busy from early morning up the usually slender clues that lead to the whereabouts of the disappeared persons. Other trails lead to a penitent "disappearer" whose pallid has long ago lost its taste for adventure but whose pride forbids him getting in touch with his family. Love, too, is uncovered by the patient investigators when they are put on a case where countless published notices of "all is forgiven—come home" bring no response. Here again, pride pays a prominent part with the others on behalf of Cupid break down the barriers of restraint and arrange a joyful reunion, between the two parties of life's drama.

Some trails end with the joining of long-parted brothers. An instance of this is contained in a dry-as-dust official report from headquarters. Two brothers, after spending a happy boyhood together on a tiny farm on the beautiful Somerset coast of England, decided to save their scanty earnings to come to Canada to make their fortunes. Here, in the course of time, the younger man or woman is a bigamist, having married again on reaching this city after deserting the family in the home land, feeling secure in the knowledge that no amount means would cover up all traces of the desertion. One, called to the West by the rich lands that were practically being given away at the time, started wheat farming in Alberta in a small way. He prospered and in time added cattle lands to his holdings. Today he is one of the wealthiest men in the West.

A few months ago, having retired from active business, he decided to trace his brother, something he had been unable to do in the past. He communicated with the Montreal police, confiding to them his difficulty, and in a short time he received a reply to the effect that his brother had been located. Deciding to pay him a visit, during the rushes came to Montreal and went to the address given him by the police. It was that of a large residence in Westmount—and in a short time the two brothers were again united. The brother had remained here, by hard work, built up a large contracting business, and was also ready to welcome the "boys" are in England now, revisiting the scenes of their boyhood—their plans of 50 years ago come true.

Red Newman Refuses to Sing The Old Song

Belleville has always extended a warm welcome to "The Dumbells" ever since these soldier boys returned from the war and proceeded to paint a living picture of life on the "poor belly infantry" with its lights and shadows, particular emphasis on the "lights" and soft pedal on the shadows. The reason for the popularity of the boys here was due to the fact that they had a way of getting acquainted with the citizens and bringing back memories of war days, were virtually "Our Boys," reflected as they did the spirit of Belleville over there. Al Plunkett, Red Newman, (Oh, Oh, It's Lovely War); Ross (Marjorie) Hamilton, Glenn Allen, all the old favorites and some new ones, but no girls, the feminine element having disappeared, so that the war can go on peacefully. Instead of the Hallowe'en celebration has been given to developing the orchestra which is one of the big features in the show.

"As You Were" is the title of this year's Dumbells' model, and it is a big laugh and fine entertainment throughout, with a touch of so-called "war stuff" with a thrilling introduction followed by an estainment scene which starts off with a bang and ends in a riot of laughter. "Red Newman has a new trench song which threatens to become as popular as "Mademoiselle, Oh, It's a Lovely War," which he refuses to sing under any circumstances. In fact there is not a repeat or request number on the whole show, the old gang is there and the old traditions are carried out, but the material, the songs, the sketches, settings and costumes are entirely new.

"As You Were" will be presented at The Capitol Theatre one night only, January 21st, and reserved seats are selling very fast, promising a record attendance.

ODERN TREND TO INSURANCE IS INDICATED

Premier King Urges Consideration of Human Factor

WINNIPEG SPEECH

nferences Wipe Out Differences, He Points Out

Winnipeg, Jan. 14—As the world emerges from a serious crisis to a new expansion of social movement, Right Hon. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, told a Winnipeg audience here tonight. The question of social insurance necessarily is one of important one in the mind of labor. It was considered with a certain fear, due to the risks which it involved, to run. As a result, when Governments were seeking to avoid obligations which involved expenditure, the Liberal Leader reminded them to consider first what the human side in every case is. He felt that progress would surely result from taking the form of social insurance.

The Liberal leader was the first speaker at a dinner last evening given jointly by the Board of Trade and the Canadian Club, members of that body and the Canadian Club, the mayor and others attended, and the reception accorded to Mr. King was enthusiastic.

His speech was absolutely nonpartisan in nature, the theme for his address being "Some Thoughts on the Ensuing Social Order."

Spirit of conciliation was coupled by Liberal Leader with his statement in respect to social insurance by far, he said, was the State behind in giving these things. The State, he answered, should perform such social relief work only with a balanced Budget. The powers of the State should be carried on, in this respect, in the same manner as that of the home. The State could not continue long to function successfully if the expenditures constantly exceeded the revenues. Neither should the State exceed without paying regard to the important matter of balancing a Budget.

YING BOAT CARRIES 200

ne Wing Air Liner Will Have Ten Motors of New Type

Amsterdam, January 14.—The mechanical details of the huge Koolhoven flying boat, which will be the size of the German DO-X, became known today.

The machine will have only one wing, with a span of 100 meters (about 328 feet) and the upper surface of the wing will be 1,000 square meters in area (about 10,764 square feet.) The total flying weight of 70 tons will give a wing load of 70 pounds to the square meter, and the total useful load, working mate- ial included will be 42 tons.

Ten motors will be used each of 500 horsepower, but instead of new type, will have a fuel consumption of 0.4 pounds per horsepower hour. This is regarded a favorable figure, since the normal figure for a benzine-burning aviation motor is 240 grammes per horsepower hour. A motor using the crude-oil motor has also shown specific of 180 grammes per horsepower hour.

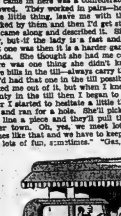
These ten motors will drive propellers in the tandem arrangement. The cruising speed will be 140 miles an hour, thus developing about 60 per cent of the motor capacity, or 6,600 horsepower. The cruising capacity will be 4,000 miles.

The building materials will be all metal and rust proof steel, for the first passenger flights of 2,500 miles, when a better fuel will be used. The starters for passengers will be in the wing as much as possible, hence there will be almost no passage as it is known on the flying machines now existing.

The motors will also be installed so that they will be carried to permit the wing to be in action radius but with the normal number of passengers aboard two motors may fail with another two tons of freight, the machine will be able to go 2,500 miles. If the new machine is used in the service to the Dutch East Indies it naturally can make several trips in the time required for a steamer to make a single journey to its speed, it can carry more passengers in the time than can a steamer in its first-class accommodations.

The flying machine will be built on a regular shipway. The construction expense will be about 2,000,000 guilders (about $1,200,000). This is half the expenses required for an airship, while the builders expect a far greater performance from the flying boat than from a lighter-than air craft. However its action radius will be much smaller. It is planned for the new machine to fly at less than 100 meters above sea level to save advantage in getting close to the surface of the water.

New Racket with Marked Bill and Change Finds Service Station Proprietor with His Eyes Open



Why they seem to pick on garages is something not quite clear to the garage man. Possibly it is because they think that there being so much oil and grease around them there is bound to be a certain softness. Maybe, too, it is because the game is generally "worked" by the owner of a car who drives in and is gone before scattered wits can be collected. However, just about three days ago one garage owner whose wits do not scatter easily, and who does not enter into financial deals in such harried fashion as a few others do, was just a little too fast for a lady who tried to pull a fast one. His estimated her, hi fact.

It happened this way, and, by the way, something else that might have had a bearing on the case is the fact that he had had it tried on him once before. A young man suddenly appeared from around the corner of his garage and asked for something or other necessary for his windshield, and after looking at several of the less expensive types he decided to take one of the cheapest ones. The proprietor offered to instal the thing before he started to wrap it up in a cheap piece of wrapping paper, however the young man refused, and pulled out his pocket book to pay for the purchase. There were several bills in the pocket book, as hetitled a young man of his well-dressed and smart appearance, and from these bills, all large ones, he pulled the smallest one he had — a twenty. He apologized profusely for tendering it, he mentioned that his car was parked in front of a nearby hotel, and that he was taking a motor trip through the Dominion, but he was well-supplied with cash, but they were all in big bills and the man would greatly oblige him if he would break his ten dollar bill and give it to him. He would consider it a great favor, but there was one thing he was insisting upon, he did not want the man to go to the trouble of running to some other place to get it changed. On that he was most emphatic. He is a smooth talker and a very very personable one. He chatted of many nice things to the proprietor as the man started for the car, after assuring him that it could be changed. And he again mentioned the man that he would be greatly obliged. The money—eighteen something—was counted out to the waiting palm and the young man departed, whistling merrily.

Enter the villain: A car drove up. A new, smart and expensive car. In stepped. A lady got out. A smart, stylishly dressed, snappy looking lady. She carried a small dog, a beaded handbag, her clothes well, a smile on her lips, her hat on crooked, a debonair air, and lots of assurance. She wanted a pint of oil for her car. Somehow the motor didn't seem to be running right and would he just put in one pint of oil, look over the motor and see if anything was wrong. The oil was put in. The motor was looked over, and as he was a truthful parage man (oh, yes you do) he admitted that as much as he would have liked to find something wrong with it, business being what it was just now and all that, he could not improve on perfection. The motor was okay, madam. And was there anything else she wanted—gas?—oil—. "No, she had had the car filled at the hotel and it was only when the car stopped trying peculiar, to her, that she stopped." She would be back past the dog hospital and get a lot more oil, both. Oh yes, she was staying for a few days. How much was that?" A dollar was tendered. But while it was being tendered she engaged in small talk and otherwise attempted to distract the attention of the owner of the garage. He was not the sort that could be attracted, but methodically went about his business of changing the dollar into silver which was then transferred to the waiting palm. The change was then counted out—the lady still held her note more. More was not forthcoming, and the annoyance on her pretty face grew. "That's the twenty I gave you, not just one dollar." "A twenty you gave me? "Yes, a twenty. I know it was a twenty because I remember the peculiar mark on one corner of it. It had a small red mark in one corner—I spilled some red ink there some time ago on it." She finished. "But I haven't a twenty in the place." "Haven't you a twenty in that till there—I just handed you . . ." "Say, what is this—you saw me put that bill into the till, didn't you?" Yes, she saw him put her twenty in the till. "And if for some reason that bill isn't in the till under the one you just gave me, you'll admit that there's something rotten in Denmark, won't you?" Yes, she admitted that if such were the case she would have no case, as it were. "Well, there you are—" and he snapped the dollar bill off the top of another soiled old bill lying underneath. There wasn't a sign of a twenty dollar bill anywhere near the till. The lady was nonplussed, vexed, bewildered and bedeviled. She hemmed and hawed and stammered and shifted from one foot to another. Even her dog looked under her arm got unsure.

"Now, if you'll just wait for a few minutes 'till I get back 'til we'll have a little adjustment on the matter —" but his voice was addressing nothingness as far as the lady with a dog under her arm was concerned. She had disappeared towards the waiting car, and only the bum of a starting motor broke the mid-afternoon silence. It was a con-game she had tried to pull, but one Belleville garage owner was a little too smart for her. "You see," he explained some time later, "I had had that game tried on me before, and then I lost twenty dollars. Never how it's worked." The lady who came in here was a confederate of the lady who followed. They worked in pairs—but it's a good business little thing, leave me with the bill which was marked by them and then I'd get stung, maybe, when she came back and described it. Simple as you know how, but—if the lady is a fast and smooth talker as she was then it is a harder one to beat. Sounds easy, sounds. She thought she had me cold, I suppose, but there was one thing she took for granted. "I had two large bills in the till—always carry them in my pocket. If I'd had that one in the till possibly she would have talked me out of it, but when I knew I didn't have a twenty in the till then I began to smell a rat. And when after I started to beallate a little then she smelled a rat and ran for a hole. She'll pick the lad up down the line a piece and then I'll get the racket you some other town. Oh, yes, we meet lots of little badger games like that and we have to keep up with them all. It's lots of fun, sometimes." "Gee, Mister!"

Heard On The Street

The inventive genius of man—and woman—never wanes. Always the ceaseless urge to find some new and modern method of doing things compels them to go on and invent new ways of doing old jobs that made life so irksome for their forefathers; every day we live we find short cuts to the routine chores met with in the days that come before us. With the aid of new appliances being created in great laboratories, and dispensed to the thankful and waiting world, big jobs become little jobs and little jobs become very tiny ones indeed. No longer does it become necessary for the lady of the house to wrap several yards of dress cloth about her head when the time comes to do a little dusting around the house, and no longer does she have to dress in her husband's old coat, to water the lawn—or wash the family poodle. For the former one of those whirly sprinklers can be set going, and forgotten about. And for the latter, just turn on the vacuum cleaner, and the dog and they clay clean him.

All that is needed to give Fido his dry cleaning is a vacuum cleaner. Start the machine, rub it over his curly hide a few times, and presto—the pooch has been rejuvenated. As personal cleanliness is concerned he will be clean as new would be if he were stuck in a tub of hot water and scrubbed to a fare-you-well. Maybe he won't like it at first they tell us, but perseverance will always win, and soon he gets a quite long and happene to get tangled up in the moving parts of the mibbine, after the thing is over he will come to love it. And then when his Saturday night rolls around will actually look forward to the weekly cleaning. If he is a very small dog it will be necessary to cover the nozzle of the machine with a fine wire screening, otherwise, at first, the chance of Monitomorrey being dragged through with the suction, and deposited in the dust bag. If this precaution is taken and the little dog does happen to become drawn into the dust bag, always shut the motor off immediately. Then open the bag, remove the screening from the bag and shake out the pieces. Matted hair, and dog collar, if any, can be blown out by reversing the motor. A beautiful Angora-like effect can be secured on the longer coated dogs by running the machine in circles. If he attempts to snap at the hand that feeds it, a sharp cuff on the ear will discipline him to do his job in future. If he prefers to be out in the rain and comes in soaking wet it can be used to dry him off.

A lost hand bag or purse was duly advertised in this paper some time ago, and the probable location of its loss was given as somewhere along Bleecker Avenue, north of Bridge street. The same night the advertisement appeared two ladies, armed with flashlights, were to be seen searching diligently for the lost article. One of them stumbled and fell heavily into a deep puddle of water lying along the ditch by the road side. The search was discontinued in a hurry, and considerable fuss ensued, ladies retired. Down in the south end of the town several residents are constructing ice boats, and following their lead, another young man on the East Side has gone to the cellar. He made it so large that one had wondering how to get it out now. The cellar door is so small it won't go that way, and surely it will have to be taken apart.

Scene in a Front street cafe the other evening: One restaurant proprietor eating lunch at the counter belonging to a competitor. On page 317, volume 10, 11th edition of Encyclopedia Britannica the page heading reads; Foot and Mouth Disease—Football. But after all Football is a sort of hoof and mouth disease. Those who play it have them, and those who merely watch an generally do a lot of chin wagging. "Hist!", remarked one of the ladies in the cage on Front Street, one rather late night when he heard that dog howl outside as the town clock tolled off the fleeting hours. "Wolves", he said, when the comrade in reply remark: "Alas, wolves, and we with no door to keep them away from." One of the trucks belonging to the city of Belleville lost the rear license plate the day of the big fire and considerable excitement was caused because one of the boys painted another one over with white paint, and put the numbers on it.

And a recent letter received anent the beautiful weather seems to be well summed up in a sentence quite well written. It starts off: "It is time wealth, ar sharps and scientists were grinding out for public imposition a lucid and consistent theory explaining this remarkably fine January meteorological condition. If our memory has not all gone Pleonastic and incarnate wisthesis explicated the extreme low temperature of last winter on the hypothesis that Professor was cooling off, depriving this satellite of its usual quantity of caloric rations and predicting protracted and most severe spasms of cold.

Oh, ye sapient servants, writhe in the throes of prophetic parturition! Your dinful valicinations are deceptive humbuggery." And if that isn't a calling down to some of these local weather prophets we don't know what is.

FEE PRINCIPLE BILL DESIGNED

Exchange Bill Will Prevent "Puts and Calls"

Washington, D.C. Jan. 14 (AP)—A bill designed to prevent manipulation of grain was introduced yesterday by United States representative Haugen, Iowa, Republican, at the request of the Farm Bureau Federation.

He also introduced the equalization fee principle as an amendment to the Farm Relief Act.

His grain exchange bill would prohibit trading in "puts and calls" and "options to buy and sell." The Secretary of Agriculture would be directed to fix reasonable margins between different grades of grain. No future contract would be allowed to exceed 2,000,000 bushels in any one grain.

Stops Baby Crying, Shoots it to Death

Douglas, Ariz., Jan. 4 —Ramon Osuco's mother, busy in her kitchen, was annoyed by her grandson's infant sister.

"Ramon," she said to the 14-year old boy, "go and see if you can stop that baby from crying."

Ramon did not answer. He casually picked up a revolver, walked to the crib and shot his sister through the abdomen. The child stopped crying instantly and died soon after.

Ramon was committed late Wednesday to the State Hospital for the Insane.

His parents declared he was the first sign he ever had shown of being dangerous, although they had "suspected" he was mentally deficient. Ramon cried when first taken to the asylum but laughed and talked later with the inmates. He began to play and assured he would not be beaten.

Hermit Stays In His Cabin Despite Bombs and Guns

Trapper Sticks to Fort as Police Go Back For Food

POLICE FOILED

Edmonton, Alta., Jan. 14.—Mounted Police at Aklavik have laid plans for the capture of a hermit trapper whose gunfighting from his lonely cabin eighty miles up the old Yukon Trail has warded off two attempts to arrest him.

A report received at Royal Canadian Mounted Police headquarters here told of a futile raid by eight Mounties on the cabin of Albert Johnson, wanted for the shooting of Constable A. W. King more than a week ago. The police gave it and asked Johnson's surrender, but after ten hours with bombs and gunfire were forced to retire when their food supply ran low.

Defies Posse

The party was headed by Inspector A. N. Eames of the Aklavik District of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. They left for Johnson's cabin eight days ago. When they reached his isolated hut, set on a brush-covered promontory twenty miles upstream from the mouth of the Rat River, Johnson, believed to be demented, defied the contingent to arrest him.

In either hand he had an automatic pistol, and a shower of bullets greeted the Mounties as they sought to rush the cabin. A pandemonium broke from frame shack and peppered his assailants from loopholes in the walls. The attackers had difficulty working in the twilight of the Arctic night.

When the police party hurled high explosive bombs at the cabin, Johnson moved into a tunnel dug beneath his floor. He was apparently prepared for this form of assault. Periodical rushes failed to get the trapper fired through the loophole.

During the attack members of the posse caught a glimpse of the cabin's interior. They said the floor was five feet below the ground level. Loopholes were at each corner of the shack, giving command of all sides of the building.

The report received here did not say how large a posse will be sent to dislodge the trapper. It will work from a base at the mouth of Rat River, where supplies will be kept.

Shot Constable

Johnson shot down Constable King recently when he and Constable R. G. Dodowell went to the trapper's cabin to investigate complaints of Indians that their traplines had been tampered with by Johnson. The Indians said the man had been acting strangely, and appeared to have become unbalanced mentally as the result of his solitary life in the Arctic.

The two constables were seeking admittance when shots were fired through the cabin door from within. One striking King in the chest. Medowell hastily loaded his wounded companion on his sleigh, and drove by dog-team through a blinding blizzard over isolated 80-mile trail to Aklavik, completing the distance in twenty hours.

Given medical attention here, King is on the road to recovery.

EXPECTING NEW CABINET TONIGHT

Paris, Jan. 13 (AP)—Experienced observers of French politics predicted today that a new cabinet, much like the one which resigned yesterday, would be announced tonight because of the pressing importance of the Reparations Conference at Lausanne and the Disarmament Conference at Geneva, both little more than two weeks away.

PHILCO
112X
—the first radio scientifically designed as a Musical Instrument
It looks different • It sounds different
It is different!
THE new Philco's inclined sounding board throws all sound directly up into the field of the listener. Ordinarily high notes are largely lost because high notes travel in a straight line without spreading out very much. Instead of projecting them along the floor the new Philco sends them up into the range of your ear so that for the first time in any radio you now hear the full musical register.
Furthermore, this Philco is the first radio ever designed so that you hear sound only from the front of the speaker. Ordinarily the sound from the back of the speaker strikes the wall back of the set and is reflected forward, reaching your ear a fraction of a second later than the sound from the front. This naturally causes a blur.
In the new Philco the sound from the back is directed down to the floor by an inclined sounding board and is not reflected forward. Yet even more protection is provided by the echo-absorbing cloth which absorbs much of the sound from the back before it even gets out of the cabinet. You have never before heard such clear, sharp, unblurred tone as this wonderful new instrument gives.
Still further, there is no hollow "barrel" or box-like sound because the speaker on the new Philco is not mounted in a chamber as usual, but on a sounding board with practically no enclosure in front. Thus you get in the new Philco the true, free, natural unboxed tone of the original instruments and voices.
Again, the size and weight and rigidity of the sounding board are all greater than usual, still further contributing to the most perfect vibrationless tone ever heard in a radio.
Words cannot express the supreme quality of this marvelous instrument. This is fidelity of tone beyond anything you ever thought possible. Turn your back or close your eyes; you will believe that you are in the actual presence of the artists themselves.
This new model 112X Philco Balanced Superheterodyne complete with Tubes, 2 Pentode Tubes, Push-Pull Circuit, Philco Automatic Volume Control, 4-point Tone Control, Illuminated Station Recording Dial, in a cabinet whose beauty has kept pace with its advance in reproduction. Inside is the famous Philco 11-Tube Superheterodyne plus with ranging and sensitivity for in excess of all ordinary requirements.
Do not delay your enjoyment of the finest in radio. You can purchase this master musical instrument from any Philco dealer on very easy terms and have it placed in your home today. Make up your mind to have it at once. See it. Hear it. Buy it. Enjoy it.

IMPORTANCE OF WOMEN IS INCREASING

Past Half Century Has Brought Startling Changes

WOMEN'S STATUS

Miss Tufts Recounts Achievement of Nova Scotians

Halifax, N.S. — "No matter what the nationality of the early settlers who came to this country, they found themselves in complete accord on one subject, at least — whether what their origin, they brought with them a broad idea. A firm and unyielding prejudice as to the inherent capacity and the highest destiny of women-kind. However liberal the democratic ideal which was the forefather of ours cherished, however tolerant and attitude as far as women were concerned, was as narrow and intolerable in that respect as stands in the Old World from which they had "come." In an address delivered for the special New Year's edition of the Halifax Herald, Evelyn E. Tufts, one of Nova Scotia's most incisive writers, brings a line of progressive women to the front, showing the fine years' ago when Nova Scotia was comparatively young and sturdy and its prejudices against women's importance in the life of the province.

"Fifty years ago, five fingers of fate directed a woman's career. There was marriage. If, in the ordained course of events, that never she had not acquired a husband, she picked up her knitting needles and prepared to settle down as one of the "maiden ladies" of the community. If she were skilled with the needle, dress making became her profession. School teachers or milliners were the "strong-minded" individuals, awing the public with their infinite daring. For a daughter of the well-to-do life was but an empty round of formal social duties.

"Higher learning it was felt, was not for women. The Reverend Dr. Cramp, president of Acadia University for nearly twenty years, was merely voicing the prevailing sentiment among educators of his time when he said that he hoped he would never see the day when a woman would graduate from Acadia.

"The good Doctor need not have worried. It was to be fifteen long years after he had left Wolfville for good before a young woman from Annapolis County, Miss Clara Marshall (now Mrs. Raymond) of Mount Hanley, performed the colossal feat of attending that University and conquering it successfully for her Arts degree with a class of them. The very next year after this miracle took place Miss Margaret Florence Newcombe, of West Cornwallis, Kings County, who is now Mrs. Truman of Berwick, graduated with the degree of B.A. from Dalhousie. This was in 1885.

"The myth of masculine superiority in this field thus having been dispelled, other women graduates followed in swift succession until now such prodigies of learning attract no undue attention whatever. Last year the very forty-four women graduated from Dalhousie and at least that many from other fields.

"There are now at least a half-dozen women lawyers who have been admitted to the bar in Nova Scotia—the first to qualify being Mrs. Francis Lillian Fish of Newcastle, who graduated from Dalhousie in 1912. There are five or six women doctors, the first to graduate in medicine being Miss Annie Isabella Hamilton of Brookfield, N.S., who graduated from Dalhousie in 1894, and died in China some years ago. The participation of our women in these learned professions no longer occasions more than passing comment, so greatly have our standards of general education changed.

"The profession of nursing today, providing an important field of employment for hundreds of young women, had scarcely been seriously thought of fifty years ago. The great hospitals of New England and New York were only tentatively opening their doors as training schools, and had yet to learn of the native superiority of Nova Scotians as nurses and dietitians.

"The introduction of the telephone into Nova Scotia as early as 1878 supplied women with another opportunity for gainful employment and today there are nearly five hundred operators in actual service. The typewriter, another emancipator of women, has been generally introduced into business life here in the past thirty years, and now the skilled typist, the competent secretary and the capable woman executive are common-place of every modern organization.

"Granted the franchise in 1918, women of Nova Scotia now have the inestimable privilege of marking an X opposite some man's name on the ballot. Both parties now have their women's organizations and eventually, no doubt, women candidates will be contesting both Federal and Provincial seats. Already women are serving on municipal and school boards with conspicuous success.

"To recognize change is not necessarily to deplore it; life will inevitably find its own level; and no doubt it is better to wear out than to rust."

In 1930 British Columbia produced 565,000 pounds of factory cheese compared with 29,450 pounds in 1929, an increase of 1130 per cent.

BANK ORIGIN RECALLED BY AN OLD BILL

Officials Delve Into History to Decide Fate of $20 Note

ALL GOOD

Other Bills Are Dug Up By Residents of Nova Scotia

Halifax, N.S. — It was a $20 bill, dated October first, 1864, of doubtful status.

Two banks had cleared it without knowing quite what it was worth if anything, who was responsible for its existence, who was responsible for its payment. Discussing it in Halifax, N.S. in June, it had wandered about in the bank clearings for months until it reached the main office of the Royal Bank of Canada in Halifax.

There the accountants gathered around it like wolves. They admired the old fashioned ship-hall steamer, half saving, that was on it, was set off in an oval at the top; they wondered what had become of "The Merchants' Bank" it purported to represent; they pondered over the signatures: W. Merkil, president; George Maclean, cashier.

All knew something about the old Merchants' Bank of Halifax, Merchants' Bank of Prince Edward Island and Merchants' Bank, every one was confident enough of his information to place "The Merchants' Bank."

So the strange note was referred to C. H. Mackintosh, supervisor of Maritime branches, for a decision on its value.

Promptly, Mr. Mackenzie decided its value was exactly $20, and the obligation was the Royal Bank's. He proceeded to tell a story that might have been something like this:

The Merchants' Bank was the acorn from which the Royal Bank of Canada grew to a sturdy oak of international proportions. It had its origin in the years when the American Civil War was at its height, when the northern states of the union offered a market for all kinds of produce, when blockade runners carrying on trade with the southern confederacy swarmed in the port of Halifax, when banks and houses reaped huge profits and the city was in its heyday of prosperity. New business ventures were the fashion, and those were recorded in Halifax newspapers of that time was The Merchants' Bank, which opened its doors to the public on May second, 1864, with J. W. Merkil as president, George Maclean as cashier, Edward Kenny (later Sir Edward Kenny), T. C. Kinnear, John Duffus, William Cunard (son of Samuel Cunard), John Fairbanks, founder of Tobin and Company, George P. Mitchell and Jeremiah Northrup directors. Prominent names, those were at the time, and some of them are carried on by citizens of Halifax today.

Thus G. Lowrey Archibald of Halifax, now a director of the Royal Bank, is a grandson of George P. Mitchell; J. Norwood Duffus, a grandson of John Duffus; Andrew Merkel is a grandson of J. W. Merkil and J. E. Kenny, ex-lieutenant-governor of Nova Scotia, is a grandson of Sir Edward J. Kenny. Miss Muriel Kinnear, who recently was transferred from the Dominion Archives office to Ottawa, is a great-granddaughter of T. C. Kinnear.

The first report, dated 1867, was under the British North American Act, the new parliament of Canada was given exclusive jurisdiction over all matter pertaining to banking. Full banking privileges were not permitted to co-partnership associations, so the directors of the Merchants' Bank applied for a charter, and an act incorporating the Merchants' Bank of Halifax received royal assent on June 22, 1869, with an authorized capital of $1,000,000.

T. C. Kinnear was elected president, and the bank expanded, rapidly. Branches were established in various parts of Nova Scotia. In 1870 Thomas R. Kenny, son of one of the original directors, was elected president to succeed Mr. Kinnear. Further expansion was undertaken, and in 1901, with branches in Newfoundland, in Cuba, and an agency in New York, the institution had become international in its scope and in 1904 decided that a more comprehensive title should be adopted in accord with its position. In that year the name was changed to the Royal Bank of Canada. Since then it has extended its business to England, France, Spain, Bahamas, South America, Panama and recorded nearly 200 branches.

Because official records dated the birth of the Royal Bank of Canada 1869, the year the Merchants' Bank of Halifax was incorporated, the accountants did not trouble about the co-partnership association that had been established in 1864.

Mr. Mackenzie might have added that the ship portrayed on the old bill was Sir Samuel Cunard's Britannia, which left Liverpool on July 1840, for Halifax, N.S. and Boston, Mass., initiating the original bi-weekly service of the Cunard Line.

The arrival of the Britannia at Boston on July 18 was the signal for the first of many celebrations in the history of the port.

But that is another story. Equally more than history attached to the bill, for it is one of many old bank notes that have turned up during the cleaning days of the past few weeks.

Bundles recently cleared from Lombard contained $600 in old bills representing the Merchants' Bank of Halifax, absorbed by the Royal Bank of Canada in 1901, the People's Bank of Halifax and Bank of New Brunswick, absorbed in 1910 by the Bank of Montreal in 1908 and $1,000 in bills issued by the Bank of Prince Edward Island, taken over by the Canadian Bank of Commerce in 1906. They were all good, and the Gebarus lady who deposited them was paid dollar for dollar in modern currency.

Whether the cause be depression or caution, Nova Scotians are digging down into their stocking legs. That the notes of other days are honored is considered a tribute to Canada's national institutions and to the banking systems employed by the Dominion.

The Halifax paper compared press despatches from Boston, announcing that a score of private and state banks had closed their doors, and from Halifax, telling about the honoring of time-worn bills of early banks, to illustrate the difference between the banking systems in Canada and United States. And a banker figured that if the owner of the belated Merchants' Bank bill had deposited it in a bank instead of keeping it in his stocking he would have had more than $150 instead of $20.

Christmas Mail Keeps Staff Busy

Montreal, Que. (By The Canadian Press)—While all the rest of the city is settling down to normalcy after the big gift-giving season, the staff of the Dead Letter Office is in the midst of its busiest time of the year—that of disposing of several tons of misdirected letters and parcels.

In spite of repeated pleas for care in addressing packages and letters made by the Postal Department prior to the annual rush, the accumulation at the Dead Letter Office here is at least as great this season as last. Every conceivable error and omission is to be found in the mail which comes to the store where the street address has been carefully forgotten; in others, more often than not, the street given is unknown in Montreal.

Giving the wrong street number is the most common mistake but it is surprising how many of the letters plainly inscribed "Montreal" were apparently not intended for this city at all. It would seem that in the excitement of getting Christmas presents and letters despatched a number of people, sane at other times, completely lose their heads.

Investigation indicates that women are more careless than men in addressing mail, particularly in the important matter of placing a return address on the letter or packet.

The majority of the letters piled up at this busy bureau bear no return address. This means that they must be opened and the signatures examined. If a street address is found inside, the letter is sent home addressed to the signature given, which results in strange inscriptions such as—"Honey, 179 Blank Avenue Toronto," on returned missives.

SHOWER FOR NEWLYWEDS

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Moy Are Honored By Neighbors

On Monday evening Jan. 11th a miscellaneous shower was given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hillman at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Moy, just west of Consecon. A large number of friends and neighbors were present. The early part of the evening was spent in games and social discourse and then Clifford and Daisy were asked to come and occupy chairs near a table loaded with parcels. Mrs. Sherman Babbitt then read the following address:—

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hillman:
Dear Friends:—

It is with a feeling of great pleasure that we are gathered here tonight to greet you and congratulate you on your departure on the bright and tranquil sea of matrimony. We are very glad indeed that the word "departure" does not signify your leaving the community where from childhood you, Clifford have endeared yourself to all with whom you carry in contact and your cheerful disposition has indeed won you many friends. To the bride we extend our heartiest congratulations on your choice of your life partner and welcome you to our neighborhood. We feel that in the future your presence in the neighborhood will be a blessing and a benediction indeed.

Now may we ask you both to accept these gifts that they may continue to remind you of your many friends here and of their sincere wishes for a long happy and prosperous wedded life.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbors, Clarence Moy, Clarence Hay, Herbert Hall, Sherman Babbitt.

The young couple were completely taken by surprise but both made fitting replies, the many beautiful and useful gifts were unwrapped and the recipients expressed their thanks for them and invited their present to visit them in their home. All joined in singing "For they are jolly good fellows". Fruit and candy were served and the gathering broke up about eleven thirty.

An exhibition of modern British paintings with a special section by the Canadian art was opened at Tokyo recently.

FORMER QUEEN SOPHIE DIES

Sister of Former Kaiser Wilhelm, Widow of King Constantine

Frankfort-am-Main, Germany, January 14.—Former Queen Sophia of Greece, sister of former Kaiser Wilhelm, died at Hemmen here last night after a lingering illness from cancer. She was 72 years old.

The one-time Queen of the Hellenes had been living in Florence, since the death of her husband, King Constantine, in exile at Palermo, on January 11, 1923. She came to Frankfort last November to seek the advice of a specialist, who operated on November 13, but found the ailment too far advanced for successful treatment.

During the last week, she underwent a series of relapses. Her children, George, Paul, Helen—Queen of Rumania—and Irene, were called to the bedside each time.

DRAMATIC ARRESTS AT WENTWORTH PROBE

Two Villages Swept in N. S. Floods, Man Loses Life

Countryside Swept, Man Bearing Warning is Lost When N. S. Dam is Burst

Lifeless Body of Thos. Kaulbach Found at Noon Today

GIVES HIS LIFE

Highway Bridge Destroyed; Total Loss is $150,000

Great Village, N.S., Jan. 15 (CP)—Volunteers who surveyed a torn road wrecked countryside in the wake of last night's flood found the lifeless body of Thomas Kaulbach among the debris here today.

Kaulbach was on his way to warn residents of the lower valley of the lake below Westchester mountain had broken, when the car was whisked away, by the turbulent waters.

The flood was precipitated by the mild weather that melted the snow of the mountainside and filled the lake to overflowing. All day yesterday dynamite was being carried bored in an effort to relieve the strain on the dam, and dynamite was used to send some of the water into the marshland here. Shortly before midnight, however, the dam gave way and the water, overflowed the river banks, tore through a section of Londonderry Village, swept over the mines of countryside to Great Village and emptied into Cobequid Bay.

As the flood raced on, it carried with it a highway bridge valued at $20,000, two Londonderry houses, a barn at Great Village, and numerous telegraph and telephone lines. Other estimates of the total damage varied from $100,000 to $150,000.

Hon. Percy E. Black, Minister of Highways of the province, left Halifax early this morning to direct relief work and reconstruction of damaged bridges and highways.

"An immediate survey will be made," he said, "and, if possible, repairs will be undertaken at once. It is most unusual to have floods at this character in Nova Scotia in January. They are generally expected in March and April."

The flood covered a length of six miles from Lake Isle to Cobequid Bay. From Londonderry to Great Village it followed the course of the river and then spread out over the two miles of marshland between the village and the bay.

The farmers carried away belongings to Harry Beals and Merritt Eagles, a barn to L. S. Hill. The Londonderry schools were badly damaged, and a grist mill owned by L. D. Morrison of Great Village, was swept out on the marshes. A. C. Boomer's garage in Great Village and C. Layton and sons store were flooded at Layton's Lake.

Mr. Kaulbach, a native of Truro, N.S., was spending the winter with Harry Eagles, one of the owners of the district were rushing women and children to safety all night around. Kaulbach was seen near the Eagles' homestead. He was, presumably, on his way to the home of Jim Eagles, about half a mile down the marsh. The waters rushed from the dam to the bridge in a few minutes and the ill-fated rescuer was last seen struggling in the swirling wreckage of his car on the bridge. The home of Jim Eagles was spared.

18 Holes of Golf On January 14th

Believe it or not but Mr. J. Legault and a Pathé News crew smacking the old golf down the fairways at the temporary greens of the Belleville Golf Club yesterday while the sun shone and the birds twittered on the trees nearby. They played the full eighteen holes twice around and reported that the fairways were excellent after a bit of snow to be swept and even the old sand holes seemed as dry as it would be in May. The temperature readings of a low 36 were reported by both of them. But they used to know new is whether or not this 14th of January golf game has beaten the record for other years —and if so for how many?

URGE REMOVAL OF EMBARGO

Canada Believes Embargo on Potatoes Should Be Lifted

(By George Hambleton)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Jan. 15. — (Canadian Press Cable)—Representations will be made to the British Ministry of Agriculture urging the removal of the embargo on Canadian potatoes instituted in 1925. The ministry a few days ago denied there was any intention of lifting the ban, but T. L. Caldwell, of Florenceville, N.B., representing the Potato Growing Associations of the Maritimes, as well as the Dominion and Provincial Governments, said today renewed efforts would be made with the arrival of Arthur Gibson, chief of the Entomological Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Hon. Lewis Smith, minister of agriculture for New Brunswick, is also coming to England to strengthen the Canadian presentation of the case for removal of the embargo.

Mr. Gibson is expected to arrive here on January 24th with data to show that shipments of Canadian potatoes could be made from the Colorado beetle and there is therefore no justification on the ground for the continuance of the embargo. It was on account of the potato beetle the embargo was first put into effect.

The point taken by Canadian experts is that the Colorado beetle cannot survive winter before Canadian potatoes are taken from the ground, and therefore shipments cannot have been affected.

DYNAMITING CHARGES FAIL 2 MEN FREED

Witnesses Tell of Unknown Men Seen Fleeing After Blast

ACCUSED NOT NEAR

Interest at Marmora Trial in Game Case

VanValkenburg and Bowen were acquitted on charges of dynamiting trout streams in the Marmora district when they appeared in the court here today.

The town hall at Marmora was crowded with citizens from both Peterborough and Hastings Counties to hear the fate of Lorne Bowen and Milo VanValkenburg, who were charged under the Game and Fisheries Act with using explosive to destroy bass and pike in a section close to the Sopha property in the Township of Methuen, County of Peterborough, on December 31st, last.

The evidence disclosed the fact that about four o'clock in the afternoon on December 31st an explosion was heard in the direction of the beaver dam and the beaver house on the Sopha property. Mr. and Mrs. Sopha and his son were cutting wood about 150 rods away and after hearing the explosion went through the woods and when about 100 yards from the beaver house they stated that they saw two men, one holding down into a hole made by the explosion and the other one digging as fast as he could. The beaver house and that the two men realizing some one was there ran in a northerly direction and Clarence Sopha chased them but could not gain on the retreat of the two men but saw one running with a gun. Both Sopha and his son testified that the two men were the accused persons. Considerable other testimony and it appeared that on this day neither one on the beaver company of the other and they fully explained a complete alibi. A great many witnesses were called as to the movements of the accused on the afternoon in question. This showing that neither one of them had been within two and one-half miles of the beaver dam on that day. Evidence was also given as to fixing of the two men seen by the Sophas at the beaver dam was not the clothing worn by either of the accused. Major R. D. Ponton, K.C. and Mr. Irvine Dictaphone in the conduction of the evidence sated for an acquittal, which the prisoners was unchanged from that of last night.

Some of the bulls were down slightly. Imperial being off ¼ at 10¾ and International Petroleum down ¼ at 11¾. B. A. Oil and Superest each were unchanged. There were no changes in the N. Nickel, Beatty Bros., Walkers, Page-Hersey, Abitibi, the Chain Store and Canada Bread preferred stocks. Brazilian and C. P. R. were both former. Brazilian off ¼ at 12 and C. P. R. up ¼ like amount at 17¾.

An unusual circumstance occurred in the first hour when Nickel, Imperial Oil and B. A. Oil were obviously were selling at 10¾. Annual dividend rates that have been sent to a share in the case of Nickel to 80 cents a share for B. A. Oil.

LARGE COUGAR KILLS CALVES

Mechanic Inspecting Air Beacon in N. Y. State Finds Beast

Stony Point, N.Y., Jan. 15— The mystery of dozens of slain calves and sheep was believed solved today by Frank Rossi, mechanic for the Department of Commerce.

Climbing rugged Dunderberg mountain yesterday to inspect the airway beacon, he said he came upon a huge cougar, 9 feet long as it. Bernard dog, on a ledge 2,000 feet above the Hudson River.

Guelph, Ont., Jan. 15—Wilfred B. Sutton, of Toronto, on his plea of guilty to a charge of escaping from custody. Sutton, who made a getaway from the Ontario Reformatory yesterday morning, was recaptured near Georgetown, was sentenced to two years in Portsmouth penitentiary, with the added order that when he has completed this sentence, he must serve the unexpired portion of his reformatory term.

HEAVY WIND IN TORONTO

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 15—For just a few minutes this morning, a 63 mile an hour gale swept Toronto's harbor front. The wind record which swirled eastward across the continent from the city has caused little damage. The blow was accompanied by a heavy rain shower.

Three Men Now Held as Material Witnesses Only

TORONTO, Jan. 15. — Everett had no money.

The arraignments was for the whole charge in the City Sharp's check. The rest walked out, leaving Sharp there. Then he attempted to escape from the police station, Sam Sing, and finally did get out.

However, Yuen followed and held Sharp by the coat lapels. The other three returned to see what was causing the delay. Barker punched Yuen once, it is alleged, and he fell, the four then ran down Church street.

Yuen was until a year ago a cook at the Quinte Cafe, Belleville,

As they led Mrs. Gandhi away after sentence had been imposed she suddenly broke her silence.

"Why are giving me only six weeks in prison?" she demanded, "do you want me free again so quickly to receive lathi blows with my countrymen? I won't remain quiet even if I am released. Then give me the same sentence you give my sister workers."

The judge shook his head.

"I am helpless," said he, "what is done is done."

Two Men Under Arrest Other Charges Follow Says Ontario Marshal

Fire Marshal Orders Arrest of John Berta on Several Charges

MORE ARRESTS?

Marshal Hints at Further Arrests Before Day is Out

DUNDAS, Ont., Jan. 15.— The Wentworth barn fire inquiry took a sensational turn into morning when John Berta, 6th Concession, Beverly township, was ordered arrested by E. P. Heaton, Fire Marshal on charges of arson, following the mysterious fire to the chattels within his barn.

Berta was taken in charge by Inspector John Hammond and lodged in jail in Hamilton. It will be recalled that Berta's barn was one of the many on the Binch Concession to vanish in smoke last October when the Wentworth "fire" bug was supposed to be at large. The charges of false pretenses arose out of statements before the fire inquiry by E. Arkell, representative of the Dominion Hands Fire Insurance Company that Berta's claims were hopelessly exaggerated.

Intimation that there would be further arrests in the Wentworth fire epidemic came from the Fire Marshal, Action is expected before the day is out.

Dundas, Ont., Jan. 15.— (CP) — Two men were arrested here today in connection with the series of barn fires which ravaged Mr. Wentworth township last autumn, James McConnell, 25, farm hand, and Arthur Berta, son of one of the barns burned, are the two.

The arrests came at the end of a long investigation held by E. P. Heaton, Ontario Fire Marshal, into the series of fires. McConnell faces a charge of arson, while Berta is charged with false pretenses, attempting to obtain insurance money by false pretenses, and burning the contents of his barn. The arrest of Berta came at the end of investigation closed today. Joseph Pickles, former employe, had testified that he had been offered $200 by accused to burn the barn. "He ville.

Barn is Struck in Lightning Storm

St. Thomas, Ont., Jan. 15—William Tolmie, reeve of Rodney, lost his second barn in two months this morning, when the large structure, used for tobacco curing, was struck by lightning this morning and destroyed.

Fortunately the bulk of the tobacco had been sold. The loss will be about $3,000, the same as the first fire, with partial insurance only.

said he'd give me $200 or more if I'd put a light to the barn.

He asked me if I was afraid and told me not to be frightened. He had the Pender, his nephew, who said at him and that if I burned the barn I'd have a couple would think Pender did it."

"Did Berta tell you he wanted the barn burned?" Heaton was asked.

"Yes, he told me he owed plenty of money. The buildings were in need of repair and he needed the insurance."

Fire Marshal Heaton thereupon ordered the arrest of Berta, who was sitting in the courtroom.

A moment later, the investigation into the fire which had destroyed the barn of Thomas Surerus, McConnell was employed on the farm.

During the epidemic of fires in Wentworth County last fall hardly a night passed but a barn burned. Farmers of the district, heavily armed patrolled highways and byways. The resulting general, township and municipal police joined in the search for a "firebug" presence of whom was strongly rumored. Nearly 30 barns were burned on successive nights, with occasionally two being destroyed on the same night.

Dundas, Ont., Jan. 15—Jim McConnell, hired man in the employ of Johnson Tew, former Warden of Wentworth county was arrested this afternoon on a charge of arson. He is accused of burning the barn of Thomas Surerus, Greensville.

Wayfarers Lulled to Slumber by Soft Guitar Notes at Hostel

Boy of Fifteen in Company Who Sojourn at Shelter For Night

SEES RUSSIA YET

A softly strumming guitar, played by a wandering minstrel, was the song beating his way across Canada and finally reaching the Hostel, the home with meals and lodging, sometimes, for the wayfarer, was the theme and notions where he visited and played for them, soothed weary travellers to brought home the peacefulness to the twenty-four transients who registered at the hostel in the twenty-four Front street last evening, as they gathered around the guitar player and softly the old favorites which were sung by Moonlight.

Among their number was a mere child—a boy of fifteen who was also one of the most interesting of all on the move; constantly being ordered to move on. He was, as the rest were, homeless and jobless, and on his way to Montreal from Toronto where he expected to obtain work arranged for him by friends there. A travelling Russian, too, helped to lend color to the cosmopolitan atmosphere of the hostel and Belleville, a radical, so his associates called him. Nothing seemed to suit him. There wasn't enough meat in the soup; the bread was too white; there wasn't enough tea in the tea. "Canada was a wonderful country, and Russia was really the only place where a man could live as a man should." But there was little time for his complaints — there was music to listen to, and they had heard these radicals before." If they didn't like the country why did they stay in it?" was the question they asked themselves. And a question that is the subject of many a hot note of the music died away and the lights above the recumbent forms. Conversation ceased, men slowly stretched out in the warmth and found their bunk which ran the length of the room. Only the rustle of the blankets as they were pulled and turned the paper to and fro as he read the newspaper broke the quiet for those fellows and even if it did rain the trip must be continued.

COMING TO AID IS ARRESTED

They had celebrated together — they had shared dull-care, they had discussed and settled great questions, friends are today baffling the best minds in the world — depression was a thing of the past they were happy — but alas this marvelous buoyancy and elation was premature. Wine or other liquors had produced this transient "state of bliss" and now it is over and they are wondering how it all happened.

For the past fifteen days one of the "merry fellows" will have time to think the matter over in the county jail and his companion will have a similar length of time unless he is able to secure bail. The fine and costs, which Magistrate Mikel imposed this morning, the police appeared before him in city police court, from one who had been definitely sent to the jail, said that the decision of the court was indeed quite just and that he would be pleased to arrange the matter of the sitting fine by giving the money to note payable in sixty days. This however was not accepted and to the jail he was sent. In all probability his companion will remain with him. Friends they are and it was friendship — loyalty and a desire to resent the fine and costs decrees that not one of them into the same predicament. Unfortunately Learning that his friend had been taken in charge by the police, he came to the police station about one o'clock this morning and demanded that he be set down beside him — in fact he was there to see that it was done and he succeeded in giving bail in order that his friend might join him. His arguments did not impress the night sergeant — neither did his conditions — instead of taking his friend with him he joined him in the police cells and the two were soon "dead to the world" temporarily.

The one who came to the rescue of his companion, has had since October last a one hotel permit, 117 quarts of wine, 12 quarts of ale and 6 quarts of liquor. This information has been placed in readiness for action in police court this morning. They had a great deal of time while he lasted — now they must pay and they are anxious to know if depression does exist and they, no doubt, are experiencing a good share of it.

ECONOMISTS HAVE PLAN TO CURE ALL ILLS

Urge Collective Action Towards Credit Expansion

PROGRAM SIMPLE

Number of Rules Laid Down For Guidance

(Copyright 1932 by The Associated Press)

New York, Jan. 15.—A broad section of the leading economists of the United States, after two months of intensive study of the problem, have agreed upon simple programme of economic action which they believe should relieve world business ailments, increase employment, and strengthen prices.

Dr. Warren Persons, prominent economist, in an exclusive interview with the Associated Press today, stated the program had been approved and endorsed by the associations, congressman, government economist, farm organizations, and prominent individuals. Its success, he said, depends upon wide co-operation of important interests, particularly industrial and bankers, but that it seemed assured.

The economists urge collective action towards business expansion, and maintenance of the gold standard, and declare that the United States may stride forward without availability, inflation or European difficulties.

Their program is relatively simple, and, Dr. Persons explained, represents the least common denominator of effective platform upon which the agreement seemed possible. Failure to mention aspects of the problem on which are not touched upon does not indicate that members of the group regard them as unimportant.

Then the economists recommend the following steps:

1—The enactment of the bill establishing the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to deal more effectively with emergency situations.

2—Proper economy in municipal, state, and national budgets, and increased taxation.

3—A commercial banking policy co-operating with the reserve banks in checking credit decreases and encouraging increases, including:

A—An increase in sound investments.

B—Co-operation in aiding necessary treasury financing.

C—Borrowing from federal reserve banks when necessary to meet loss and other sound needs."

They express the conviction that incorporation of these policies is sound, should exert powerful pressure toward these four ends.

1—Stopping the downward trend of prices.

2—Returning hoarded money to the banks.

3—Securing the normal value of securities, and

4—Starting the beginning of business recovery."

OPERATION OF PROCEDURE IS MOST IRRITANT

States Memorandum Submitted By Ex-Service Men

CAUSES SHOWN

Means of Alleviating Trouble Are Also Investigated

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 15 (CP)—The greatest source of irritation and dissatisfaction among ex-service men is the operation of the "technical procedure" instituted as a result of the 1930 amendments to the Pension Act, according to a memorandum submitted by the Pension Advocate to the Prime Minister by a delegation drawn from the associations of ex-service men. Signed by Major John Stanton, Sapper R. Quinn, Private S. Roper, M.C., D.C.M., and President of the Canadian Legion; Colonel W. G. H. Wood, Army and Navy Veterans; Lt.-Col. Ernest Myers, Amputations Association of the Great War; R. L. Richardson and Arthur Pearson Club of Blinded Soldiers and Sailors and F. McDonald, the Canadian Pensioners' Association, the memorandum demonstrates the cause of dissatisfaction among returned men and presents certain recommendations designed to eliminate them.

Sitting evidence is taken by the Associated Veterans to the working of the 1930 amendments of the act. The 1920 amendments granted to the Crown by Parliament in special decades which the pension tribunals were delivered favorable to the applicant.

"This right," says the memorandum, "has been practically destroyed by the Crown, as is evidenced by the fact that as of December 31, 1931, the tribunals had rendered 1974 decisions which in the aggregate, while as of the same date, 1,450 of these decisions had been rendered by pensioners counsel and also as of that date, out of 639 commissions council to appellants, 229 had been allowed and 85 admitted for re-hearing. That is to say a total of 417 appeals were successful, or, in other words, 65 per cent high ratio, and a very much higher percentage than obtains in ordinary civil proceedings."

The veterans do not believe that this condition of things indicates lack of efficiency on the part of the tribunals or undue severity on the part of the Appeal Court. They attribute the difficulties that the applying of a large number of appeals by committees of counsel to arise from the fact that "the time allowed for entering appeal is far too short to enable the examination of the record, and that, as a precaution, appeals should be entered for given in practically every case before examination of the record. To remedy this, they recommend that the time for appeal be extended to thirty days, "with the proviso that within notice of entering appeal the counsel shall give his reasons for same. Distinct provision should be made that such reasons shall not be in a stereotyped form, but shall be distinctly relevant to the case in question, and with specific reference to the record."

Police Court

Four cases were heard before Magistrate Mikel at the local police court this morning. Michael De Soti appeared before His Honor on a charge of operation a motor vehicle, while under the influence of liquor. The accused pleaded guilty and a fine of $200 and costs or four months on the common gaol was imposed by the court. De Soti definitely stated he would take the 21 days in the hill.

The second case was a charge of failure to provide against a local resident. The accused pleaded not guilty and after hearing the evidence of his wife His Honor thought that if given a week's remand, perhaps these two people could agree to some more amicable terms which might clear the situation which has arisen in the home.

Two other cases of intoxication were heard and both parties fined the usual $13.00 and costs or 15 days in gaol.

After a short reply by Dr. Morton the meeting adjourned until the evening session.

SEE INTEREST IN GAS RATES

Manager Speaks of New Type of Gas Furnace

According to Mr. W. Harden, manager of the local branch of the Ontario Shore Gas Company, considerable interest is being shown by a great number of the residents regarding the new gas furnace. It is being rented out for their convenience, and which will provide them to utilize the city gas principle for heating purposes by installing new appliances for their furnaces. These appliances which can be fitted to old furnace consist solely of a gas ring which is operated by thermostatic control which regulates the flow of gas to the burner and raises or lowers the flame as the weather varies. No trouble at all is experienced by this method of heating and all-winter comfort is thoroughly guaranteed.

Complete satisfaction can be secured from old furnaces when fitted up this way they are not at all expensive as new gas furnaces built solely for gas consumption, which can be secured by contacting the company in their office on East Bridge street. These are a new type of furnace, explained Mr. Harden, and have created a great deal of interest among prospective purchasers. The new gas rates for commercial and home consumption will be available for residents.

Bragg, introduce the speaker, as it was through Mr. Cooke's influence that Mrs. McClung came to Tweed.

In introduction, Mr. Gordon spoke of the high honour conferred on Tweed in having the distinguished visitor with us. She is referred as a member of the Alberta Legislature, prominent in temperance and social reform and a writer of high literary ability.

Mrs. McClung made a charming response to Mr. Gordon's introduction. His friendly letter of invitation had made her want to come. She had also had known many of the Gordon family in the west.

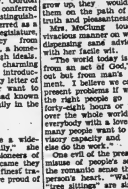
Gordon's Far-Flung

"The Gordons comprise a wide-spread and far-flung family," she said, "they are great pioneers of the west. When they came they brought religion and the finest traditions with them. We are proud of the Gordons".

Mrs. McClung's address will long be remembered by those privileged to hear her. Her close study of their own and, bitter thoughts.

Books Great Treasures

Books are the greatest treasures in silver linings are books. In these times of depression, when time hangs heavily, it doesn't cost much, with public libraries everywhere, if a person would study and read a little of good books, by reading the best to them, they are going and are directing their reading when they grow up, they would be guiding the path of all that is truth and pleasantness.



Mrs. McClung touched in her vivacious manner on world problems appearing under the caption of "Women and Peace" and "Women and Politics" which is referred as a member of the Alberta Legislature, prominent in temperance and social reform and a writer of high literary ability.

MRS. NELLIE McCLUNG, of Calgary, Canada's premier who addressed a large audience at Tweed on Thursday evening, at which Mrs. McClung chatted on "Silver Linings".

present day problems, at home and abroad, her fearless championship of new views and sensible advice gave the audience much over which to ponder, while her closing address was ever in evidence. Humour and clever delightful was her address, the former especially so since at Mrs. McClung declared at the beginning of her talk that she never "talks down to children."

"They understand and listen to what you have to say," she commented.

Silver Linings Subject

"Silver Linings" had been chosen as the evening's topic. Mrs. McClung explained, because it sounded cheerful. It really alluded, however, to the philosophy, that nothing is so bad that there is no hope. There is a rhythm in life, an ebb and flow, things are always going up and down.

"Everything is," said the speaker, "to cultivate a silver lining mind. There is always something to be thankful for. Prosperity can't last forever. There must be a break sometime."

"As in the radio we are able to shut it out or it is overpowered by the power of selectivity, so we must cultivate this ability in our lives. We don't like what's going on" we can change it."

The main thing in acquiring a "silver lining mind", the author emphasized was to avoid fixations in life. One must learn to get away from a narrow circle, and the unhappy quality of never being able to forget the same troubles. Some people are always in prison from their own and, bitter thoughts.

BELIEF

By Alina Michaelis

Belief is man's surpassing power,
Belief is his most splendid dower,
Belief in good—
The soul's rich food
To nourish hope through every hour.

Belief that, somehow, right prevails,
Though each dear, earthly promise fails,
Will lend new strength,
Until at length
Men glimpse their dreams' long-waited sails.

Though scoffers raised their cruel mirth
When every hope-sent thought had birth,
Despite their scorn
Of hopes like morn,
Belief has given new worlds to earth.

Would you aspire? Would you achieve?
Then, though men's questions, fool, deceive,
Through loss, through pain,
Let no faith wane:
You must believe, believe, believe!

CALIFORNIA WAS NEVER LIKE THIS. May weather in Canada. This is the weather which makes Georgia jealous. . . .

x x
TWENTY YEARS AGO. January 8, 1912, as recorded by the North Bay Nugget, The Temiskaming and Hudson Bay Mining Company had just declared dividend No. 35, payable on the 24th of January for 300 per cent. The total dividends of the company up to the date mentioned was $9,300,000 on a total disbursement of $1,497,873. The history of this company is one of the romances of Cobalt. Pioneer prospectors staked the property, formed a company and not a great deal of stock was sold, in fact it went begging around 21 cents a share or less. Before the company acquired good silver properties but its policy was to lease on royalty rather than to go to the expense of installing expensive machinery. One of its leased properties was the Silver Queen which made a lot of money for a syndicate of North Bay business men who pooled their stock and only released it at the physiological moment when it would command the best price. The veins finally pinched out and the Silver Queen ceased to reign. One incident of Silver Queen in connection with the stock of The Temiskaming and Hudson Bay Mining Company concerned a young newspaperman who was operating the first paper at New Liskeard on salary for the owner who was up to his ears in mining speculation. Days on the newspaper were few and far between and finally ceased altogether. The editor demanded his money, the owner had nothing but mining stock and taking out a bunch of the nearest likely mining scrip he handed over a bunch of Temiskaming and Hudson Bay shares. This made the young editor sore and he contemptuously threw the shares in the desk and proceeded to forget them. Not long after the plant was seized by the sheriff and the desk, shares and all sold. Shortly after this the shares began to rocket and the young editor bragged about the easy money he had made. Then he ran across the shares and found that they were worth a small fortune. He was the only man in the district who had ever been broke on

Juniors Defeat Trenton Visitors Fail to Get Stride

Sherry and McGuire Play Stellar Hockey With Others

McGUIRE HURT

After playing like a bunch of small children, in the second period the local Canuck came to life and like a rejuvenated team defeated the Trenton Juniors by a score of 5 to 2 at the Belleville Arena last night.

Although the visiting team stepped on the ice with nine new black and white uniforms they could not seem to get their scoring punch into action. The ice was fast and a crowd of enthusiastic spectators roared and screeched through the entire hour's pastime. The visiting team brought a host of fellows and they made themselves conspicuous by their cheering, especially when Smith entered the game in the second period.

Sherry and McGuire Good

The local Cube did not look quite as good as they did against the less experienced Campbellford team on Monday night. Bill Sherry and Jimmie McGuire were the shining lights for the locals, but, they were closely followed by Doug MacDonald and Carl Morgan, who turned in the best game of his career. George Soopis, in the nets for the locals was not called upon to make many saves during the period, but rose to heights on a couple of occasions in the final frame. He literally fell asleep in the second period and let a soft goal float by him. Alex Allen of Willie, Trenton's sub centre had Ethier and Sherry teamed well on the defensive. Elliot is fast developing to follow in the steps of the veteran Sherry. Harry Morgan and Nickoi did not play their usual game but were good in spurts at times. Nickoi was breaking in a new pair of skates and perhaps that was the reason for his actions. Young Goyer gave the fans an example of what his first year has done to when he sets his mind to his work. Ross is a fast learning to team with his mates and will be heard from in the season to come. In all the local Cube, played fairly good hockey throughout except in the second period when they all had a lapse of mind and literally fell asleep.

Rustan and Chambers Star

For the visiting Trenton crew, Rustan, their new boy from Woodstock, "the star of the lot and the pick of the crew." This was the case on most of the plays of the game and out-shone all of his more experienced team mates like nobody's business. His rushing and blocking was one of the features of the night and he was roundly applauded on many occasions by the fans of both towns, as they realized that he would be a big star of the national game. Kidd at centre and Mattis on left wing also played real hockey, but, Chambers in the nets was one of the best men on the ice. At times he must have thought that the air was the centre of the earth as he called upon to make many sensational saves in the first and third periods. Chambers is a goal tender of no mean ability and demonstrated this fact to the fans last night by his almost super-natural saves. He literally stood the storm from mounting into a column of at least three layers. Willie, Dunpin sub center man of the visitors was the favorite of the fans, and rasps for his smallness in stature and his goodness when a rink he. He was the smallest player on the ice and was always in the thick of the fray when the occasion arose. Richards, Lambert, Dolan, Milligan and Jordan all got a chance to show their ability but they could not compare with their other team mates above mentioned.

Jimmie McGuire Hurt

The unfortunate accident, when Richards hit Jimmie McGuire over the head for no reason, perhaps was most regrettable as the cagey James was all set for his night's scoring rampage. McGuire is one of the cleanest hockey players in this, or any other section of the province and it is too bad that he was recipient of such a blow. He enter on the right side of his head, was about ten inches long and of such a nature that Dr. J. J. Robertson would not stitch it until this morning. The game little lad asked the "Doc" for bandage his head so that he could get back into the fray. His return to the game was, without a doubt, the cause of victory as the locals played much better hockey when he got on the scoring sheet again. Doug MacDonald's poke check was also working overtime, and the locals regular centre ice player, is fast learning the art of Frank Nighbor's famous poke or sweep-check, as it is called by the exponents of the game. The local juniors' next game, is to be played in Belleville next Friday when they do battle with the Campbellford juniors. The local hockey fans will then get a glimpse of Doug Ballard, younger brother, "Eddie" of Campbellford. He is a small edition of Belleville's ex-centre player, who is going on in a big way with the West Toronto juniors at present.

The Play

The play last night opened rather slowly as each team was trying to feel out their opponents. The first real play against either goalie was when MacDonald, McGuire and Harry Morgan sailed in on Chambers, three abreast, only to be outgeneraled by the Trenton net minder. As both teams were playing rather cautiously there was considerable body-checking by the defence of both clubs with the result that the heavy going soon slowed the play-ers up some and they started playing combination. Jimmie McGuire was in on the net twice in succession but hit the post once and each time skated the puck the other time, due to over-anxiousness. It was then Richards hit McGuire over the head and he was forced to retire for repairs. When Referee Smith faced the puck, in front of the Trenton net, Doug MacDonald shot the "old dish" over Chambers' prostrate body for the first goal of the game. The Trenton team started a series of rushes headed by Willie of Ruttan, but the Belleville defence kept the lanes clear and the scoring sheet. Lambert went out for the count when he tried to body check the rugged "Stout" Richards. As soon as Lambert returned to normalcy Bill Sherry grasped the puck and on a beautiful solo rush scored the second goal of the night. The period ended with Carl Morgan, Nickoi and Goyer headed for their opponents' end of the rink. At the end of the first period the score stood Belleville 2, Trenton 0.

Lambert and Kidd opened the second period by testing Soopis. The locals seemed somewhat disorganized due to the fact that they thought they had an easy team to beat, but, after four minutes of play Soopis missed a long drifter and Willis scored the first goal for the visiting team. This encouraged by their scoring ability the visitors completely outplayed the local Cubs and made them look very ordinary for, the most of the period. Ten minutes later Ruttan on the nicest end-to-end rush of the night shot the rubber behind Soopis for the lieing counter. Right after this Ruttan was counted out when he tried to body check Harry Morgan coming in on the defence but Harry was all set and Ruttan took the ten count, and then some. In the early minutes of the frame Jimmie McGuire returned to the ice with his head swathed in bandages but his presence seemed to install a fighting spirit in the hearts of the locals and one minute later Macdonald scored the third goal. He did when he completely baffled Chambers on an ankle shot from about ten feet. Soon after the period closed Carl Morgan and Shud Ethier were sent to the cooler for tripping. The score now stood Belleville 3, Trenton 2.

The final canto opened with McGuire taking a pass from MacDonald and soon after Sherry and Jimmie took a pass from Harry Morgan and scored. Belleville had the score 5 to 2 in favor of Belleville. The locals lambasted Chambers at will now but the Trenton boys put up a stiff defence. They were score down. Ruttan and Richards tried to stage individual rushes but the work of the Belleville defence in this period was so good that they could not get upon the scoring end to make a few saves. He rose to fame this night as Ruttan and Willis when they both pilled in on top of him in the net mouth. Sherry headed and put the rubber past the puck the Belleville forwards were checking and Jimmie McGuire scored the rubber disc. The period ended with the locals holding the edge on the offensive but they could not get through the checking rugged defence of he locals. The game ended with the score remaining 5 to 2 in favor of Belleville. It had the local junior loop with two wins and no losses.

Joe Smith referred his usual unsatisfactory game in his decisions not impartial from a spectator's viewpoint. He only meted out seven penalties during the hour's play, four went to the locals and three to the visitors.

ADAMS USED HIS HEAD TO GET GOODFELLOW

While Conny Smythe of the Toronto Leafs may be known as the David Harum of the National Hockey League, he will have to bow to Jack Adams of the Detroit Falcons when it comes to putting over a smart deal. Three years ago, Eddy Goodfellow was playing some real hockey for Ottawa Montagnards when Adams spotted him. Ebbie was a green timber at that time, but the shrewd Falcon manager saw a great future in store for him and went after him. He soon learned, however, that he was not the only one on the trail of the Ottawa boy, and was forced to sit back while the New York Americans placed him on their reserve list.

But Adams was not through. He looked at his team over, and decided that Johnny Sheppard, a veteran, would be a good man to trade away to the Amerks and offered a trade that proved good for a green-horn who had never played pro hockey. The American jumped at the chance, and within three days Ebbie was second only to the great Morenz in goal scoring. The pokerfaced Falcon's centre made his name secure. Placed in the International League for seasoning, he led the league in scoring in his first season. His fancy tricky back-hand shot has made him one of the best players in the game. N. H. L. Ebbie was born in Ottawa twenty-four years ago, and when he is not playing hockey, he is on the links where he can turn in a smart game of golf. But the story of that Goodfellow-Sheppard deal would not be complete without adding that Sheppard is still going great guns with the Americans and that Ebbie has yet to hit his stride this season with Detroit.

LEAFS COME FROM BEHIND

Score 5 to 4 With Kid Line Scintillating in Game

Toronto, Jan. 15 (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs "Kid" forward line of Jackson, Primeau and Conacher, clicking up seven scoring points in Montreal last night, today found the two-time champs in the Canadian division of the National Hockey League scoring lists. The sensational-starting left-winger stands alone at the top of the division with 25 points, while Primeau followed closely with a total of 24 and Conacher is tied with Hooley Smith of the Maroons for third with 22.

Not only do the Leaf youngsters lead the league in points but Primeau is considered one of the greatest play-makers in the game with 21 assists while Conacher is tied with Bill Cook of the Rangers, in goals, having clicked the red light no less than 20 times.

Although the Maroons were away to a flying start when Wilson and Stewart both scored on unassisted plays in the first three minutes of the game, the "kid" line of the Queen City clan came on and before the period ended the Canadian group headed and enjoyed a 3-2 lead. Conacher, Primeau and Horner each scored once while the three members of the outfield found him all over-head assists. In the second period the Maroon forwards back-checked well and Selbert tied the count on a long shot from outside the blue line. After nine minutes of speedy play in the final stanza Bob Gracie broke away to again put the Leafs in front while five minutes later Jackson added to the margin on an unassisted dash. Selbert put the Maroons in the hunt again when he scored on Lionel Conacher's pass, but Charlie Conacher made the count safe on a solo rush just before the final bell. Alex Levinsky, who joined the Leafs squad late last season and who has played in the Leaf team every game since the first penalties in professional hockey during the game when he visited the "Coast" cities.

While Maple Leafs were increasing their lead over the rest in the Canadian group, Rangers outscored Boston 3-1 in New York and today are seated on top of their group with a fifteen point lead over their closest rivals.

GANANOQUE WILL BE OPPOSITION

Local Intermediates Can Gain Leadership By a Win

Fresh from their victory over the fast St. M. C. team the local intermediates will do battle with the Gananoque "spectators" at the arena gardens tonight.

All of the local junior game with Wednesday night's battle with flying colors and will be ready to take the fast team on. It is likely that Herbie Morris will again don the uniform and be seen, for a little while at least, on the defense. It looks as though the locals have at last struck their scoring stride, the lack of which worried Coach Holway from the fore-part of the season. Any team that can score eight goals against last year's intermediate champions are worthy of note and will be heard from in no small measure before the season closes.

Art Tice, who returned to form on Wednesday night, has thrilled the Kingston fans with his many spectacular saves, will be in the nets with Alex Weir, Bouncer Holway and Herbie Marvin doing defence duty. The forward lines will no doubt consist of Harry Leachman and Ken Hall from R. M. C. McMeekin, Campbell and Bob Scott will start and they will be followed by Leachman, Morgan, Hull and St. Denis. With all the fine words of praise being returned to Belleville of the playing of the local intermediates Holway says they should be right on their toes and able to show the fans that they can indicate that they can. Well, that remains to make it a perfect week in the local sporting line on even larger crowd at the game than witnessed the Campbellford battle, as it is the presence of the fans, which makes hockey games all the more interesting from a spectator's viewpoint.

The Gananoque team is under the watchful eye of Joe Smith, Kingston's old man of hockey, and are fast improving in their playing. Smith has been responsible for much artificial ice at Kingston and should be in the very best of condition. Jack Fraser, centre, coming to Belleville hailed as one of the best players in the Eastern Canada, while his defence of Brennan and Robinson received words of praise from the Kingston press in their write-ups. Brennan is a veteran of many here. Their reserves of Bellle, Wing and Shiloe are also players of no mean ability and the team is one of the most formed players in the N. H. L. Ebbie was born in Ottawa twenty-four years ago, and when he is not playing hockey, he is on the links where he can turn in a smart game of golf. But the story of that Goodfellow-Sheppard deal would not be complete without adding that Sheppard is still going great guns with the Americans and that Ebbie has yet to hit his stride this season with Detroit.

By The Observer

Belleville hockey fans are all agog over the local intermediates win at Kingston on Wednesday night. Judging from the sport gossip around town a real old-fashioned crowd will welcome the players when they appear on the ice Friday night. After tonight's game the locals journey to Kingston to take on the newly formed Kingston hockey team on Monday night. If the locals can add those two wins to their string of victories they will be sitting in comfortable command of the league leadership.

This Gananoque team under the leadership of Joe Smith will be a tough nut-cracker for the locals on Friday night and as there is a big crowd out to see the hoop cash game is bound to be of interest in the fans. Coach Bouncer Holway may shake his team up a bit in order to try an experiment on the forward line. If Herbie Morris can be worked for the game "Bouncer" will again step in and fill the gap left by Leachman, the injury is fast healing up and Herbie is quite anxious to get into the fray once again. Shannon, of Gananoque may start on the defence, though.

Referee "Army" Armstrong, the ex-Belleville player, will be in charge of the game and judging from reports the fame will be a fast one. Armstrong had in our old friend from Oshawa.

Perhaps the local juniors have taken their last defeat, at least it is to be hoped so. After showing their stuff to the fans from Trenton for the first frame they started to take things easy and the visitors from the Garrison Town saw tied up. George Soopis, in the Belleville nets has the awake the "old boot heel" was in the game. Chambers, the other players were guilty of taking it easy and it is to be hoped that they have learned a real lesson after that heckling second period.

The unfortunate accident which befall Jimmie McGuire when he was hit over the head with a check by Richards was about the cleanest player in the Junior O.H.A. ranks and he is also one of the local's best goal getters. He will be missed when he returned to the ice after being patched up last night. Carl Morgan and Carl Morgan also played bang-up hockey.

Joe Irvin, star defence man of the Bell City Hockey team, is a coach's dream of what a real hockey man should be like. He may stock out like a sore thumb in the Wednesday night battle with the Belleville intermediates He bodychecks hard, clean and quick and is a fine man to play and coming. He was the most considered Belleville player. Coach Kelley had and with Jim Carr, Jack Irvin and Ken Lawrence, of the home team. It is too bad that they are not all playing with the calibre of Irvin in the O.H. A., as he is a gentleman and a scholar on and off the ice. The fans of Belleville will appreciate these words of efforts when the Cadets come here.

The sport loving fans will have a chance to see the world's champ play here at the Belle Theatre over the week end when Jack Dempsey will be playing there in 'The Champ' and he depicts the real inside feelings of a fighter. The picture is acclaimed by all sport fans who have seen it.

Aimlessness is Mark of Mining Board Today

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 15.—With some groups of issues in the dark card and others showing only a few sales, Standard Stock and Mining Exchange Market drifted aimlessly in today's forenoon session. The few price changes in a speculative list showed a slightly easier tendency, but figures confined to a narrow range.

Teck-Hughes appeared under some pressure, with price down 10 at $4.90 when taken. Granada dipped a cent to $1.20, while Dome and Hollinger were also holding. Among cheaper issues Bidgood sold off a fraction to 2c and sales in Stadacona, Moffatt-Hall, Ribago Capital Royan and Kirkland Townsite were made at small concessions from last night's finals. St. Anthony alone moved actively and for a cent gain at 11.

Around Midday Noranda slipped 19 to $16.40 but other base metals, and the silver and oil sections, were unchanged.

GRAND JURORS WANT RELIEF

Do Not Want to Be Summoned on Criminal Cases

London, Jan. 15 (By Thos. T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent)—Once more the appeal is heard from a Grand Jury that it should never again be summoned. At odd times over the last 50 years Grand Juries in other parts of the country have made the plea for their exemption. The Grand Jury consists of "better-class men of the county," who are summoned prior to Quarter Sessions and Assizes to examine the bills of indictment against every prisoner before the prisoner is actually put on trial before a petty jury.

The late Recorder of Manchester, A. J. Ashton, K.C., found that in eight years during which a thousand cases came into the Court of Quarter Sessions there was only one in which the Grand Jury rejected the bill of indictment. In London no fewer than 700 Grand Jurors had been summoned in the course of the year to conduct this formality of examining indictments.

The Grand Jury system is a relic of the days when administration of justice was more loosely organized than it now is. Its members discourse parts of the country no doubt did not possess sufficient means to take their trial when there was really no case for a prisoner to answer. The Grand Jury in those days was a protection against an innocent person from the indignity and expense of standing his trial. Nowadays, a magistrate acts under the advice of a learned and experienced lawyer who will the defendant himself in most instances has the benefit of legal assistance. Within the last generation, too, another safeguard against wrongful conviction has been provided through the Court of Criminal Appeal.

"Riches are the accumulated difference between our income and our outgo," says a writer. Ay, and so is debt.

Letters to the Editor

ARE WE MAD OR JURY PLAIN IMBECILES?

Editor Ontario Intelligencer:
Sir:—

A few years ago we were railroad building mad, next we became pulp and paper mill building mad, and now we are highway building and automobile mad.

Every new automobile road three or four miles in length containing tree growth means greatly increased forest fire hazard through the medium of burnt match and cigarette stubs which are dropped into the ditch in the process of cars skidding. Fifty-two million acres burned over in the Canadian forests alone last year is the answer. This appalling annual fire loss constitutes a world record for all time.

Every intelligent human being agrees that our forests are rapidly approaching the vanishing point, and yet nothing worth while is being done about it, except to actually reduce the number of permanent timbers in Canada so as to encourage more faster cutting, because the man who is chopping down the trees, and for whom bread, is an increased destruction, or increase in cutting, and the more bread, the more destruction, and cannot be paid a living wage because there is no money to be made in timber, by the present mode of operation, no money for forest conservation, nothing to be had for the people, the country and the Government themselves, for every additional tree that is cut is increasing the fire hazard, and because this ridiculous situation, through increasing the overproduction of pulp and paper products, the consequent lowering of all prices; the latter is the condition which exists the world over night by a little sensible regulation in the amount of the cut. Non-paying industries are a hindrance to prosperity and if they can not be made to pay the country would be a far better off without them.

There is ample work for all the unemployed in constructive forest fire prevention work and reforestation, while today we are doing everything in our power to increase the fire hazard, and for every tree we are planting we are cutting down ninety-nine trees, and burning up millions of acres as well, consequently it must be perfectly apparent to the most casual observer that the only hope for this continent lies in reducing the amount of the fire hazard and increasing the planting of trees. Another feature in this connection is that we are burning up millions of mature tree stature by nature that have been growing for a hundred years or more, while we are planting thousands of tiny seedlings at a cost of $10.00 per acre that will have to be cultivated and protected for a hundred years before they become of any value to the country.

We are outraging nature by stripping the face of the earth of its vegetation, of which nature is the expert, thereby producing desert conditions, and in the face of this object of nature's laws, we actually have the audacity to offer up prayers to God for rain. Why not pray to God to let All Wise Creator to answer such hypocritical humbug as we indulge with famine or flood?

The present Canadian depression is nothing as compared with the critical financial situation that is merely a temporary condition that will soon be a thing to be forgotten, while forest devastation is a condition that will take centuries to repair, and drastic and immediate steps are taken to put a stop to this, and unless public opinion is forced on we shall wake up some morning to find that the last of the virgin forest timber has vanished before the onslaught of the axe, fire and the hordes of insects, followed by cyclones and floods and destructive rapid rains and droughts, all of which conditions are man-made through his depleting of the forests of their existence.

The inflated stock market bubble burst, the pulp and paper mill bubble burst and the real estate bubble follows cause the forest bubble will burst, and nature, realizing she is undone quickly, to check the mad prodigality of man, by wanton destruction that is taking place in the remaining forested area of this continent.

The question is, ARE WE MAD OR JURY PLAIN IMBECILES?

Rome, Italy, Dec. 24, 1931.

FRANK J. D. BARLIN.

SHIPPING ACT IS OBSOLETE

Navigators Want Change Made in The Act

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 15—Declaring that loopholes in the Canada Shipping Act place a severe handicap on Canadian vessels in Great Lakes' traffic, members of the Canadian Navigators' Association in session here, decided to appeal to the Dominion Government for amendments. The Canada Shipping Act was described by the Association as "obsolete."

Changes in Canadian coastal laws to bring shipping up to the present, and also lightening of regulations in relation to compulsory pilotage, and same protection under Canadian law that foreign vessels are granted by the laws of their respective countries.

Other proposals to be forwarded to the Dominion authorities at Ottawa include a request for wireless or direction finder on all Great Lakes' vessels, and compulsory load line and more life-saving equipment.

Invented Story Dinted By Police

Youths Finally Admit Being Residents of Toronto

Toronto, Jan. 15 (CP)—Vivid imaginations led to the arrest of the story told police by a youthful boy and girl yesterday, questioning revealed. The pair, apprehended in West Toronto after a wild race, had "stolen the rods" on a freight train from Timmins, Ont., to Toronto in search of work. They said last night they to have admitted to police the story to explain their absence. They gave her name at first as Lila Bailey, 16, Timmins, and his as Alfred Mitchell, 16, Toronto. The youth, who posed as her boy friend, said he had left home because of the family's poverty.

Cashier Talks Bandit to Death

Chicago, Jan. 15—Woman's "gift of gab" was credited with the killing of a bandit here.

At that time, two policemen, responding to the silent summons, shot and killed him in a running gun battle. The robber was identified as Richard Gelas.

STORE VOTE NOT UPON LEGAL FORMS

Tamworth Failed to Use Prescribed Form of Ballot Paper

Toronto, Jan. 15.—Though no ruling has been handed down by Justice Park authorities in regard to the legality of the vote taken in Tamworth and Sheffield township as to the continuance of the liquor store in Tamworth village, it is understood the vote will be regarded as a nullity because the form of the ballot was not as prescribed in the Act.

There is a regulation that after such a vote is taken a similar vote may be taken within three years. This will not apply in the Tamworth case if the vote recently held is voided. It will not even be necessary for the temperance people to insist on a ruling," said a government official.

The township gave a majority of two for the abolition of the store, but failed to give a three-fifths majority at a December meeting.

Citizens of Collingwood recently initiated local option, a vote being taken and got a vot majority of 90, but failed to get the necessary three-fifths.

SPEED RIVER AT FLOOD STAGE

Flood Gates at Queloch Dam Are Opened to Prevent Damage

Guelph, Ont., Jan. 15.—While no dangerous situation is expected, the city engineer's department was expecting a rise in the level of the Speed River last night. Flood gates at two dams had been opened to obviate flood conditions in the upper reaches of the stream.

The river level dropped two and a half feet in two days, but is expecting reserve the highest point in January, 1929, when the Big Six Mcklin said today that he expected the Speed to increase in the height of the stream today.

Now We're Down By Old Gulf Stream

The Gulf Stream, which for generations has proved the whipping boy for Canadian temperature, is again being blamed for the weather. Professor Brooks, of Harvard, explains explanations of the unusual temperatures which prevails all over the eastern seaboard. The phenomenon have arrived at the conclusion that the abnormal warmth of the past week caused by seismic disturbances off the Newfoundland coast which led to changes in the direction of the Gulf Stream, bringing that flowing mass of warmed ocean water nearer to the Atlantic coast and offsetting the influence of the cold Labrador current.

Rises a-bloom in Ohio; cherry blossoms appearing in Southern California; and Florida farmers doing "spring" planting as Parry Sound, on Georgian Bay; a robin at Belleville, a lady bug at Ottawa and winter sports at a standstill through out the eastern part of the Dominion through the almost complete disappearance of ice and snow; a rainbow sighted at Syracuse, and a shower of 85 degrees between the low temperatures of the week and the high levels of the East. Then were the thunder and lightning weather bulletins from three-quarters of the continent, a temperature of 71 at Albany, N.Y., yesterday, and a low of 6 above zero last record. In many other countries from high, if not unprecedented, weather prevailed, except in Japan, where such a conjunction of abnormal temperatures over so large an area been known.

PROBE DEATH 'FONG YIP YUEN' WORKED HERE

Allegation Man Once Resident of Belleville Dies of Assault

FOUR CHARGED

Fong Employed as Cook at Quinte Cafe Here For Some Time

For nearly two years Fong Yip Yuen labored among the pots and pans in the kitchen of the Quinte Cafe in this city. Patrons to the cafe rarely saw him; he was quiet, studious, industrious and dependable, but always there lurked in the back of his mind the ambition to some day own a restaurant of his own. Then, perhaps he could send for the wife and children he had left in China, then he went forth to a strange country to make his fortune.

Meanwhile he saved as much as he could from his pay and steadily added to his account. Came the day a year ago, when he felt that with the added capital of a friend of his who then resided in Toronto, a start could be made. In this realization he had often dreamed of. Even if he only owned a half interest in the place, at least part of it would be his, so he went to Toronto and entered into partnership with Sam Sing in a little place on Chestnut street. They prospered and were content. Each day added a little more to what they already had laid by for a new and larger place, when they had accumulated sufficient to build it. And they were thrifty and honest in each of their industrious, if business seemed slow for them, as if did for everyone else, there was the brighter day ahead.

Last Wednesday Fong Yip Yuen died. Four men, each charged with murder, appeared in an inquest held in Toronto Thursday night and told how they, in an attempt to beat a Chinese restaurant owner out of having to pay for their dinner check, precipitated a fight, which it is alleged resulted in the man's death. The four men are:— John Clendenning, Clifford Lipton, Everett Barker and Hector Sharpe. The coroner's jury, under George F. Philp, in its verdict was of the opinion that "the blow struck by Everett Barker was the cause of the death. According to the statement of Detective-Sergt. Walter McConnell Barker stated that he had not struck Lip Yuen. Reports have it however, that the four men, whom it is claimed had been drinking, entered the cafe and ordered food to the amount of $1.10. The waitress told officers that the amount was to be put all one check. Then three of them walked out after the meal and left Barker behind. He attempted to leave after paying each his cost of the meal, claiming that he did not know the other three. When the Chinaman remonstrated with him and followed him to the sidewalk; then, it is claimed Sharpe and Baker entered into an argument with Lip Yuen. Further statements enlarge on the fact that it was Barker who hit the Chinaman the blow which knocked him to the cement sidewalk, and caused his death. Murder charges followed and the four men are being held for further investigation.

Fong Lip Yuen is dead; he will probably be buried in Toronto. Mr. Ling, proprietor of the Quinte Cafe, said this morning, as the cost of shipment of the body to China will be prohibitive. His wife and children have been informed that their husband and father lies dead on foreign soil. "It is all very sad", said Mr. Ling.

ONE GOVERNMENT FOR 3 PROVINCES

Premier Bracken of Manitoba Favors This Plan

Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 15 — Premier John Bracken of Manitoba, in a statement issued Thursday said he would like the provinces asking governments of Saskatchewan and Alberta to join in a provincial working government for the three prairie provinces.

The statement, issued from the Premier's home where he has been confined for the last twenty-four hours with a severe cold, was prompted by the action proposed by a special committee of the legislature recommending provinces considering that no change be made in the number of seats in the Manitoba Assembly.

Premier Bracken regretted the proposal had not favorably received the proposal of Hon. W. J. Major, attorney-general, to reduce the number of seats in the Manitoba house from 55 to 33.

He thought a single government for the three provinces would be particularly advantageous to Western Canada during the present depression.

"There are 181 members in the three legislatures of the prairie provinces, 55 in Manitoba, 63 in Saskatchewan and 63 in Alberta," said Mr. Bracken's statement. "Each of these legislatures hold one session every year. We ought to be able to get along with one half of the total number of members, and we ought to consider rotating our legislature instead of three would not be to the general advantage of the west, including Manitoba."

Madoc — Following the eight days' school of instruction and drill at the Armouries, in which forty men of all ranks were included before the Christmas season, four young men have been designated, by the officers in charge, to attend a six weeks' course for Sergeants' Warrant at the Royal Military School, Toronto. These young men, James Burns, B. Stewart, H. Nickle and J. Avery are to leave on Saturday morning, January 16, to proceed to the Armouries in Toronto for their course of instruction.

The Y. P. S. of Trinity United Church held their meeting on Tuesday evening with the program in charge of Mrs. V. Jack. After the devotional exercises, the Missionary programme was given consisting of several poems, and a talk on India by Miss Rattray. Several very fine musical numbers were given. Instrumental solos by John Edgar Salisbury and Master Murray Irwin, and a vocal quartette by Miss Fair, Miss Salisbury, Mrs. L. Ashley and Mrs. Hulin.

Rev. Dr. Colin Young, of the Home Missions Department, occupied the pulpit at Trinity United Church, on Sunday last, with a large congregation by whom his address was most interesting.

At St. Peter's Presbyterian church the preacher was Rev. Mr. Miner, of Toronto. The theme of the morning service was "Lord, for Thy Tender Mercy's Sake." Pastorsant, A.D. 1850, and for the evening, Hezekiah's "Hark, Hark! My Soul," and a beautiful solo, "The Stranger of Galilee" (Morris), given by Mr. A. C. Anderson.

The young people of Madoc held a very pleasant dance on Friday evening at the Orange Hall, the music furnished by Charles Allen.

Financially as well as sociably, the Hockey Club Dance and Bridge held in the Masonic Hall on New Year's evening, was a success. The music was furnished by Charlie Allen and dancing was in the lower hall, and thirteen tables of bridge were in play in the banquet hall upstairs. Prizes were won by Mrs. Cartwright, of Stirling and Dr. Wyper, while Mrs. S. S. Ashley held the lucky ticket for the door prize. Proceeds were about $80.

Mr. D. J. Barry intends to open a millinery department in his new store about March 1st, with Miss Herns in charge.

Mr. Ralph Black of the Dominion Bank, Madoc, has been visiting friends in Napanee and Kingston.

The grocers of Madoc have decided to close their places of business at 6.30 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays during the winter months.

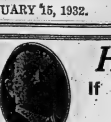
Madoc Community Club held its monthly banquet and dance in room of Blue's hotel on Thursday evening with Mr. Owen Herity, of Belleville, as its honored guest speaker. A special program of music was put on for this banquet at which a large number of the members were present.

Mrs. George White entertained many of her friends at afternoon tea on Friday afternoon.

The W.M.S. of Trinity United Church held their January meeting at the home of Mrs. Vaughan Jack on Thursday afternoon, Mrs. M. Mayhee and Mrs. Rivers having charge of the program, the president, Mrs. S. S. Ashley presiding for reports of Committees and secretaries, and for the Watch Towers Heralds. The opening hymn, Nations," was followed by Scripture reading by Mrs. Huffman, and prayer by Mrs. Henderson. After the singing of "O Love That Will Not Let Me Go," the devotional leaflet, "Philips, the Master-of-Past Man" was read by Mrs. Bailey which was followed by sentence prayers by several of the members. The chapter of the Study Book, "Health Work in Korea," was taken by Mesdames Rivers, Rutherford, Nickle and Ashley. After financial and secretary's reports, Mrs. M. Mayhee gave the first part of her address on "Tithing," which is to be continued next month. The Watch Tower Heralds reported briefly and Mrs. Dafoe gave the annual report for 1931, finding the allocation of this branch fully met and a small balance left to begin the New Year's work. Three large bales have been sent to different destinations, several social activities were reported on, the Executive and Visiting committee have been very efficient and report visits to all members and shut-ins. The Associate Membership committee hope to be able to report a new activity during the coming year. Several copies of the January Outlook and the Missionary report are taken, the Study Book is in use concentrating, and the devotional and other leaflets are made good use of. The finance committee are to be congratulated that they have a splendid support of all the members, and have gone over the top in spite (or perhaps because of) the existing depression talk.

After the close of the meeting a social half-hour was enjoyed.

On Friday afternoon, immediately after the close of the school, the members of the "Busy B" Junior Institute were entertained by Mrs. E. Whytock. A short program was provided and several of the new songs were practised. Mrs. Whytock, with "Our Standing Committees," what they are expected to do, and what work may be done by each. The routine business was quickly finished, and Miss Helen Whytock invited the members to hold the February meeting at her home. A very pretty and dainty tea was served by the hostess who was efficiently assisted by Miss Jean Whytock. Nine members were received, and the various officers are planning for a very busy 1932.



Mrs. James A. Watson entertained her friends on Friday evening at bridge and a very enjoyable evening was spent.

The population of Africa is estimated at 140,000,000.

RATE DECISION IS APPEALED

Ask For All Rail Haul Rate of 19.34 Cents

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 15.—(By the Canadian Press)—Cabinet Council took under advisement Thursday afternoon the appeal of the Halifax Harbor Commission, Transportation Commission of the Maritime Boards of Trade and Saint John Harbor Commission for a 19.34 cent per hundred pounds all-rail grain rate from the head of the lakes to Canadian Atlantic Boards. "We will confer and will intimate our decision as soon as possible," Prime Minister R. B. Bennett stated at the conclusion of representations.

Suggestion of a possibility of a reference to the matter further to the courts by order-in-council came through a remark of Premier Bennett towards the close of the proceedings. W. N. Tilley, K.C., counsel for the Canadian Pacific was in favor of such a step. E. C. Phinney, K.C., Halifax, counsel for the Maritimes, was adverse to such a course.

The legislature was called to meet next Monday. Its primary considera tion is expected to be reorganization of Honolulu's police department, which has been widely criticized as ineffective and subject to political manipulation.

weird, savage cries of the panther mingled with Jan's own bloodcurdling ones. Akut had just time to leap to one side. The white ape clung tenaciously to the screaming, roaring, maddened beast. Instantly, Tarzan drove his knife through the body of his foe, until with a final lunge the great feline fell over on its side and lay still.

Once again through the jungle rang the wild challenge of Tarzan's victory cry. Akut and the apes of Akut stood looking in startled wonder at the dead Sheeta and the lithe, straight figure of the man who had slain him. Tarzan was the first to speak: "Twice have I saved Akut's life. When Akut or his band is in danger again let them call to Tarzan—thus!"

—and the ape-man raised the hideous cry with which the tribe of Kerchak had been wont to summon its absent members in times of peril. "And," he continued, "when they hear Tarzan call to them, let them remember what he has done for Akut and come to him with great speed. Shall it be as Tarzan says?" From Akut and his tribe there rose a unanimous assent of satisfied grunts.

Presently the tribe went to feeding again as though nothing had happened. The glistening body of Lord Greystoke mingled with the brown, ugly hides of his companions as they hunted. He noticed that Akut, with a look of friendship in his small eyes, always kept close to him. Sometimes, when Akut found a particularly tender morsel, he would hand it to Tarzan.

MARKED MAN

"I'd like to see some uncut diamonds—some good ones!" Benny Martini spoke with an air of authority as he stalked into Solly Epstein's jewelry store, and unaccepting Solly brought out a tray of his best diamonds.

Benny struck with the unexpectedness of a millionaire, and Solly went down without a sound. Benny hadn't meant to strike so hard. He scooped the loose diamonds into his coat pocket and hurried out of the store.

Coming down the street towards him was a big, athletic-looking man, "A plain-clothes cop!" Benny muttered and, turning his back hurried towards crowded Broadway.

Some distance along Broadway he glanced back. The big man was still following. Benny dodged expertmanship a couple of times, but the other kept on his trail. Then, passing the interurban Station, he darted inside. From behind a pillar far inside he watched the entrance. Why should a cop be tailing him? Maybe to ask him about his Ellie Benson alibi. They hadn't pinned that on anyone yet, so—

The big cop appeared and Benny darted to the ticket window. A glance at the big board under the clock told him the Millarville train was just leaving. "Millarville, one way!" he snapped, and getting his ticket, darted to the gate and mingled with the crowd hurrying into the subterranean depths. One glance back as he did so showed him the cop at the ticket window, and Benny dived deep into the crowd.

Presently he held back until he was on the rear fringe. Yes, the cop had got through the gate. Benny planned quickly and edged towards the side of the tunnel. He mustn't be stopped with those sparklers on him. They would burn him for croaking Solly.

Suddenly he slithered around the last locker and flattened himself in the angle it made with the wall. It was nearly done and the cop passed without noticing him, darted through the gate as it was clanging shut, and leaped aboard the now moving train.

Benny sighed with relief and retraced his steps, but as he did so the gate clanged open again behind him. "Hi! Hi, there, mister!" a voice called.

A quick side glance showed Benny three porters. He did not stop but lengthened his strides. A corner was near, and there was nobody else; they could be shouting at—

"Hi, mister!" It was a different voice now.

Benny deliberately turned the corner. But once around it he ran. Around another corner he darted. Why had he let himself be trapped in this maze of tunnels? Around another corner he darted, then suddenly slowed to a walk. A crowd was waiting at another gate for another train. And there was a station policeman at the gate.

Too late to turn back. His pursuers were behind; the station cop in front. Benny shingled with the sparse crowd, keeping a small row of people between himself and the policeman, and then back to the tunnel behind him. If he only knew what his pursuers looked like! But he didn't! They could walk right up to him, and he wouldn't know them until they spoke—or acted. His hand closed about the gun in his pocket. He must not let them take him. They would burn him for killing Solly.

Presently he noticed that several people in the crowd seemed to be looking at him in a peculiar way. Was he already surrounded? He moved about a little, and the curious glances followed him. Well, at the first false move he must shoot his way out. The first step to stop him.....

"Hey, mister!"

Benny tensed, ready to whirl. Then, from a different point behind him he caught the words: "Looks like the Killer Martini."

"The killer!" Benny spun around, whipping out the gun. A deafening report filled the tunnel and his first shot chipped the tiled roof. Instantly the crowd was in a panic and in the confusion Benny got safe around the corner and, blindly he raced along. He turned, then turned again. All the Millarville gate again, and open just enough to let him through. Could he make it? With a final spurt he leaped through the narrow opening.

Too late he saw the foot that shot out in the path of his flying body. A terrific force as he tripped over it. Then he lost consciousness.

"What's all the excitement?" The policeman who had tripped Benny turned to look at a figure from the other gate. "I saw this guy coming running and I stuck out my foot, so I tripped him. What's he done?"

Suddenly went crazy back in number eight tunnel and started shooting off his gun. After the first shot he beat it, luckily for the crowd. The police burst down to do those about him. "Anybody know what started him off?"

"Maybe I did!" said a meek looking old gentleman. "But I only said to him: 'Hey, mister!', and he whirled around and took a pot at me, only it went high."

"I think he took that shot at us, if you ask me!" said one of a couple of heavy-set young fellows. "His gun was pointed our way. I had just said: 'Looks like the killer to me', and——"

"Killer? What killer?" snapped the policeman.

"Eh? Oh, nobody so far as I know. We were talking about the chalk marks on the back of his coat. He'd been leaning up against one of the boards with the special train times on, and——"

"That's just what I was going to tell him!" said the old man.

"And Bill and me were trying to figure out what the words on the back of his coat were; the young man continued. "Which with them being reversed, and the wrinkles twisting the letters, it wasn't so easy, but finally I figured it was 'The Miller'."

A porter who had stepped up laughed. "You're wrong!" he said. "It's 'The Miller'. He hid in that corner over there by the lockers, dodging a cop. Flattened himself right up against that notice board. I helped to him to tell him to rub the marks off his back, but he didn't stop. See, mister, I say that the Millarville special leaves at 10.45!"

The policeman, who had been going through Benny's pockets for anything that would identify him, suddenly gasped, and peered at a pile of uncut diamonds that sparkled in the palm of his hand. As he did so, Benny stirred. As his eyes opened a look of surprise came into them.

"So you got me, eh!" he muttered deadly.

"Yes! We got you! And the diamonds, too!" the policeman said.

"The diamonds?" Benny shook his head as though to clear it. "Oh, yes! Solly's diamonds! I didn't mean to kill him!"

"No! So you ate a killer!" There was a sudden click of handcuffs about Benny's wrist as he sat up and glared wildly about him.

"Didn't you know?" Benny fiasped.

The policeman laughed. "Sure!" he said. "It was written all over you. You were a marked man!"

Ma and pa was eating brekfast and pop was still upstairs shaveing his face, and ma said, O dear will I ever have a maid again. I declare I have so much to do today I dont feel like going through the grinding ordeal of cooking supper. I wonder if I could induce pop rather to give that new Sanitary Home Restorant another trial, although I must admit the dishes exactly transport himself into unspeakable raptures about in the other evening, she said.

Well just then pop came down, saying, Merry brekfast, everybody.

And he started to drink his cawfee with a horrible expression, me saying, What did you think of the Sanitary Home Restorant, Willyum, it did pritty well for a bran new restarnt, dont you think so Willyum?

Well, at least it dident have pepper napkins, pop said. In fact it dident have any napkins, he said, and ma said, O yes, but of corse the manager was careful to explain about that little detailce, he told us that the napkins hadent arrived yet.

He dident seem quite as worried as if the customers hadent arrived, pop said. But to give the devil his due, it could of been worse. Of corse the food was stale, but what can you expect of old bred, and the butter had a kind of strange taste, but then pure country butter is a treat in any restarant, would ya, turely be a little timid, and even if the table cloth had spots on it they couldent of been there very long because th place had only been open a few days, and the general atmosphear had that indiscribble intimate touch that only comes from a frendly waiter who has been waiting a while. But why, why do you ask? pop said.

Why? ma said. Why? What would you like to eat lonfire? she said, and pop said, Liver and cornions would be nice, as I dont never have yet.

Well, we just had frier and cnions but I dont feel I have the strain strongly to think up a menue to ill order it again, ma said, and pop said, O boy this is what I call starting the day rite.

And he put on his hat and coat and went out whistling gaily.

3 Prairie Provinces Moving Toward Merger Manitoba Takes Lead

Premier Bracken Gives Lead to Movement on Prairies

SAVING MILLIONS

Constitutional Aspect is Cause of Divergent Comment

Winnipeg, Jan. 13. — Canada's Prairie West is gnawing on a new economic morsel, thrown to it by the Progressive Premier of Manitoba, Hon. John Bracken, from the sick-room where he is confined with a severe cold.

It was a suggestion that his province take the lead in bringing about amalgamation of the governments of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta into a single unit to administer government for all three provinces .The saving would be "millions of dollars within a few years," Premier Bracken said.

"There are 161 members in the three legislatures of the prairie provinces: 55 in Manitoba, 63 in Saskatchewan and 63 in Alberta," said Mr. Bracken's statement. "Each of these legislatures holds one session every year. We ought to be able to get along with one-half of the total number of members, and we ought to consider whether one legislature instead of three would not be to the general advantage of the West, first Manitoba.

"I would suggest that the committee bring in a recommendation to the legislature not only in favor of a smaller number of members and a fairer method of representation, but also in favor of asking the other governments to join in having the whole question of but a single government for the prairie provinces carefully examined, with a view to laying before the public the advantages and disadvantages, if there are any, of such a proposal."

Premier Bracken's suggestion marked the first serious expression of opinion by a western government head on a proposal strongly supported a year ago by farm bodies in Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

"With nearly 100 less members in the prairie legislatures, with one session instead of three each year, with avoidance of triplication in administration and of officials, commissions and boards, with elimination of triplication of several university and other departments—and in a score of other ways—I am of the opinion that while the immediate economy would be considerable, the ultimate saving as the years go by would reach to millions of dollars.

"If, in addition, the prairie provinces can be put into the position of being able to speak with a united voice in the councils of the Dominion it would seem to be of very great advantage."

Deaths From 'Flu Increase

London, Jan. 15—A sharp increase in the number of deaths from influenza in England was reported last night, although official statistics did not indicate there was any grave epidemic.

Influenza caused 412 deaths in London and the larger towns of England, and Wales last week. It was similarly reported, as compared to 246 in the previous week and 140 during the week ending December 26.

An indication that the scheme had received consideration at the last inter-provincial conference at Edmonton two years ago was given by Premier J. T. M. Anderson, head of Saskatchewan co-operative government, in commenting at Regina on the Bracken proposal. "Personal opinions expressed there were favorable," he remarked.

He pointed out the millions could be saved in centralizing administration of various governmental activities, but also added an amendment to the British North America Act, to follow a favorable plebiscite of the voters in the three provinces, would be necessary.

Agrarians in Favor

Proposal to unite the three prairie provinces under a single administration has been advanced by a number of western agrarian organizations at various times during the past three years. The idea was strongly backed a year ago by Saskatchewan and Manitoba farm bodies in supporting a move to make the west a free-trade area with Churchill a free port of entry.

Two months ago as Brandon, Premier Bracken characterized the single-province-government idea as "interesting if feasible." He was commenting on the suggestion advanced by A. J. Macaulay, president of the United Farmers of Canada (Saskatchewan) section, and the three prairie governments would function more efficiently as a unit.

Beyond Premier Bracken's brief comment at Brandon on the idea, no western premier has been quoted previously on the plan.

Curtail is Advice of Premier Henry to City Rural Municipalities

Now Essentials Must Be Cut Out is His Warning

COUNCILS TOLD

Half Million Cut in Maintenance Outlay on Highways

Toronto, Jan 15.—An earnest appeal to Municipal Councils, School Boards and all public bodies to cut fruitless or non-essentials and to pattern after the individual in these trying times, and live within their incomes, was issued yesterday from Queen's Park by Premier George S. Henry.

Stressing the point that his government is endeavoring to economize in every way consistent with its responsibilities, Mr. Henry urges the adoption of a similar policy everywhere throughout Ontario in order that the province, whose position is still sound and whose credit is favorable, shall be able to hold her ground and be ready for the next move forward."

Cutting Down Costs

Every effort must be put forth by public bodies, he states, to relieve as much as possible the burden on the taxpayer. School Boards should think carefully before embarking on any type of expenditure. Drastic cuts can and should, for the present, be made in the estimates. In this last-named connection the Premier claims that the Department, in the last six months of 1931, cut the maintenance expenditure on the King's Highway by more than $500,000 with an indirect saving to the organized counties of at least $100,000 and a corresponding relief to the local municipalities.

The Premier's Appeal

Mr. Henry's appeal follows:

"While Ontario continues to occupy a sound and comparatively favorable position in the midst of the financial difficulties through which the civilized world is passing, there exists at the same time a need for the exercise of close supervision over public expenditures, particularly having in mind the extreme desirability of balancing our Budgets and curtailing expenditure, that the limits of actual revenues will not be exceeded.

"As intimated by Colonel Price the Attorney-General, while he was Acting Prime Minister in my absence, the government is undertaking to economize in every way that is consistent with its responsibilities. The serious decline in revenue was one of our outstanding features of the fiscal year of 1931, and we feel this same trend will be felt, perhaps with more intensity, during our present year. As much of our expenditure is contingent upon percentages and grants which we pay to various municipal bodies and school boards, it is essential now that councils are being organized and the school boards beginning to function, that every effort should be made to cut out all frills or non-essentials in the administration of public bodies.

To Relieve Taxpayer

"There are various reasons why the expenditures of several years have mounted to its present proportions. All of the people have been enthusiastically behind public bodies in extending services and demanding expansion in services. With the present financial condition and the inability of many taxpayers to meet their obligations, every effort must be put forth on the part of all public bodies to relieve as much as possible the burden on the taxpayer.

"As far as rural Ontario is concerned, possibly the two items in relation to roads and to schools are responsible for more of our present tax burden than any other. As Minister of Education, I am saying this special appeal to all school boards to think carefully of all types of expenditure and only undertake for the present those that are essential. Naturally I am not desirous of lowering the standard of education, but trust that that will be the view of the trustees and ratepayers generally throughout the entire province.

"With regard to roads in relation to the municipalities and county councils, drastic cuts can for the present be made without serious detriment, as roads have been brought generally to a high standard, and reasonable repair and main tenance should keep them in good condition.

Highways Cuts

"In this connection I may mention that the Highways Department, in the last six months of 1931, cut its maintenance expenditure on the King's Highways over half a million dollars. As the counties are responsible for 40 per cent. of the King's Highways expenditures, this means a saving to the organized counties of at least $100,000. There is also a corresponding relief to the urban centres which are contributing to suburban sections of the King's High way system.

"Municipal Councils generally throughout the province are earning 40 per cent. of their entire road expenditure from the province, and we are looking to these councils, by curtailing their road expenditure this year, to relieve their own taxpayers and the province, in its percentage.

"It is the intention of the Hon. Mr. Macauley, Minister of Highways, to call a conference in Toronto of representatives from the various County Councils after their organization in the latter part of this month, so that we may set out more specifically the need for curtailment in road expenditure, and also our plans for retrenchment in the King's Highway system. In view of the vast improvement in our roads during the last eight or ten years I feel that the public generally will not criticize us in this effort.

"The wise head of a household not only seeks to live within his income, but to have at the end of the year some little balance that may go to build up a reserve against hard times. It is only proper that public bodies should follow the example of the individual and seek to live within their income.

"We as a province, are conscious of this need and fully determined to balance our budget, raising only what money is needed to meet our obligations, and I want to urge most strongly that municipal bodies and School Boards should follow the example of the wise householder.

"In conclusion, let me repeat, despite the disturbed condition of the world in general, Ontario occupies a sound position—one in which we have many reasons to congratulate ourselves; and I feel that by following the suggestions here given we can consolidate it, and be in readiness for the next move forward."

PROPOSAL TO RAISE PRICES

Low Export Prices Dominate Domestic Quotations

Saskatoon, Sask., Jan. 15.— (By the Canadian Press)—Suggestion that some national scheme be arrived at to lessen the exportable surplus of livestock in the Dominion for disposal of the world market thus raising the domestic price, the loss experienced outside being taken care of by an assessment per head throughout the Dominion, was advanced by H. S. Arkell, former Dominion Livestock Commissioner, now general superintendent of the Canadian Livestock Co-operative, last night.

The occasion was a dinner tendered to the delegates to the annual convention of the co-operative by the Saskatoon Board of Trade.

In outlining the scheme, which he said, he did under the instructions of W. D. Mackay, president of the Saskatchewan Board, Mr. Arkell stated that in view of the low export price, and the practical cessation of export with tariff blocking the United States route and embargo the British, the low price of the exportable surplus of necessity dominated the Domestic.

Praises Work of Miss Leveridge

Well Known Writer Calls "The Skyscraper" True Poetic Saga

Wallace Havelock Robb, writing to this paper concerning the poem, "The Skyscraper," by Miss Lillian Leveridge, of Toronto, calls this poem "an achievement." He goes on to say:

"It is the place of the poet to turn the world into home, it is a most difficult thing to lift and beautify a skyscraper, or any other like thing of modern life so ugly in many ways and yet so inevitable in our civilization. Many a bard has failed to glorify this or similar things, being dominated by their ugliness and overwhelmed by detail that must be shut out ere vision from time could penetrate. An unlovely rhyme of a massive, gloomy bridge or other structure is frequently called a poetical saga by the critics, but it is not a poem. But I consider this poem by Miss Leveridge to be truly poetic saga. It is most impressive, stark with truth, but it is also beautifully presented. Her technique in burning into cupolas of song just the once in an astonishing power effect."

BRITISH READY TO RULE INDIA

Sir Samuel Hoare Makes Statement With Respect to India

(By George Hambleton.)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
London, Jan. 13.— "So long as we are responsible for the Government of India, we intend to govern," Sir Samuel Hoare, secretary of State for India, frankly declared during an interview Saturday in which he discussed recent events in India.

He spoke to a large assembly of newspapermen, representing many Nationalities, gathered at the India office. Hanging on the wall behind him was a large painting of Warren Hastings, the Great British Administrator in India in the 18th century. Before Sir Samuel was a large table, and now and again as he spoke of the success attending the government's efforts to maintain order he smilingly "touched wood".

In the "Red Shirt" movement in the Northwest Provinces, in the recent campaign in the United Provinces, and in the Bardoli campaign in Bengal a challenge had been flung at the government of India which it had to accept, Sir Samuel declared.

"We took the only action any self-respecting government could take," the Secretary of State added. "We took it drastically and we took it all at once."

NO INDICATION OF DEPRESSION

Remote Parts of Quebec Live Among Themselves

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 15—Bernard K. Sandwell, Montreal, yesterday told members of the Toronto Women's Canadian Club "it is difficult to find any indication of depression" in the older and more remote parts of Quebec.

Mr. Sandwell, who urged maintenance and, fostering of Canadian handicrafts said the people of remote Quebec "produce so much of what they consume and consume so much of what they produce that they are not generally interested in external markets." He said Western Canada would profit by the development of handicraft "for home-grown products are admirably suited for life in this country."

Ex-Kaiser Fears Throat Cancer

Doorn, Holland, Jan 15. — The former Kaiser of Germany was forced to remain indoors again Thursday because of bronchitis, which has prevented his usual outdoor exercise since Christmas.

The exiled monarch was much depressed by the death of his sister, former Queen Sophie of Greece, at Frankfort, especially because it was reported her death was partly due to the malady which was fatal to other members of the family. The Kaiser's father and mother died of cancer of the throat.

The exiled German ruler has taken precautions against similar illness for many years and in the early years of his reign underwent an operation on his throat. He has rigidly followed the instructions of his physician, who so far have been able to reassure him.

Persons with incomes of $1,000,000 annually number 194 in 1930 as compared with 504 the year before.

OPERATING ON HIMSELF

This remarkable photograph, one of the most unusual to be made in an operating room, shows Dr. Evan Cattell Kane, 70-year-old surgeon, of Kane, Pa., actually performing an operation on himself for inguinal hernia. Using a local anesthetic, Dr. Kane successfully concluded the delicate operation although he was compelled to rely upon his sense of touch alone. The surgeon astounded the medical world in 1921 by removing his own appendix, but the latest operation is said to have been far more difficult. Brother surgeons at the Kane Summit Hospital pronounced the operation a success.

JUDGMENT NOT GIVEN OUT

Communists, who Appealed Will Hear Fate in Few Days

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 15—The appeal of eight members of the Communist party of Canada from their conviction and sentence as members of an unlawful association and with being parties to a seditious conspiracy ended yesterday. Judgment was reserved by the Court of Appeals, sitting under Sir William Mulock, Chief Justice of Ontario, after two days' argument by defence and Crown counsel.

The defence based its case on the original indictment under which the eight men were charged. The indictment, according to the I. P. Helmyth, K.C., counsel for the Communists, was faulty in that it did not state specifically wherein the men had committed an offence. It merely charged them with being and acting as members of an unlawful association, but did not, he said, state wherein the organization was an unlawful one.

The eight men are Tim Buck, Tom Ewen, John Boychuk, Amos T. Hill, Malcolm Lo Bruno, Samuel Cohen, Matthew Popovitch and Thomas Cecile. All except Cecile were sentenced to five and two year terms, sentences to be concurrent, while Cecile was sentenced to two and one years respectively on the two counts.

Says Hepburn in Reply to Speach of Hon. Dunlop

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 15—(By the Canadian Press)—Alexander P. Hepburn, M.P., Ontario Liberal leader, last night issued a further statement in connection with his criticism of the Ontario Legislature and the reply Wednesday of Hon. A. Dunlop, Provincial Treasurer.

The people are beginning to realize how the Government misleads them regarding the true financial situation of the Province", Mr. Hepburn said in part. "The system of bookkeeping, under the terms 'current account' and 'capital account' enables the treasurer to transfer items that are really current expenditures into capital account. R. M. Mitchell Succeeds as Fair Board President

Marked Shrinkage in Receipts of 1931 Exhibition

FINANCE REPORT

Some fifty active members of the Belleville Agricultural Society met in the city Hall, yesterday afternoon at 2 p.m., to hold their annual meeting, to hear the 1931 reports of their president, secretary and treasurer, to discuss these reports and to elect officers for the year 1932.

The president, C. H. Hanna, in assuming the chair and calling the meeting to order, stated that the routine of business for such meetings had been set out by the Provincial Department of Agriculture, and he intended to adhere to their rulings. The first in order of procedure was the president's address. He was very proud of last year's board, which had co-operated with him wholeheartedly, the chairman of the different sections had done efficiently carried out their duties, and all had worked in unison. He thanked the members of the society for electing him for so many years, their president, and he sincerely appreciated that honour. He dwelt on the election of men of the city as officers, as they were conveniently situated and more quickly available when occasion arose. He also preferable directors in those from the neighboring rural sections. Bad weather at last fair time, had caused a financial loss to the society, and he advised the incoming executive to adhere to a policy of economy the coming year. As a byword, would he favor a cut down in admissions at the gates. He was elated for a full two days' time from South Ontario at the fair this year, that some economy might be effected. He felt he should be relieved of his duty as president and thought that first vice-president, H. M. Mitchell should be elevated to the presidency, and promised all his assistance to the new head to be elected. He would not comment on reports of the secretary or treasurer as they would explain their own statements. In retiring from office he wished to thank all for the assistance they had rendered him, and trusted to the election of efficient officers and board of directors to guide the Belleville Agricultural Society during 1932.

In the absence of the secretary, R. H. Ketcheson, who was to arrive later, H. B. Stock, read the minutes of the last annual meeting which were confirmed.

The treasurer, Ambrose Dafoe, presented his statement (appearing later in this report) explaining it item by item, and then compared it with the statement of the year previous. This was received and adopted.

The auditors' report, made by F. G. Chamberlain, was received and adopted.

It was decided to drop the proposal for a Spring Stallion and Bull Show, but to hold the Field Crop Competition, details to be left for the new directors to handle.

The acting secretary read the names of the paid up 1932 members of the association, entitled to vote in the annual election, and F. G. Chamberlain and A. L. Johnson were named as scrutineers.

The business of election of officers and directors for 1932 was taken in order with results as follows:

President—R. M. Mitchell (unanimous).

1st. Vice-President—H. B. Stock, (unanimous).

2nd. Vice-President—W. Aselstine

Secretary—R. R. Ketcheson, (unanimous)

Treasurer—A. Dafoe (unanimous)

Directors—Mayor G. O. Tice (unanimous); D. Thrasher, H. J. Fairfield, C. J. Symons, E. Sonier, O. E. Hanna, W. T. Bamford, F. M. Rutherford, W. D. Reid, G. Babcock, F Denyes, J. Clarke, L. E. Walmsley, F. Symons, C. Dafoe.

Auditors—S. J. Dawkins and F. G. Chamberlain.

There were four nominations for the office of second vice-president, viz. H. R. Fairfield, W. Aselstine, D. Thrasher and L. Sonier. Mr. Fairfield withdrew and on the second ballot, Walter Aselstine was elected, the first two directors being elected following Mayor Tice's name were elected on the first ballot and the remaining nine on the second. The meeting then adjourned to be reconvened at the pleasure of the president.

QUEBEC MOVES TO CALL HALT UPON SEAWAY

Suffocating Embrace With U. S. Subject of Warning

Opposition Leader Joins With Government in Deploring Move

Quebec, Jan. 15—The Quebec legislature declared itself on record as being opposed to the immediate development of the St. Lawrence waterways when a resolution to that effect was adopted by a vote of 56 to 14 after a debate in which Premier Taschereau, Opposition Leader and P. A. Taschereau (Conservative) joined with the government in supporting the resolution which declared that the waterways are by no means a purely Canadian

"That this House, moreover, is of the opinion that it would be a mistake to allow the United States government to develop, with its own capital, the purely Canadian natural resources."

Premier Quebec Seldom Wrong

"For 50 years it has been very rare that even a parliamentary view point, Quebec has been wrong," declared Premier Mr. Taschereau concluding the debate. "We have erred at times. But in the main I think we have decided as our attitude has been for the good of the province of Canada. Often we have been criticised, but after our attitude has been studied, it finally has been accepted as the basis for action by other provinces.

"To sum up my argument, made at the outset, I am opposed to hooking the navigation and Hydro features of this project—everything connected with it—together with the canals and above the means the Dominion of Canada, the Government, will need."

"I have also entirely the question of the national view of the Province of Quebec. I will follow the calm way of the Prime Ministers, who told that the country served the United States a friendly nation, provided we are not called upon too closely to be embraced, knowing full well that there are embraces that suffocate.

Sunshine Helps Trade Though It's Springlike

"Just give me another week of this sunshiny weather and I won't kick if it rains all summer and blows for the rest of the month," scaled one Front Street merchant yesterday as he opened the door for a lady who was about to enter and join the throng inside. "I've never seen such crowds on the streets in mid-January before. This is generally the quiet, after-Christmas lull with most of us, but today I have done more business than we have done all the week, and the sale of winter articles has undergone a slump several of the merchants' displays have stocked their counters with what might be called Spring specials and are cleaning up."

"Undoubtedly we will get colder weather later on—we always do—but just now no one seems to want to talk about it and the pure springs are being loosened in great style. As far as I can see the only ones who are not benefitting by this warm weather are the coal and wood merchants and dealers in coal stoves. I hear that they are raising up against it in a way, but I suppose their turn will come later. Just now we are all unwrapping new goods being rushed for warm weather sales, and if this keeps up you'll likely see Spring sales being announced in the papers soon. Everybody seems very happy, and why not?"

Hoover's Hat in Ring President Will Follow

Washington, Jan. 15—The name of Herbert Hoover was formally put into the Republican political field by his postmaster-general, Walter Brown of Ohio, in the face of threatened challenges from the party independents of the Northwest.

In a terse statement Mr. Brown said the President "will stand for renomination" and whatever necessary to get convention delegates for him will be undertaken.

Mr. Brown said no decision has been reached on the North Dakota primary of March 15, which Senators Nye and Frazier of that state are urging Rirem Johnson of California to enter.

But Senator Johnson has given no answer and whether serious opposition to the President's renomination will be made was still uncertain last night.

Joseph I. France, former Republican senator from Maryland, has announced he is seeking the nomination, but the anti-Hoover forces have been looking elsewhere for a candidate.

PROOF TO DESK, 4looo. IC. oah Striking a cheering note of optimism, founded on true confidence in Canada's ability to triumph over this period of depression, as she has over those in the past, Hon., W. G. The atmosphere of gracious hospitality, that marks social events in this institution, made the evening an outstanding success. Guests were received , by Miss Dalmmard, Miss Catherine Ford and Mrs. M. The tables were most attractive with the school colours of gold and blue, centred with baskets of yellow narcissi and blue irises, tapers of the same shades of yellow shade made a striking effect. DUMPED SNOW LOOKS LIKE GLACIER

Tons of snow which were drawn off the city streets some time ago and dumped over the wall of the park on the west side of the river below the lower bridge where it formed into huge piles is now slipping into the river owing to the recent action of the current rains and the heat of the sun.

The river side which is abnormally high has risen and undermined the bottom of the snow which was practically ice owing to the weight and cold weather, further weakening the support and aiding in the slippage into the water. In the harbor it has the appearance of water flowing each day, and ice is fast disappearing in all sections.

Barns Unroofed, Trees Snapped Off

Rothwell, Jan. 16—A small cyclone accompanied by thunder and lightning swept over Raphenia Township, yesterday morning, uprooting trees, unroofing buildings and causing considerable damage.

The home of Mrs. Milton's barn was blown in, and the roof blown off of those of Bert. Miller and Jack Billon. Sheds and other buildings with the exception of the main part of the latter's house were also blown down.

Boys Carrying Hot Water From Basement to Corridor

USE BACK DOOR

Discovery of Escape Made Within Ten Minutes and Pursuit Begins

This afternoon at six o'clock two English youths, Andrew Minchin aged 16, and Thomas McMullen aged 17 who had been serving a month's sentence at the county jail here for vagrancy and were awaiting deportation to England, escaped from the main corridor of the county jail where they had been engaged in carrying hot water from the boiler in the basement to prisoners who were washing in the corridor. As the boys were within a few days of deportation and appeared anxious to get back to England and were young, they were allowed to work together although it has not been the custom to have prisoners working in pairs like this, said the warden, Mr. C. H. Farrell.

Within ten minutes their absence was noticed and it was evident that when they came up from the basement or when they were on the point of going down for more hot water, they made their way through the rear door of the court house upon Church street.

Provincial and city police are searching for them and goal officials are also on the trail.

Minchin was wearing a blue suit and McMullen a dark suit and a brown sweater and old trousers.

Authorities of the surrounding district have been notified of the escape.

Mr. French stated that he could not understand their motive as they appeared reconciled and were delighted to know that they were going to England.

Medium of Barter in This Country is Gold

MAKES SHIPMENT

Banking Systems Are Scarcely Known in East

Bombay, Jan. 16 (AP)—India has shipped more than $100,000,000 worth of gold to London since Great Britain suspended the gold standard, and if shipments are continued at the present rate they are expected to double last year's entire world output of gold which was approximately $430,000,000.

More than $60,000,000 in gold was shipped to London today. This steady drain is expected by financiers to have an important contributing factor to the recent rise in the pound sterling.

More than in any other country in the world gold is the standard of value in India. All currency from it in the form of settings for jewelry, bracelets and other valuables, and banking systems are scarcely known in the country. Although there are an Indian in the interior wants paper money he ships his surfaces of gold to the government mint at Bombay where they are melted and coined.

Next War One of Horror So General Currie Urges Strong Move for Peace

Total Disarmament Not Necessary, He Tells New York Club

WAR UNBRIDLED

No Front in Next War, Currie Warns His Hearers

New York, Jan. 6 (CP)—A plea for bold, sincere and unified move by the nations of the world to bring about lasting, unethical peace was sounded here today by Sir Arthur Currie, commander of the Canadian Corps in the Great War. He made his appeal as chairman of one of the principal speakers at a dinner in New York.

After recounting the suffering and futility of the last war, Sir Arthur pressed home the thought: "We must attend a modern holocaust—a war which he declared defied the imagination in its horrors and ruthlessness unless the sentiments of peace permeated the thoughts of mankind and war became unthinkable, the world was doomed to destruction, he said.

Live in Fear

"Today the nations live in an atmosphere of fear, in a shadowy haze of insecurity. They are suspicious, one of the other. They seem ever to be on the alert, to be ready for war as it were, watchful of the other. As if expectant of a treacherous move. This attitude is not of mutual disappear," Sir Arthur declared, "the disappearance will be hastened by disarmament. Because that is the first step in making it impossible does not mean that it can never come, or that we should not strive for its achievement.

Disarmament, the speaker maintained, was not a question for any one party, or for any one country; it was a question for all. It was illustrated with many slides.

Rev. H. B. Neal welcomed the guests and spoke of the benefits to be derived from this intermingling of clubs. Mr. Brown called upon Mr. Sager, president of the Trenton Club, who thanked the members and took charge of a short programme, which was greatly enjoyed. Musical numbers were well received and Rev. C. Brethren read an article on war and learning address. A series of stunts were arranged and a social half hour spent.

Duffus Heads Liberals of Central Ontario at Cobourg Organization

Leadership Question Not Matter of Discussion at Meeting

SINCLAIR SPEAKS

G. H. Holton of Belleville Elected Secretary-Treasurer

Cobourg, Jan. 16—That the newly organized Central Ontario Liberal Association had assembled here on Friday with the purpose of solidifying W. E. N. Sinclair's position in Central Ontario or that the gathering had been sponsored by W. B. Moore, M.P., and Hon. Nelson Parliament, was denied emphatically by the Duffus Holton. president of the South Hastings Association, in the opening address.

"I feel we are making history tonight," said the chairman, "the large gathering augers well for the future of the association which we brought into being this afternoon."

More than 100 delegates were present in the Opera House, to adopt the constitution of the new association and elect officers.

J. J. Duffus, Peterboro, was elected President; Miss M. S. Mowat, Kingston, Vice-president; and Geo. H. Holton, Secretary-treasurer, with the presidents of each riding association as the executive.

The chief speaker of the convention was W. E. N. Sinclair, M.P. Speakers were W. E. N. Sinclair, M. P.P., J. Bragg, M.P.P., for Durham; W. Newman, North Victoria; W. A. Fraser, M.P., for Northumberland, and representatives from each riding.

Purposes of Gathering

"Before proceeding with the business of the day, I wish to refer to an article which appeared in a morning newspaper," said Mr. Holton, in opening the meeting.

"No doubt some of you have read the article I refer to, which was inspired by some one evidently close to headquarters in matters pertaining to caucuses were discussed. This article stated that the question now in session, in relation to differences, was the cleavage that existed between Mr. Ferguson and Mr. Sinclair". As chairman of this meeting, I will not permit the matter to be discussed in any way, shape or form, because this meeting was called purely for the purpose of creating more effective organization and to further honestly the interests of the Liberal party, both federally and Provincially, in the districts represented here today.

"The Liberal headquarters in Toronto must accept full responsibility for any error of leadership. We therefore, sincerely hope that the men and women who have met here today will give their best thoughts to organization within their ridings, and not to a discussion on leadership.

"Part of the statement in this morning's newspaper reads as follows: 'The meeting to be held at Cobourg tonight is reputed to have a real relationship to tomorrow's by-election. It is alleged that the Cobourg gathering has been sponsored by W. B. Moore, M.P., and Hon. Nelson Parliament for the purpose of solidifying W. E. N. Sinclair's position in Central Ontario.'

Preliminaries Explained

"In contradiction to this article I have just read, I state most emphatically that there is absolutely no relationship between this meeting and the meeting of the Management Committee which has been sponsored by W. B. Moore, M.P., and Hon. Nelson Parliament. Mr. Moore, M.P., has no more to do with sponsoring this meeting than the representative of any of the other ridings.

"I ascertained from W. A. Fraser, M.P., for Northumberland, that the Hon. Nelson Parliament was available to assist me in the organization meeting and I got in touch Mr. Parliament agreed, and has been of valuable assistance to me. At no time have I, Mr. Parliament or any of those mentioned or discussed Provincial leadership, and anyone so reported to Liberal Members from Central Ontario!' There has been no thought, none in their hearts, though, of solidifying Mr. Sinclair's position or the position of any other individual, but there is a keen determination to advance the interests in Parliament throughout the ridings of Central Ontario.

"The object will be satisfactorily maintained by the Central Ontario Liberal Association, with no deviation, regardless of any individual discussion that may arise."

Correction by Mr. Gordon

Hon. N. W. Gordon, Peterboro, took the opportunity of referring to his statement made recently regarding the Canadian Minister at Washington. He said he had done an injustice to Major Herridge as to his going to England on his honeymoon when on official business for the Government. The brief Mr. Gordon had he had received had interposed the wrong years of Mr. Herridge's life. Mr. Herridge stated, Mr. Gordon said had misled him. Mr. Gordon said he had found the source of his information reliable and trustworthy and regretted that it failed him and caused him to criticize Mr. Herridge unfairly.

Mr. Sinclair Speaks

When W. E. N. Sinclair rose to speak he was greeted with loud and prolonged cheers, but spoke briefly, refraining from touching on the political situation, except to quote figures showing the strength of Liberalism in Central Ontario, and said that the position in Central Ontario today was encouraging, but it would be through concentrated efforts of the constituencies that Liberalism would be brought back to the Province. It was only by pulling together that results would be obtained. He urged the delegates to return to their ridings and do all in their power to further the cause of Liberalism.

A unique feature of the gathering was the presence of six boys, representing the Young Liberals, six constituencies competed for the district oratory championship. Each address dealt with the history and principles of Liberalism, and the boys were keenly contested. The district championship went to G. O'Connor, Northumberland.

The Liberals who assembled were from the ridings of Durham, Northumberland, Peterboro, North and South Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington.

SHORT WAVE USED TO HEAL

Treatment of An Injured Seaman By Wireless

Ottawa, Jan. 16.—The short-wave wireless system connecting the office of Controller of Radio, Edmund director of the branch of the Department of Marine with the Arctic stations in the Arctic played a part yesterday in the treatment of an injured seaman on a Grimsby trawler operating in Davis strait, between Greenland and Baffin Island.

The master of the trawler St. Kenneth sent a wireless to the operator of the Department of Marine station at Resolution, asking for instructions in treating "a man with half his right hand badly crushed by having been washed through a scupper door." The message was forwarded to the Department of Marine branch here. And in an hour a message was being relayed back to the trawler skipper advising him what treatment to apply, and referring him to the necessary pages in the medical manual carried by every vessel commander for such emergencies.

BARRIE CROWD SEES HANGING THRU COALSHED

Unruly Crowd Opens Door to See Campbell Executed

AT MIDNIGHT

Crowds Returns After Having Been Driven Away

Barrie, Jan. 16—Thomas Wesley Campbell, aged 35, of Allan, was hanged in the coal shed of the county jail here at 12.15 a.m. today, almost in full view of more than a score of men and several women who broke loose a wooden door leading into the coal shed from the street.

A uniformed constable climbed through the small opening, daily drawing his revolver, ordered more than a hundred persons to move on. Campbell was hanged for the murder of his father last summer. For more than an hour before midnight scores of curious persons walked up and down Mulcaster Street immediately back of the coal shed. At 11.30 minutes before 12 o'clock when it was expected the execution would take place, the door, about 18 inches high and a little more than two feet wide, was broken open.

In the crowd was Campbell's only son, who endeavored to get a view of the scaffold that awaited his father's execution.

Heard by Constable

Voices of the crowd in the shed were heard and the crowd took flight only to return in time to witness the hanging. Those outside brought traffic coming and going to a standstill. It was one of the guards, to the window.

He dropped from the low eaves and was in the place more by. On the sidewalk directly opposite the shed several youths watched until the prisoner in the shed was found.

Then there was a mad rush toward the wall as men elbowed their way over the high fence. Inside was the scaffold, plainly illuminated by two electric light bulbs, while on above dangled the hangman's rope.

As the door opened, men's voices were heard. Some of the crowd scattered, only to return in a few minutes when the execution was over.

The execution over, witnessed by more than a dozen men, loud talking outside brought a sudden command from the police constable chamber, and the constable opened the door.

Getting a glimpse of the large crowd, he slammed it, looking from the window, jumped to the ground and disappeared. Several rushed at the mob to move on. As he did so a man approached him, presumably stating he had permission to witness the hanging. The commanding voice P. C. Bell ordered him, and to the sheriff's office, but he refused to move. He was finally unable to see any officials.

Campbell's Execution

Campbell's execution was the third in Simcoe county in 1932. The first hanging was in 1843, when Peter Mills on Jan. 4, 1929, when George O'Neil was hanged for the murder of Anor Robertson and his daughter, Mrs. Ruby Martin.

POLICE STRUCK BY JOBLESS

ROCHDALE, Lancashire, Eng., Jan. 16.—Police were struck, kicked and otherwise injured during disturbances last night by unemployed demonstrators.

The trouble started when the police tried to break up a mass addressing the jobless from the Town Hall. Stones were thrown, one of them breaking a Town Hall window and for some time the demonstrators surged up and down the neighboring streets. Two men, in addition to the speakers were arrested. This was the second night in succession that Rochdale was disturbed in this fashion.

Hulk of Varuna Left at Kingston Says Captain

PICTON STORY

Picton, Jan. 16.—Enquiries made here today of the Varuna, a passenger boat which used to operate on the Bay of Quinte thirty or so years ago, elicited the fact that after she had lain in the Picton harbor for some time, useless, she had been towed to Collins Bay. The Donnelly Wrecking Company of Kingston had removed her engine and machinery. The hull was left off Davis' Drydock at Kingston and as far as Capt. Christie recalls, was left there to rot with the many other hulks of ships there.

Captain Christie stated that the Varuna never left the Bay of Quinte waters.

She was built by Davis of Kingston for Captain B. Porte of Picton. Captain Van Vlack operated in the D. Cooper were the next owners. Captain Alfred Hicks purchased been received here.

Captain Van Block's interest in the boat and held it until he died when Captain J. E. Rathbun purchased the boat. The Ontario and Quebec Navigation Company was the next owner and when this company was taken over by the Canada Steamship Lines, the Varuna became a C.S.L. boat but was used little.

Captain Christie once sailed her for a season on the Bay of Quinte. She was a very popular excursion boat and carried scores of people here.

Captains here believed the wreckage to be that of some other smaller boat or part of the hull of the old Varuna brought to the top by the storm. Boats sunk off Main Duck have remained in good condition for twenty-five years and wrecks of forty years ago are still visible.

The life preservers found could not have been set afloat here as the bay is covered with ice. These may, mariners suggest, have been used on another boat.

No word of any vessel missing or any being sighted on the lake has

RAIL MERGER IS THOUGHT VERY UNLIKELY

Toronto Globe Says Public Opinion Will Not Support Merger

PREMIER'S PLEDGE

Newspaper Says Cabinet Has Never Considered Merger

Toronto, Jan. 16. — The Toronto Globe today publishes the following dispatch from Ottawa in regard to the railways.

"Amalgamation of the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways is dead and buried, for the present reason, it is off because the government knows amalgamation is politically and nationally impossible, Premier Bennett, so far as one can learn has not deviated from the Winnipeg shibboleth of "amalgamation, never; competition ever". "It is true that private members of the Conservative party — back benchers like John T. Hackett of Stanstead—have stood the harpoon into the C.N.R. at every opportunity, but the attacks have been quite carefully refrained from attacks on the people's railway.

"The Premier's position is given credit for sincerity when he says his policy is "amalgamation, never." His last policy he will be supported by his Ministers, who must be in step with their chief or resign from the cabinet. The suggestion that amalgamating there has been no unique political interference or meddling for party ends. Under the Drury ways management, has insisted upon which the capital expenditures and stern economies in the administration of government. Ya that only.

The government was obliged to ask parliament to appropriate $120,000,000 for interest payments, $30,000,000 for sinking fund payment and hotels last year, it feels that the Conservatives will be exercised by the cabinet in respect to the Canadian National railways as outlays. ...So it is quite true that the Minister of Railways has exercised authority in connection with the railway at least, expenditures which have been ordered to economize. The economies of a crippling nature have been ordered he emphatically denies.

Hatched in Montreal

So far as one can ascertain, merger of the two railway systems never has been seriously entertained by the Federal Cabinet. The suggestion originated in Montreal in the financial manipulation of the C.P.R. and apparently miscalculated the strength of public opinion against it. The C.P.R. has not unacceptable to the private corporation, but the public was to "sell" the idea to the government and parliament. It failed for several reasons. One was because the headquarters staff of the Canadian National Railways can be convinced that it was a good plan; the Conservative party for the labor organizations were antagonistic to it; and a third was that the strength of public-ownership sentiment in Ontario and Western Canada. Amalgamation is dead, never to rise again.

Rare Old Picture Has Been Acquired

A rare old pen and ink sketch of the officers formerly belonging to the old corps of the Queen's Own Rifles, which were disbanded in Toronto some time in 1869, has recently been acquired by Col. Denton of this city and who now has it in his office on Bridge street. The sketch was procured by him through the aid of another local man who is interested in collecting pictures distance back north, and which was then purchased by Mr. Denton.

Three of these officers who appear in the sketch are still living and well known in this city back in those days and are still well remembered by some of the present older residents. Ensign Ponton, who appears in it was a cousin of the present Col. Penton, Lieutenant Fletcher, and Lieutenant W. H. Biggar also will be recalled as having participated in the Fenian Raid Rebellion, and who left this city to take part in the fighting with that regiment.

Trenton Boy Falls from C. N. R. Footbridge and Drowns in the Curren

School Boy Climbs Thru Railway to Get on Track

SLIPS BETWEEN

Body Not Found Late Friday Though Grapple is Used

At 4.15 Friday afternoon a young boy fell from the bridge into the river while coming home from school. Young Anderson was accompanied by three of his school mates who attended the separate school with him. The children were playing coming along the foot bridge which is built out from the railroad bridge. Young Anderson crawled through the railing to go out on the railroad track as he is doing so he slipped between the railing and the bridge and in falling probably struck one of the supports below striking the water which is about fifteen feet drop from the bridge. His companions, Jim Holmes, Cecil Ellis and Audrey Anderson, Young Ellis ran out to the end of the bridge and went up the railroad bank but he had disappeared.

The current is very swift at this point in the river, also the water being deep and full from the rain fall. The children ran to the home of Mr. Harry Anderson, an uncle of the boy, who notified the police who immediately got boats and equipment to search for the boy. A number of the town people joining in the search which was kept up till early but no trace of the body was found. His body was found floating in the river a couple of hundred yards below the bridge. The search will be continued today.

Mr. Anderson, the father of the boy, is a well known farmer residing on George street. There were two children in the family, William Anderson Jr., the boy aged 12 years and his younger sister, Clara.

LAST MEETING IN TORONTO

Commission on Transportation Sits Tuesday

OTTAWA, Jan. 16.—The Royal Commission on Transportation will meet in the Parliament Buildings at Toronto on Tuesday next, at the 10.30 o'clock and again in afternoon. This is the last meeting of the Commission's nation-wide tour, so far as arranged, but it is not possible to say at the moment whether there will be other meetings.

No announcement can be made as to the Commission's plans for the future. They are still to be considered. Dr. Skelton says that the report will be held at Ottawa. The Commission has secured most of the data it requires, but the probability is that an adjournment will be made to enable the Commission's secretariat to assemble and prepare a digest of the evidence submitted.

Lord Ashfield has to go back to England in connection with some legislation affecting the London Underground Railways which is before the British Parliament. He will return to Canada in a few weeks, and the Commission expects that by the Commission of seven may sit again in February.

The Commissioners will confer in Toronto as to their future plans. It is thought their report will be completed in about three months' time. There will be no interim report.

Thos. Y. Wills is Returning Officer

Ottawa, Jan. 16.—The Canada Gazette of this week contains the names of Returning Officers for the forthcoming election. Three changes only have occurred in Ontario since the distribution was published. These are in Hastings South, Oxford North, and Simcoe North. The Returning Officer in Hastings South is Lieutenant-Colonel Thomas A. Wills, barrister, Belleville; John L. Hilson, farmer, R.R. No. 7, Woodstock and R. E. Fair, barrister, Collingwood.

Shelf Upsets and Shows Hose Supplying Liquor

Halifax, Jan. 16—A bathroom shelf a third of a mile long, filled with four customs preventive officers Friday to one of the cleverest liquor caches ever discovered in this city.

Behind the shelf, on the first floor of the second storey of the two-roomed house, the outlet from a 40-gallon tank imbedded in the wall of the second storey and fed from a funnel hidden on the third storey.

For more than a year the sleuths had been hearing that upper Water Street house to be the supply base for a ring of bootleggers in the city district. They visited the place regularly but returned to headquarters empty-handed each time.

What a thirst the bootleggers must have developed Friday afternoon when Harold Gough, J. McLeod, W. MacDonald and Hilly Brown, after searching and ripping from top to bottom, pounding on walls with varying success—and they chanced to look in the bathroom.

Here they noticed that a shelf over the sink was a bit off angle. They touched it and it moved. Behind it was a hole from which they drew a length of hose with a faucet.

As the four men departed somebody dropped a bottle from the third storey window. It just missed Harold Gough's head and struck his back without causing serious injury.

IMPARTIAL ADOUT IT

When Sidney township council cut the salaries of the officials of the municipality twenty per cent. it also lopped off their own salaries the same amount or one dollar per day for committee and council work.

At least they had the courage of their convictions to reduce their own salaries when they cut that of officials of the township.

Whatever view is held of salary cut the council cannot be accused of slicing or shaving the employees and neglecting to lop off a similar percentage of their own.

WEATHER UPSETS EVERYTHING

The weather is attracting as much attention in the press as a great political event and more interest than a political event in the way the people are beginning to think of what the weather is doing.

The present weather conditions have ceased to be mere "talk" and are serious. People are predicting upsets in nature which have turned the great Gulf Stream from its course and which promise to upturn the industrial and labor world, at least that part of the latter which is engaged in work. Men are losing jobs in the woods of the Maritime Provinces, floods are breaking through levees, a dam has burst in Nova Scotia while in excess of water and California is getting an unprecedented snowstorm.

It is a little wonder that the proof is not yet here that the change is a permanent one. Mighty changes to be permanent would likely come more slowly for if they came suddenly they would come in the form of a cataclysm.

EVEN BEGGARS EXPERT

Does begging pay and is it easy? There might be an answer to this in the affirmative in this day when people hear of others forced to beg. But an opposite opinion has been given by reporters who have canvassed the haunts of the beggars only to find the profits not as large as those who do not know suspect. Three reporters of the London Morning Post put on an experiment recently. The New York Times describes their experience:

"During the holiday season, when hearts and purses are supposed to open freely, they went into the streets for a day as pavement artist, organ-grinder, and hawker of penny ballons and monkeys on strings.

"Their takings were very small, a total for the three of $3.20, with a deduction of some 60 cents to be made on the account of the hawker, who gave good change for a bad half-crown. The organ-grinder received little appreciation and attracted only the police. The pavement artist fared best, taking in $1.04. But to get that he had to spend $5 to hire a 'pitch'—the preserve of one man who guards these articles—$1.25 to rent a bedraggled dog as assistant and 10 cents for biscuits to feed him.

"If all the money had been made by cajoleries alone, and if receptive markets for hurdy-gurdy music and cheap toys had been found, the experiment might have proved more profitable. For success, even in begging, a man needs training, experience and a natural bent for his profession."

Yes, back of it all, is required the practice which makes any calling more easy.

LIFE'S RHYTHM

Tweed United Church assuredly provided a treat on Thursday when she was less a figure than Mrs. Nellie McClung, writer of international reputation, came to speak on "The Silver Lining."

There could not be found a time when more interest would attach to a message of this kind than at the present when the fighting courage and a calm and sane view of the ebb and flow of life are essential.

Coming as one who has met people of all classes and all conditions, Mrs. McClung was able to talk on the philosophy of life. Some people scarcely seem to realize that there is a rhythm in life, and that mankind's united effort does have an appreciable influence upon events. She also placed the blame for the present situation of the world upon the mismangement of mankind and not the inevitable coming to realize the truth of this. Those who think deeply have come to a realization that only the understanding of this principle can possibly bring about that restoration towards which all are looking.

Mrs. McClung's address with a problem which many find hard to understand, is, that God does not play favorites with men or with nations. Upon this basis it was natural that she should proceed to the study of world peace problems and urge the need to develop a world outlook with world peace as a dominant object. Walls are not as good as roads for roads develop intercommunity and international sympathy while walls keep apart.

Such a sane message will long be treasured in the minds of those who heard Mrs. McClung. Not soon will be forgotten the optimism of her personality which after all is the influence behind every great life and indeed of every life.

HOUSE ON A HILL
By Aline Michaelis

Only a little house on a hill,
Where all save the voice of the wind is still!
This is my wish—this house, set far
Up on the hillside and near to a star.
A star that will lend its silver light,
Aiding my candle-flame at night.
A star to greet me when twilight falls
Over my clearing's cedar-brake walls.

Only a little house, and cheap,
With God's own winds to sing me to sleep
And God's own star to lend me its light,
Signalling down to my candle bright
Lonely, perhaps, some would call my choice,
Yet I am cheered by each songster's voice
While God's love infolds, as I sleep or Fencing me 'round like the cedar-brake.

ANNOUNCEMENT that Hon. Hanford MacNider, United States Ambassador to Canada, will be the principal speaker at the annual "Get Together Banquet" in Belleville Friday evening, January 29, will be welcome news to Bellevillians and citizens of all the country roundabout. Mr. MacNider is deeply interested in Belleville by reason of the fact that ancestors of his lived here once upon a time. For the same reason Belleville will be more interested in him. Another reason why banquet tickets will be eagerly sought for is the fact that he is visiting us from the capital of no mean ability and being in the statesman class knows a good bit about what is going on in the political world at Washington. This will be the twelfth annual banquet given by the Belleville City Council and the members of the Board of Trade, members of the Hastings County Council who will be in session here at the time. Some memorable banquets have been held in the past at which the city and county legislators got together but this promises to be the best and brightest of them all with the only difficulty smudging the burden of Manager J. O. Herity's expectations being to get a place big enough to house the event.

CLOSING DOWN of THE KEELEY SILVER MINES recalls the romantic story of this Cobalt producer. Termination of a contract with the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company for delivery of cobalt ore was the direct cause of the closing down of this famous mine. Memory recalling back over the years recalls the connection of the Farmers' Bank with the Keeley Mines in the days of development when the big strike was made. Beaty-Neshitt, a well known Toronto business man and politician was interested in the property and many large advances were made by the Farmers' Bank to finance development operations on the Keeley, in fact the bank had a bond issue on the mines dollars on the property. The mine withheld the secret of its treasure vaults too long for the bank's comfort and the late W. H. Beaty bank manager went to Kingston penitentiary for a term, and Beattie Nesbitt ruined financially and broken in health, met death. The property was sold by the bank liquidators to Dr. J. Mackintosh Bell for the Associated Gold Mines of Canada, and operations resumed and about fifty feet from where the old operators had abandoned work the ore body cut a high grade silver vein, which together with subsequent operations made the company an outstanding producer and dividend payer. From the time operations started in 1913 until operations were suspended the profits had been produced over twelve million ounces of silver and approximately one and a half million pounds of cobalt. Between March 16, 1926, and March 15, 1928, it disbursed dividends totalling one hundred and fourteen per cent or $2,240,000. As at March 28 last it had current assets valued at $788,848, and in addition it held shares of other mining companies valued at $80,717, as well as 550,000 shares in the Huronian Mining and Finance Company, which directed operations of the company. Not a bad record for a mine which was abandoned as a dud. Just to think that only fifty feet separated the two men most vitally interested from wealth which would have left them in all probability save the Farmers' Bank as well as the life of the other, and a long dark chapter in the penitentiary would never have been written.

Truck Transportation and Railway Problem Under Debate by Transport Men

Secretary D. A. MacQuarrie Marshals Argument in Case

WHAT OF FUTURE?

The following paper was read to members of the Automotive Transport Association by their Secretary Mr. Donald R. MacQuarrie, at the monthly meeting held at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, on Wednesday evening.

"All of us in the automotive industry, whether we are interested in the manufacturing, the operating or servicing of trucks, are seriously concerned with the agitation which emanates from railway circles. The apparent object of this agitation is to create an unfavorable sentiment as to place our industry at a disadvantage in legislative and other legislative activities. It is the evident hope of the railways that the people will be so prejudiced that commercial motor vehicles will be taxed to the point where they will no longer be operated economically in the carriage of goods beyond the limits of our principal cities, or so regulated as to impose such a cost or greater expense than the business will bear.

The Railways

"In the past we all perhaps have been inclined to be somewhat apathetic toward the railways. We all recognize it is the railways which are the principal agency of commerce and that without them this country could not have been developed to its present state. We also recognize how we as Bellevillians and citizens of all the country roundabout, Mr. MacNider is especially interested in Belleville by reason of the fact that ancestors of his lived here once upon a time. "Certainly any benefits which highway transportation may have contributed out of the public funds through the road building activities of the government are more than offset compared with the amounts which railways have paid to governments and the municipalities in taxation, by way of cash and other aid to the railways.

Cost of Railways

"Did you ever stop to consider what the public has paid to build our railway system—aside from the current and recurrent deficits in the railway system? The figures are available to anyone and are published in the Canada Year Book. Up to the end of 1929, the railways of this country had been given by the public $228,000,000 in cash out of the public purse—$179,000,000 by the Dominion, $24,000,000 from various provinces and $15,000,000 from a few municipalities.

"Not to that all. Bonds of railways have been guaranteed to the extent of $160,000,000 by the Dominion's share is $560,000,000 by the provinces and $115,000,000. Over and above this sum, is $216,000,000 of grants in land, perpetual debenture stock, the interest on which has been guaranteed by the Dominion.

"And there are the land grants of the railways, to the extent of 47,000,000 acres. I think that $1 per $5,500 in bonds and $1 per acre in land is a fair estimate of the amount for this land so that it is fair to consider the railways have been subsidized to the extent of

$1,000 Miles of Rail

Now that means 47,000 miles of railway, exclusive of local sidetracks, industrial spurs, etc. This little arithmetic shows that the cash grants for this single track amount to $5,500 x 47,000 = $258,500,000 bonds amount to $17,167 per mile, $5,500 per mile, land grants $1,000 per mile and the Grand Trunk debenture stock $4,000 per mile. Thus the total public assistance to the railways including the land and bond guarantees, amounts to $29,583 per mile of railway.

"That $29,000 per mile which, in the form of cash, land and bonds railways, would build a similar amount of railway to-day, under the present specific grants take no account of the Canadian National's difficult problem of the amalgamation out of Dominion Taxation.

Railway Motor Houses

"Whatever benefits you as highway transportation may have received from the building of a few thousands of miles of modern highways in this country, have been repaid as nothing compared with the assistance which the railways have been given fit to afford the railways. It is the railways which have built the rolls who advocate stifling your business by unfair competition the railways to cry foul you are paying enough for the privileges of your business. The railways, certainly, are people living in glass houses.

"In earlier stages of the discussion, when the railways were opposed to the highways, we have been inclined to confine our argument solely to the question of rates. We have consistently refrained from criticism of the service which the railways has been said with a view, evidently, to the public mind, to prejudice against our industry in contrast to the railways that it now seems imperative to make a statement of some facts concerning the railways which we know to be unjust. It is because the railways have launched agitation comes from spokesmen of railways, and from other officials. The heads of the two principal railways in this country have refrained from entering the controversible views of others—in fact, Sir Henry Thornton has expressed views on this matter with which we disagree, but these views are direct or indirectly connected with highway transportation find ourselves rather in sympathy with them, the railways must be held responsible for the statements made by their officials—even when those officials do not occupy the highest positions—and we are justified, I think, in carrying the war into Africa.

The Railways

"Future prosperity for the Canadian railways depends, I believe, on any country, does not lie, in my opinion, in shifting the economic load which is the most modern and, for the present, the most economical form for the public to deny itself the benefits of the latest in transportation as it would have been for the railways to oppose the original legislation to prevent the introduction of steam in the merchant marine. It would be unfair to this generation to legislate against highway transportation any more than it was fair for the British parliament to legislate against railways and passenger highway vehicle a century ago.

"One need not have been in the business world for many years to realize the tremendous changes which the railway companies, in Canada and the United States, carried less than civilized in the past few years. Transportation was up to a few years ago a considerable amount of package freight carried by the railways between say, Toronto and Oakville and between Toronto and all the other small Towns in Ontario. Your railway man will tell you that to give this less than car lot freight treatment and be reasonably profitable the railways did not learn from the railways that they, the railways, considered this traffic a nuisance. It has been insisted on many occasions that each railway traffic was carried at a loss.

"It may be said incidentally that the sort of service which the railways—at least in certain days—were able to render was not satisfactory to the public because there were delays and because there were a relatively heavy carriage expense at both ends.

Business Taken Over

"The business has been captured on the scene and gradually has taken from the railways a large proportion of business which the railways all through the years have been claiming as their own. Many of them are involved an actual loss in operation. Yet we have the spectacle of the railways complaining bitterly because goods are carried on highways which they never professed to wish to carry.

"Railways must be added in fairness that the railways have lost no trucks a certain amount of business which, in the opinion of at least some of you, could be more economically carried by rail, if it were not for the time factor. You all know to our regret that certain truckers have not been operating profitably, that pretty good sections of the highway transport business have been appropriated by certain businessmen beats.

"On the whole, the highway transport business is on a sounder basis to-day than it was a year ago or two ago. It is hoped it will be on an even better beats a year hence.

"These changes will be brought about by the gradual but steady conversion of the traffic by the provincial authorities, with a view to placing competition between those who cuts rates and who benefits from the highways.

Evils in The Truck Trade

"What are the evils that exist in the trucking business—evils not so rampant as formerly—it does not follow that the trade would not should be condemned out of hand. Many businesses have been established in pretty good evidence that they have been established in transportation business who are students of their trade problems and are doing much to help the public. And the development of the motor transport business has been retarded largely because an older form of transportation is finding itself in difficulties all of the interurban railways have been built and have turned over to them. Certainly the railways would feel the loss of the business which comes, directly or indirectly, from the automotive industry.

"It is not within my province to suggest what should be done by the railways to solve their own problems. Certainly, it is not the function of the railways to cry foul you are paying enough for the privileges of your business. The railways, certainly, are people living in glass houses.

"In earlier stages of the discussion, when the railways were opposed to the highways, we have been inclined to confine our argument solely to the question of rates. ANGLICIZING STAGE

As we have already noted, Canadian theatre-goers, and particularly Toronto theatre-goers, are fortunate this season in enjoying a number of first class English plays. In the past few years there have been are more to come. In the next few months we are to see Sir Johnston Harvey and his fine English company in three or four plays and the Colbourne-Barry combination produced by Sir Barry himself. Sir Martin Harvey and his leading lady, Miss Nina Sevening, have already favorites all across Canada. Their splendid production of "The Only Way" and the fine characterization of Charles Dickens' "A Tale of Two Cities" have established for Sir Henry Irving's masterpieces. This organization will present Sir Martin and his company will open in Halifax in "The King's Messenger," the stirring secret service play by the late Major "The Passing of the Third Floor Back." At Victoria they will turn around and play across Canada again in Galsworthy's play in "The Skin," which the older generation will remember as one of

Belleville Hard Pressed to Score Win Over Gananoque in an Uninteresting Contest

Count is 3 to 2 and Might Have Been Reversed

PECULIAR STYLE

Leachman Marshals Team in Third Frame to Prevent Defeat

Shades of last year nearly settled over the Belleville Intermediates on Friday night at the local arena. The juniors last year were put out of the running by the Gananoque juniors, when they held that team lightly and a repetition nearly occurred last a third period rally saved the locals. They defeated the Gananoque boys 3-2, the scores being 0-0, 2-1 and that margin represents the edge the locals held. It was not an interesting game of hockey, due entirely to the style of hockey that Vic Smith, veteran Gananoque manager, has been holding the reins in the coaching box for the visitors, had his team play. At times the play was positively dull and the crowd was glad when it was all over. The losers opened the scoring in the last two minutes and had it not been for the experience of the winners, the score might have been registered in another column. By their win the locals kept pace with Queen's at the top of the league standing.

Kitty Bar the Door

Gananoque played a style of hockey that will disrupt the best system devised. Ottawa pros played the "kitty bar the door" game so long that the capital is without hockey today and if Gananoque plays many more games like last night, the cash customers will be few and far between, watching them battle. As soon as an offensive thrust carried them past the blue line, they fired away at the goalie, and then ran like rabbits for their hole, which was their own end of the rink. In consequence, Belleville had to carry the play to them all night, Gananoque waiting for the breaks, which made the locals skate much faster than necessary. As Belleville was not checking back, which is essential playing against this style, the defense were over-burdened with work. The losers were veritable pest houses and this made the task all the harder.

It's Peculiar But True

Belleville appears to be able to play better hockey away from home. Their game of last night was not to be compared in any department with the class displayed against R.M.C. in Kingston, the wings took their man out of play, broke fast and skated far with their passes well directed and well timed. Last night they could do nothing right. McMeekin was allowing the opposition to sift through centre ice at will, the wings were not covering or coming back with the play and the passes, until the third period, were all google eyed for want of direction and timing. The team looked weird at times and had it not been for the veteran, Johnny Leachman, anything might have happened. He alone marshalled the forces in the last period, especially, and he turned in a rattling fine performance, Campbell and Scott went well in spots, while Bob Hull ran Leachman a close second for the top honors. St. Denis was used but little and Pete Morgan played a splendid game but he was off in passing and missed fine opportunities, when close. Leachman was most unselfish with the rubber and it was the fault of his that more goals were not scored. He as usual worked the smart game between the sticks and on the two that beat him, he had little protection.

Wylie Starred

Wylie in goal for Gananoque stood between his team and a bad drubbing. The boys thought that the summer town team was a set-up and took them lightly but behind the sterling work of Wylie the team rose to great heights and with more finish around the nets, might have come through. Their shooting was erratic in spots but Clendenning was far too close to make the game interesting. Jimmy Armstrong, a former player in this city, saved the game as he on few occasions rang fast and he could have a lot more than he did. The Gananoque boys had the edge in speed evenly distributed and their forwardwork probably had a lot to do with the result. They passed well, using a short two man combination and a long pass to the wings, that had the Belleville team scurrying all over the ice trying to break the combination up. Wylie saved his team on more than one occasion close in tries. The three that beat him were perfect shots and on one occasion he was sprawled on the ice when Campbell lifted the disc over his head.

Allowed Goal

Referee Armstrong's quick close tab on the play and had it not been he was following the play closely the game might have resulted in a tie by overlooking interference. On a Leachman, Hull combination with Johnny doing the honors, he picked a bone in the teeth and scored. The red light did not flash, but Armstrong called the play. He would have made the same call in Gananoque, that is the kind he is. Armstrong handled a good game and will be welcomed back. There were only five penalties handed out and Belleville drew but two of that number and every one that will be on the offence. Wylie was backed by a hard hitting defence and the home wing line were always back to help out. The first line of Beresford, Dixon and Bishop looked the best with Lough going well both ways.

The Play

Gananoque nearly opened the scoring in the first minute, when a sneaker nearly beat Tice but the team advised that he was lucky to save from Morris. Campbell had a fine chance on the power rush and Gananoque missed a swell chance. Tice making a save. He repeated against Beresford a minute later and that gave the team confidence. The play was transferred to the Gananoque citadel, but Wylie was his match. It was equally good on long and short ones and the locals had to go some to find the range for goals. There was no score, and no penalties in the period and neither team had shown much in the way of hockey. Beresford went away for a trip early in the second stanza and Belleville rushed on the attack. Morris poke checked the rubber and set off, flanked by Campbell and McMeekin. He laid the pass over to Campbell and Wylie made the save but McMeekin was on hand to bat in the rebound from close quarters. Leachman then made his counter on a pretty drive to the corner and Armstrong allowed the goal. Abel Weir drew an enforced rest for tripping and Bishop put his team in the running with a nice drive from close in. Dixon and Bishop were penalized at the tail end of the period but the locals did not have enough sip to put the game on ice.

The third frame was entirely different as the locals went on the attack in something like battle formation. McMeekin nearly grabbed himself a hunk and finally did lay one on Wylie's pads, who made the stop but Campbell raced in and lifted the disc over the goalie's prostrate body. Wylie had horse shoes on McMeekin's play and Belleville were pressing hard, when Bob Scott went to the cooler. Dixon took advantage of one man and worked his way close in to beat Tice with a hard drive. Belleville again forced the play even when Gananoque sent every man on the attack and the result was that both the locals in possession at the Gananoque goal.

Turned Back Pages

Halifax, N. S., Jan. 16—An Annapolis Royal history turned back the pages of scribbled history told that 300 years ago January 16 was just as unseasonable as yesterday, if the quaint diary of Marc Lescarbot reads: "Up to teh said season of January of 1607 we always went about in doublets. I remember the 14th of January, 1607. We amused ourselves by singing music along the banks of the Riviere d'Equille, now Dauphin or Lisnipolis River, and that during this same month we had a visit from the Armouchiquois, two leagues from the fort, and dined joyously in the sunshine."

The feature of last night's game with the Gananoque team was the goal tending of Wylie. This boy certainly has class. Twice he turned in very nifty stops that was not called upon to make nearly as many stops as Wylie. The boy has certainly saved his team from greater defeat. The "Easterner" never gave the fans an exhibition of that famous "slithy-har-the" brand of hockey, as they always had a full share of the defence when the Belleville forwards tried to crash through.

Due to the lack of sanction by the O.H.A. Shamrock was not available last night but will no doubt be in the locals' shoes when they journey to Kingston on Monday evening. Johnston and Leachman's skates were not sharpened right and the former was forced to use what he termed "loushed up on the enemy stone" before he could start in the game. This is one of the reasons for Johnston's poor work.

Before "Army" Armstrong sold himself thoroughly to the fans last night, especially to those he was right in front of the play when Belleville scored their second counter, he was unmercifully saw the puck go through the nets and called it a goal. Let tell the real empire of his mistake.

This gave the fans a laugh when he broke his stick trying to inform St. Denis how to play his position. The latter is, as a whole, did not look quite a good bet in that position as was due to the fact that the visitors seemed entitled to play a defensive game throughout the home's attack. Nothing makes a game of hockey more distressing than defensive tactics. Even the professionals found this to be true.

Earl Averill of the Cleveland Indians, has made good on each boast he has made concerning luring into the big leagues, and his latest is to the effect that he will lead the league in home runs next season.

The Grabeski sport rally at Oshawa on January 23rd seems to be going over big. Every club in the district is rallying to support the scheme to aid Grabeski, who has an eye playing hockey. Three referees have been offered 25 cents for the privilges of refereeing and another cheap pass is for the privilege of kicking off the puck.

Sport fans of this district will sure get a thrill when they see Walker, Hart and Harry Smith (6) stopped by referee.

Training Needed As Great as 1914

Stratford, Ont., Jan. 16— Military training is just as necessary to-day as it was at the outbreak of the Great War, declared Donald Sutherland, Dominion Minister of National Defence, addressing Perth Regiment officers here last night. Danger of war is as great as it was in 1914, he said.

HOCKEY by JIMMY THOMPSON.. DOMESTIC SCIENCE

A reader asks me to explain the "new rule against blocking the goalie's view?" There isn't any new rule that I know of. The existing regulation is that no member of an attacking team may come between the line of fire and the net. Which is quite simple and serves the purpose. A defending player, of course, permitted to block shots, has taken a risk in blocking his goal-tender's vision. Many goals has been won, and lost, through this little thing. While we're at this subject some body ought to write an article on the number of hockey rules, both amateur and pro, which, though still on the books, are rarely observed. It would fill a book or two. Take, for instance, the rule of "interference" in the defensive zone. The rule says that no defender may check an attacker who is not in possession of the puck. The move you watch the fans rise in wrath on is this rule will give you the laugh. They have "interference" down to a science just as much as on the gridiron. Some of it might be pretty hard to see, but it is there just the same. The next time you watch your favorites perform, keep an eye out for this.

LEAF WINGER 21 YEARS OLD

Signs Up With Pros. When Eligible For Junior Company

Toronto, Jan. 16 (CP) — Harvel "Bushel" Rollins, scoring leftwinger of the Toronto Maple Leaf "kid" forward line, who ranks at the top of the National Hockey League with Bill Cook, of New York Rangers, is the youngest player in the Calder circuit and tomorrow will celebrate his 21st birthday when Leafs tackle Americans in New York.

The "Bushel" who learned his hockey in the Toronto City Leagues jumped to the professional ranks late in the 1928-29 race when he was still eligible for junior hockey. He has held his position on the Dynamite "trio" of the Toronto club since that time and is rapidly developing into one of the smoothest players in the league.

Steve Hamas Climbs Into The Heavyweight Picture

(By HERBERT W. BARKER)

New York, Jan. 16. — Over the prostrate form of Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia light heavyweight champion, Steve Hamas had climbed into the main heavyweight picture today.

The 32-year-old youngster from Passaic, N. J., stopped Loughran in the second round of their ten round bout in Madison Square Garden last night before a crowd of 9,000 persons.

For Hamas, an all-around athlete at Penn. State a few years ago, it was the biggest victory in a career that starts as a professional. Of these twenty-six fights, he has won 23.

For Loughran it was the virtual end of his fighting career, at least in the ring. He will be expected to admit it in his dressing room after the fight but it was apparent to everyone else in the big battle pit. The dancing speed and left jab and punch which used to confound his opponents was gone. Hamas, a slow starter was a mark for the speedy, aggressive, hard-punching Hamas.

Just about as surprising as Hamas' overwhelming victory was the defeat in the semi-final of Stanley Poreda of Jersey City. Poreda, one of the Italians' leading youngsters among the heavyweights a year ago, felt victim in the fifth round to the punching of Salvatore Ruggirello of Italy.

Twenty-Nine Men in Dugout Watch This Member Who Has "It"

TRAIL OF SMITHS

A bow-legged, scrawny necked, flat-chested and stoop-shouldered athlete stepped in front of Memorial Hall last evening, gave it the once over, looked up and down the street, saw a cigaret butt lying in the gutter, picked over to get it, grabbed, sniped it, tucked it behind his left ear over the black and clumped heavily down the steps into the dugout where the rest of his fellow brainwood riders were assembled for the night.

He threw his extra pair of socks onto a space on the long, flat bunk, wriggled out of a tattered old overcoat, removed his shoes and padded over to the spacious table; grabbed a large spoon from the pile, hammered vigorously on the boards and called loudly for soup.

There was an air about him that defied description—a certain "it" that seemed to set him out from the rest. Unprepossessing in appearance, he was different. Even the name he staged was plain and yet there was something that needed looking into. He was questioned. Yes, the name was really Smith and old and honorable name. "Hiram"—me name is Henry Smith. I'm a blinkin' Unsmith by trade—lived in Toronto for Smith and Smithers, but they laid me off some time ago. My boy was a Smithfield, where I did a bit of Smithing and I come down into town 'ere. I was a bloomin' shoein' smith in the Army, when the war was on, under Captain Alexander Smith. Me father was a blacksmith now back in the Old Country," and me mother was Amy Smith from "Arrowsmith. Before she got married she worked for a silversmith in "Amsersmith. Me uncle, who fought against the Boers at Ladysmith was old Bob Smith Bradshaw, who was a stirring sport of persons brewery and herock exploit from the pages of Canada's early history would have to be discarded if documentary evidence of its every detail was regarded as necessary to a complete acceptance. Such evidence is scarcely be expected in most of these instances. His absence is by no means proof of myth or error. Certainly the diary of Laura Secord does not fall into the category of folk-lore or fiction.—Toronto Telegram.

LAURA SECORD

Premier Henry's decision to reinsert the story of Laura Secord in the school books of Ontario will be generally approved. The story of the hearts of all who love stirs the patriotic instincts of the Canadian people. Whether or no Laura Secord was the first to warn the British of the approach of the American troops matters not at all. It does not lessen in the least the heroism which she displayed in her long tramp through the night from Queenston to Beaver Dams.

Many a stirring story of personal and when he got his arm shot off there he went back and opened up a pub in Neamith, Hants County," he continued, between the gurgling symphony of soup which accided as he applied it down, "I get a letter from me cousin, Kate Smith in Montreal, that the workin' for a fellow called Nasmith, and says he's got a big business there and that at the old trade of tinsmith. I'm goin' there now."

"By the way," queried one of the rest of the twenty-nine who were stoppin' there over night, "could it be possible that the minister who married the old folks was named Smith?"

"Cor the deuce did yer guess it, myte—? He was the Reverend Alonzo Smith of 'Ammersmith, a did the job, and strike me pink if the best man wasn't old Paddy Smith of Narborsmith. I still remember him."

Previews and Reviews of Current Offerings at Belleville Theatres

At The Belle
THE YELLOW TICKET
PATHOS, THRILLS, ROMANCE

Exalted lady attending the Belle Theatre, Monday evening will be presented with a Rose Quartz Dress ornament gift, with the compliments of the management.

Romance, intrigue, charm and pathos are elements that make "The Yellow Ticket," Fanni Wallis production, for Fox Films, opening at the Belle theatre Monday, a picture of unusual entertaining quality.

Elissa Landi, the beautiful and talented daughter of an Austrian countess, novelist and emotional actress, portrays the leading feminine role, with Lionel Barrymore and Laurence Grossmith supporting her. Scene from the London stage, in the principal male parts. Scenes and settings in the main in the east are Walter Byron(Rita La Roy and Boris Karloff.

"The Yellow Ticket" reveals a true and dramatic picture of the foreign spy's paradise in Russia where Czarist rule has been overthrown by a period in modern history.

It depicts the dramatic adventures of a beautiful and virtuous peasant girl who is given secret a passport to visit her father who is dying in Petrograd, and accepts a yellow ticket which permits her unmolested to travel any place unhampered.

Failing to register at the police station she escapes from the Petrograd, she is thrown into prison. When she is released she finds herself an outcast, hounded and pressured by the police.

Eventually she falls in love with Harold Bowman, English newspaper correspondent and becomes his secretary, but she cannot escape the police. She becomes so enmeshed in a web spun for her by its insidious hands that she is, at last, forced to shoot him.

How she escapes the horrible fate that awaits her, offers one of the most vivid, tense denouements ever presented on the screen.

As the persecuted girl, Miss Landi is said to rise to new emotional heights and as the cruel and hustful head of the secret police, Barrymore, it is claimed, excels anything he has previously done on the screen.

Wallace Beery and Jackie Coogan in "The Champ" is the feature attraction at the Belle Tonight, and will be followed by several other have two of the most dramatic roles of their careers, and grip the audience in them. There are laughs, pathos and excitement galore. Beery, notable cast appears in the support of the stars including Roscoe Ardbuckling Alex, Edward Brophy and Irene Rich.

At The Capitol
THE TEXAS RANGER
WITH BUCK JONES

For fast action westerns there is nobody on the screen who can come up to Buck Jones. He is without doubt the peer among the delineators of the genre of film. Today he appears at the Capitol for two days only in "The Texas Ranger."

As an action feature, this picture is in a distinct class. It gets off at a fast clip and alternates between thrills and dramatic punches that right up to a thrilling climax. Economically, the picture is superbly silhouetted against the colorful background of Texas ranch life.

The picture opens dramatically with Jones, a cowpuncher, capitulating Bill Clayton, a homesteader, and his daughter, Helen. Helen, Clayton's daughter, driven to desperation by this unwarranted act of cruelty, becomes an outlaw, and, with the aid of half a dozen loyal cowboys, leads Taylor a merry chase. When Helen is accused of murdering Ed Lansing, Taylor's right-hand man, Jim Logan, of the Texas Rangers, is put on the trail. The girl's chum Taylor nests the girl and is convinced of her innocence, but is unable to prove it. The struggle between his growing affection for her and his loyalty to the Texas Rangers. Eventually Logan learns that the girl is innocent, that the crime of which she is accused and to save her.

Comedy cartoon and News are included in the programme.

The piano recitals preceding each performance have been exceptionally well received with the result that Manager Hollingsworth decided to postpone the commencement of the picture programme to 2.45 each afternoon. This will enable late comers to the matinees to be early enough for the piano recitals and see the whole picture performance.

Piano recitals are given each evening at 7.00 and 9.00.

AS COOLIDGE SAID WHEN HE REFUSED LINDBERGH'S INVITATION, "I DON'T CARE CAN'T MAKE ME SOAR"
Yellow Kidney Trouble

A fellow who had just been sentenced to ten years' penal servitude for all of could be other than a down-and-out-sister rushed up and asked, "My poor man, what in the world can do for you?" "Yes," said the fellow, "I could do with a few dollars."

Once in a while some friend of mine says, "Garn, if there is anything I can do for you any time, just let me know." Of course I do know. I would rather think he meant it, and find out a week later, by I ask some fellow who hasn't said a word.

A reader wrote in the other day and said, "I want to tell you how much I enjoy your letters. I not only want to tell you, I want to show you. I enclose an order for some work we need. I suppose you can use as an order now and then."

Yes, brother, and NOW even more than then. Some years ago, before electric power was as common as it at present, a man asked me, "Do you suppose I can get an order for with electricity?" "Neither one," I say, "with either."

Just because a girl doesn't talk about anything very much (at least they didn't when I was a boy) don't think that she doesn't enjoy hearing it said. Don't say much about orders in my advertising. Don't say the last letter I received in that I'll get sore.

It occurred to me the other day that some friend of mine might be making back because he thought an order was too small. Then I thought I better say something about it. One of my failings, if any, is that I am always too darned modest.

So, if you want to send in an order, it's all right with me. And if you don't, there must be something all wrong with me.

Hopefully yours,

MRS. E. MOY IS 93 YEARS OLD
Celebrates Birthday Quietly and Reads Verse Sent By Friend

Mrs. Eliza Moy of Massassaga-Belleville Road, celebrated her 93rd birthday a few days ago, meeting friends who called to see her. She received many felicitations on her anniversary and among them was a poem sent by her aunt Walker who resides at Herkimer, N.Y., and written by Mr. S. C. Simms of that place Mrs. Moy is in possession of all her faculties.

The poem follows:

We are sending to you greetings
On your birthday once again
To your home by pleasant fields
Where you raised your boys to men.

Nearly five score years you've travelled
Not so long the backward look
As you linger in Life's evening
Reading still the precious book.

Book of Promise that has kept you;
Led you safely all the way—
Through the joys and through the shadows
That have fallen day by day.

Let us take a fleeting moment
Bring our thoughts to you once more
When you left your home in England

Left
All the things you loved the best
With your husband and your children,
Trusted you to the glowing West.

Long the journey o'er the ocean,
How you prayed that God would keep
All your brood and all the others,
On the trackless, rolling deep.

And at last that journey ended
Disembarked its little crew,
In this pleasant Bay of Quinte
With what courage you began anew.

Forests wide and far extended
Here and there a clearing patch
With its little log cabin nestled
With its sloping roof of thatch.

Long the days and hard the labor
To redeem those hillsides rude
That it might provide a living;
Make a home for your toil.

For the long and cruel winters
Much provisions laid in store
For the great drifts around the cabin
And the ice from shore to shore

Every morning 'ere we parted
For the task that lay before us
All around the family altar,
Asked God's help to carry through.

Every evening, oh, so tired
When the evening prayers were said,
In the rude, old log house chamber
Tucked the children all in bed.

Lived you long to see your neighbors
Prosper with each passing year
Pleasant farm and orchard blossom
All along the countryside.

Built new homes and left the cabins,
Built their churches and the school,
Built huge barns and tick and shelter-ers;
Where they stored great crops and tools.

Thus the pleasant years kept passing
With alternate care and joy
Then there came a darker shadow
When the Lord called Father Moy.

Hard it was, and yet your courage
Never faltered, never fell;
Kept you true to Life eternal
In God's promises you read.

Year by year you're growing nearer
To the land of endless day,
To the land of the immortals
When you leave this house of clay.

Can you vision walls of jasper,
Where the heavenly waters run,
To the healing of the nations
Where they do not need the sun.

Can't you hear the Angel's chorus
Singing loud redemption song,
Telling you of the Lamb for sinners
Which you, too, have loved so long.

Thus we greet you, sons and daughters,
On Quinte Bay so broad and free,
Loved by all your friends and neighbors
Dear Mother Moy, at ninety-three.

JIM THE CONQUERER

"I've paid twelve per cent for rented money," he retorted, "I've had the ranch mortgaged in bad years and banks carried my father half his lifetime. Only those who are poor in spirit, who lack courage, can be really poor. Do you think my people, dwelling in the pueblo yonder, are victims of poverty? Not so. They are envied by their kind."

"Do you not find life a little lonesome?"

"A busy man is seldom lonely. My ranch spreads like a lake because the irrigation system you probably noticed on coming here, but afterwards death I completed it and transformed a semiarid valley into alfalfa and cotton fields. I sold off all the scrubby long-horned cattle that were losing money and substituted Herefords, which are built for beef. All this has been a considerable task and fell to my hands when I was eighteen. That was a year ago. Since then I matured in agriculture and cattle husbandry, because I knew that was going to be my job. My foreman, Enrico Carrasco, runs the ranch land and while I was in the army."

"After I demobilized in the spring of 1919 I really started to put this ranch on a paying basis. Grazed on 20,000 acres and 20,000 acres and cattle prices were unbelievably high. Why, I could sell a two-year-old steer or canner was worth eighty dollars on the hoof. I figured on getting that such a war-time prosperity wouldn't last, so I sold all my cattle in the fall of 1919 and 1920 and did not plant any cotton. Well, the bottom fell out of the cattle market and I was in the clear. Then I started restocked with high-grade Hereford cows, which I still have. I understand, Miss Antrim, required thought and worry and some courage. I had to fight against the idea that the road was rough and rocky in spots, although I have always made it all the more interesting, the thing is not to be discouraged, but blow hot or uninteresting they may appear. I have found that there have been spent in shelter and with this effort."

"My life has been spent that way, I suppose," Miss Antrim replied, frowned. "And I like it," she added.

"Why not? You've never tried any other life, have you?"

Roberta noticed that her host was much more at ease. He had found their conversation had veered into less personal channels. Her mood she marked. Not once did he forget him self and pronounce the "r's" as in It occurred to the girl now that Don Jaime Miguel Higuenes had lived in Mexico all his life, and was doubtful life than had the last three generations of Spanish-Mexican Californ ests were a long-lived race.

"Are you married, Mr. Roberts."

"By the way, what gainful occupation, if any, does Mr. Latham practice now?"

"He plays the stock market."

"Oh!" Roberta said.

"He has always been very successful with stocks and bonds, and is practically everything he had—or at least he would have lost it without the aid of some professional help him. We anticipate a reverse in the market soon, and I have cut out, I think, a profit at least without terrific loss."

"My father loved your Uncle Bill even if he had been a bit wild at times and disagree with him politically. I should be glad to give my father's friend a ride to the ranch where Uncle Bill, I take it."

"I've been his friend and a member of his household since my tenth birthday, Miss Antrim, now that I consider and liable to suffer financial reverses, it is my duty to take care of him, and for that reason my Uncle Tom's estate comes to me somewhat before the appointed time."

"One more reason why I should be glad to give my father's friend a ride to the ranch," the girl suggested humorously, "Well, we'll go right after supper."

"Not at all," her host protested "I expect to collect from the Antrim estate a reasonable fee for my services, to reimburse me for my outlay or inconvenience."

"Then I shall refuse to ride with you," Miss Antrim declared, "I'm not a taxicab."

"Not at all," her host suggested, "that the Antrim sheep are proving to be a source of income to me."

"Then I shall

MARKET FIRMS TOWARDS END

Mildly Reactionary With List Dealt in Narrowed

Toronto, Jan. 16.—Toronto Stock Exchange trading was mildly reactionary this morning. Leaders lost small fractions as compared with last night, though the market appeared somewhat firmer during the close.

Volume contracted on the reaction and the list narrowed.

Of 34 lost 9, when it went down last. Ford of Canada at 15½ was up ½ point. Nickel at 16½ was down ¼ and B. A. Oil, International Petroleum, Distillers were below last night's finals. Distillers being down nearly ½ point.

Imperial Oil held unchanged to a small fraction higher and McColl-Frontenac retained Friday's gain. Walkers sold unchanged to an eighth higher. Smelters, Steels, Canada Telephone, Brazilian, Loblaw, Dominion Glass, Page-Hersey and Canada Bud were all unchanged.

PERCENTAGE OF LIST TURNS

Definite Easier Tendency is Noticed in Day's Trading

Toronto, Jan. 16.—While changes failed to reach important proportions a definitely easier tendency was noticeable in today's abbreviated session on the Toronto Stock and Mining Exchange market. Trading remained at a low level and the tone of the list turned grey was the largest in some time.

Inter-listed Base Metals, reflecting an irregularly lower trend in New York, were off in moderate dipping 40 to 810 and Noranda and Hudson Bay 50 cents and $1, respectively. In the higher-priced gold section, Dome remained unchanged to recover 5. But Dome, Hollinger and Granada were all slightly lower.

Majority of lower grade golds changed hands at small concessions from last night's closing prices. Bob Lake and Hudson Bay added another 10 to their recent losses to 45 and Ventures, Rivkey, Sladen, Holland, Townsite, Riverside and Obiman were off from a fraction to one cent each. St. Anthony moved up a couple to 13.

Specialty issues were subjected to some light selling pressure which also declining 3, Mining Corporation and Hollinger 5 each, Beatty in late sales a cent to 7. Among the oils Alex Friend a couple to 12 but Homestead were off a cent at 40.

STOCK MARKET HAS SETBACK

Week-End Profit Taking Cause of Slight Losses

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 16.—Week-end profit taking gave the stock market a moderate setback in a quiet trading today. Net losses of 1 to 3 points were registered. The turnover for the two-hour session was about 800,000 shares, the smallest in a week.

There was somewhat reaction-ary, although some of the government and foreign issues were well supported.

Steel, General Electric, Amusement friction finance measure by the House of Representatives, with the only settlement of differences between the house and Senate Bills before the measure is sent to the President's signature, prompted considerable profit-taking on the theory that the good news was out.

Some reassurance was given by the short lines in the belief that a set-back was due, but there was enough covering in the final dealings to lift several of the more active issues fractionally above the day's lowest. The closing tone however, was heavy.

Government, Municipal and Corporation Bonds, bought and sold.

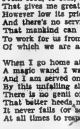
B. S. Steel lost a point, and General Motors, General Electric, American Can, New York Central, and Allied Chemical about as much. Shares of motors, rubbers, railroads, Westinghouse, Southern Pacific, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, American Tel. & Tel., Woolworth, Nashville, Bethlehem, American Tobacco B, Coca Cola, Kaufman, American Sugar dropped 2 to a new low.

The market has received in the way of fresh news at the end of the week to provide impetus to the recent advance. Car loadings and automobile operations for next week in the automobile industry indicate a rate of 36 per cent of operations, against 31 per cent this week, which was encouraging, in view of the restricted seasonal upturn in this industry since the turn of the year.



Nevertheless, the market clearly needed something new and surprising in the way of good news. Such developments as the signing of the tax construction measure, expectations of early increases in railway wages, and on extension of the German private credits, appear to have been well discounted by the market over the past several days. Foreign exchange markets were unchanged as against the dollar, notably the French franc, despite withdrawal of another $18,000,000 in gold for Paris account.

EGGS CHEAPER ON MARKET

One of the largest markets of the present year welcomed both the purchasers and the market vendors Saturday morning. Due to the extremely warm weather which prevails the farmers were able to get their hens and display their wares. Both inside and outside markets were very busily solicited and a brisk business trading was the result. Eggs again took a slight drop in price when they sold as low as 20 c a dozen, while the highest price asked was 23c a dozen. Butter remained at the prevailing price of 30c a pound, Saturday.

Many chickens were seen and sold from 50c up, according to size and weight. One large bird, weighing over 5 pounds, was offered at $1.50. Ducks were quite scarce but brought $1.60 each as those displayed were rather small in size.

At the outside market potatoes took another drop in price when they could be purchased as low as 35c a bag. They were fine, large specimens and were soon picked up at the exceedingly low price.

Other large fruit market was in evidence when plenty of apples were offered to the purchasers. All varieties were offered at the prevailing prices which have been in vogue all winter. In the vegetable line, beets, carrots, parsnips and turnips sold for 25c a peck, while fine, young hot-house cabbage sold for 5c each. Celery brought 10c a bunch, while citrons sold for around 10c each.

Cord-wood was also offered at 18 per cord and fine young porker pigs sold for 8½ a pair. The market as a whole, was quite busy this morning and considerable trading was done during the hours of business.

ANTI-FREEZE IS LARGELY SOLD

Motorists Replenish Radiators in Anticipation of Cold Weather

The sweet merchants are not the only ones who have been reaping the benefits of bleak mists in the countryside, but also the motoring fraternity since the last few days, brought out by the warm sun, which has undoubtedly shined on the district, but also filling stations and garages report heavy annual sales of anti-freeze solutions to the cars, which are again out in great numbers, but also various mixtures of anti-freeze.

This may sound a bit paradoxical but is explained by one garage owner as follows:

"The recent warm weather has caused considerable evaporation of mixtures, the radiators of the cars contained. Water was then added but with the recent weather warnings indicating colder weather approaching at some indefinite period, the car owners have been and are taking no chances on a sudden freeze up. Another cause angle is the fact, that there are almost as many tourists on the roads as there were in the hot weather."

PICTON YOUTH IS INJURED

Llewellyn Biggs Sustains Broken Leg in Motor Accident

Picton, Jan. 16.—Llewellyn Bigg, son of Mr. Milton Bigg, suffered a broken leg, when a motorcycle on which he and his father were on their rounds pedalling milk, they turned into Mud Street and struck a pole, the car being badly damaged.

Bigg was riding on the running board of the car and was saved from more serious injury when he grasped a wire leading from the pole to the adjacent hydro home.

The Bigg car, it is alleged, was passing a Belleville owner and two sengers speaking to W. A. Crawford at the corner, when the accident occurred, and he was forced to sprint several yards to get out of its path.

Mr. Bigg is in the Prince Edward County Hospital.

Poultry Show

The Poultry, Pet and Motor Show will be the big event of next week and Secretary Fuller reports a record entry, in fact the greatest number of any show held in this district. Interest was added to the show by the addition of exhibits of industrial training and arts by Picton Public School pupils, and Picton and Area Government exhibits. Killing and dressing demonstrations, an exhibit of it cats including many Siamese, and models. Free samples are given away. The dates of the exhibition are Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Harry Loah of Peterboro, is a large exhibitor and has many wins of Georgetown, is the most distant exhibitor.

Holland Bros. of Kingston, are showing R. C. White Leghorns, Barred Plymouth Rocks, and White Cochins. J. Medlyn of Kingston, is exhibiting many Buff Orpingtons or fowl. C. H. Saunders, of Milford, formerly of Belleville, is showing his fine Brahmas. C. L. McFaul of Kingston, has many waterfowl entered. Chas. Throop of Mount Hope, is a big exhibitor and so are W. M. Jenkins, of Cobourg, W. McKernan, Toronto; Ralph Mc-Mullen, Kingston and W. J. Abernethy of Campbellford.

Do It Electrically

There is no dollar I spend
That does more work
Than does the dollar that I spend
For Electricity.

I never think my bills are high,
(Tho' some may think they're steep)
They're just a drop in a big bucket,
That comes to me as cheap.

There is no service on the earth
From coal up, according to ton,
That gives me greater money's worth
However low its price,
And Death is the only barring none,
That mankind can procure,
To work for me from sun to sun,
Of which we are as sure.

When I go home at eventide,
A magic wand I wave,
And I am master of every side
By this unfailing slave.
There is no grim specter of my dreams
That better heeds my wand,
I never fail to do it seems
At all times to respond.

And so I say I'm glad to pay
My light bills all the while;
They pay for that which night and day,
Contributes to my smile.
Some bills are like a bitter pill
My bank account they wreck,
But when I pay my power bill,
I gladly sign the check.

"SAFETY FIRST"

by Eth:l Willis Hewitt

That was Judy Clark's slogan when it came to meeting and making friends with men in Hollywood. That, having gotten where she was she was still not at ease with young men. With older men, even married men, she was her own gay little self. Young men were so likely to fall in love with you, not that the others never did; it was just that it had never happened to Judy. Her manner, and the friendship she offered them, was the straight-from-the-shoulder variety that didn't encourage anything of the sort. Consequently she never made a date with a married man; it was just that she was at ease when they chanced to be in each other's company.

She didn't want men to fall in love with her. Love, in her mind, was associated with marriage and Judy didn't want to get married. At first she had been a bit friendly with young men, but not after that nice Marlin Gray, who was cast for the juvenile in the first production she appeared in, asked her to marry him. She only have cried at that adoring look in his blue young eyes, and at what he expected of love. Of course she had refused him. She had to. Didn't she know only too well what love could do to her career? That was why she was glad that Dick Cruthers was married. Since the day Dixie Lewis had introduced Dick and his lovely young wife Judy had felt free to give him a smile of welcome whenever he glanced past her table at a restaurant every day at lunch. Then he began to drop into the seat opposite her and their lunching together became a habit.

Judy liked lots of things about Dick. He was clean, wholesome and she saw her quite as often at restaurants and night clubs, or at the beach with other men, but his wasn't unusual. Dick was publicity agent for Gilda Doran, and his wife was a non-professional.

Judy liked lots of things about Dick. His clean, straightforward manner, the way he looked at you with that little amused light in his nice blue eyes, and above all she certainly liked he wasn't going to make love to her.

One day over sandwiches and fruit salads, he looked up suddenly.

"We've taken a smooth little place at the beach for the rest of the summer. Linda's going to ask you to come down," he remarked in a voice too tense to be casual.

Judy flushed. There was something unexpected in Dick's wavering glance.

"It's my idea. You see, I don't seem to be making much headway you know—covering much ground," he hesitated.

Judy went a bit pasley.

"Oh, I couldn't go. It's nice of her to think of it but—she stopped abruptly.

Dick's blue eyes rested for a moment on her face, then he squared his jaw.

"I get he said a bit huskily.

"We still have had an hour before you're due on the set. Let's take a turn down the road in my car. I want to talk to you about something—something." He pushed his chair back and got to his feet as if to hurry matters.

"I want to surprise Linda and—well, I'll have to know just where I stand first," he added hurriedly.

So that was it? Judy felt weak with relief. It was foolish to think that Dick had anything in mind that wasn't absolutely on the level.

"Sure, I'll go—for a ride, I mean. We can't talk privately here." She smiled up at him.

Out on the road, Dick was silent. There was a grim look of determination about his lean, dark profile.

"What's your objection to coming down with us—is it me? I was hoping you liked me a little," he added lamely, not looking at her.

Judy felt uncomfortable, decidedly so.

"Don't be silly, Dick, of course I like you, I—" she paused, not knowing how to go on.

Dick stopped the car abruptly could , and I thought you were so his arm.

"Then I have covered some ground. I thought down there it might grow into something more, Inda—" he stopped short at the horror that banked behind Judy's dark eyes.

"Dick, oh, I didn't think you could, and I thought you were so safe," she was on the verge of tears.

Dick's blue eyes widened. He laughed a little.

"Judy, no man's safe when he's in love, but I haven't an idea what you're driving at."

Judy met his gaze. Something in his eyes thrilled her. She must be getting crazy.

"I thought you were the decent sort," she said angrily.

She was furious with him, with herself. She wished she had never seen him.

Dick laughed, pulled off her tam and rumpled her hair.

"Regular little Puritan, I was afraid of that, but if we're engaged it'd be okay wouldn't it?"

"Engaged!" Judy's eyes widened, her breath shut off with a little snap.

"Sure, Linda's the best little sis ever, she's—"

"Sister? Why Dicks said Mrs. and Mr. Cruthers when—"

With a little ripple of riotous laughter Dick pulled her toward him.

"So, that's what you've been holding out on me, you thought—" He paused and turned her face up.

The sun, streaking through the pepper tree traced a fine pattern of lace across her sweet mouth.

"Mrs. and Mr.—nothing, she said Miss and Mrs. if she said anything, but next time she won't make the same mistake; next time it will be Mrs. and Mr. Richard Cruthers, Judy." He laid his cheek against hers.

"You're sweet, you're adorable," he finished softly.

Judy closed her eyes and knew somehow, she was going to say "yes", and all along she had thought he was so——safe!

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN, No. 14.

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service)— By Edgar Rice Burroughs.

A cannibal! His little boy a savage man-eater! It was too horrible to contemplate. Tarzan's fallen tree. As Tarzan approached, the snarling lips of the white man curled hideously. Tarzan grounded. As he moved slowly through the jungle his mind absorbed by his gloomy thoughts, there presently came to his ears a strange scratching sound which he could not translate. Cautiously he moved toward it.

He came upon a huge panther pinned beneath a beast struggled to free himself. The ape-man stood before the helpless creature and fitted an arrow to his bow. A sudden whim stayed his hand. Why rob the creature of life when it would be so easy to restore its liberty? He stepped closer to the pinioned animal. It seemed uninjured.

On his lips was the soothing, purring sound that the great cats themselves make when they are contented and happy. The panther ceased his snarling and eyed the ape-man closely, questioning. Tarzan put a broad shoulder beneath the tree trunk, and as he did so, his bare leg pressed against the panther's silken side. The great tree rose gradually, under Tarzan's giant muscles.

e a week Tarzan roamed the jungle with his new iends. When he was convinced he had succeeded fixing his identity upon them, he decided to go with some well laid plans. He believed that Rokoff d sailed directly to the mainland. There it ould be easy for him to deliver the son of Tarzan to the hands of cannibal foster-parents, as his te had threatened.

Ma and pop and ma was up in the living room after supper and the door-bell rang and I asserted it and it was Mrs. Wilyum ma, and I went up and told her and she said, I knew it, I told you so, Wilyum, she's come to get her job back, her stocks have vanished into thin air and the milkman has got incentive to marry her and she wants to come back to work. Well goodness knows Im glad to see her but I dont intend to take her place at her old faithful wages under her new untaithful conditions. Ill give her a dollar a week less and if she intend satisfied she takes back her place in the crule army of the unemployed. Benny, tell Nora to come up here, she said.

Wich Nora did, saying, Good evening mum and good evening pop and ma said I was very sorry to see in the papers about the decline of your stocks, Nora.

O well, I geas its the way they say I could ever get in the papers and I geas a person has to pay for their experience, Nora said. Im reddy to take me job back, mum.

Well now Nora' of course Ill be very pleased to take you back, but times are changing and, to speak plainly, theres the little matter of wages, ma said, and Nora said, Yes indeed I was coming to that, I wont come back for less than a dollar and a half more a week.

Well, well, well, said ma to Nora, to speak plainly, Mr. Potts was just discussing the matter with me, and he laid grate stress on the present time and reduced salaries idears, you, Willyum ma said.

Yes indeed, pop said, and he quick got behind the sporting page as if he thawt he had been there all the time. Nora said, Yes mum I geas you heard what I said, that's me final question, mum, I expect answer.

Ill leave it to Mr. Potts, he decides all these things, ma said.

Whats that? pop said still in back of the sporting page and ma said, He dosent seem to offer any conclusion, Nora, will you start tomorrow.

I will mam, Nora said.

And she went and pop and ma had a fearse argument about wich one gave her the raise.

1932 PONTIAC MODELS SHOWN IN EAST TODAY

1932 Motor Most Powerful Ever Turned Out

NEW FEATURES

Bendix Self-Energizing Brakes Interest All Drivers

Pontiac for 1932, making their public appearance in Eastern Canada today, have quarantity bidding for a leading place in the parade of values the Industry has decided to offer for the coming year. A popular General Motors product in 1931, the Pontiac Six comes to bat with more power, pickup and high-lot top speed, smoother riding, "silenced" and longer wheelbase, and the added attraction of the stamp of careful Fisher body tailoring.

It is stated that the motor of the 1932 car is the most powerful ever used in a Pontiac Six, giving flashy speed and getaway and providing ample reserve power. Synchro-mesh transmission with quiet second gear and controlled free-wheeling sums up the progress made in these new models toward the goal of effortless driving. There is also the addition of a ride-control device. By a touch of the finger on a convenient knob, the driver may adjust the car's riding qualities to meet the changing conditions of road and load. The longer wheelbase, 114 inches, is said to have improved Pontiac's basic riding comfort which is further enhanced by oversized enclosed engines and by rubber cushioning at 47 points in the chassis. It is said that one inch of only four rubber tires to make them more flexible, but the new tires has practically float in rubber—the springs, steering gear, drive-shaft and—bolts—all being rubber cushioned.

In time with what most people want in a car, operating economy has made its first appearance in the 1932 Pontiac. The 65-horsepower engine has been equipped with a new type of selective three-jet carburetor and gasoline "economizer" and with improved control of fuel temperature. That added power, and better performance can be obtained without sacrifice of operating economy is something of real importance in the opinion of every motor car owner.

New cylinder head construction has been adopted in the new Pontiac Six engine to yield mixture for higher compression. Fast-flash type spark plugs are used and these are said to give excellent performance with regular gasoline. Built into the carburetor "economizer" which at all speeds up to 50 miles per hour restricts fuel flow to the lowest possible rate that will provide quick response.

Women drivers will probably be impressed with the many new features created by Fisher for the Pontiac Six. The exterior smartness is matched by many interior refinements and conveniences. The seating compartment is roomier than ever before.

All members of the driving family will be interested in the big Bendix self-energizing brakes with their safe, silent and effortless stopping power. They will also be quick to nblice the easier starting by means of the faster cranking starter; the secure insulation of the bodies against extremes of heat and cold; and the new cooling radiation and "pressure lubrication" system. Improvements worth noting are also by the makers to total 41 altogether.

Seven body styles are available; coupe, sport coupe, convertible coupe, convertible cabriolet, special coach and standard sedan. Colors are obtainable in wide variety.

Style and performance vie for a lot in the automobile business. Pontiac should have another big year in 1932.

CANCER CASES NOT HOPELESS

Member of Provincial Commission Speaks at London

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 16.—(CP)—Cancer cases are not hopeless, Dr. Cameron, declared Dr. J. W. McCullough of Toronto, member of the provincial cancer commission, in an address on "Cancer at Home and Abroad" here this afternoon. Dr. Cameron was also a member of the commission, introduced the speaker.

It is quite possible that a further study of the secretion of the glands may lead to a cure for cancer, said this disease, which has baffled scientists for many years, said Dr. McCullough. Diet and civilization are often spoken of as contributory factors, but as every type of civilization has cancer, there is little foundation in such statements.

The real cause of cancer is as yet unknown, according to the speaker. He believed that there is such a thing as an hereditary predisposition to cancer, but that it is by no means inevitable. Irritation, sores and chronic irritation are the chief exciting factors.

FIRE CAUSES SMALL LOSS

McAnnany Street Scene of Early Morning Fire

While on his beat at seven-twenty o'clock this morning, Constable Izzard of the city police was investigating a smoke condition. The smoke was emerging from the rear of the building at the corner of No. 18 1-2 McAnnany street facing the Bridge street. Constable Izzard's presence investigated and gaining entrance to the "back" led the officer to the discovery that a fire was making progress in a very small room in a frame building, which is built on the rear of the property. The fire department was called and the fire was soon extinguished. The frame building enclosing a large ice box, the cooling of which is done mostly from the flames. In the room was a small stove, the proprietor of the shop states, however, that there had been no fire in it lighted since last night. The ice contained has not been determined. Fisher Bros. are said to have gone to stock in the main shop by water from the flames and the shops were inconvenienced by smoke.

TARIFF ON BUTTER FROM N. ZEALAND

Toronto, Jan. 16—Except for the butter rate, trade conditions between Canada and New Zealand are to go back to what they were in the spring of 1930 as the result of an order in council today, in the opinion of manufacturers and dairy interests here. The order is to go into night. The new rate on butter, dairymen think, will be five cents a pound, which is the present Australian rate. This rate, 15 1-2 cents-ed, will be satisfactory to the National Dairy Council of Canada, and also to New Zealand.

"MARJORIE" READ OWN OBITUARY

And Lived to Laugh Over it—Joke on Other Fellow

Ross Hamilton, the celebrated "Marjorie" of the Dumbells, is one of the few fortunate individuals who, through no industry or effort of their own have been able to peruse their own obituaries.

A little over a year ago, a flaxen haired hoyden in Toronto saying that one R. Hamilton of that city was dead in Kalamazoo, Mich. Being inquisitive, she read on and found that the dead man was an actor, that he had been playing with a Canadian actor answering to the name of Marjorie, and the natural conclusion was that it was Mr. Hedgerapin were hastily dug up and the story appeared with a page or two of pictures together with the story of Hamilton's rise to fame.

Now was on an ocean voyage at the time, and it was not until he reached Toronto that he knew later that the report was emphatically denied. As usual, the denial was not given the same publicity as the news, and even now, after all the months have elapsed, there are those joining the Dumbells for their annual visit to Toronto who tell many old friends in the various parts of the country through which they go, who give him a first startled look, though they regarded him as a ghost.

Ten years ago, when the Dumbells first came to Canada, the critics of that city unanimously endorsed the opinion of the Canadian army, the London critics and all others that Ross Hamilton was the greatest female impersonator of all time. His delightful impersonations of beautiful women were hailed with wild acclaim. The interesting thing about his only served to further establish his reputation as an artist.

Daily missed in Canada for the past three years, Ross is again with the Dumbells on tour and is playing a return engagement with Al Plunkett and "Red" Newton.

CHANCEL USED AS PLAY STAGE

Unique Festival of Religious Play at Deer Park

Toronto, Jan. 16—Drama is to find hoopties in the new chancel of Deer Park United Church.

During Holy Week Toronto will experience something entirely new in her world of entertainment. Canada will see—for the first time—the chancel of one of the churches recreated into a stage behind the footlights of which will how characters hitherto unknown except in theatres or books.

"Everyman"—the Westminster version; Masefield's "Good Friday," and Rostand's "Romancers" (Les Romanesques), translated from the French of Henri Ghéon by Sir Barry Jackson, are the plays which have been selected for the unique event. Deer Park United Church and the Canadian Drama League are, together, sponsoring this innovation in drama and are in Toronto. Brownlow Card is directing the festival of plays.

Wednesday and Thursday of Holy Week, March 23-24, "Everyman" will be staged, and on Good Friday and Holy Saturday the players will present "Good Friday" and "The Romancers." Every stage setting will follow the modern trend in that lighting will be used almost entirely to give the effect of a change of scene, thus securing the necessary movement necessary in plays of this type, it is stated.

"The Marvelous History of St. Bernard" will be produced for the first time in Canada. When Toronto last autumn, Sir Barry Jackson, who presented the play in at the Birmingham Repertory Theatre, and later at the Kingsway Theatre, London, requested that the play be made the third of the trio of festival. As it is more spectacular and demands more elaborate staging than is possible in the chancel of the church, it will be staged in the auditorium on the Monday and Thursday evenings following Easter.

Intermission between acts was filled in by readings given by Mrs. Wm. Hodgen. At the conclusion of the play a vote of thanks was served to the visiting club, by ladies of Mount Pleasant and heartily adopted, thus ended very pleasant evening.

NEW OLDS 8 AND 6 NOW ON DISPLAY

Patrons May Select Any Style of Body

FREE WHEELING

Eight Fills a Definite Demand for New Model

The new Oldsmobile Straight Eight, the largest, most powerful Oldsmobile Six, announced today by the General Motors of Canada, are now on display in their initial showrooms throughout the Dominion. For the first time it will be possible to select any desired style of body and exercise any choice of having six or eight cylinders; the Oldsmobile Eight and the Oldsmobile Six both come in six body types and the wheelbase of 128 inches is the same for both Eight and Six. The new Oldsmobiles are attractive examples of modern styling and have many new engineering features, including an advanced type of effortless control, with improved synchro-mesh transmission and free-wheeling unit.

The new Eight, it is learned, has been introduced to fill a definite demand for an eight-cylinder automobile of the Oldsmobile class. The sales field of the Six has been flourishing in Canada, and with the Eight to supplement it, is expected to make still greater progress.

The new Straight Eight Oldsmobile has all of the favorable characteristics of the Six, with, of course, the additional smoothness and power to be expected from the larger engine. It gives 87 horsepower and is the most flashing performance ever found in a car, bearing the Oldsmobile insignia.

The six-cylinder Oldsmobile has been made substantially larger and more powerful. The engine's horsepower has been increased to 74. A 10 percent increase in acceleration is reported by the engineers.

Advancements in engineering detail tend to make driving simpler and easier than ever before, and increase riding comfort and performance. It is reported that these advancements are greater than any introduced in a previous Oldsmobile model.

Riding comfort has been enhanced by such improvements as a selectable regulator; double hydraulic shock absorbers; three-inch increase in wheelbase; larger tires; Marshall-type seat cushion springs; and complete insulation against noise. This latter feature this year includes everything from a resonance-type intake, rigidity, quieter and more efficient muffler; and from door and body panel insulation to the profuse use of rubber in separating engine from chassis and body.

The full automatic choke is a new feature which will be appreciated by automobile owners. The former choke control button has been removed from the instrument panel as the choke operation is entirely automatic. Over-choking, under-choking, flooded carburetors and the possibility of forgetting to shut off the choke have been entirely eliminated. A thermostatic coil located adjacent to the wall of the exhaust manifold operates automatic choke. When the engine is cold, the choke is fully effective in starting. As the engine warms, the choking gradually diminishes, giving the proper mixture at all times.

An entirely new feature introduced this year by Oldsmobile is the decarbonizer unit. When engine performance indicates the presence of carbon, and owner can bring into his garage at will, simply speeds up the engine, pushes his decarbonizer plunger with his foot, and shuts off his ignition. The following morning he starts his engine as usual, and the carbon, loosened by the action of the decarbonizer fluid on the gummy binder, is blown out through the exhaust.

Other innovations of the 1932 Oldsmobile are the oil temperature regulator, manifold heat control, and more powerful brakes.

Like many of the most popular cars this year, Oldsmobile has new streamlined contours, with doors in the hood instead of louvres. Appearance from every angle is pleasing. The new instrument panel is strikingly arranged and refinement has been extended even to the ignition lock keyhole, which is specially illuminated when the instrument panel is lighted.

Veterans Hold Solidly for Nov. 11 as Remembrance Day

Delegation Waits Upon Premier With Memorandum

TO FIGHT REPEAL

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 15 (CP) —The Associated Veterans of Canada "will oppose to the uttermost" any attempt to repeal the act which established November 11 as a public holiday to be known as "Armistice Day."

This was made clear to the Prime Minister today when a delegation, consisting of four Dominion presidents of the various war veterans' organizations, waited upon Mr. Bennett a memorandum setting forth their opinions respecting the operation of pensions and kindred legislation.

"The Associated Veterans view with alarm the agitation which is being carried out to secure a repeal of the act constituting November 11 as a public holiday known as Remembrance Day," the memorandum said. "They consider that the wonderful response of the people of Canada to the veterans' appeal last year for the due observance of this day shows that such a day has a place in the national life of our country, and that if the veterans are given a full opportunity to carry on along the same lines as they have started, this day can be made the most valuable public holiday in our Dominion life.

"They will oppose to the uttermost any attempt to secure a repeal of this legislation, and invite the support of the government in maintaining the legislation as at present enacted."

Despite political and military disturbances, United States exports to China have increased about tenfold since 1900. In that year China took $12,333,000 worth of goods from the United States; in 1930 it took $106,560,300 worth of commodities.

Market Resists Profit Taking

Pressure is Heavy But Market is Up After Midday

New York, Jan. 16.—The stock market registered pressure of profit-taking during the early trading Friday, and turned upward again after mid-day.

Considerable selling came into the rails during the morning, reflecting uneasiness in some brokerage circles over the delays in the wage negotiations at Chicago, but the early losses of 1 to 3 points were partially regained in the afternoon recovery. Trading was active.

New York Central failed to follow the decline, and registered a 2-point advance when the market turned upward. Pennsylvania receded a little in Auburn and Case which came up about 2 points. U. S. Steel and American Telephone recovered after sagging a point or two. Union Pacific and Du Pont, Atlantic and Gulf, Ohio, Southern Pacific, Baltimore and Ohio, American Can, American Tobacco 39, Allied Chemical, Dupont and others.

Railroad banking quarters remained confident of successful conclusion of the negotiations for a 10 percent. railway wage reduction, despite rumors of disagreement among the railroads, and a hitch in the proceedings.

Agreement of a large group of economists, as disclosed by Dr. Warren M. Persons in an interview with the Associated Press, that the United States may have reached the extreme business recovery without waiting for Europe, by such simple expedients as passing the reconstruction finance measure, and embarking upon a credit expansion program which protecting the gold base, was described in banking quarters as encouraging, for the measures suggested are already under way.

Money rates continued to sag today, with dealers making another cut of ¼ of one per cent. in bankers' acceptance rates.

Marine Men On Water Currents

Local marine men do not think that life preservers or planks could float from Picton waters. The Luna was to Collins Bay where some wreckage and a life preserver were discovered on Wednesday evening, though at Kingston there is a belief that this could happen.

Up to late yesterday no one seemed to know where the Luna was at present though it was believed to be at or near Sorel, Quebec, to which place it was sold by the owners after it ceased operating on the Bay of Quinte route.

The Luna is a craft of 64 feet with a gross tonnage of 134 tons. It was sold in 1919 or 1920 to persons at Sorel.

25 YEARS OF REAL PROGRESS

W. K. Kellogg Believes Country Has Ability to Break Through

London Ontario, Jan. 16—Confidence in the ability to break through the cycles of deflation and put business on the upgrade and confidence in each other in our immediate business dealings were urged recently by W. K. Kellogg, founder and president of the Kellogg Company, leading cereal manufacturers.

"This past year closes the Kellogg Company's twenty-fifth anniversary with an unbroken record of progress, regardless of the several cycles of deflation through which the country has passed", said Mr. Kellogg. "Although we have adapted our business to the changing conditions, we are adhering steadily to the basic policies that have governed our actions in times of both prosperity and depression. This fact, I believe, is largely responsible for the satisfactory condition in which we find our business today.

"We always have believed that all of the people with whom we deal should know our policies of doing business so that they might have complete confidence in our prices and in our methods. Business dealings should be based upon such confidence, and advertising should not be permitted to destroy this confidence, for under existing conditions there is even greater need for it than ever before.

"The return to prosperity undoubtedly would be greatly hastened if suspicion of dishonest motives could be buried and confidence fully restored between manufacturers, the trade and consumers alike."

Much of the credit for the continuation of the Kellogg Company's unbroken record of a quarter century of steady growth is due to the judicious use of newspaper advertising, said Mr. Kellogg. "We are taking full advantage of the falling prices and using that medium which may be used generally or concentrated in certain sections or whenever it can be used to be the greatest. This method has proven profitable and we shall be using it even more aggressively in 1932," he added.

At the same time, the Kellogg Company has taken outstanding example of industrial adjustment to the new economic conditions. The manufacturing day, adopted by Kellogg's slightly more than a year ago, is an outstanding success from the standpoints of both employer and employee, with more economical production.

Approximately four hundred new, convenient jobs were created by the Kellogg plan and, even with the increased wages it provided, the system has been profitable.

Kellogg's Canadian factory will start 1932 with a more aggressive advertising campaign than ever before in basic policies, and is looking forward to a greater business than that experienced during 1931," declared Mr. Kellogg.

WORLD UPSET THRU WEATHER

Men Workless in Woods and Tornado Kills in South

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 15.—Tragedy piled upon tragedy in black today over the motley of capricious weather in this country.

Dandelions still bloomed in Ontario, and there was nothing on the green there but ten were dead from a Tornado that threaded through two Tennessee counties, communities and heavy snows and drenching temperatures chilled sections of California.

The Tennessee Tornado killed ten members of a single family and injured three others near Trenton and houses reported upset and other property damaged.

Floods pounded against Mississippi Delta levees as many families fled to higher ground.

Richmond, Va., never saw a January 14, as hot as yesterday's and in Norfolk's 73 was the highest since 1871.

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Jan. 15.—(By the Canadian Press)—With no immediate prospect of a break in the record-shattering mild spell of weather in New Brunswick, the unprecedented January Thaw, is attended by serious consequences in many parts of the province.

In the lumber wood, hundreds of men are being thrown out of work, all hauling operations having been stopped and roads in bad shape.

Scores of others, 100 in Saint John alone, have been compelled to seek porarily, at least—by a cessation in the ice-cutting industry.

Roads are suffered to such an extent that B. H. Kingborn, chief highway engineer for New Brunswick, today announced that all heavy motor traffic would be banned from the highways out of Saint John.

Disease Not Gun Wiped Out Buffalo

Cloverdale, B. C., Jan. 16—It now develops that the vast herds of buffalo which once roamed western plains were not entirely wiped out by avaricious hunters. The real villain in the piece has just been discovered.

He is none other than hemorrhagic septicaemia.

Dr. E. A. Bruce, Dominion pathologist, Agassiz Experimental Farm, revealed to British Columbia cattlemen in the course of an address, that the noble Bison may have been killed off almost to the point of extinction by a dread disease which is today taking fierce toll of herds and flocks throughout the continent.

Hemorrhagic septicaemia is the name given to a germ which flourishes in unclean barnyards, filthy hog wallows and neglected henhouses, ramshackle sheep corals and insanitary rabbit hutches.

"I have seen a herd of ninety hogs affected with the disease," said Dr. Bruce, "and 80 per cent. of the cattle on a single ranch have been wiped out by it. If the truth were known, hemorrhagic septicaemia may have done more than Indian or white to reduce the numbers of native buffalo. We find that the buffalo falls an easy prey to it in modern days."

ANNA G. BOYD IS IN CHARGE

Installation Ceremonies at Ameliaburg O.E.S. Chapter Brilliant

At Ameliaburg on Thursday night, Quinte Chapter No. 36, Order of the Eastern Star, installed their officers for the year 1932. The work was under the capable direction of Worthy Grand Matron Sister Anna G. Boyd, and the function was a most memorable and colorful affair with many visitors present from the different parts of the district as well as a large number of their own members.

Present Gifts

At the conclusion of the installation ceremony, Sister Boyd was presented by her new Worthy Matron, Sister Pearl Anderson, on behalf of the chapter, with a beautiful fish basket. Bro. Wessels was presented by the new Worthy Patron, Bro. Allison, on behalf of the chapter, with a Worthy Star pendant. Sister Nayler was presented with several pieces of silverware by Sister Rita Crosby on behalf of the chapter, and the gifts were all very suitably acknowledged. In addition to the above just previous to the beginning of the installation, Sister Boyd and Bro. Wessels were each presented with an honorary life membership certificate from the chapter, the presentations being made by the retiring Worthy Matron, Sister Minnie Boyd and the retiring Worthy Patron, Bro. Harold Cronk. Previous to the usual routine, the retiring Worthy Matron and Patron presented past officers' jewels and appropriately spoke a few words on the way they showed them around. The Worthy Matron and Patron were given a vote of appreciation to the members who have already served and are now being acted as Grand Chaplain, Grand Organist, Grand Warder and Grand Sentinel respectively, by Sister and Bro. Neville Gooding who sang two very appropriate solos during the installation ceremony, all being acknowledged in the usual embarrassed manner of those receiving gifts. Sister Boyd presented Sister Anderson with a gift from Sister Rebekah Lodge, Ameliaburg.

Sister Nayler then presented Sister Anderson with a beautiful purse from Sister Rita Crosby of Belleville Chapter, as a token of their very feelings and then on her own behalf presented the chapter with a Worthy Matron's gavel before suitably herbiflossed. These gifts were feelingly acknowledged by the Worthy Matron.

Quinte Chapter had closed its very elaborate and sumptuous repast with a prayer and the best way to describe it is to say that it was a fair opinion of yourself as a culinary accomplishment that you have to make you change your mind The Ameliaburg Chapter is to be congratulated on the splendid way in which, under their great spirit of friendliness.

DRUG ADDICT 6 DAY CURE

Effectual Treatment is Claimed at Cornell University

Ithaca, Jan. 16.—Complete breaking of a morphine drug habit in from five to six days without pain or discomfort is now possible, medicine was reported yesterday at Cornell University.

The narcotic patient apparently was completely cured, and with little discomfort.

"The treatment is administration of a non-habit-forming drug to wash the brain and nervous system clean of the poison," said Dr. Lee Edwards of the Cornell interpretation, is a thickening of digestive juices in cells, a condition which persists after the narcotic is stopped and which causes the combinations of the craving. The new antidote, sodium rhodanate, is a peptizer, or thinner, of the thickened proteins.

J. T. Thompson, young biochemist of the Royal College of Surgeons of England, has described that an extract of the parathyroid gland of cattle is the antidote to severest growth without opdangering the health of the organism.

LIBRARY CORNER

The story of how the Greeks of ancient times amused themselves, what they ate, what they wore, and how they waged war is told in very readable form by Marjorie and C. H. B. Quennell in their book "Everyday things in Archaic Greece." The Greeks, who appear in text books as merely citizens of the state emerge from the pages of the authors as very real personalities. The book deals with the period between 560 and 480 B.C. "when not only our fate was settled, but the mode of our lives, the colour of our thoughts, and the fashion of our buildings." The authors have included in the volume many fine illustrations, as well as an historical chart and map. This book should be of particular interest to collegiate students.

An account of the strange adventures of a French woman, journalist and aviator in many lands of Europe, Northern Africa, the South Seas and the Far East is translated from the French by Madelaine Boyd in "Mademoiselle against the world." The author in her journalistic work used her Christian name "Thérèse" as a pseudonym as her family objected to publicity, and it is under this name that she has written her unusual narrative. Thérèse was chosen from a long list of names submitted by readers of "Candide," a Paris weekly paper of which she was editor. Thérèse's journalistic work took her to many countries and she has described the man entirely through his work. Later on in her career she entered politics. An interesting part of the book is the one devoted to conclusions both pro and anti-Lawrence.

TETRAZZINI ON VAUDEVILLE

Sings Old Favorites 'Caro Nome' and 'Last Rose'

Boston, Jan. 16—(UP)— Mme. Luisa Tetrazzini, who 20 years ago was the greatest operatic star of stars in what was called "the golden age of song", made her first appearance Friday in "an added attraction" in a movie house.

Tetrazzini, whose beauty of tone and warmth of expression linked her name forever with those of Melba and Sembrich, her contempor aries as the only singers of her day who could compare with her, appeared on the same bill with Vaudeville's actors and "Hokum" singers.

The management took "pride and pleasure in announcing the engagement extraordinary."

Many in the audience remembered the days when she could take almost as many curtain calls as Caruso and followed the score.

Once it was Tetrazzini's pride that she had in her memory and at the beck of her voice, some 40 operatic roles. She has sung "Ocha Nome" innumerable times. "Tosty" her eyes were downcast. She walked anxiously at a little trembling paper on which every word of her part was written.

There was abundant applause as the song ended. The orchestra began "The Last Rose, of Summer." Tetrazzini sang with more certainty seemingly more confident. But she came to the words, "All her lovely companions have faded and gone" and there was a catch in her voice. Melba died last summer. Sembrich long since ceased to sing in public.

CHANGES IN PENITENTIARY STAFF COMING?

Reparations Parley May Be Deferred Till Elections

France Favors Short Debt Moratorium Till After Elections Held

Problem Likely to Be Left on Washington's Doorstep to Solve

NO STATEMENT

New French Cabinet Waits Vote of Confidence Tuesday

Paris, January 18.—(AP)—Premier Laval, who presents his new cabinet to Parliament tomorrow for a vote of confidence, spent this day considering the possibility of opening the proposed Debts Conference at Lausanne next Monday.

Although no definite announcement of policy has been made, the report persists the French will hold to the idea of a short moratorium to bridge over the elections in the United States, France and Prussia, providing that the United States consents to a similar brief holiday on war debts. Then the whole question would be discussed toward the end of the year.

If the French and British agree, Germany's problem at Lausanne would lay the whole problem on Washington's doorstep by 'explaining to the German delegation that they are willing to extend a reparations moratorium but the United States will approve a War Debts holiday.

PRES. HOOVER SINCERE DRY

States Speaker at Anti-Saloon League Convention

Washington, D.C., Jan. 18 (AP)—A declaration that "we have a convinced and sincere dry in the White House" brought delegates to the United States Anti-Saloon League's biennial meeting to their feet today with an outburst of cheering.

The Reverend John M. Phillips, of Hartford, Connecticut, made the statement.

"There are enough people in the United States to see that we do not have anything else but a convinced and sincere dry there," Mr. Phillips added.

He spoke after I. W. Pearce of Montreal had told the league "government control is a colossal failure" in Canada.

Pearce, secretary of the League against alcoholism of the Province of Quebec added "but we cannot find an avenue to express our discontent."

He gave statistics of the Provincial Liquor Control Board which he said showed that during the last six months consumption of hard liquor "has increased 38 per cent. and of beer and wine 128 per cent."

LABOR'S DEMANDS ARE DECLINED

Railroads Would Not Accede to Proposals at Session

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 18—The Chicago Tribune in a dispatch from United States railroads have declined, for the present at least, to accede to labor's demands for the stabilization of employment for 2,000,000 railroad union workers.

The carriers' answer to the stabilization proposals of labor was submitted to labor chiefs at a three hour secret session yesterday and both sides declined afterward to reveal the trend of their deliberations. The response was a rejection of proposal to the railroad's request that the workers take a voluntary 10 per cent cut in pay for a year.

S. A. CONVENTION HELD AT KINGSTON

Many young people, members of the Salvation Army at Picton, Trenton, Belleville and Napanee assembled at Kingston on Saturday and Sunday where they joined the young army people of that city in a conference.

This was the first conference of this nature to be held at Kingston and the numbers of all those who there entertained the visitors at their homes and with meals at the citadel. Numerous excellent papers were read and discussed and the conference is said to have been a very pleasant and profitable to those who attended.

On Saturday evening the Belleville Army Boy Scouts, under command of Scout Master Stanley Lejeune, gave a very enjoyable entertainment and exhibition.

Transient Army Shrinks to Smallest of This Season

Itinerant Artist Draws Sketches For Wayfarers

HIS AMUSEMENT

Barely a dozen men slopped over for the evening in the vast dormitory situated on Front street Sunday night, which was about the smallest number for some time. An explanation given by the night man in charge of that place pointed to the unusual numbers to be found there some time, which often run as high as forty men, is that the warm weather urges them to take to the roads for work in other centres or cities where they congregate and move on to some other city. With the recent warnings indicating colder weather men have decided to stay them have been staying around the cities where they can generally find some sort of shelter for the inclement weather, and this cute down the numbers to be found on the move such as have been visiting this city for the past few days.

Saturday evening an itinerant artist drew several sketches for the boys who were his companions over night, and displayed real talent in some of his work. He was not a commercial artist, by any means still several of his drawings showed real promise and with a little more experience he will easily qualify as an illustrator of the better sort. However, he was just one of the wandering class, and admitted that he had no higher ambitions of that kind. It was just a matter of amusement and a method of passing the time with him wherever he happened to be.

COUNCIL POWERS

Winter Road Clearing Cost Considered Too High on Road

Melrose, Jan. 18—The members elect of the municipal council of the township of Tyendinaga met for organization at the township hall, Melrose, on Monday, 11th day of January 1932.

The following persons filed declaration of qualifications and office and the oath and their seats at the council board: Henry Larkin, reeve; Samuel Sherman, deputy reeve; Kenneth Kinnear, Orson McLaren and William H. White, councillors.

Reeve H. Larkin expressed his pleasure in seeing all the members of last year's council on the board and this year's and extended a warm welcome to the new member, Mr. W. H. White, of Roslin. He spoke feelingly of A. A. McKinney, ex-reeve, and hoped that he would soon regain his former health. He went on to say:

"In the past year from we made substantial reductions in the expenditures of the township and I am convinced that with the cooperation of the members of this council, by careful management and by reducing as far as possible unnecessary expenditures we will be able to make a further reduction this year.

Snow Clearing Costs

"In referring to unnecessary expenditures, I refer to one item in particular and that is the cost of clearing snow from the roads. The use of cars during the winter months. Last year this item alone cost us almost $1400. I am astonished the great amount of tax payers in this township consider this too large a sum to be spent in this manner. This township is permanent results are obtained and that they will co-operate with the council in carrying out any remedy that the members of the council may suggest for this extra expenditure. In closing I wish to extend to you that we have been called to conduct the business of the township for the year 1932. It is our duty to see that full value is obtained for every dollar that we spend.

Communications

A communication from the secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Municipal Association was presented to the join. Moved by M. Kennedy, seconded by G. Kinnear, that no action be taken.—Carried.

2 FUGITIVES SENTENCED

Deportation Will Be Expedited in Case of Pair

On a charge of unlawfully escaping a bailiff's custody, Frederick Lee and Andrew Minchen, the two lads who escaped from the county gaol on Wednesday afternoon and were caught shortly afterwards, appeared before Magistrate Mikel in the local police court this morning.

Both lads pleaded guilty to the charge and upon the suggestion of the Crown a sentence of three months determinate and two years less one day indeterminate put on Guelph Reformatory, was imposed. The Crown also suggested that the boys be deported at the earliest possible.

The court was of the opinion that the two lads, on account of their youth, should not be allowed to associated with hardened criminals, but that they should be punished severely for breaking gaol. The sentence was fair, but the latter sentence was imposed due to the influence of the other prisoners to follow suit so the latter half of the sentence was imposed due to the youthfulness of the boys.

POLICE READ PAPER, FIND CLUE IN IT SECURE YOUTH WANTED FOR THEFT

Louis Marsiaise, alias Samuel Smith, who has been wanted by the Ontario Provincial Police since August ninth last on the charge of stealing forty dollars in cash from his employer, Ernest Hall, a farmer in Thurlow Township, is now in custody and will shortly appear in court at Belleville to answer to the charge.

Marsiaise's capture was brought about through a clue obtained in a news despatch which appeared in the Ontario Intelligencer on January ninth, giving the information that a youth, "Louis Marsiaise", aged nineteen years, had surrendered himself to the Toronto police with the request that he be sent to Ottawa, where he is said to have stated he was wanted for the theft of twelve dollars from his employer, the proprietor of a shoe shining stand, who had sent him out with the money to have changed into small silver and with which he skipped. The boy was taken back to Ottawa and was glad to give himself up.

The Provincial Police investigated the clue and were able to establish that the boy was the one for whom they held a warrant and the Toronto police turned him over on Saturday to Provincial Constable Campbell of the Belleville district office, who brought him to Belleville.

Marsiaise, when he made his get-away from the farm in Thurlow is said to have gone to his home in Shawbrooke, Que., but did not stay there as he had a police record in that city and is said to have been sentenced to a reform school in Montreal at one time from which institution he escaped two years ago. From Shawbrooke he went to Montreal and eventually to Ottawa, from where he skipped, it is alleged, with the twelve dollars belonging to the shoe shine stand proprietor.

Screaming Girls in Other Store Scare Good Customer

A woman's screams put to rout a would-be hold-up man who entered Richter street grocery store, Trenton, Saturday evening, shortly after dusk, brandishing a revolver, and who escaped without leaving a trace to the police who were immediately on the scene shortly after word was received by them over the telephone from the store. Considerable consternation was also created among customers and others in the immediate district staffs of which were warned shortly after the episode that an armed man was in the neighborhood. A general alarm for the arrest of an innocent man who entered one of the stores on a perfectly legal errand some time later.

RIVER ALMOST AT FLOOD TIDE

Part of Old Dam Washed Away By Rampant Waters

Moira River still continues to rise to almost flood proportions and carry with it its race to the bay all sorts of objects which have been caught up in its swirling waters. Among the floating objects which can be seen floating down the current are a number of cakes of ice, beams and posts which have been torn from bridges and docks and Cooper dam and have floated down into the upper reaches of the bay at the outlet of the river.

Saturday and a number of men have been out with row boats and punts busily engaged in snagging the wood and in sawing it into handy lengths of firewood which they are piling on the shore above the high wind which has been prevalent here. Rene Delaire's boat house the ice in the bay has commenced breaking up and except for the more sheltered inland parts of it, nothing but a clear expanse of water now remains.

FEUD RESULTS IN 9 DEATHS IN KENTUCKY

Two Families Open Quarrel Over Slaughter in Household

PISTOLS FLARE

Other Killings Reported in Different Parts of South

Louisville, Ky., January 18—Feudal strife and family quarrels flared in Kentucky over the week end and a series of pistol fights left nine dead and six wounded.

A church meeting at New Salem, in the foothills of the Cumberlands, took four lives but left the death count unchanged in a long-standing feud between the Crook and Johnson families. Two brothers of the Johnson clan and two of the Crook men were slain late Saturday in a renewal of a disagreement over the 17-year-old sister of the Crooks. Another of the Johnson men was wounded slightly and their cousin was killed critically.

The dead were: Moses Crook, Forrest Crook, Henry Johnson and Earl Johnson. Arthur Johnson was wounded slightly and his cousin, Dewey Johnson, was reported dying early today in a London Hospital.

The men fought when Willie Johnson was accused of wronging the Crook girl.

Over in adjoining Knox County, two men grasped hands and fought a duel to settle an old quarrel. One was killed and the other wounded critically. They met on Cold Fork Creek, 18 miles back of the mountains and a man named Gambrell was killed and Walter Smith, who shot three times. He was in a Pineville Hospital unable to give any details of the duel.

Sheriff N. J. Tipton, of Rockcastle county, a few miles away, was shot to death in an argument with Hunter Burchell, a guard at the State Reformatory at Frankfort. The men had been enemies for years.

Hayden McFarlin shot and killed his wife, Mrs. Leona McFarlin, wounded his brother-in-law Harry Lefevre and then committed suicide at Franklin.

At Bowling Green, Jack Walker, Roadhouse proprietor, was accused of the shotgun slaying of Hugh Beckham.

Noah Johnson and Willie May Adkins disagreed on the street at Heller, Pike County, and both were shot in the pistol play that followed. Johnson was wounded seriously.

PLEADS GUILTY FALSE PRETENCE

Tries to Pass Forged Order on Local Service Station

A man giving the name of Wm. Mullin, aged twenty-eight years and address Read near Glen Ellis, Tyendinaga township, was arrested Sunday night, about 10.30 o'clock by Constables Evans and Isard.

The arrest was made in response to a call to the Cities Service Station on Front Street, where they were informed by Mr. McGinnis that Mullin had entered their office and demanded the sum of one dollar on a note to which he is said to have signed the name of Fred Robinson, a resident of Thurlow, in which payment was promised in a few days. Mr. McGinnis refused to have anything to do with it. Mullin, it is said, then went to the service station at the corner of Front and Dundas Streets, where he made out another order for two dollars to which he signed the same name. Constables went in search of Mullin and found him on Pinnacle Street east.

William Mullins appeared before his Worship being charged that he did, unlawfully, knowing that orders were forged, try to obtain money by false pretenses. The accused pleaded guilty and a fine of $10.00 and costs or in default of payment ten days in the common jail at hard labor was imposed. The accused stated he did not know where he could get the money.

800 LICENSES ARE ISSUED

Saturday is Busy Day as Motorists Secure Markers

"Saturday proved to be one of our busiest days in years," stated Mr. Cooper this morning, when motor license and driver's permit issuer, this morning. Upon asking Mr. Cooper the business of the day, Mr. Kitchenson found that his office had issued over 800 licenses on Saturday. These licenses included all classes, motor, truck, chauffeur's and driver's permits.

To date there have been over 2,000 licenses issued from the local office which is a decided gain in advance in comparison with previous years. The majority of licenses were issued on Friday and Saturday of last week. It is estimated that about 1,400 licenses, of all classes, were issued on these two days.

The government issued a bulletin to the effect that January 15th would be the last day in which the public would be allowed to use their 1931 license plates, but Mr. Kitchenson stated this morning that his staff was working overtime in order to try and meet the ever-increasing demand for licenses and he was of the opinion that the police would give the motorists time in which to purchase their licenses.

The demand for the new licenses was so great on Saturday that the office of the issuer, was filled to capacity practically all day.

Mr. Kitchenson pointed out that the office would be open continuously to January 15th of the current year, after which the busiest days of the year. He was of the opinion that the motorists would purchase their licenses a week or so earlier they would save themselves considerable inconvenience by not having to stand in line for the matter of hours.

Staff of Bread Company Rounded Up, Armed Men Cut Through Vault Door

Plant Staff Locked Up in Storeroom of Canada Bread Co.

USE MOTORCAR

Occupants of Room Held Prisoners at Point of Guns

Toronto, Jan. 18— Four cracksmen drove an automobile into the premises of the Canada Bread Co., 1478 to 1490 Bloor Street West, early Sunday morning, and, after locking four employees of the bakery and a youth in the tire-room under the stables, "cracked" a vault on the second floor and stole $5,000 cash.

Two of the five robbers were armed and three of them were masked. They worked apparently with thorough knowledge of the layout of the plant, displaying experience and coolness of hardened criminals.

For 45 minutes the five men labored unmolested. They were employed by one the floor on horse blankets, pulled from the storeroom, two of two of the masked desperadoes. All the time three other men, unmasked, were drilling the vault door in the office on the second floor.

Only Five at Work

The four men on guard employed watching the plant, washing wagons and doing other duties, and other night there would have been only five employed in the building.

Those herded about the building and kept prisoners during the robbery were: Harold Robert, 41 Lyon Avenue, wagon washer; Sidney Somers, 2 Redhill Avenue, wagon washer; John Almaty, 943 Crawford Street, watchman; William Gilbert, 46 Osmond Avenue, employed in the harness room, and Sidney Winters, aged 17, of 2405 Dundas Street west, who was in the wagon sheds helping Robert when the robbers entered.

Detectives and officials of the bakery found a window open leading into the building near the elevator shaft from a private lane running off Bloor to Vincent Streets. It is surmised this was the way the building was first entered.

Once on the premises the gang, together with the fact it was supplied with one or more of the guns might have concealed themselves about the building early in the evening, this not being definitely had been established.

Marched to Imprisonment

When the two robbers guarding the five men received a signal from the men on the floor above working on the vault, they entered all five to march in single file out of the building to the stable, herding them over to the ramp on which the horses are taken up to the stables, they opened a door leading to a small tire-room, into which they locked the men.

For nearly fifteen minutes the men were kept imprisoned in this room. The spring padlock had been snapped closed, a large sliding-bolt drum rolled against the door, and a delivery wagon drawn alongside the drum to hold it tight against the door.

Taking turns, the five imprisoned men watched through a small hole in the frame about the door to guard the robbers getting into the yard and drive out on to Vincent St. They then commenced pounding on the partition until they broke it open, and telephoned for the police.

FIND TOMB IN MEXICO

Rivals That of King Tut of Egypt in Every Way

Mexico City, Jan. 18—A tomb just uncovered near the city of Oaxaca, was revealed yesterday to be a veritable storehouse of historical and material treasures from the 13th century of Mexican civilization.

BANKRUPT DEPT. IS ADVOCATED

Calgary, Alta. (By The Canadian Press)—Creation of a department of bankruptcy in the Dominion government is advocated in the report of the bankruptcy committee presented to the Canadian Bar Association in 1930, which has just published an inquiry into the working of the Bankruptcy act. Several important changes are recommended in the report to eliminate prevalent abuses of the act.

Five amendments, suggested in the committee's report follow: (1) That a department of bankruptcy be established; (2) That a policy of licensing trustees be established; (3) That the office of custodian be abolished; (4) That when a meeting order has been made, by the court, after hearing the views of the principal creditors, a licensed trustee be appointed as trustee of the estate; (5) That the official receiver when accepting an assignment from a debtor, should notify the creditors at the first meeting either to confirm the appointment of the trustee or appoint another.

The report also advocated that every debtor should be compelled to undergo an examination before the registrar or judge. This should be a thorough examination of conditions leading up to bankruptcy the court declares.

The Calgary Board of Trade is studying the report on the request of the committee which seeks its comment on the advisability of the proposed change.

MOSCOW EAGER FOR PEACE PACT

Possibility of War in Manchuria Alarms Soviet

Moscow, Jan. 18—The Soviet Government has made overtures to Japan for the pact of non-aggression as a new demonstration of its desire to keep the peace and at the same time to circumvent what it considers the attempts of "foreign imperialist circles" to provoke the two nations to war over the Manchurian controversy.

With an uneasy eye on Japanese troop movements in the area of the Chinese Eastern Railway, reported that the agreement by Russia, Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff sounded out Foreign Minister Koki Ishiwara on the proposition when they met in Geneva through Moscow. Their conversation was followed up with direct discussions between the Soviet Ambassador and the Foreign Office in Tokio.

75 MINUTES WITH CAPTURE LIBERTY ENDS

Boys Change Mind About Deportation to England

ARE BEDRAGGLED

Authorities Find Lads on Railway Track Near "Jungle"

Barely over one hour from the time they had calmly walked out of the county gaol early Saturday afternoon two underaged youths, Andrew Minchen, aged 16 and Thomas McMullen, 17, stood manacled together in the police station and asserted to Chief of Police Kidd that they had "run away because they had changed their minds about wanting to be deported back to England" and had attempted to make their way to Montreal where they had hoped to hide. They were recaptured a short distance east of Belleville on the railway grounds at the "jungle" and were headed east when Detective Sergeant Trudick and Sergeant Black of the city force caught up with them. They had been lodged in the police station unaware of the fact that the car which was approaching them contained the police until the car was within easy distance of them. Later they were transferred to the county gaol from where they may reappear in local police court when definite course of action will be determined.

Find Sandwiches

Believing that they had been on a journey of escape after leaving the gaol, Sergeant Trudach and Sergeant Booth immediately hurried to the railway tracks and found a parcel in the west section of the city. This contained sandwiches and some other food which had been left behind without finding trace of the boys who had been in the vicinity of the easterly limits. After driving some distance past the east yard limits of the railway they came across a field in the second concession of Thurlow and on the fact that contained the police men in attempting running away and were quickly secured. The boys were in the same clothing they had on when they left, which were very muddy and wet condition from their travels through the fields and muddy roads east of the city. A press car which immediately set out on the course believed to have been taken by the two young men was at the scene of the arrest shortly after they were apprehended.

Court on June 12

Last December 12, the two boys appeared before the local transient station enroute from Montreal to Montreal, and as is usual in such cases they were questioned by the chief regarding their movements. It was learned at that time both had been in this country for a period of three months, and during that time one of them had had no regular work at jobs at as many different places. From which they had been offered from time to time was not acceptable to either of them and they preferred to keep on the move through town to town subsisting on what they could beg at the various places they visited. They were thoroughly fed-up with conditions as they had found them in Canada and were content only to remain as tramps and do such little work as they could manage to feed them and pay, such few necessaries as were absolutely indispensable. Finding that they would not engage in honest work they were hailed into police court and a sentence of one month in gaol was given them, with deportation to England at the expiration of the sentence. Deportation, seemed quite acceptable to the boys and it was known that they looked forward eagerly to a return trip to their homeland.

New Thoughts

However, with the expiration of their sentence they had evidently undergone a change of heart and deportation proceedings which were to be complete and only required the arrival of the papers did not loom so enticingly as it had Saturday afternoon while they were engaged in carrying boiling water for the scrubbing of the floors of the court house corridor they made up their minds the eye of the man in charge of them and ran out the back door onto Church street. From there they made their way by a devious route down to the east yard limits of the railway with the evident intention of hopping on eastbound freight, but all the while walking close to the tracks in order to get as much distance possible behind them and their pursuers.

While it was not generally the rule to have two friends working together under the same roof, Mr. H. H. French, warden of the county gaol, explained that they were considered safe and evidently well pleased with the fact that they were soon to be returned to England, together with this was the fact that their sentence had been completed and not merely technical prisoners pending the arrival of the papers which were due to arrive any day, and no one had any intimation of the fact that they were dissatisfied. It is still thought that the impulse was quite unpremeditated and was acted upon the spur of the moment. The fine, clear weather which prevails in this district lately had evidently helped their desire to be outside enjoying it and the fact that was made without further deliberation.

The governor of the gaol, Mr. G. H. French expressed to Detective Trudach and Sergeant Booth on the city police force his appreciation of their work in bending to the rescue of the two boys.

The provincial police and the city police force and the gaol staff were engaged in the search.

SAP IS FLOWING FARMERS AFFIRM

Sap is floating in some parts of the district, according to farmers who have been in the woods of late.

One noticed a dark mark on his axe which had evidently showed that sap was not from melting snow, but was sap. Similar reports are coming in from various parts.

... an old wife some damage may be done to bude," declared one farmer discovering the sap flowing.

Believing that they had been on a journey of escape after leaving the gaol, Sergeant Trudach and Sergeant Booth immediately hurried to the railway tracks and found a parcel in the west section of the city. This contained sandwiches and some other food which had on when they left, which were very muddy and wet condition from their travels through the fields and muddy roads east of the city. California Heart's Desire of Winners of $50,000

Mr. and Mrs. R. Keeler Have Only $3 Left - on Dec. 24th

Having but $3.00 on Christmas Eve, after winning the handsome sum of $50,000.00 on January the fifth, was the bewildering, though happy, experience of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Keeler, of Maple Heights, Cleveland, Ohio.

"Bread upon the, waters—Bread upon the waters" repeated Mrs. Keeler over and over again as she and her husband held the cheque together and gazed at it in wonder and thankfulness.

The winning of this great sum of money came about as a result of Mrs. Keeler entering an attendance contest which was being conducted by the Loyal Order of Moose, of which order her husband had been a member since 1913.

Now their financial troubles are at an end and they are off to California to pass the winter. "California," said Richard Keeler, "I always wanted to go there. It is warm and sunny there all the time—California," and Mrs. Keeler hurried her gray head upon the lean shoulder of her husband, too happy to speak. Mrs. Keeler is sixty-three years old and Mr. Keeler is sixty-eight years old. She was born in Germany and he was born in England. They both came to America forty years ago, where they met and married. Mr. Keeler worked at blacksmith steadily for years, but for the past three years he has been out of employment most of the time.

They have no children, but some time ago they took a little orphan girl, aged fourteen years and although their savings steadily vanished they continued to care for the child to whom they had become very much attached. She took this action of the Keeler's is some of the "Bread cast upon the waters" to which Mrs. Keeler referred, when she handed the cheque.

Fortune took a long time before it smiled upon the old couple, but when it did so, it was indeed a generous smile.

RAIN AFFECTS DRIVER WITH FATAL RESULT

Poor Visibility is Blamed For Death of Cottam Boy

TRAIN HITS LAD

Pembroke Scene of Instant Death of Boy Walking Track

Windsor, Jan. 18.—Roy Affleck, 18 years old, of Cottam, was fatally injured and George Ash, 16, of North Ridge, suffered serious head injuries in a traffic accident on the townline between Rochester Township and Goodrich North, shortly before 7 p.m. Sunday. Affleck died in the Metropolitan General Hospital, Walkerville, at 11 a.m.

The boys, with Ash driving, were returning home from a party in Tilbury. They were travelling on the Third Concession, which does not have the townline gravelled because of the visibility poor and Ash failed to notice the blind end intersection and the car dropped into an eight-foot ditch. Affleck was pinned beneath the upturned car and he had not released until an hour later when a party of Detroit motorists came along. Dr. S. F. Millen, Coroner, of Woodslee, is to open an inquest today.

Killed By Train

Pembroke, Jan. 18.—Maurice Fitzgerald, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Fitzgerald, Pembroke, was killed instantly Saturday when he was run down by the westbound Canadian Pacific Railway local while he was walking in the C.P.R. right-of-way between Munro and James streets. Fitzgerald had been watching work on the sewer excavation in this vicinity and had left for his home, walking along the track. With the approach of the train, two workmen, who had heard the engine whistle, noticed the youngster turn and then stand still. Coroner P. C. Dansley is conducting an inquest.

Britain Looks on Parley on Debts with Optimism

London, Jan. 18—Europe entered the last week before the world reparations and war debts parley on January 25 at Lausanne with mixed feelings.

Great Britain looked forward to the event with optimism. France saw nothing but the hortest pessimism. Neither sentiment had any foundation in official statements, for both Governments were preparing for the conference under a veil of secrecy.

The British optimism was primarily a product of the political writers in responsible newspapers who drew from the evidence of the past week the conclusion that one vitally important point has been gained—that Great Britain, France, Italy and Germany will go to the conference with a united front.

This viewpoint found its chief expression in an article by the diplomatic correspondent of the newspaper Observer. All four powers have agreed, he write, that the sequence of events at Lausanne will be as follows:

1. The conference will last a few days only.

2. The 11 countries represented will entrust the Young Plan Report that the Hoover moratorium on reparations and war debts should be extended from July 1 to the end of 1932.

3. The parley will resume before the end of the year and will then take up the general settlement of the whole problem.

The Observer's opinion was echoed in other responsible circles which placed emphasis on a belief that the British Government has now decided that a further moratorium lasting more than a few months ultimately would do more harm than good.

THE WHIP
is in your hand

When our grandmothers went shopping they were prepared to match their wits against the shopkeeper's. His was the whip-hand. Prices were anything the dealer had to pay, plus a profit. And his profits were as elastic as his necessity—or opportunity.

Grandmothers had a very fine knowledge of woollens, cottons, silks. They used their eyes and fingers in buying. They tasted and sniffed at foodstuffs. Our grandfathers knew an intimate lot about woods, veneers, stains. They knew leathers and machinery and cutlery. They had to.

Today you can shop with assurance by designating this brand of this and that brand of that, and hardly bother to check the price on the bill when it comes. You can send a twelve-year-old to market with a note and never have a doubt of kind, quality or price—if you buy advertised goods.

THE NEW YEAR

Another chance is given to tread an unknown way.
To bear another's burden as we journey day by day;
Another chance for loving, and lifting heavy loads,
Another chance for hoping when weary is the road;
Another chance for serving, for faith and courage true,
Another chance for gladness, and maybe sorrow too;
Another chance for labor, a chance for those who wait,
For now the gladsome New Year opens wide her mystic gate.

RIVER MOIRA is coming back to normal after a season of distressing weakness, and is rolling proudly along now in the ancient manner. This marked and healthy change in the river, which now bears the rolling slong, as mentioned in the radio song, is due to the frequent and prolonged rains. The river has had its previous memories of past spring floods when the old Moira just naturally reared up and sent the jams roaring, tearing down the canyon to sweep all before them. Times when Front street from Bridge street corner to Coleman's was a raging torrent, when the firehall had to be abandoned, and Coleman steet was buried under tons of ice, huge blocks being scattered here and there like a gigantic quarry. Several times the foot bridge was carried down stream and the upper and lower bridges battered and all but carried away. All this not so long ago, either. And away back when Grandfather was a lad the Moira must have been a lot like it is now when the spring fever took possession of the old river and made it believe it was a young and vigorous giant which no bonds could control.

Poet's Corner

FROM A DICTIONARY

Words were my stock in trade, witch-words with many faces,
Hold words in soldier-phalanx marshalled out,
And lurking timorous words of many graces
And soft sweet words of love, with fear and doubt.
Of common kindliness to follow them,
In alphabetic chaos they were found,
Until with clumsy cunning I unbound
A portion for my service, some to spen
My little thoughts with brightness, some to be
My sober household servants. 'Tis my pain
That, being mine, they soon forget to bow
To my behest ,that soon they begin to play
And now they lead me humble in their train;
Words were my slaves—they are my masters now!

BOOK ISSUED ON GLACIAL PERIODS HERE

Rock Formation in Manitoba Subject of Study

BOOK PUBLISHED

Ottawa, Ont. (By The Canadian Press)—Dr. Ernest Antevs, who has carried their observations and studies somewhat beyond the purely economic stage, is member Dr. Ernst Antevs, entitled "Late-Glacial Correlations and Ice Recessions in Manitoba", recently published by the geological survey, Department of Mines, Ottawa, will make a special appeal.

The author, who is one of the two recipients of the Research Certificate awarded by Committee through Smithsonian Institution for "effective scientific work", gives a careful and concise summary of the history of the Late-Glacial time and the United States had risen to its present level. The outcome the Late-Glacial is divided into three periods, each marking successive stages in the retreat of the ice; the first from its southern maximum to Cochrane, about 7,000 to 8,000 years; the second from Toronto to Trenton, about 1,000 to 2,000 years, and the third from Mattawa to Ottawa, about 1,000 years, estimated at 6,000 years. Probably some 7,000 years have elapsed between the end of the third ice stage and the present and the climax of the Post-Glacial or Champlain submergence, therefore, some 25,000 years ago.

The author describes the rise of the divide between the Burntwood and the Churchill rivers, now occupied by Lake Athapapuskow, formed by the melts dice from the retreating ice sheet. At this stage the waters of the lake expanded, but lowered again as the ice sheet receded, and found. First it discharged through Lake Winnipeg, then through Lake of the Minnesota and Mississippi rivers to the Gulf of Mexico; later it drained northward by different passages in Ontario to the Great Lakes and finally through Hudson Bay. The clay belt deposited from the Post-Glacial lake is known as highly fertile Red River plain.

The report describes some of the Late-Glacial of North America and Europe by means of variations in the banding of clay-varved sedimentary deposits in glacial lakes due to seasonal climatic variations is discussed in detail. The reader will find also a brief but clear sketch of reconstruction of events connected with the formation of Niagara Gorge.

NOT GUILTY OF MURDER

Ottawa Jeweler Freed of Murdering Jack Hornitz

Ottawa, Jan. 18—Sen S. Edelson, Sandy Hill jeweler, was found not guilty of murdering Jack Hornitza, a fellow prisoner, in Burnside jail on November 24. Deliberating little more than an hour, the Supreme Court of Ontario Winter Assizes jury found Edelson, aged 36, not guilty, after a three-day trial.

Taking the stand in his own defence, Edelson swore the shooting was an accident, the pistol discharging while the two men were struggling for it. Edelson declared he produced the weapon to emphasize his warning to Hornitza to cease his persistent attacks on Edelson, with no intention of shooting Hornitz.

Heard On the Street

You probably called them "shiverees" when you were a kid, and probably they do to-day in some places where the game is still kept up, but the ancient sport is fast dying out and many of the younger generation have never even been on let alone taken part in one. The charivari is fast becoming a lost art—extinct as the dodo. Now and then though, they do hold a good one, and a good time is had by all—all that is, except the ones who are serenaded. Some fun was the case in Belleville not long ago. But in this case it seems there was a slip up somewhere; things didn't seem to pan out as they should have done and a lot of boys almost had their trouble for nothing. There was even a bare chance of them landing up in the Hall little brick house on the hill, but they escaped all right, where they have lots of iron bars and other amusing little things to pass the time with.

o o o

It seems that some one got married. That didn't seem trouble enough so some one got busy in the old night with a shivaree and got busy. The old time "shivaree" and forthwith arrangements were made to not only have a big time, but to make it memorable for polic—I mean for some one equalled before. The largest dish pans, the most valuable horns and the noisiest tin pans that could be procured were gotten together and hied to the house in the west end. Then the serenading began in earnest. Oh, it was sound fest. The day of the evening slowly drew on. The night finally came and the gang sat in the house of one of their number and waited. They had taken no pains to inform the newlyweds some distance away from their old haunts and only this man seemed to know where the house was. So they sat inside just now and talked. Outside the door stood as pretty a mess of junk as would be seen by any garbage collector in a life time at the job. Inside, the hours dragged; feet grew restless and hands began to fidget. Then the bridal couple came, and with its coming the gathering stealthily went forward to do battle.

Outside a house in a certain part of the city a few moments later, a blare went forth upon the night that would have done credit to a banshee. Inside the house broke forth containing all the noise of the earth that is capable of being made. Pigs being tortured to death, a locomotive whistle gone mad, a circus calliope with haywire and with full steam turned on, and a maniac with four hands pressing all the keys at once. All hung in the air like a bad smell and died out to a dying wail. A sleeper moved in bed. Again it resounded, and tortured ear drums contricted and writhed in agony bones rattled under the strain. More than one sleeper pulled bed clothing over heads and wailed for the hour to roll down. In others, those whose consciences were not so clear, gathered at windows to peep with their minds for forgiveness on their nearby souls arose and prepared to go forth to meet the Angel Gabriel who had come to claim them, but one of the last was not so eliminate. Maybe there was a cause there must be a reason, he thought, and immediately searched for the reason. A window was thrown open, a head peered forth, and with the first word the noise subsided. He enquired the reason for the din. He was told in return that it was a shivaree. He enquired again why they were having a shivaree, and was told because they were married not go on about their business. There was nobody on that street who had been married recently. He didn't even know the man and wife and the argument seemed to be about over. Somewhere there had been a slip up and the orchestra had gathered somewhere else. Again it broke forth every time the thing is talked over.

In a recent news item an account was given of a car which wrecked itself against the iron side of the bay bridge. The driver of the car subsequently appeared in police court and was fined for driving a car when the ownership of the car was traced up it was found that there were no less than four or five owners of the machine. The car was bought and sold a number of times in many times and none of the men who had bought it had taken the trouble to have the license transferred from the wrecked car to their own name. It cost but fifteen dollars or so apiece for the fun they had of temporary ownership of the machine. Only it isn't so funny after all when you stop to think of the consequences.

That car you saw at the lower end of the town in a very badly wrecked condition is owned by a man who was in Napanee on Monday. It passed to it's present some time last August. On Mohrs street west the other evening at the junction of Coleman street a lady who doesn't live on that street was turned out of a car which had been left with a flat, and slammed the door after her. The car drove off without looking back and pulled into the curb a few hundred yards away. Some one else came along to pull it off before it dragged her after it. The flapping end of the coat had been caught in the door when it was slammed shut. Counterfeit tickets have made their appearance in town. Belleville Hebrews have their own relief organization for members of their race who visit the town hard up and struggle to make a few dollars to send them to somewhere else. A good deal of counterfeit tickets are supplied to the unwary. A real live skunk was reported to have been seen on Bridge street the other night. Bridge street is one of the city and since then residents have been stepping warily after dark. Two cakes of soap were stolen by parties from the ward room in the Lake Ontario on the first time it has happened in years at that. And tips of any kind are so unknown quantity any more among all trades in the city.

Britain Improves Air Service

Replace All Obsolete Craft With Latest Planes

London (By The Canadian Press) —The swiftest and most formidable fighting aircraft ever produced are being ordered for service with any of the world's great sea fleets have lately replaced obsolete craft in the equipment of the Royal Air Arm. As part of the firing compliment of the aircraft carriers "Furious" and "Courageous" are now being fitted with the latest and most powerful fighter, which is styled the Hawker "Nimrod", is a two seater version of the "Fury" single-seater biplane recently supplied to certain "interior" squadrons of the home defence system.

The "Nimrod" however has certain components strengthened up to withstand the heavier stresses of catapult, which can accelerate an aeroplane from rest to 60 miles an hour within three seconds. It is a beautiful plane, with wheels and no seaplane pontoons and the first experiments with the results of an emergency alighting in the water; finnicken bags fill the after portion of the fuselage, and flotation bones are placed between the wings to support the w.ngs.

Assisting the parent carrier after a flight may not be easy, especially if base for cloud obscure the pilot's vision, and the "Nimrod" carries, therefore, more elaborate navigational equipment than the "Fury" as well as wireless and additional lighting.

Shall I not call God the beautiful, who daily showeth Himself to Him in His glist—Emerson.

Radio Beam Would Eliminate Hazards

Lethbridge, Alta. (By The Canadian Press)—Regular air mail flights across the Rocky Mountains, linking Lethbridge, Alta., Vancouver via the Crow's Nest Pass, must wait until two-way radio beams are established along the route.

This was the opinion expressed by Captain Roy Brown, superintendent of the western division, Canadian Air Board, after he had completed a strenuous flight from Vancouver to Lethbridge in a new Boeing mail ship. Bad flying conditions, experienced by many pilots flying through the Pass, were met by Capt. Brown and his delays were due to atmospheric conditions.

"I learned a lot about the hazards of mountain flying as a result of my first flight through the great pass," related the captain after he brought his ship to a safe landing. For one thing, he said, it would be hazardous to attempt an irkind of a schedule without the aid of two-way radio beams. These would have to be established all the way along the route which ends hundred 500 miles. Just how many stations would be required, he did not estimate.

Captain Brown left Vancouver alone. Everything went well until he was over Hope Mountain, where he ran into heavy snow conditions. Poor visibility developed and he was forced to head south, making an emergency landing at the field in Washington. He took off again and reached Grand Forks, B.C., before nightfall. After being grounded in that city for the night, he took off for Lethbridge with Mayor M. C. Henninger, of Grand Forks, as a passenger. Although forced to fly low, he piloted the plane from Grand Forks to Lethbridge a little over three hours, landing on the field three minutes before a snow storm started.

RECRUITS HELP DEFEAT LEAFS

Leaders in Both Divisions Downed Over The Weekend

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 18 (CP) — Two surprise victories scored over Detroit, Pittsburgh and New York Americans over the division league leaders, Maple Leafs and Rangers, provided the highlights of four matches played in the National Hockey League over the week end. Americans probably accomplished the greatest feat by trapping the high scoring Toronto Club from the score sheet and winning 4-0 while Detroit's victory over Rangers, 4 to 3 win, also came as a decided upset. While the pace setters of both divisions were meeting reverses, Boston and Canadiens battled to a 70 minute tie in Montreal and Chicago held Maroons to three all stale-mate in the Windy City.

Led by Harry Oscar Smith, obtained from Detroit in a player trade, Americans shut out the Toronto Maple Leafs 4-0. Bagging two tallies in the opening minute and adding a single tally in each of the last two frames the American lineup put their first victory of the season over the strong Irvin band. Herb McFadden, Art and Pat Primore, their two newcomers accounted for three of the goals while Joe Lamb tallied the final marker late in the third period. Lorne Chabot gave Ray Worters his fifth of the year and placed him in a virtual shutout with Canadiens for Canadiens for Canadian group.

Here is George Owens, clever defenseman of the Boston Bruins, who is proving himself a valuable asset to the American team. George is an expert stick handler and very brainy.

PRO ATHLETES ARE LEECHES

So Says Rev. J. Craig, Speaking Recently at Winnipeg

Winnipeg, Man.-(By The Canadian Press)—Professional sport and professional athletes as "leeches and "sucker hunters", Rev. J. Richmond Craig, uttered a scathing denunciation of the whole field of professional sports in a sermon at Grace United Church here recently.

"Fine fighting is the most rigid, graceful and the greatest graft of modern times," said the parson "it is no longer sport. There is no element of athletic chance. It is a pure organized steal of the lowest-kind.

"Only last week," the speaker continued, "over 5,000 unemployed men were given a free New Year's dinner in the face of that and in the face of our depression a dead-beat prize-fighter can come into Winnipeg, take away more money than would feed all these men."

The minister insisted that he had no quarrel with innocent amusement. He is heavily in favor of commercialized amusement, he said.

"No citizen has the right to forbid a man to enjoy himself", he said. "Some church-goers, wait their joy in religion. I want happiness. In wanting it I am happy. I think I am following the Master teachings.

The problem of correct use of leisure time was a serious one, he declared. Too many people were the type who had to be amused at all costs.

"Monday our amusements have become a burden to us," he asserted. Sharply criticizing the public for paying fabulous salaries to professional entertainers, Mr. Craig condemned people for allowing such things, at the expense of more worthy causes.

"These gamblers and professional entertainers get everything. They get the money and they make the front pages on the newspapers. Charity gets old clothes, discarded toys and coppers for collection."

The minister deplored the practice of a local newspaper of giving publicity to a bingo tournament. The bridge players were two of the greatest "sucker-hunters" in the world, he said.

"Only a few days ago," he said, "I was shocked to see a picture in an editor of one of our papers in Winnipeg standing beside a prize-fighter."

Mr. Craig believed that sport in the Old Country was on a much higher plane than it was in this country. He declared that professional sport here was neither sporting nor athletic in principle or in practice.

THE WAY THEY DO IT

We were having a fanning bee the other night with some of the old timers about the way hockey's stiffers get their goals, and Harold Musselman, diminutive but stocky right winger of Chicago Black Hawks provided the tidbit for the conversation. "Poison" has been all of that th every man in the district this season with his tricky change of pass and head on drive. All which got us around to the conclusion that the N.H.L. sharpshooters have a myriad ways of scoring goals. Elmer Ferguson, N.H.L. publicist, sized them up this way: Bill Stewart of Montreal Maroons depends on his strength and dynamic weighing 200 pounds is quick as a cat with powerful wrists giving him an iron bullet like stick. Charlie Conacher of the Toronto Maple Leafs and Howie Morenz of Canadiens are strictly fast moving speed with Morenz having a "rising shot." Both if it could be used by a baseball pitcher would make Babe Ruth's batting average shrink. Aurel Joliat, the little Canadien, does the unexpected and it is the unexpected that counts. Ebbie Goodfellow of Detroit keeps them low and hard. Carson Cooper, right wing of the same club, is famed for his scoop-shot getting him an iron bullet wrist stick. Women's Interests in the Home

CHILDREN AND TASKS

Beauty.....

BY HELEN JAMIESON

By Constance Cameron

Inasmuch as most of these household duties which are like our shadows--things which just have to be done--I believe it is rather important that a mother instill in her children, particularly the girls, if not a liking for these talks, at least an attitude of tolerance for the homely duties of life and a knowledge of efficiency attendant upon them.

It is my opinion that the basic distths for housework is planted at the time when little daughter wants to help" and Mother, rather than linger to show her how, tells her to run away and play. Now, as with all desires, if they are too rudely shattered at the beginning, they somehow can never want them again. We even build up an antagonism toward them.

That, then is the initial step. Let the child wipe spoons when she shows a desire to do so. Let her have her own bit of cake dough and small pans, her own broom or tiny vacuum cleaner. Now, as with just her house in order decends upon her mind, as a follow up, don't get panicky when the time comes that she loathes these tasks.

It is a phase of growth, when labor takes a serious so much more importance, and it will pass if you do not force these tasks upon her at this time.

A system which is especially farreaching if the mother is one of the ones which prompts a mother at this period to assign responsibility and punishments for misdeeds totally unrelated to home.

For instance, if Mary is late for dinner because she stopped to play with her companions, making her wash the dishes is about the worst form of discipline one can imagine, yet it is resorted to in many homes. What does it do? Does it make Mary decide to be on time tomorrow night? I think not. It merely rouses in Mary's breast a burning resentment for dish washing.

Make household tasks lead to something pleasant. "Let's wash the dishes right away so we can all sing together," or listen to a particularly good radio program, or go for a short ride before dark will certainly associate lovely thoughts with the task, rather than resentful ones.

Your attitude toward housework will be adopted by your child. If you teach him that it is drudgery to make the house shining and clean, he is apt to carry this idea of it through life. If it is a task of joy, if there is a spirit of happiness in making the home a lovely place, that spirit will become a part of the child's nature, just as easily.

Fashion Flashes

A sheer delight are the new semiclever frocks for informal evening wear. Useful and charming is a frock of red crepe roma. It has a deep V neckline in front that is marked by a jewelled clip, a high waist line marked by a beautifully cut yoke, and fan-shaped insets in front and back of the skirt.

Be wise and invest in a wrapround for one day but you can wear with a collarless, simple coat or with a plain suit. Sometimes it is a model in black Persian lamb, while one in mink could be worn with a lamb red wrap. • • •

An ideal idea for the smart, mature woman is to use a touch of patriotic feeling in the form of a bit of tercoon hat. A splendid model that turns sharply down one side and up the other, with the brim of which is done in deep purple velvet and has at the back about three tightly curled ostrich feathers.

Glinting glamor lingers in the new frocks made of woven metallic cloth. Evening frocks in this medium are generally done in a molded silhouette showing a slight peplum. A lovely new model, with a softly draped cowl bodice is of silver lame per red and gold threads woven in a crosbar pattern.

Study your tailor's dress that is the line that makes the hem of most of the afternoon and semi-evening frocks. Lovely is a velvet frock in dark prune color with fulness at the back caught by a large rhinestone buckle. It has shirring and radiating tucks.

Keep cosy while travelling by wearing one of the new four-piece knit suits. A useful model is one in beige, brown and white striped weave. The top coat has no collar but the large rolling revers and the jacket is worn outside the top coat. The tailored blouse is of white jersey.

Natural Curls Need Restraint

To the woman who has been pasting with artificial waves all her life, beginning with curling kids, burning her fingers with the iron, taking up marcel and finally reveling in the washable wave that you get when you sit beneath thirty or forty steaming little tea kettles, girls with naturally curly hair appear to be one of the blessed ones of the sisterhood. Yet Curly Locks is all too often cursed about her inheritance. Her spiral tresses have bouffancy and bounce, an appearance of luxuriant abundance which to her seems all that is required. She doesn't, as a rule, line up among the carriers of the elegant coiffure.

When Nature provides a frize, she provides material for a perfect undercut bob, which can be pumped full with waving combs or managed by trickier fingers and hand holdings. Her hair has only to be directed the way it should go. It is agreeable enough. In time, the pattern will show up clearly--each finger wave will help to establish the permanent wave. We aren't speaking now of the natural curl that will be a part of your own pattern, but of that mattress stuffing mop which cries out for restraint.

Thinning is necessary if the hair is thick, slipping it off at the sides, even on the crown, as well as at the back where the coiffure must do a close-in snuggle.

I may be all wrong; but it seems to me that there are many unlucky looking heads among the curly girls than among the straight tressed. I may be doing them an injustice. Perhaps the impression comes from the fact that one observes heavensent waves more than topcrests that have had misfortune forced upon them. It would seem that if a girl starts out with a fair advantage as to be forever free of cur worries she would afford to put extra time and attention on the arrangement of the thatch.

Naturally wavy hair looks best when..it is well past the shampoo stage, looking about as lustrous as the scalp is a factor in forming sleek, neat lines necessary now that the coiffure is formal and because the curls are inclined to be slack on the slightest scrubbing. It won't do really. Not if the hair is to remain in the lines and head and bodyguard from the scalp. Cleanliness is a hygiene measure.

No cold water rinses for bobbed heads; they lack curl. Brilliantine is good for them. It's good for any head of hair, but the curly head haven't any use for it. Sometimes alternate applications of hot water and brilliantine will put a quite crowded topknot in order with fresh More than one patient in the same week, a cashier and a dietetic clerical case together, or a patient dangerously ill shared his bed with a corpse. RATE INCREASE FOR INSURANCE

Many Reasons Given By Companies For The Raise

NEW YORK, N.Y., January 18.—Increases in the rates for Automobile Public Liability and Property Damage Insurance in force in this state have been announced by the United States Fidelity and Guaranty and Surety Underwriters.

The changes, which include elimination of the merit rating plan on passenger car policies, have been approved by Frank D. Van Antwerp, State Superintendent of Insurance. Increased horsepower, especially in lower priced cars, greater usage of automobiles in advent of heavy highway congestion and increased "family" use of cars were listed as reasons.

ACCEPT REPORT OF COMMITTEE

Meeting of Reparation Conference Will Be Short

London, January 18.—Predictions in London newspapers that the reparations conference at Lausanne would make final decisions until late in the year, were declared erroneous in authoritative quarters today.

In those quarters it was stated no official regarding an extension of the Hoover moratorium will be sent to the Lausanne meeting. It was added that such action is not necessary or considered likely during out the work of the conference.

The conference, it was stated, will accept the report of the basel committee of experts after a short meeting of perhaps only a few days and then consider extending a short reparations moratorium to that many. Six months, it was said, is the estimated time for the next real respite. No action regarding war debts is considered necessary at the Lausanne conference, it was said.

The chief expression of the prediction that the conference would be delayed until the end of the year, after a short session, was given in an article in the London observer.

SCREAMS FOIL HOLD-UP MAN

the sight of the weapon and backed away from him upstairs and door leading to the kitchen where her husband was, calling on him on telephone for the police, while she did so. During the distraction which followed the bandit was also tempted to locate the cash drawer, which was taken from its counter, was unsuccessful and immediately dashed out when he heard the lady telephoning for the police station. Mr. Smith at once ran out the back door in an attempt to head the robber off but he was already some distance down the road before the tracks which were nearby.

Search Fails

With the arrival of the police search was immediately commenced for the man, but he had already a good start in the darkness and no trace could be found of him. Owing to the fact that he was dressed in rough attire and had a cap pulled down over his eyes only a meagre description was obtained of the man, and beyond the fact that he was average in height and somewhat young in appearance little else is known. It is believed that he was just a tramp who decided the town on one of the freight trains which pass through the place, as he was not very well acquainted with the interior of the scene of his attempted hold-up.

Scene in Grain Store

Shortly after, the men word had been passed around by the police warning citizens generally to be on the lookout for strangers who appeared, one man was seen who was known to the two girl clerks in another store, entered and sought to buy some benzine, but left the store, telling him another man with intentions of holding up the store, immediately started to scream at the top of their voices and thus put the place into an uproar. While the girls there considering what it was all about, the police arrived on the scene and stra.ghtened things away. All the man wanted to do was to buy some chicken feed for which he was perfectly willing to pay, and he had heard nothing of an attempted robbery in the town just a short time before. It is known whether his order was filled after the excitement died down or whether he left without the purchase.

Although a close watch was kept on the various exits from the town the hold-up man was not sighted by the police who were on the lookout for the rest of the night and all day Sunday. Other localities have also been warned to be on the watch for the man but it is thought that he will try and get clear of this territory.

BANKRUPTCY BECAUSE OF PICKETING

Merchants in India Ask Gov't to Preserve Economic Life

SAVE BOMBAY

Many Picketers Arrested As Gold Being Shipped

BOMBAY, January 18.—(AP)—At least two score more Nationalists including a group of fourteen Self-ron-clad Bombaykra girl picketers, were taken into custody by the government today.

The fourteen girls were arrested outside the government mint for trying to prevent the shipment of gold.

Fourteen other Nationalists, including the so-called dictator of the local branch of the Congress, were arrested for making their own salt and while they were scooping pails full of water from the sea to be boiled.

Penalties for making salt range up to two years imprisonment at hard labor.

Editor Jailed

Syed Abdullah Brevil, editor of the Bombay Chronicle, Nationalist newspaper, was sentenced to two years imprisonment at hard labor for ignoring an order requiring him to report daily to the police.

To forestall the arrest of their picketers, the Nationalists began today to use pickets which appeared at the slogan, "Buy only Home Manufactured Articles." The pickets, flaming red, were plastered all over the city and urged the Indian people to 'practise national economy and follow the British example using home manufactured goods."

G. B. Halstead, a missionary and social director at the Lucknow Christian College, was requested to leave India because of an article he wrote for the British Social Reformer, telling upon the missionaries and Christians in India to pledge themselves to support the civil disobedience campaign.

A leading Bombay merchant, in an article in the times of India today declared attention to the commercial crisis brought about by the Nationalist movement.

"The heart of the city, he said, has ceased to throb with the closing of the principal markets and warehouses. "Bombay is heading for economic bankruptcy and retail business is faced with ruin, because of picketing, the activities of which was captioned "Save Bombay" and has urged the government to police the business area against aggression, as was done during the 1926 general strike in London, and he suggested also the appointment of a commercial delegation to restore the city's economic life.

Unshaken Faith in Future of Canada Expressed at Royal Bank Annual Meeting

"I have witnessed many depressions during the last fifty years and I see nothing in this one which weakens my faith in this country."—Sir Herbert Holt, President.

"While I do not wish to voice any prediction as to the date of business recovery, it will be very disappointing if an improvement does not take place in 1932."—M. Wilson, Vice-President and General Manager.

At the annual meeting of The Royal Bank of Canada held at the Head Office in Montreal, both the President, Sir Herbert Holt, and the Vice-President and General Manager, Mr. E. W. Wilson, were optimistic in their expressions of unqualified confidence in Canada. Sir Herbert Holt's remarks and words of wide business experience is reflected in his statements. "I have witnessed many depressions during the course of the last fifty years and I see nothing in this one, which weakens my faith in this country." The tone of both addresses was one of optimism, exemplified by Mr. Wilson's remark, "While I do not wish to voice any prediction as to the date of business recovery, it will be very disappointing if an improvement does not take place during 1932. The fundamentals of politics and finance in the principal countries are capable of bringing about such a result, and confident against any who block the way will be proved."

President pointed out that with improved world conditions and under that intricate web, improvement could be expected as the movement of trade matters which would result in a real return of confidence in the future. Mr. Wilson in his remarks he had referred to the unsatisfactory state of international banking system during a time when depression was at its worst and accentuating the depression in many other countries. He expressed the opinion that the world's satisfactory position of Canada could be attributed to the sound banking and stability of our banking organization and the way in which industry had been supported.

Before moving the adoption of the report Sir Herbert referred with profound regret to the death of Mr. Neill, Wilson, who spent in the service of the bank. "In his passing the bank has lost a valued officer and associates a loyal friend, and Canada a citizen of sterling worth and public spirit."

After declaring briefly with the situation in agriculture and the principal manufacturing industries, Sir Herbert said that the banking affairs are under way for a consolidation of the Canadian Bank of Commerce and in Eastern Canada, and expressed the opinion that this was contemplated though difficult to accomplish was a constructive one and highly desirable if Canada was to continue and maintain the supremacy to which she is entitled by reason of her natural advantages.

Railways.

The appointment of a railway commission was mentioned with approval and the belief expressed that such a commission should be capable of bringing in recommendations which would in large measure solve the present very serious situation caused by uneconomic competition and duplication of service. The President stated "Serious to the country of from 80/75,000,000 a year are possible and this without impairment of service to the public."

Imperial Conferences.

Pointing out that as long as other nations raise intolerable tariff barriers against British goods good it is necessary that the different parts of the British Empire protect themselves by concerted action, he expressed hope in the results of the Imperial Conference to be held in Ottawa, provided careful analysis and close study produced a scientific tariff structure which would stimulate reciprocal Empire trade without handicapping home industry or Canada."—Press.

The success of the National Service Loan was referred to as a notable achievement. He stressed the fact that both internal and external borrowings had been reduced by the decline in the activity of trade and that excessive expenditures by governments and municipalities had placed a heavy burden of interest payments on the people. "There never was a time in our history when it was so necessary to avoid extravagance of every kind, and governments, Federal, Provincial and Municipal, should follow the splendid example set by the British National Government in reducing the cost of administration and balancing their budget."

Closing his address Sir Herbert said in part, "It has been said that it is darkest just before the dawn, and in previous depressions conditions have seemed most discouraging at a time when improvement had already set in. The violence of the depression must of itself tend to produce a strong reaction. It may well be that the gold countries are now on the verge of a rise in the price level. With a sound and strongly integrated banking system, so important, invaluable as experienced securities of foreign governments, an industrious and virile people who have maintained their credit, we are justified in looking to the future with confidence."

General Manager's Address.

Mr. M. W. Wilson, Vice-President and General Manager, stated that maintenance of the banks' assets at a figure as high as $325,000,000 reflected not only the conservation of existing business but also the acquisition of new and desirable connections. He referred to the substantial oversubscription of the Dominion of Canada National Service Loan as an achievement of which our government and Canadians generally may well be proud.

Strong Liquid Position Maintained.

The liquid position of the bank was maintained at substantially the same ratio as a year ago, quickly realized assets being more than 44 per cent of liabilities to the public. In referring to the enviable record of the Canadian banking system during the period of world depression, Mr. Wilson said: "Once again the ability of the Canadian banking system to take care of the needs of the country has been clearly demonstrated. The lack of organization under which they operate enables our banks to take a broad view of finance and trade that come before them and I think it will be admitted that the banking system has met the new problems in a sympathetic and constructive manner."

Business in Other Countries.

Dealing with recovery, over the words used in describing the bank's experience during the last year in its relation to business, Mr. Wilson pointed out that the Bank's foreign branches have never been known to expose themselves to risk of loss through exchange fluctuations and as a result shall not have suffered as has last year had been entirely satisfactory.

Commercial Week.

The General Manager expressed the opinion that the recent drop in commodity price levels to the basis of pre-war conditions was the most satisfactory recovery in world business. He made favourable reference to the anti-depression measures being considered by the United States government and that have justified the hope that corrective measures would soon be at work in that country.

Business Psychology.

"As the world now realizes the factor of business psychology is one of paramount importance," Mr. Wilson declared. Dis-couragement and lack of confidence are largely responsible for the extremes through which business has passed. He indicated that we in Canada had been particularly fortunate in this respect and that the people of this country and in our ability to solve the problems which confront ourselves is above the average and in addition is largely justified by our past record and future prospects." Lack of international confidence was the main obstacle in the way to world-wide business recovery, Mr. Wilson went on to express the opinion that confidence could be restored by co-operation between the leaders of politics and finance in the principal countries. "Signs are not lacking that progress may be made along these lines and this form of the basis for the hope of recovery. I do not wish to venture any prediction as to the date of business recovery, it will be very disappointing if an improvement does not take place during 1932."

Mr. Wilson pointed out in support of that we must not get into the frame of mind in which we think of the future in terms of the past in business activities. The majority are holding their own, he declared, and while reduced earnings for the time being must be faced, we should be gratified that in this period of tribulation a great majority of our Canadian businesses are more than covering operating expenses and our agricultural population is staying on the land and maintaining the acreage under cultivation. Closing on a note of optimism, Mr. Wilson said, "There are signs of stabilization in a number of directions, our physical assets are being kept intact and, with reasonable economy and hard work, we shall find that Canada will be one of the first countries to feel the good results of business recovery."

Provincial Financial Control

It was moved by Michael Kennedy, seconded by G. McLaren that whereas we are aware that official information is being sought and the intention of the Ontario Government to place a financial control over the issue of municipal debentures we are given to say what rate on the dollar is anticipated by the issue of municipal council and that local municipal affairs are in a bad condition at present it is a thing of the past and that the township of Tyendinaga is equal to any municipal bureau subject to the control of an auditor appointed by the province and whereas we, the members of the municipal council of the Township of Tyendinaga in the County of Hastings, now in session, assembled, protest against the passing of any proposal that would take from municipal councils the privileges of borrowing to them and which would place a burden on the ratepayers of purse to pass into the hands of the Provincial Government.

Therefore, be it resolved, that we, the members of the council do direct that the clerk forward a copy of this resolution to J. F. Hill, M.P.P., Prince Edward, to the Premier and specifically requesting that he look into the matter and bring it immediately in regard to this matter.—Carried.

Moved by R. Sherman, seconded by W. H. Hall that the treasurer and clerk be authorized to sign and submit to the Ontario Department of Roads and Highways of the Province of Ontario, the petition of the corporation of the Township of Tyendinaga showing that during the period between the 1st day of July and December 31st, 1931, there has been expended upon the following roads the sum of $12,950.01 and respecting the following roads the sum amount as provided by the Ontario Highway Act 1931 and amendments thereto.—Carried.

Council was interviewed by a representative of the Belleville branch of the Bank of Montreal and Deputation to the date of business recovery, it will be very disappointing if an improvement does not take place during 1932."

Mr. Wilson pointed out in support of that we must not get into the frame of mind in which we think of the future in terms of the past in business activities. The majority are holding their own, he declared, and while reduced earnings for the time being must be faced, we should be gratified that in this period of tribulation a great majority of our Canadian businesses are more than covering operating expenses and our agricultural population is staying on the land and maintaining the acreage under cultivation. Closing on a note of optimism, Mr. Wilson said, "There are signs of stabilization in a number of directions, our physical assets are being kept intact and, with reasonable economy and hard work, we shall find that Canada will be one of the first countries to feel the good results of business recovery."

Prof. J. C. McLennan in Farewell Lecture in Toronto

TORONTO, January 18.—Prof. J. C. McLennan said farewell to Toronto Saturday night and in doing so announced research development in his department which he prophesied would bring famous discoveries and discoverers.

In saying good-bye to the university where he has been professor of physics since 1907, and of recent years dean of graduate studies, Prof. McLennan declared he was leaving behind a problem of surpassing interest, which might prove to be a gold mine of truth.

The research developments which the internationally famous physicist promised would be the foundations of the Canadian Institute of work covered the field of super-conductivity in metals, metals and alloys.

In scientific terms, he told the Royal Canadian Institute of work in the laboratories of his department, which he confidently expects will lead to "revolutionary changes" without loss of electrical energy.

LIBERALS SAY NO DIFFERENCE

Meet in Caucus on Saturday and Discuss Questions

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 18.—Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., for Elgin West and Ontario Liberal leader, and Liberal members of the Provincial Legislature met in caucus here Saturday afternoon to discuss tactics and policy for the coming session. The caucus followed a meeting of the management committee of the Ontario Liberal Association, at which questions of organization and support Mr. Hepburn as leader. The meeting also endorsed W. F. MacKenzie, K.C., as leader of the party in the Provincial House.

The Liberal policy on Hydro and the Provincial Power Commission was also discussed at the caucus and plans were laid for a policy in connection with a resolution of the management committee, asking the probe of the administration of the Provincial Hydro Commission.

Both Mr. Hepburn and Mr. Sinclair denied reports of differences in the ranks of the party, or dissension between themselves. Mr. Hepburn was re-appointed provincial leader in succession to Mr. Sinclair fourteen months ago, but previously met the members of the Legislature in caucus.

Mud Pours Into Minto Gold Mine

Special to The Intelligencer

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., January 18.—By the Canadian Press)—Officials of the Minto Gold Mine yesterday announced that a flood had forced temporarily to suspend operations now "to the expansion of a crack in the rock ceiling of the lower workings through which more than 150 tons of mud poured from the bottom of Lake Minto.

The inundation of the tunnel occurred on Saturday during the week-end when workmen were all on the surface.

"DUMBELLS" MAKE A BIG HIT IN BROCKVILLE

Brockville welcomed the Plunketts and their "Dumbells" back with open arms to the Brockville Theatre boards. Brockville has always been partial to "The Dumbells" and the affection was reciprocated as that burg was selected by the Plunketts for the opening bill for several seasons. Brockville Recorder-Times says of the first production of "The Dumbells" which appeared there last week, as follows:

"The Dumbells in "As You Were" at the New Theatre on Thursday night brought Captain M. W. Plunkett and his "boys" back "as they were" a few years ago when they were regarded as the providers of the last word in snappy, peppy and thoroughly satisfying entertainment for Canadian audiences.

"Abandoning the female recruits of more recent years the Dumbells veterans, aided by some newcomers including a 16-piece stage orchestra slipped over a performance which will rank with the best the Plunkett Dumbells fans revel in. 16 was typically characteristic of the Dumbells of former years—a bright show containing laughs which were handled in the inimitable Plunkett style, the medium of songs and reviata which, from the audience point of humor all the way through the bill and dividing evenly among the performers were "doing their stuff" to the accompaniment of real applause from several seasons ago.

"Over the Love of Fanny," a very funny Vanity comedy, "Hot Pete," a tuneful and melodious Talkartune and the latest Pathe Sound News, will be exhibited on the same program.

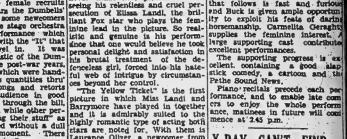
Previews and Reviews of Current Offerings at Belleville Theatres

At The Belle



LAND AND BARRYMORE ON BELLE SCREEN TODAY

In a role exceeding the dramatic power of his impersonations of the infernal lawyer in "A Free Soul" and the father in "Guilty Hands", Lionel Barrymore, as the malicious head of the Czarist Russian Secret Police in Raoul Walsh's "The Yellow Ticket" is now thrilling audiences at the Belle Theatre, where this Fox drama is now playing.

Though Mr. Barrymore is reputed to be a most genial and kindly individual in private life, one would never think that possible after seeing his relentless and cruel personifies of Klim Landi, the brilliant Fox star who plays the feminine lead in the picture. So realistic are his methods in the part since that one would believe he took personal delight in his characters in his brutal treatment of the despicable Russian villain. Rich in full web of intrigue by circumstances beyond the control.

"The Yellow Ticket" is the first picture in which Miss Landi and Barrymore have appeared together and it is admirably suited to the talents of both players as both characters are noted for. With them is Laurence Grant, a newcomer to the London and Broadway stage. The Three Ritz Brothers, Miss Landi's lover. The other players are Walter Byron, Sarah Paddon, Rita Carlisle, Mischa Auer, Beth Mackcliff and Arnold Korff. It is the latter Russian character actor Michael Mordkin's play that caused great comment in Russia several seasons ago.

"The Love of Fanny," a very funny Vanity comedy, "Hot Pete," a tuneful and melodious Talkartune and the latest Pathe Sound News, will be exhibited on the same program.

At The Capitol

BUCK JONES FIGHTS FOR LOVE AND DUTY

All lovers of westerns have a treat in store for them at the Capitol Theatre where "Buck Jones Ranger," a Buck Jones vehicle, is now showing. It is a thrill picture if ever there was one.

The plot revolves around a love between homesteaders in the Big Bend region of Texas and Mail Trail, a capitalist. The Texas Rangers are called in to settle the dispute and more particularly, Buck Jones in the role of a Texas Ranger, is assigned to the case. The action that follows is fast and furious and Buck is given ample opportunity to exploit his feats of daring and bravery. Carmelita Geraghty supplies the feminine interest. A large supporting cast contributes to perfect performance.

The supporting progress is an excellent one featuring a good slapstick comedy, a cartoon and the Capitol News.

Piano recitals precede each performance, and to enable late comers to enjoy the whole performance, matinees in future will commence at 2.45 p.m.

ONCE FOEMEN ACT AS HOSTS

Former German, Austrian Soldiers Bare Heads at Cenotaph

Kitchener, Jan. 18.—War wounds were forgotten and old foes met when the Old Comrades Club, composed of German and Austrian ex-veterans made their annual pilgrimage to their erstwhile enemies, the Canadian and British Army veterans.

Nearly two hundred attended the history-making gathering.

Earlier in the day 13 of the Old Comrades marched to the city memorial cenotaph and after a wreath bearing the colors of the Allied Nations and the red, white and black of Germany.

The fact that the men had served in different armies meant nothing much cheerished the principle which had prompted him to take up arms no matter for what country it may have been. They sang the same songs, spoke the same language, "Zu Lauterbach" was sung with "It's a Long Way to Tipperary," "The Watch on the Rhine" followed by "Pack Up Your Troubles", and then the whole assembled sang "Auld Lang Syne," linking their arms and shake-shaking down the days.

The density of population in New Zealand, according to the latest figures just announced, is approximately 13 persons to the square mile.

MR. AND MRS. JOE DOES HIS BIT TO START A BOOM

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN, No. 15.

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service)

By Edgar Rice Burroughs.

The panther, feeling the weight upon him diminish, quickly crawled from beneath the fallen tree trunk. And as Tarzan let the tree fall back to earth, the two beasts turned to look at each other. A grim smile played upon the ape-man's lips. Fear was a thing unknown to him. Yet he knew that he had taken his life in his hands to free this savage jungle fellow.

It would not have surprised him had the cat sprung upon him the instant it had been released. But it did not do so. As Tarzan climbed out of the tangle of tangled branches the panther stepped warily aside. After a moment's hesitation, the ape-man followed slowly west on the trail. To his surprise, the panther followed on behind him, like a dog following its master.

At length Tarzan decided that Sheeta was following him because of friendly feeling. Later in the day the scent of a deer sent Tarzan into the trees. When he had dropped his noose about the animal's neck, he called to Sheeta, using a purr similar to that which he had learned from panthers when they hunted in pairs. Almost immediately Sheeta came bounding through the underbrush.

At sight of the carcass of Bara and the smell of blood, the panther gave forth a shrill scream of hunger. Before Tarzan had cooked a portion, he tossed Sheeta some of the raw meat, and soon the two were feeding side by side. For several days this strangely assorted pair roamed the jungle together. When one made a kill, he called the other and thus they fed well and often.

JIM THE CONQUERER

Don Jaime was blushing as he met Roberta's glance. "The subject of deeply having been discussed thoroughly," he suggested, "what gain, now, if any, has Miss Antrim, on the League of Nations and the World Court? Do you admire them, there, and is a stump-tailed yellow dog the best for coons?"

He was too much for her, and deep in her soul, Roberta, grudgingly but admiringly, admitted it. She had a feeling of helplessness in this man's presence, for here was a new experience with her. She had never met a man who resembled him or him so ruthless, forceful and dominating.

Not knowing what to say, Roberta was silent and attacked her meal. When presently, her glance met Don Jaime's again he was smiling at her, whereupon she licked with a desire to pull his nose. "He has all the audacity and assurance of the Irish and all of the ego of the Latin," she thought, "and he isn't good looking at all. Still he isn't bad-looking. He's just masculine and knows it. All of his life he has been accustomed to being high and low tastes on this ranch; because these pecons of his rotow to him he thinks he can get away with murder. He's just a feudal baron who has established his feudal sway just far enough north of the Border to make good with it."

Providentially, it was not a long course dinner, such as Roberta, had expected would be served and which she had looked forward to with dread. A soup, a salad, a roast two vegetables, a light dessert and black coffee. That was all.

"He runs his household like a sensible man at any rate," the girl confessed. "And I haven't the thought that the average rancher possessed of a fine old gallery, facing on such a lovely old-fashioned garden as this patio contains, would eat inside!"

She watched a humming-bird flitting from flower to flower, saw a quail come forth and bear away a crust tossed him by Don Jaime. Then, as the shadows lengthened, the mocking-bird, replete with food and happy, perched in a lime tree and paid for their meal in melody. Roberta had never heard a Spanish mocker before and was delighted with the beauty and variety of their extensive repertoire.

Twentieth Instalment

You are fond of music? Don Jaime queried. Roberta nodded and he tossed a quick order in Spanish to one of his dusky maids.

"Going to turn on the radio," the girl thought. "Why does he do it? It spoils everything."

Again she had evidence of the fact that, whether she wanted to or not, she was destined to lunch with this man's peculiar personality. "Not the radio, señorita, but yet the victrola," he said gently, "I prefer the music of my people."

From behind the climbing passion vines on the gallery across the patio a guitar was presently heard and Roberta heard the mellow notes of a harp in certain fingers that she knew. Then a girl's voice—without much training, but possessing sweet and sympathetic —commenced to sing "La Golondrina."

"When I am unhappy," Don Jaime explained, "they sing that sad song to me and make me unhappier."

"Why don't you have them sing something joyful? They will sing whatever you desire, I take it."

"My dear Miss Antrim, no Hignsa ever wants to be made happy when he's unhappy. It's the salt-joy of poor health. We must feed our racial melancholy."

"You incorrigible Celt! Are these professional entertainers brought out from Los Algodones?"

"No, they're part of the ranch assets. That harp has been in our family since the first Hignsa emigrated to Madrid, Carmen Chavez, my riding boss's daughter, yearned to play it, so I sent her to El Paso for six months to get the hang of it. After that she had to figure it out for herself. She'd never do for the Metropolitan Opera, of course, but she's pretty good for a girl born north of Texas. When she has finished singing 'La Golondrina' she will be accompaniment her sister Conchita will strum a well-known guitar air of Mr. Cleo's. Hello, baby, you're getting sleepy? Tired after your long ride today, eh? Let it rock you."

Robbie had left his chair and climbed up into Don Jaime's lap; his thin little arm was around the brown, powerful neck, his head nestled under the big square chin. Don Jaime held him close with his left arm, and Roberta noticed that with his right hand he gently stroked the atrophied muscles of the boy's left leg.

The peaceful shadows crept over the patio, the music sobbed and mourned behind the passion vines, and the saddle-colored girl came not with some meat scrap on a plate and set the child down at the feet of the master, who whistled shrilly, whereupon two Airedale terriers came from the screen door leading to the galley and came hoping to escape, if the polite manner of their breed, the meat scraps Don Jaime fed them. Postponement of Debts Parley Meets with Opposition

Parley Postponement Not Acceptable Say United States, Germany

United States Feeling That Settlement Be Found in Europe

GERMANY OPPOSED

Elections Given as Reasons For Delay Which is Sought

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19 (AP)—The latest European overture for war debt postponement has found no encouragement in Washington.

The United States government is expected to inform Premier Laval of France in response to his inquiry, that a settlement of the troublous revolving European statesmen must be sought in Europe, not here.

There is no disposition to be blunt about it, not to close the door entirely to further discussion. If the European nations themselves take such steps as to restore confidence among themselves, a plea for further debt postponement might find sympathy here.

German Viewpoint

Berlin, Jan. 19.—Any plan to postpone the Reparations Conference at Lausanne will be "absolutely indacceptable" to Germany, it was stated in governmental circles today.

Germany might not object to postponement for a few days, it was said, in case Premier Laval does not complete his work with the French Chamber of Deputies, but will never be all. Besides, a government spokesman said, Germany must be given a voice in any plan to extend the reparations moratorium, as that was reported from Paris, of which no official notification has been received here.

In government circles it was insisted the proposed Franco-British

Staid Sober Horse Turns Skittish, Upsets Bottles

Considerable Damage to Rolling Stock as Bottles Crash

STRIKES POLE

It may have been because he was forced to work on the one day he considered his day of rest, it may have been too much hay and not a little to do, or it may even have been because the job was beneath his dignity, but the old horse that which had been borrowed by Mr. Herter of the West Moira Dairy of this city to help him out with his deliveries, when his own horse became sick last week, threw up his heels, lowered his head, gave a preliminary buck and bolted down early one morning to the serious bemusement of several empty bottles all the way from Ridley street along the high road to Trounce street and down that street until he landed up with the wagon shafts embracing a telephone pole and standing out some distance on either side.

During the mad ride the wagon which was bumped severely along the hard cobblestones of that road, and rounded the corners at breakneck speed, flattened out while the horse were rapidly parted under the strains of the shafts being bent and further maddening the horse as it tugged about his body. He was finally brought to rest against the telephone pole which he collided with, the shafts of the wagon left were the shafts which all efforts had failed to dislodge and which held him securely against the pole until Mr. Harper could secure him.

No reason is given by Mr. Harper for the horse's run, except for the fact that the animal had been in active for some time and had travelled regularly in the stable of the man from whom he had borrowed him. He was generally known as a staid and quiet old horse and had never before been known to run away. However it seems that he was not quite suited to such routine work as delivering milk to thirsty customers.

So completely were the harness, wagon and contents demolished that an appraisal of the damage is tentatively announced as being in the neighborhood of four hundred dollars.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Jan. 19—Repairs to their motor boat so that they might attend their fishing nets after trip to their home at Bayfield, Wis., were the principal reasons why Leon and Joseph Doulin, 27, and his brother Wilfred, 30, who were cast ashore near Coldwater, Ont., yesterday after drifting six days on Lake Superior in an open boat.

The brothers, missing since last Tuesday when they left their home near Bayfield to examine their fishing nets in waters off the Apostlands, were blown ashore about 70 miles from Onionagon.

Weak and cold they were found by Louis Cook, caretaker of a summer cottage and taken to his home. Their motor boat, a sudden gale upset their boat and plunged them into the water, deadening the ignition of their motor. They had been without food the greater part of the time their boat drifted helplessly on the lake.

PORTSMOUTH PENITENTIARY OVERCROWDED

No Discomfort Caused The Inmates Says Gen. St. P. Hughes

NO RIOTING

Were 1,400 Persons in Prison in 1918, Now 4,000

Ottawa, Jan. 19 (CP)—Although Portsmouth penitentiary is somewhat over-crowded, conditions there are not so bad in this district as at some of the other penitentiaries in Canada, Gen. W. S. Hughes, superintendent of penitentiaries, said this morning. Convicts are being comfortably housed at Portsmouth, he stated. Inmates who cannot be accommodated in cells are being taken care of in corridors of the penitentiary building.

General Hughes said that it had been found necessary to erect new Portsmouth cell blocks to time by by sending detachments of convicts to penitentiaries in other parts of the Dominion. This had been done. A number of these men had been sent to St. Vincent De Paul, and also to Saskatchewan. Co-operative undertakings had been made to prosecute a building program which would relieve the congestion in the penitentiaries in different parts of the Dominion.

As an indication of how the penitentiary population has grown, Gen. Hughes said that in 1918 there were 1400 persons confined in Portsmouth penitentiary, now this number had increased to over 4,000. From the point of view of penitentiary holding, he said, Canada was better off than any part in the world. Canada had not had any rioting in recent years.

No Damage Done to Fall Planting by Warmth

No appreciable damage has yet occurred to the fall planting of spring bulbs, although the planting has been carried out, say sevral prominent agriculturists, owing to the fact that such little frost has been experienced so far has not been sufficiently severe to freeze the ground to a depth of more than three or four inches. If it were not for these conditions would be a great deal more unfavorable as the seeds which were planted would be more developed and commencing to germinate, with more likelihood of being nipped by the first frost that happened to come along.

Although there has been considerable warm weather lately it has not been of such duration to develop the plants to the stage where they may be harmed, and while a good fall of snow would be welcomed at this point, so far there has not been sufficient cause to justify any alarm over conditions now prevail-

H. Bennett of C.P.R. Is Instantly Killed as Jigger Hits Spaniel

Small Car Proceeding at Good Rate at Time of Accident

THROWN ON HEAD

Eyewitness Tells Story of Tragedy Near Pump House

Derailed by a small black dog which jumped in front of it, a speeding gasoline jigger in charge of Mr. Harry C. Bennett, signal maintenance man employed by the Canadian Pacific Railway, and residing in Belleville, this city, tipped over, throwing the man onto the tracks a quarter mile west of the filtration plant at nine-fifteen this morning, and instantly killing him by striking of the skull as he hit the hard roadbed when thrown off. Employees of the filtration plant, on word from Mr. G. E. Ford, who owned the dog and who was at the scene of the accident, immediately telephoned the police and the coroner's office of district, Dr. G. S. Cronk, who hastened to the scene, and with the aid of other two more men who had been attracted to the spot, removed the body from the tracks to the jigger where it still lay, and sought for means of identification of the man among his clothing. No papers were found, however, and it was until some time later when communication had been established with the city police station that the name of the dead man was definitely determined. He leaves a wife and two small children who at present reside at the above address in this city.

Falls on Back of Head.

When visited later by the press shortly after the unfortunate accident had occurred marks of the machine which left the track after the moment of impact on the road were still visible. Following the animal the machine which was said to have been travelling very high rate of speed, flew into the air, throwing the man from under it and then fell back on the ties still travelling along the road bed. When the man was first seen it was apparent that he had landed on the back of his head; the leather helmet which was worn by him was not sufficiently thick to absorb the force of the blow and he was killed instantly. The dog which was unmarked in any way was also dead when help had arrived. This was verified by Mr. G. E. Ford who gave his version of the happening.

Used to Chase Jigger

Mr. Ford, who owned the dog or at least had charge of it, stated that he had gone for a short walk down by the pier shore and was returning with Mr. Wilson, where he has been visiting, with the dog which accompanied him, when the jigger was seen to start. As he started back across the tracks with the intention of going to work at home. The dog then was some distance behind when he started to run and no attention was paid to him. Just then, he relates, he heard the noise of the jigger coming and looked back to see where the animal was. As he was in the act of looking after the machines when they happened to pass each other he was afraid that some day he would be run over. In an attempt to avoid the machine which was coming at a great rate of speed the dog had apparently become confused in its attempt to get out of the way, but at such velocity was the jigger travelling that it was impossible to clear of it and was struck in the hind quarters, knocking the animal clear off the tracks where it hit the ties and rebounded high into the air striking the back of its head as far as he could ascertain, was instantaneous. Mr. Ford, who is a veteran of the war, Mr. Ford immediately set out to the filtration plant where he employees telephoned to the city police. An ambulance belonging to the Belleville Burial Company returned the body to the city where it is now resting. The penitentiary branch company for the inquest which will be held at 4:30 this afternoon. Constable Stringer will collect evi-

SMITH CASE IS SENT TO TRIAL

Evidence Taken in Case of Finding of Burning Candle

At the close of the preliminary hearing in the police court this afternoon Magistrate Mikel today, Richard Smith was committed for trial on a charge of attempting to set fire, or burning, one of the premises known as 189 Front St.

Following the evidence, submitted by Crown Attorney Donnan and at the close of this testimony Smith was asked if he wished to make a statement, his counsel, Mr. J. D. O'Flynn, replying in the negative.

The police court room was filled to overflowing when the first witness, Mr. S. J. Fisher, was called in.

Mr. Fisher testified that he had sold two fire insurance policies to the accused, Smith, which was taken out in 1929 and the other in 1931. He also testified that the two policies were for insurance to the amount of $1,000 on the stock and contents of the store operated by Mr. Smith and were in force on the 11th inst.

Constable Taken

Mr. R. G. Clarke, photographer, testified that he had taken photographs of the interior of the front flour and feed store on the morning of January 12th, 1932. He was asked that in order to get a perfect picture, the exact spot where the candle was found burning, it was necessary to tear away part of the partition, as the candle was too far inside the partition to photograph. Mr. Clarke identified the photographs produced as those taken by him.

Clinton Brickman was the third witness called and stated that he had been engaged as appraiser to valuate the stock in the store of Smith. After taking inventory he valued the stock in the store at $726.14. City Engineer Mott stated that he had drafted a plan of the ground floor of the building and identified the same.

Constable Izzard was called and testified that he had found the candle burning. Crown Counsel Izzard also stated that he did not touch or move the candle as evidence, but immediately informed Sergt. Edwards, Chief Kidd and Fire Chief Lynch. He had gained entrance to the store through a back door which he found open.

Fire Chief Lynch

Chief of Police Kidd testified that he had received a call to the Smith store at 9.15 p.m. on the night in question. He arrived there about the same time as Fire Chief Lynch and they, together, inspected the store thoroughly. Chief Kidd produced a statement signed by Mr. Smith stating that he had locked his store at about 6.15 o'clock on the night of January 11th, 1932, and had not been in the store since, he stated.

Fire Chief Lynch was called and testified that he had been called to the scene of the alleged attempt on the night of January 11th. He also stated that he had inspected the building thoroughly and found no trace or any attempt of a break-in. He swore that after examining every detail possible he had extinguished the candle which had nearly consumed and would soon set the paper and wood on fire. He also testified that, according to his calculations, the candle had been set up inside the partition some time previous to 5 p.m. on the day that there was considerable amount of dust accumulated around about, on the candle and other articles, such as papers and rags, found in the partition.

Flour Missing

"Len" Riley gave evidence that he had worked for Mr. Smith for over two years. On the night in question he, personally, had locked the rear door, which Constable Izzard found open. He also stated that on January 13th, 1932, when he was allowed to enter the store there were seven bags of flour missing and more had fallen and broken near the rear entrance. He stated that Mr. Smith was the only one who had a key of the store in his possession, that he knew of.

On being called to the witness stand again, Chief Kidd swore he had examined the candle and the store very carefully on the night of January 11th, and saw no signs of broken bags or flour or signs of a break-in. He also stated that police officers and firemen were on guard in the building until after the fire marshal had made his investigation. Chief Kidd also produced a sealer in which he had placed the oil-soaked rags and candle found burning in the partition of the Smith store.

After hearing the evidence of the Crown, his Worship thought there was sufficient evidence to warrant a trial and committed the accused, R. J. Smith, for trial at the next court of competent jurisdiction.

DEMAND FOR MILK GROWS

Milk Production Holds Up Well Because of Weather

Inquiry among milk dealers as to the effect (if any) of the state of the city water supply, on their business, brought forth the information, that the demand for milk had increased materially. One dealer stated that he had sold a thousand more quarts of milk last week, than customarily.

It was further stated that the nearly supply of milk was more than sufficient to look after any extraordinary demands made on it. The cattle were able to graze all through the fall and part of the early winter and the prevalence of mild winter weather had permitted much more outside exercise, and they were consequently in better condition. Again buyers from the United States who have been much in evidence in the fall and winter months of the past few years, purchasing cattle in this district have invaded this district the present season, the buyers centering attention on beef cattle.

BARE DOZEN LIE IN HOSTEL

Transient Wave at Low For Season During Night

Twelve men were the sole occupants of the dug-out on Front street last evening, and of this number nearly all were men who had been in Canada only a short time, augmenting on the small numbers who are passing through the night mass in charge stated that it was not on account of a sudden increase in prosperity or employment but rather the fact that transients go in waves; some evenings there are more—some evenings less. But it seems the majority are expecting a cold snap with a lot of disagreeable weather to follow this present warm spell and are staying in the larger centres such as Toronto and Montreal. Often, too, some transient freight train that they are on seems to be delayed and they are not there to want to get off when Belleville is reached. Just one or two nights ago there were but two there but seven of them on one train. When Belleville was reached the spokesman for the gang tossed a coin to see whether or not a decision over would be made in Belleville, or whether they would stick with the train as far as Kingston. The coin was tossed and Belleville won; they did not get off. Often, too, some trains in Belleville last night were loud in their thanks for the present spell of warm weather—"even box car tops are not so tough when the snow and cold wind isn't blowing," one of them remarked.

RESIDENT OF TRENTON DIES

Mrs. Jennie Lockridge Dead After Lengthy Illness

TRENTON, Jan. 19.—(Special)—Mr. Harry Smith, the popular manager of the Trenton Theatre is back on the job again. He was in a serious accident while going to his home on Toronto for Christmas. His car was completely wrecked and Mr. Smith was seriously injured.

Many of his friends will be glad to see him back on his job as he always took a great interest in the sports of the town. Mr. Mongeon-Ayre will be glad that he is back as he can now do his work instead of answering inquiries as to Harry's state of health.

Mrs. Jennie Lockridge of Albert street, Trenton, passed away at her home on Sunday night. She was born in Trenton and has lived here practically all the 62 years of her life. She leaves a wide circle of friends to mourn her death.

She is survived by her husband Samuel and one son, Charles Lockridge of Trenton and one brother Wm. Zimpey of Oshawa, Phillip of Detroit and one sister Mrs. Annie Aaron of Muskegon, Mich.

She was a member of the Anglican church. The funeral services will be held at her home on Albert street at 3.30 Wednesday afternoon. Interment will take place at St. George's Cemetery.

NO TREES ARE TAPPED HERE

Some Centres Report Successful Maple Tapping

While reports come in of residents of other districts tapping the sugar trees and making maple sugar, a check-up of the district shows that there are not many to be found in or around Belleville engaged at the task...

When asked, Mr. H. B. Hamilton of Foxboro remarked that warm weather such as we have been having lately does not necessarily mean that sap can be secured from any tree that is tapped, even though an odd tree will perhaps yield sufficient to enable a worker to make a small amount of the sugar. However the work connected with gathering sufficient to enable them to do so would not make up for the amount of sugar they would get, and those who have been doing so have been doing it more for the pastime they have been getting than anything else. To tap a tree in this weather would just about ruin it, as the flow could not be counted on, would spill it wide open. "I don't think you will find much sap in any of the trees today," he finished, "as the least change in the weather would spell finish to it, so up of what little sap is running."

IMPROVEMENT OF ZWICK'S ISLAND APPROVED

Changes in Penitentiary Staff Announced from Ottawa

Prison Officials Will Leave Posts March 31

Change at Collins Bay

Supt. Hughes Reaches Age For Retirement at Seventy

PONSFORD ILL

Inspector Jackson to Return to Ottawa Post

Ottawa, Jan. 19.—After thirty-nine years of government service, Brig.-Gen. W. S. Pierre Hughes, superintendent of penitentiaries, is being retired, it was announced this week by Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice. He has reached the age limit for retirement.

Two other changes were contained in the minister's announcement. Warden J. C. Ponsford, of Portsmouth Penitentiary, Kingston, Ont., also is being retired, because of illness.

Inspector Jackson, of Ottawa, who has been acting warden of the preferred class penitentiary at Collins Bay, a unit of Portsmouth penitentiary, will return to Ottawa to act as an inspector.

Posts Vacant

The Civil Service Commission is advertising for the following positions: superintendent of penitentiaries, warden at Portsmouth penitentiary and warden at British Columbia penitentiary to replace Warden Edgett who has been chief of police of Vancouver. In the meantime, Inspector H. G. V. Smith of the penitentiary service, Ottawa, will act as Warden at Portsmouth, and R. M. Allen, who has been the structural engineer at Ottawa, will take charge of the Collins Bay prison.

One of the last official actions of General Hughes was to conduct an investigation into the escape from Portsmouth of a prisoner, Gordon Calvert. He was at large several days after climbing the wall of the prison. The probe was conducted last week and a confidence report filed with Mr. Guthrie.

Gen. Hughes' Career

Brig.-Gen. Hughes, born June 2, 1861, in Sorina, Ont., was a brother of Major-General Sir Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia and defence when the Great War broke out. General Hughes joined the government service in 1893 as warden's secretary and clerk of industries. In 1913 he was appointed inspector of penitentiaries and in 1916, after a long period of war service, he was appointed superintendent of penitentiaries.

A long association with the militia, with active service in the Northwest Rebellion and the Great War, was rewarded in 1918 with promotion to Brigadier-General after General Hughes had been in the trenches for seventeen months. He had been in command of the 14th Battalion at Montreal, Que., when the war broke out and helped to organize the 21st Eastern Ontario Battalion which he took to France.

No Blotting

Under the administration of Gen. Hughes the penitentiary system of Canada enjoyed a complete freedom from prison riots and is the only civilized country in the world to enjoy such immunity. Canadian penitentiaries have also developed a high state of efficiency in that successful escapes have been reduced to a minimum.

J. C. Ponsford had been Warden of Portsmouth penitentiary since 1915 up until the time of his appointment to the position, he had resided at St. Thomas.

He has been prominent in the municipal and sports affairs of Kingston since moving to that city. Several years ago he was vice-president of the Kingston team in the Central Ontario Valley Baseball League and he has long been a leader in curling circles.

FUNDS EXHAUSTED

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 19.—Ontario's relief work funds are exhausted, Hon. J. D. Monteith, Ontario Minister of Public Works and Labor, said. This did not apply to funds for direct relief, he explained. More than $12,000,000 had been spent in Ontario relief work since the scheme came into effect, he said.

BOND SALE BY CITY PLANNED

Special Committee Named to Negotiate Disposal of Debentures

Recommendations passed at the committee meeting on Thursday night by the council and new business was transacted on Monday night by the council in committee with Alderman Harry Hill in the chair. A new conveyor belt for the street sweeper was ordered purchased at a cost of $430.00, duty and taxes paid. The new belt is an absolutely necessity as it is impossible efficiently to operate the machine with the present equipment. Sir. Hardie had picked up one mail bag, for which he had signed with Mrs. Ethel Hendrie, post mistress, who also conducts a dry goods store there.

The value of the five packages of stolen registered mail is unknown, and will not be estimated until after days of investigation. In any event, not all the five packages was insured by the senders.

The mail bag was found by Elmo Bullock, 912 Kingston Road, who drives mail in the Pine Hill district. Seeing a Government mail truck parked without lights on his own right-of-way early, he and with a man in it—he became suspicious and telephoned the post office at Forest Hill, who came and took possession. Constable Mc Pherson and Chief Fraser came quickly and took the car up to the Forest Hill station, where it was claimed by District Superintendent of Postal Services, Alex M. Gibson, and his chauffeur, J. Nelson Craig of 74 Bronsaby Boulevard.

LIQUOR IN SMALL BOTTLES

12 Oz. Size For Medicinal Use Will Not Fit Pocket

Toronto, Jan. 19.—"Before long it will be possible to buy liquor in Ontario only in flat bottles that can be carried size now carried in the pocket," Premier Hepburn said this day. "The Liquor Control Board has definitely decided to adopt such a smaller bottle size, mainly for medicinal use."

The newspaper quotes Sir Henry Drayton, chairman of the Board, as saying: "We have decided on a 12-ounce bottle. We have designed a bottle shape which will be suitable for pocket carrying. If we find that this article is being misused as a pocket flask or that its size is being abused, we will recall it in short order."

Back to Land Movement On

Sudbury, Jan. 19—That hundreds of unemployed miners and similar workers, mostly of foreign origin are participating in a "back-to-the-land" movement in this district, is shown in a record number of applications received by the Crown Lands Agency during 1931, in less than a score of townships, all being within twenty-five miles of the city. Total applications for Crown lands during 1931 amounted to 254. This is more than 100 per cent. increase over the total for 1930.

Driver Finds Truck Gone From in Front of Substation

VALUE NOT KNOWN

One Bag Taken; Rest of Toronto Mail is Recovered

Toronto, Jan. 19—Boldly driving off with a truckload of Government mail, presumably left parked in front of 1272 Yonge Street, at Postal Sub-Station No. 28, unknown bandits made the mail haul, containing five packages of registered mail, and a few loose letters, and then abandoned the truck and the bags at the corner of Yonge street Crescent and Spadina Road, Forest Hill Village.

David J. Buchanan, 87 Harcourt Avenue, driver for W. H. Fenwick, 561 Lepan Street, Government mail collecting contractor, told police that he had left the truck with the mail just a matter of minutes while he went into the substation to make his collection. When he returned the car was gone and it anywhere, and he promptly reported the theft to police. In the substation he had picked up the one mail bag, for which he had signed with Mrs. Ethel Hendrie, post mistress, who also conducts a dry goods store there.

The value of the five packages of stolen registered mail is unknown, and will not be estimated until after days of investigation. In any event, not all the five packages was insured by the senders.

BRITISH SPEED EXPERTS PLAN SERIOUS INVASION OF EUROPE

An invasion by a team of British racing drivers with British cars into the most cherished preserves of Continental road racing is contemplated by a group of the best drivers in the Motherland. The Italian "Mille Miglia" or 1,000-mile race, held every spring, is the only contest of its kind in the world, and last year for the first time in the history of the race, an English car competed, driven alternately by an English and an Italian driver, neither of whom could speak the other's language. It finished second, much to the surprise of the Italian people. In this year's race, April 9 and 10, British drivers propose to enter a team of three cars, which would be driven by the best racing team the Motherland could produce. Sir William Morris, British motor car magnate, will back the venture, and Sir Henry Birkin (right), will be one of the drivers. It is expected Lord Howe will captain the teams.

EXPERIENCES RECALLED AT PEACE PARLEY

Tells of Unrecorded Happenings Behind Scenes

Montreal, Que. (CP) — Some of the unrecorded happenings at and behind the scenes of the Paris Peace Conference of 1919 and the signing of the Versailles treaty were told recently in an entertaining fashion by Edouard Carteron, Consul-General of France, at a meeting of the Women's Canadian Club here.

How Clemenceau was managed skilfully by one person and another was revealed by M. Carteron, at the last moment the "Tiger of France" nearly upset the arrangements for the ceremony of signing the Versailles treaty and all because he had a sentimental desire to stand beneath a cherub in the ceiling, which had been the first thing to catch his eye in the mornings when he was lodged in the Hall of Mirrors as a soldier in 1871. However, all went according to the last arrangements, of which M. Carteron had been in charge.

Pressure was also the questions of the painters who wanted to bring large canvases into the hall at Versailles, the journalists, the moving picture men, and the photographers. The latter two categories were admitted to Clemenceau and managed to get a pictorial record of points where they could take photos of the scene. He had some of the photographers and journalists should be affixed to the treaties. He wished it done after the signing and when it was pointed out to him that three hours would be needed in the time of the ceremony declared that he wanted it done so and that was enough. The choice of those in charge of arrangements was to have the seals affixed the night evening, and when Balfour was approached and asked to deal with the dilema, Clemenceau gave way at once. Consequently, M. Carteron said, the signature ceremony took but 37 minutes.

ONE KILLED, ONE INJURED

Car Crashes Into Pile of Rocks Near The Soo

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Jan. 19—Bert McKinley, 40, of this city, was killed, and John Whitier, 45, was seriously injured, when an automobile left the highway Saturday night, crashed into a telephone pole and a pile of rocks, and overturned.

McKinley, who was taken from beneath the wreckage of the car, died within a few minutes. Whitier, owner of the car, was thrown clear and was gashed and bruised about the head.

The accident occurred on the Sudbury highway, about 20 miles east of here.

RECOVER BODY OF SCHOOLBOY

Funeral of Billy Anderson Takes Place at Trenton

Trenton, Jan. 19 (Special) —The body of young Billy Anderson, who fell from the C.N.R. bridge on Friday evening into the river and was drowned, was recovered on Saturday afternoon about 2.30. Numerous boats had been searching all the day using various equipment, when Mr. G. Ellis located the boy. The body was found near some boathouses about 75 yards below the bridge.

The funeral took place Tuesday morning, services being held at St. Peter-In-Chains Cathedral. The boy Scout troop of which he was a member, belonging to the Eagle Patrol, was out in a body. The pall bearers were Boy Scouts from the troop: C. Ellis, A. Duffy, A. Shonker, A. Billings, P. Turcote, R. Hutchinson.

None of the old timers in Trenton can remember back to when the river and a great part of the bay was open as it is now at the end of the year.

The village of fish shanties has disappeared.

From the shore it looked like a lawn recitation by the flood, making one think of the Mississippi, shacks leaning all ways, his home floating and even sinking in the bay. Some of the owners secured boats and endeavored to rescue their shanties. It is more or less of a tragedy to some of the men as they made their living from the fish caught through the ice.

If the ice condition continues there will be very little ice cut in the bay this year. This will be a serious loss to many as a great deal of ice is cut from the bay yearly, besides giving employment to many.

POLICE USE THEIR BATONS

Uproar Created at Trial of John McGovern, M. P.

Glasgow, Scotland, Jan. 19 — A dozeny mounted police and forty constables used their batons yesterday on a crowd which created an uproar outside the sheriff's court during the trial of John McGovern, M.P., and eleven others, charged with employing violent tactics on Glasgow Green last Autumn.

"Two men and one woman were arrested, and several of the constables received minor injuries in the melee. The charge against Mr. Mc Govern was declared "not proven" and not guilty, and when he was released and boarded a tramcar for

Garbage Dumping Into Island Excavations Favored

LABOR SUGGESTIONS

Aid. Donahue Answers Critic of Public Works Department

Four delegations interviewed the city council at their second meeting of the year on Monday night, but even this did not prevent the council from concluding its business within a reasonable hour. There was no quibbling on any question and each question was given earnest consideration by the members present. The whole council was in attendance and took a keen interest in the multiple workings of council procedure.

Improve Zwick's Island

C. J. Symons, chairman of the Parks Board of Bellville, Findlay and E. Colling of the same organization, formed the first deputation heard. They spoke on the question of beautifying Zwick's Island. There are a number of holes that need to be filled before the levelling process can start and Mr. Symons suggested that when the contract for the removal of the garbage is considered this year, all the garbage should be dumped in these holes. When possibly would entail an extra expense for transportation of the fill, but at the same time fill in the excavations with the fillings. It would be impossible to draw the garbage in during the winter months, the garbage would be dumped on the ice and heading to the island and used as a basis for a fill. Mr. Symons pointed that the request he stated in writing and that he had also dealt with at the next committee meeting and that he would be the only spokesman. The contract for hauling the garbage will be let in May and the council will have ample time to think the proposition over.

Unemployment Questions

James Shepherd, of the unemployment association, the next speaker, had a few facts before the council for their consideration. He asked that all workmen having any property in the city from which they derived an income and the workmen who was receiving a pension be taken off the city list for unemployment relief. He also requested that there be a better distribution of shovels when more shovellers were required as some of the men had been forced to walk miles trying to grab a shovel, during the last storm. He suggested that a number of workers he asked the council to grant Frank Rayfield the right to distribute the shovels, consulting the council or chairman of public works. The man had not been a resident in the city for at least twelve months. The distribution would apply only to the single men. "The married men are against the city foreman," said Mr. Shepherd, "consequently I suggest the man haphazard for city work."

At this point Alderman Donahue, chairman of public works, asked the Worship if he might speak and being granted permission to do so, he was elected by the people of Bellville to govern the city properly and he going to try to get the best value for every dollar that was spent in his own department. I gave the city foreman the right to hire and fire men and to certain jobs for I want a man that can do the job for the best interest of the city and the man that knows what he is doing. The city foreman has been on the work that they want returns. If there is anyone dissatisfied with my methods they have the same privilege to put me out of the office as to put me in," said Ald. Donahue.

Wage Clause Removed

Mr. Allingham speaking for the Trades and Labor Council, asked that the fair wage clause in every contract be inserted or where the city supplies the money. He commended the several jobs done last year that labor was supplied to the contractor lower than the prevailing wage rate of the city. He did not think that fair to the working man or artisan. He spoke particularly about the low wage rate in the city, completed last year and also intimated that the new filtration plant was completed without any local manual being employed.

His Worship told the speaker that a letter had been received from the Trades and Labor Council respecting the fair wage clause and a committee had been appointed from the council consisting of Aldermen Hall, Bennett and Donahue to meet the Trades and Labor Council to discuss with them rates of pay and other matters set out in their communication.

Asked Co-operation

H. T. Fairfield, the newly elected president of the Chamber of Commerce, with the City Clerk, asked council to show the same co-operation to the Chamber of Commerce that had been shown in past councils. Mr. Fairfield intimated that the Manager of the Chamber of Commerce, J. O. Herity, had a number of fine propositions on hand at the present time and it was the aim of the Chamber of having at least three new industries from the other side beats in Bellville during this coming year. The council has always been most kind in times past and we hope for a continuance of that co-operation," said Mr. Fairfield in closing. Mr. Illsley spoke a few words reiterating what had already been covered by the previous speaker. The council assured the delegation that the members were behind any movement for the advancement of industry in Bellville and his Worship, Mayor Tice, stated that he made that a point in his inaugural address.

Again Mr. Ayling took the floor for a reduction of his water rate as he had used considerable of his water to keep Harriett Street free of dust during the time the street was used as a detour. This matter will also be considered by the chairman of Water Works, Ald. Bennett. Art Sisaic appeared before the council requesting better regulation respecting those engaged in the hair dressing business. He asked the council to make all engaged in the profession pay the same fee as those on Front Street had to do and also asked that the council request that places of business be kept in a sanitary condition, the same as in respect of established businesses. He left a number of suggestions on the table for the guidance of the council and these possibly will be considered in the near future. These being all the delegations that had been received the body went into committee of the whole for the transaction of business.

EXPECTING TOO MUCH

The way of the man who has had a successful or famous parent is often difficult. The world expects too much of the heirs of the famous, and the children themselves do not begrudge their fathers the honors shown their memory.

Many men have lived whose sons have also been great. The poet Oliver Wendell Homes is one, the Dickenses, the Tennysons and Gladstones are among others.

Of course genius flares up suddenly for causes largely unknown and it is as unfair to expect too much of the son of a genius as it is to expect too much of the father of a genius. Genius is the peak it is not the average and it is rare that two geniuses of about equal importance stand in the relationship of father and son.

Psychologists and psychologists may be able some day to explain why this is true.

DISTURBING SCENES

Report says some men peeped through a broken window in the rear of Barrie jail and saw capital punishment executed upon a fellow being.

Executions are awful proceedings, and Attorney General Price has stated that every effort is made to have them carried out with as much decency and decorum. They are the last resort of the law-abiding to protect society. In view of the terrible fright of the executed, it is thought that men and women would not linger after midnight to catch a glimpse of the gruesome sights as a fellow mortal is being put to death.

The men who furtively saw the death scene should feel ashamed and so do they have participated in such a disturbance.

Morbidity does prompt some people to seek such disturbing scenes, but the great majority of people would shun such an awful scene with its searing memory.

Only the necessary officials should be present to witness an execution and those who saw by breaking a window (if they did so) should be punished.

An investigation will be held and the circumstances thoroughly probed.

The attorney general commenting upon this incident, remarked that this would tend to support the contention that all executions should be carried out at some central place, instead of having them take place in the county where the murder was committed.

HAY WHILE RAIN FALLS

This reversal of the adage is effected in States where wet weather during haying time has normally prevented the raising of forage crops, by newly devised methods of artificial drying.

One recently introduced in Alabama, that we learn from The Manufacturers Record (Baltimore) has been successful that E. T. O'Connell, of the Alabama Power Company, Birmingham, predicts that the whole South State is to operate with the hay-producing regions of the West. He writes:

"Alabama is bidding for a share of the West's prominence in the hay-producing field.

"Her problem is different from that of the Western States where it is necessary to supply water by irrigation. In this State it is necessary to remove the moisture from forage crops. Each year in Alabama an average of 42 to 60 inches of rain falls; of this, 30 to 36 inches falls during the hay-harvesting season, May to October. There also are heavy dews.

"This means that about 75 per cent of the State's hay crop is rained on, bleached by the sun and stript of its leaves during the field-curing process, rendering the crop to obtain but a fair grade of hay.

"Mechanical dehydration overcomes this difficulty, and changes ordinary forage crops from a gamble on the weather to an scientifically controlled manufacturing process, making it possible to make hay where the rain falls. It permits cutting and curing at stage of growth when the protein and carbohydrate content is highest. In harvesting the hay while green, practically all the leaves, which are especially rich in protein, are saved, and the vitamins are retained by elimination of the sun bleaching.

"Engineers of the Alabama Power Company, who are pushing development of this agricultural industry, new to this section, expect to see much alfalfa planted in the lime lands of the Black Belt, also sweet clover in the fertile valley lands and soybeans generally throughout Alabama, as a result of the establishment of mechanical driers as an accomplished fact. Public hay-driers at farm community centres, operating similarly to public cotton-gins are possibilities.

THE CEDAR CHEST

Her mind is like her cedar chest
Wherein in quietness do rest
Her memories of her heart
In fragrant folds all laid apart.

There, put away in sprigs of rhyme
Until her life's full blossom time,
Flutter (like tremulous little birds)
Her small and sweet maternal words.

JOE CLARK, veteran editorial writer, has an article in the Toronto Star Weekly in which he states that it may become necessary for the city of Toronto to organize a reception committee to meet country editors coming to the city, show them round and let them see Toronto at its best, or so, Joe, so many of us have spent a week in Toronto on a Sunday, as the Montreal man said when forced to spend a week-end in Queen city, that any such Uncle Sam's Clark's tour would be a welcome diversion. Of course, for most of the country editors a visit to Toronto is just means a tour of the new Union depot, Royal York Hotel and the new Star building. After these sight-seeing trips are finished there is no time or energy left for anything much except limp to the station or to the Standard and home where is awaiting full of wonders undreamed of in the bright lexicon of youth or the days when we were young. Joe says he is being urged by directing the destiny of the rubber roller, Joe Clark having come originally from the country himself, to see that Toronto still Main street, is just the man to direct the sight seeing reception committee. Joe complains that some of the country editors he meets in Toronto are so stuck-up that Toronto girls are homely and other libels. Why should the country editor gaze on the faces of Toronto girls? But not to come to Toronto for a variation of feminine society? Neither be careful or Hush will get you, boys, if you don't watch out. Even the editor of Fergus News Record could see no beauty in Toronto girls and said so in no uncertain terms. Gosh, all hemlock, did he expect that the type of beauty peculiar to Fairgus, could be matched up anywhere else in the world? Then, too, the country editor should have his glasses altered when he goes to the big city. His fair-sight glasses are all right for Fairgus but for Toronto he needs those close-up ones with the strong magnifying lenses, for the closer those Toronto janes get to you the more they impress their personality upon your impressionableness. Joe also complains that the Deseronto Post man went home and drew libidinous comparisons between Toronto folks and folks back home. F'instance, says the Post man:

"Next time you are in the city take note of the strained expression on the face of every city dweller you meet. Noise will do that with any human being in time."

An honest-to-goodness country face is a fine thing to meet in the city. It prevents a fellow from being homesick and prolongs his visit."

Jes so, noise is one of the modern factors of existence that seems to grow more and more irritable lives. Post editor has the advantage there, down Deseronto way with its provincial highways running round the town, and now the Canadian National Railway has shut up shop as far as Deseronto is concerned and is pulling up its rails. Deseronto has had its moments of greatness. Once in the reign of the Rathbuns it was a busy burg with the noise of sawmills and factory whistles filling the air. Then the great Oronhyatekha, King of the Foresters, made Deseronto famous. Then came the noise and the smell of aviation the town took on new life. Since the war various things have happened to Deseronto, mostly bad, but all contributing to the elimination of noise, so that anyone who wishes a nice quiet place to spend the summer or winter and give his or her arteries a chance to soften couldn't find a better spot than Deseronto, and if you happen to be a bit of a sport, fond of fishing or hunting, all you have to do is make a friend of Harry Moore, sporting editor of the Deseronto Post and Bay you be your guide. Health and happiness far from the mad'ning throng with its noise and carbon monoxide poisons but for how soon heal those ailing arteries and give you ten or more additional years to make good for the years frittered away before you got wise to the importance of health and storing up material for future happiness. And that's that. Deseronto as a great health resort, that's the thing, being given free grazin in part payment of the uplift Deseronto Post Man's cheery, optimistic comment always gives up, knowing what that lad is up against and all the rest of those fine lads down near Forster's Island.

CRY FOR BROTHERHOOD

There is so much of loneliness
On this uncharted earth
It seems each one's a prisoner
Within a cell front birth.

Even the closest comrades
Never fully know
Each human Gethsemane
The spirit undergoes.

There is such need for union
Such need for clasping hands,
Yet we deny the brotherhood
The human heart demands.

Other Papers' Opinions
BRITISH BANKS

Despite the tremendous financial strain which was imposed upon the British public and British financial institutions during the past year, it is most encouraging to note that the banks of Britain have stood the test under that strain. Even when conditions were at their worst, there was no suspicion of failure. The news that Bank of England had to borrow money from Canada and withdrawals from the country came like a thunderclap to the public ear but even then there was nothing approaching a panic, and in no single instance throughout the year has there been any indication of a public desire to withdraw funds. Withdrawal of deposits would have meant failure, but on the contrary, the public savings have been tremendously increased.

The Big Six, as the group of leading British banks are called, have all published results of the year's business that actually show them to be in a better position than had been anticipated. For instance, Barclays Bank published their annual year's dividend of 14 per cent. Lloyds Bank has paid 1-2 per cent. as against 14 per cent in 1930. Martin's Bank paid 14 per cent as previously. The National Provincial Bank 16 per cent as against 18 per cent. The Westminster Bank 16 per cent against 20 per cent, and the National Provincial Bank 16 against 18 per cent. Despite the heavy drain upon gold reserves against depreciation account, the percentage of gold to note issue has been depleted to any serious degree. Their showing in this regard is a matter for congratulation in view of the fact that the preliminary foreign trade report of the British Board of Trade shows one of the most unfavorable trade balances in British history. Last year the nation imported goods to the value of £ 668,975,545, as against £367,107,000 in 1930. Its export business during the year 1931 dropped from £ 367,533,222 to £453,199,164.

MORE AND MORE INSIGNIFICANT

The week-end has brought fresh evidence of the universe's ever-increasing expanse of the universe. The astronomers in charge of the Mount Wilson Observatory, in California, have discovered two spiral nebulae in the constellation of the Great Bear. These nebulae are enormously more distant than any that have been seen any portions of the universe hitherto discovered, and they are described as receding from the earth at the rate of 15,000 miles a second. With something like a sense of awe the Jeans theory that the universe is like a great soap bubble, continually swelling.

The new nebulae now located are described as being of extraordinarily light years distant. As light travels 186,000 miles in a second, the reader or has to do is multiply 135,000,000 by 186,000 to get an idea of the distance that there are in a year. He will require a very large piece of paper, but he can do it. Then he will stop, arrive, and he will find no language with which to express his feelings adequately. More we learn about the vastness of the universe, the more we realize how infinitesimally small is this speck of dust upon which mankind lives and has its being, and the more we and pursues its ambitious objectives. Men and women are prone to think the situation thus envisaged are we able to grasp it. Not at all. Pascal said that man, that thou art mindful of him, and the son of man that thou visitest him!"—Toronto Mail and Empire.

MAHATMA AND MOUNTEBANK

That Gandhi—mahatma, mountebank or both—has accomplished a certain following in Indian towns is not to be denied, but India is primarily an agricultural community in which the cultivators of the soil vastly outnumber the rest of the population and Gandhi is certainly not of the number. English politicians and newspapers have immensely overrated its importance. Gandhi was put in jail, and there he and they make out, it would be a crime of crimes to place Indian under his control.

Gandhi and Indian grievance — the destruction of their silver money should be restored in the political field we might do something on the lines of the Simon Report. Regard, for instance, for that we have had more than enough of Gandhi and that we are not neither cajoled nor coerced ou of doing our duty as the trustees and rulers of Indian.—National Review, London.

Plants Misbehave when Given Shot of Alcohol
Reporter Gets Interview on Experience with Plant

Newspapers all over the continent have been giving special mention to the story of a tame deer that was kept in a perpetual state of intoxication by means of beer and other alcoholic drinks which were given to him by his owner in order to watch the effect of alcohol upon the digestive tract of the animal when he was under the influence. He was especially fond of beer, and it was generally given to him in a large bucket. One day he became very shy, mistook a ball of barn paint which was somewhat like beer in appearance, and gave it to him every day, dipped his nose into it, drank half it without coming up for air, and then keeled over in a drunken stupor.

It has been said that nearly all animals are lovers of alcoholic drinks. Monkeys are especially fond of it, and sot in a very amusing and peculiar manner when they get "stiff-up." Bears are usually roosters of any breed, will provide much amusement to those who feed them fermented malt or other forms of food containing slight amounts of alcohol. They become intoxicated very easily and their antics when under the influence are by their peculiar actions. The height of ambition it seems to have in the animal kingdom is to be able to imitate her lord and master by trying to outcrow him, and make who strutts and scrapes all over the place. Hens are also intoxicated easily by a spread or so with, meanwhile clucking busily and noisily.

So far as known, experiments are still further we learn that plants get drunk when given "a shot," and that the human beings do when they get the shot under their belts.

Whether they dance and sing or not, Professor Whoosit of Whatsamatta University conducted the experiments, refused to say. He does state however, that one animus plant will be quite well-behaved in a very peculiar manner. First it is believed the plant opened and folded its leaves very rapidly, as though about to launch itself off into space and go looking for a daisy. Butterflies and other insects sometimes, it is also supposed, suppose, he expected to take off and beat gentle tattoos upon the plant's leaves with their feet. Finding that its roots were pretty well fixed in the flower pot, it merely danced and sang in a thin, reedy voice. This only for a few minutes however and as the liquor commenced to take effect it began to misbehave. It would bend over and touch its neighbor and has been known to give the neighbor a sock on the nose. Also the songs grew more obscene, and the dancing more wild. Several times it upset the folks who were passing on the street in front of the window where it was being exhibited, and once it upset a pail of water, broke into loud guffaws at its own peculiar idea of comedy.

The third stage, it was reported, was that of quarrelsomeness. Having exceptions to the performances of others, it became boisterous, and the sharp remarks at its uncalled for antics, the plant became violently abusive and threatened to fight. It might and made to reach the professor with its outstretched arms, in the meanwhile using a steady flow of foul and abusive language. The climax was reached when, in a frenzy or rage, it hopped clean out of the window pot in a savage attack on the scientist, rushed straight for him with every leaf bristling, and murderous looking teeth snapping menacingly. Dodging the sudden rush at him Professor Whoosis with a wild cry for help, leaped over a nearby table, ran for the massive door that was kept locked during the experiments were going one, managed to get the door open, and leaping through the hall just as the infuriated plant snapped savagely at his heels. Slamming the door in the face of the infuriated plant, Dr. Whoosis held it while he called loudly for his assistant, A. Slicks, Jr., who was just appearing around the corner of the hall with a corpse of cucumbers, all armed with red hot pokers, pitchforks, iron bars and chains which he kept in reserve for such like occurrences as this. Throwing the door open at a signal from the professor, the party entered, brandishing their instruments before them, and surged about the savage plant which had retreated to the corner of the room and stood there swaying and glowering at them in drunken fashion. But circling as they do, however, and beating it into submission with the iron pole and iron bars, the thing was forced into the strong iron cage reserved for it. Then with the usual cries of the professor that still ringing in their ears the group withdrew while the plant beat itself out against the bars until the effects worked off. Then it would probably drop into a deep slumber and awake dryer than ever.

The above interesting experiment, was it not Professor?" a reporter asked him when interviewed the next day. "Yes," replied the professor, "I think that had a happy, and I might say, fortunate ending. I learned many valuable facts from that experiment, and the plant the next day gave me fourteen cucumbers some day—maybe", and he laughed and waved his big hands about in the air. "I don't know the mimosas family is always more or less violent when they get 'ginned' up, and that some of the headstrong ones are inclined to be flowerdows. They will fight at the drop of a leaf" he asserted, and added that some always 'leaves' the party early when in their cups. Their favorite diversion it seems is to hold a mock funeral service over one of their victims, "Sweet Adelina" which they croon in slow and soft rythm. Dalsies also behave very gracefully and are inclined to be sentimental when in their cups. I had to part one fight between the dalsies, and that was the most amusing thing I've known. One fell upon a smaller neighbor, and a friend of the smaller one picked up the challenge and the fight was on. Order was restored when it lasted," and the professor smiled in a reminiscent mood, as he picked his pen with which he had been writing, and began to press as if viewing the fight again. "Of course I should mention that I had to put the plant in irons while it lasted...." "How about dandelions—I've always heard that dandelions have a lot of fire in them and are fond of a fight," the reporter ventured to deal with, as it has been rumored" The professor smiled and said "Yes, I've had to put one in a bang. "Never, never meddle with a full grown dandelion, they are the worst fighters I've seen at any other time in fact" They are the scoundrels of the field. They are thieves, pickpockets, liars, cheats and will stop at nothing to get the best of you. Anything to do with them, and never allow any specimen of the dandelion family to go to seed. You should bring one in I would fire him immediately and completely. Never have anything at all to do with them. Why, I've seen a dandelion seed, so smiled wistfully, showing his big teeth again, at the memory, "that told you. If they ever allow a dandelion to tame and harbor a dandelion they will some day be sorry. And now if there is anything else you have to be at a meeting where I am scheduled ... address the society....., and have just time to make the train. But, he flung over his shoulder—never have anything to do with a dandelion."

600 MILLIONS GOLD IN SAND
Californians Have Chance to Gain Huge Gold Total

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 18 — Under the feet of a few thousand Californians there lies, supposedly by the ancient seashore, the largest virgin gold estimated by the State Mineralogist, Walter W. Bradley, at $600,000,000.

Taking cognizance of the increasing clamor for the precious metal, the Bureau today summarized in official figure its facts of the amount of gold still within the grasp of the thousands of amateur placer miners. Their ranks have been swelled in the depression.

To the $600,000,000 total the Bureau added $600,000,000 as possibly recoverable gold from the comparatively able gold in California remaining beyond the reach of quartz or "hard rock" miners.

I dont bleeve so, pop said, and I said, Well its like little book to me, I dont bleeve much in it, there is a space for every day in the year and every space has a date already printed in it to tell you something that happened or was invented or something on that same date some other year.

Well thats a very good thing and I hope you make intelligent use of it, pop said, and I said, I intend to be reminded each day that mankind has progressed, hoped and achieving every single day and that not a day passes without some man or woman, or some group of men and women contributing something worthy to be recorded in history. Gee, pop, I hope you carry that little book with you always.

Why, yes, leta have our little walk together, pop said, and I said, Yes, pop, and I took my little pen out of my pocket and looked in it, saying, Already the twenty-first of January the eleventh, 1540, the Jesuit Order was founded and recognized by Henrick Van Hoogen a Dutch priest.

STAND TAKEN IS EXPLAINED
C. H. Ketcheson of Sidney Township Council Writes Letter

Clem H. Ketcheson, Councillor in Sidney Township has addressed the following letter to the electors of that Township with respect to his stand regarding the salaries voted to him at the inaugural meeting of that body. The letter is self explanatory and is herewith given in full:

To the electors of the Township of Sidney,

Ladies and Gentlemen:-

At the meeting held on the first session of the 1932 Council have been published, and in all fairness to myself, I would like to defend my action in the matter. It was agreed he then asked the Clerk if he would take the salary at the 20% cut as also agreed, he then called up the Road Superintendent and asked him if he would take the 20% cut, to this he replied, he did not see how he could, in view of the fact that he looked to see as though a new Road Superintendent would be appointed, and, unless the present one changed his mind, he was not taking the cut. I could not support this motion until I knew who the new man would be, as for me, I was not taking it. The motion was then put, and as I have stated, I voted against it, rather than separately, my name appears as voting for.

In all fairness to myself and the ratepayers, I could not support a salary of $1300, when according to the motion, will be the salary of the Road Superintendent, if it is based on a cut of 20% of the 1931 salary, as you will see that three fourths of our Township expenditure, is largely under the control of the Road Superintendent. It is quite necessary that we have a man of ability in that position. I do not say that such a man cannot be found for $1300 per man, then fix his salary. For while one man may be worth $1300, another may be worth $1500.

As regards the Treasurer and Clerk, my position would vote against that portion of the motion, after they had consented to the reduction.

I trust, Ladies and Gentlemen, that this explanation will satisfy you, show my position, and rest assured that I will always endeavor to protect the interests of the ratepayers of the Township.

Thanking you Mr. Editor, for your valuable space,

I remain

ADJOURNMENT IS REFUSED
Men Charged With Murder Have to Stand Preliminary Hearing

London, Ont., Jan. 19 (By The Canadian Press)—When Walter Ramesbottom and Kenny Quinn, both of Sarnia, charged with the murder of Constable Foster, appeared in police court today for preliminary hearing, J. M. Donohue, counsel for the accused, asked for adjournment. This was refused and the hearing was held before Magistrate T. W. Scandrett.

Rose Quinn, who appeared for Ramesbottom, who is allowed to sit beside her husband, when resulted in Weinstiens death, while counsel after being wounded while resisting arrest, Sergeant Foster of the Main Street grocery store.

Clinton Jones, at whose home Quinn and Ramesbottom are alleged to have been drinking, said he formerly lived in Sarnia, that Quinn and Ramesbottom came to his home on Christmas Eve. They had a car, J.V. 630, and had accompanied by a man from street winery before they drove away.

Mrs. Jones said that Quinn and Ramesbottom put on colored masks.

Mrs. Trowler said. This was about 6.15 p.m. that Quinn told her that he had heard a "click" as if a revolver had been cocked and that Crown sought to prove this was a revolver. Mrs. Trowler said that a revolver hammer was snapped into place.

Mrs. Betty Weinstein, an eyewitness, to the shooting and daughter of Weinstein, the murdered man identified Ramesbottom as the man who had entered the grocery and had the merchant jay pinned to the floor beneath his stocky, but powerful assailant.

She said under cross-examination she did not see a gun.

Wm. McCullough, city detective, told of arresting Quinn at the Trowler home, Quinn then said "You got me, I suppose, nothing on me", but afterwards gave a statement to police. In this statement Quinn admitted shooting, according to McCullough, that he was outside man and Ramesbottom was inside.

Ramesbottom, it developed, told McCullough that the gun went off as he and Weinstein fell to the floor. Ramesbottom said he ran and hid at Trowler's afterwards, throwing the gun in the river.

Canada's gold output increased by over half a million ounces in 1931, the preliminary official figures placing the quantity of 2,372,662 fine ounces valued at $55,284,662.

SIN MACK LINES IN BANKRUPTCY
Tugboat Operators of Montreal Unable to Pay For Paints

Montreal, Jan. 19—On the petition of International Paint (Canada) Ltd., a winding up order was issued against the Sin Mac Lines, Limited, and Alexander Gilmour Boyer in the practice court here Monday. In support of the petition, it was alleged that the Sin Mac Lines are unable to pay their debts and that the company particularly an account of $1,833.25 for paints and other goods supplied and furnished by the petitioners. The winding up order was granted from the bench and the Sin Mac Lines failed to appear to contest the petition.

The petition set forth that the Sin Mac Lines was incorporated in 1928 and that the following year by a deed of trust and mortgage it had conveyed its assets and property and charged all its property to secure the bonds issued to secure an issue of first mortgage sinking fund 6 per cent bonds. Of these bonds, it is claimed the interest and sinking fund payments due to October 1, 1931 were defaulted and have not since been paid.

It with the default of interest and sinking fund payments, the petitioners continue, the security under the trust deed became enforceable and after due notice to that effect was given the property was taken over by the Montreal Trust Company in whose favor the trust deed was drawn. Since the bank account of the company has gone into possession with other properties, the Sin Mac Lines could not pay the pay debts, it is claimed. The petitioners therefore asked for a receiving order and the appointment of a Custodian or as provincial liquidator.

The petition was granted by the court.

Belleville Win Fourth Straight to Lead Big Six, Kingston Being Victims

Team Superior in All Depts. Although Play Ragged in Spots

TICE STARRED

Hull, Leachman, Campbell and Alex. Weir Are Marksmen

Outskating and outplaying their opponents by a good margin in the first period the local intermediates defeated the Kingston Frontenacs by the score of 4 to 2 in the Jockey Harris arena at Kingston on Monday night.

The locals simply "turned on the steam" and left their rivals at the post in the first frame never to be headed. The combination of the Bidwell comedians was literally too good for Johnnie Woodruff's squad and they never were in the picture from the time that Referee Armstrong opened the scoring until the final blast came. With the exception of the second period, when play was rather ragged and uninteresting, the locals carried the play to their opponents' territory and then time and again.

Leads Play Well.

Les Tice, in the first period, broke the hearts of the home team supporters by scoring the only counter of the period. After that Tice had a comparatively quiet time of it and would have had a shut-out to his credit if it hadn't been for one little little more as they were too careless on Murray's solo attempt. Alex Weir turned in one of the best games of his young career, especially on the offensive where he was a thorn to the Kingston "puckaters" on every rush, while Shannon, Bonneau and Tice, O.H.A. game, gave a very good account of themselves. Tice was the star man on his side of the rink. This lad will look much better when he becomes more accustomed with the locals' style of playing. In the mean time Coach Hone should be well satisfied with the showing that the Marmers had made in the "Cradle" McMeekin had his poke-check working overtime and he broke up a lad broke up many a rush of the Frontenacs at mid-ice. Especially in the first frame when the home team were trying to even the count, but in vain. Archie Campbell on the right boards was in on more than his share of plays, carrying the puck nicely and bagging a nice goal from a pass from McMeekin. "Doc" Boone started on the forward line but was called upon to fill the gap left by Shannon when he had to retire to the fore box de combat for repairs. Bob was especially good on the offensive as his rushes were always dangerous to the Kingstonians.

Leachman's Night.

It was Jack Leachman's night for while playing a consistently stellar game of all the time-light when he carried the play time after time to the enemy's territory, especially when the locals were short handed. Jack has the happy faculty of playing excellent hockey in Kingston and last night was no exception to the rule as he excelled himself when the opportunities arose. Time-off a little after night Johnnie bagged the final goal of the game last night. "Goo-Goo" McMeekin had his poke-check working overtime and he

Future Lady Cavendish Happy to Leave Stage

The latest American-elect to the British nobility is not at all a-twitter about coronets and family jewels, although she admires a huge ancestral ruby which is her engagement ring. What she thinks about her future is the prospect of complete disinterest from the discipline of the stage which has made her into Adele Astaire who, with her brother, Fred, is a bright particular star of "The Band Wagon." The brotherly pair and sexy life of the theatre, which used to lure girls to leave horror-stricken homes, is far more confining now than society life, according to Miss Astaire, who will become Lady Cavendish, wife of Charles, second son of the Duke of Devonshire, early this spring.

"Did you ever live on a schedule?" she demanded as she perked on all Alice in Wonderland wig for her second number. "It's simply deadly. I will be able to have fun when, and where and how I like when I'm married. I love change. I've always wished I could have about four new shows a year, and I will be able to be as giddy as I like in the country and no shows to do with it."

Love, Not Theatre

"Of course I love the theatre. Why shouldn't I? But when Fred and I began to think about it we knew we'd be so good! I have always felt that I had a contribution to which was a pleasant responsibility, and I feel even more about it since my marriage. I've known Charlie for five years, and I have been engaged to him for a year. I always intended to stop dancing before the public tired of me. Fred will do better without me. Why, already he is bombarded with offers. He has always pushed me ahead.

Brother Fred burst into the dressing room furiously playing an accordion. "Fred, mother says you stayed out too late last night," she scolded.

"I won't have to do that, either," she said, resuming her topic.

She revealed that Charlie likes her unpredictable enthusiasms; that he considers here the best vixen he ever met, and that is why he wants to marry her.

The Irish castle where she will live when she is not in London has known many mistresses, but she will be the first American. It was built in the time of William the Conqueror.

Looks Ahead to Many Things

She is looking forward to dinner at 8 o'clock as a awful bore than six" in the evening, daylight saving time or not, and no matinee days to be gotten through. She wants to look her best without loss in stinting and baby is away at the hunt—a recklessness not prescribed for dancing stars.

Her one discomfort will not bother her, for Lord Charles' elder brother remains a bachelor, so as far as homecomings goes she is not worried either.

"I have as many friends in England as I have in the United States," she said, "I'm not going to retire from the world—just from the stage, once for all. I am perfectly delighted with the whole thing. I'm going to be a real Englishwoman; I wish it was March right now, and me on the way to London."

CONSIDERATION FOR THE CHILD

In his heart, the father is proud enough to burst over his young son; but, somehow, he finds that he must never let the boy suspect this. So whenever there are guests about, or present, the father takes an especial delight in digging at the lad's short comings and exhibiting them to his friends.

"Yes," the remarks jovially, "Sonny is sure going to be a whiz of a business man. You should have seen his mark in arithmetic this month. What was it, Sonny, 85 or was it 45?"

Sonny blushes and stammers. He guesses it was 45. He gazes at his father with a hurt, resentful look. Why did dad need to drag that out before company? It wasn't sporting. He guesses he hates dad. He staggers out of the room and father shrugs. "Can't make that boy out," he confides to his friends. "Can't get along in his math, at all, and doesn't seem to care."

A quiet talk with the boy might have brought to light what was wrong in "math". The father might have been able to help him. Ridiculed, surely not will.

And the father was astounded and enraged, when a little later in the week he was telling his friends that she was playing very good golf this year and Sonny spoke up: "I don't call playing around 96 very darned good. And most of the time you just break a hundred."

The boy's eyes flashed on his father to deny it, and the good-natured laughter of his friends didn't assuage the father's feelings.

Sonny is dismissed as having been rude. Well, perhaps it had sounded rude. It was unnecessary and inconsiderate. But a firmer hand wasn't the father's remark needed a little more consideration?

Nothing has ever been gained by airing a child's short-comings. Your relationship of confidence and friendship can be quite shattered by it in that way, and it is hard, if not indeed impossible, ever to reconstruct it. The child doubts you, now. He's afraid.

Surely you don't say to your fellow business man: "Well, you can't do much in the business world. You're not making much this year," would you be that inconsiderate? And why doesn't a child merit our courtesy, our consideration as much as a friend?

Make yourself master of what you have learned, and be always learning, and you will become the instructor of men.—Confucius.

BEEF SERVED MANY WAYS

Beef as the main course of dinner is served a great deal in Canadian homes, and it is quite inexpensive at the present time. But, at the same time, it becomes a problem to the housewife to think of new ways to vary this dish.

Steak En Casserole

1 flank steak (1 1-2-2 lbs.),
2 tablespoons fat,
1 tablespoon vinegar,
1-2 teaspoons salt,
1-4 teaspoon pepper,
1-2 cup chopped onion,
1-4 cup chopped green pepper,
2 cups tomato sauce or tomato soup.

Score steak on both sides. Cut into desired sizes for serving. Cover with dressing made of fat, vinegar, salt and pepper, onion, and green pepper. Allow to stand for an hour or longer. Then heat meat in extra fat, place in casserole alternately with soup or sauce. Bake at 325 deg. F. for 2 hours or until tender. Serves six.

Beef Stew With Dumplings

2 lbs raw beef,
1 onion,
3-4 cup diced carrots,
1 1-2 teaspoon salt,
1-8 teaspoon pepper,
1 1-2 cups of tomato puree or water.

Wipe meat, remove fat, cut into 1 1-2 inch cubes. Roll meat in flour. Try out fat in frying pan, brown meat and onion in fat. Add liquid to cover. Cook slowly one hour, add carrot and cook until tender. Season. During the last half hour, drop the dumplings on the rapidly boiling stew and cook for approximately one half-hour.

Dumplings

2 cups flour,
1 teaspoons baking powder,
1-2 teaspoon salt,
1 tablespoon shortening,
Milk.

Sift dry ingredients, cut in shortening, add milk to make a soft dough (3-4 cup), Drop by spoonfuls into boiling stew.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

The Silly Cousins

By Thornton W. Burgess

"What brings you so far from the clear Old Briar Patch?" asked Jumper

The envious can never see How well off they themselves may be.

—Old Mother Nature.

It is queer how most people are determined to think that their neighbors are better off than they are. They envy others and never once guess that the very ones they envy may be envying them. Yet it is true. There are few who haven't something that some one else envies them the possession of. Peter Rabbit had gone over to the Green Forest. He knew it was a long journey for he was not much safer in the dear old Briar Patch; but since the coming of the snow he had remained at home until he was so bored that he just couldn't stand it any longer. So, despite the protests of little Mrs. Peter, he had gone over to the Green Forest. He wanted excitement. He wanted to know what was going on there.

He had hardly reached the Green Forest when along came his big cousin, Jumper the Hare. "Hello, Cousin Peter. What brings you so far from the dear old Briar Patch?" said Jumper.

Peter replied Peter. "I got tired of staying there. Sitting around in one place gets on my nerves, Cousin Jumper. You haven't any right to be here, you know."

"Huh!" exclaimed Jumper. "If that is all you have to complain of, you haven't anything to worry about. Peter. It is safe over there, isn't it?"

"Yes," admitted Peter grudgingly. "It is safe enough."

"Well, isn't safe over here," declared Jumper. "If I had a safe place like that I'd never leave it. No, sir, I never would leave it. I'd stay there all the time. There is no place to be absolutely safe. Some people never know when they are well off."

Peter changed the subject. "You have been busy, haven't you, Cousin Jumper," said he.

"I have been busy, Peter," replied Jumper. "If I didn't I wouldn't last long these hard times. I never have known it may have to run for my life day or night. Always have to be on the lookout and watching for me. Ha! There comes Reddy Fox for any minute!"

Peter turned his head, which was a foolish thing to do, for until he turned Reddy could not see him. He saw him now, however, for Peter's brown coat made him very to see against the white snow. Reddy headed straight for him.

There was nothing for Peter to do but take to his heels, and he did. Away he went, hippety-hippercty-hip. Reddy after him. Jumper remained sitting right where he was, perfectly still, and Reddy passed without seeing him at all. Fortunately Peter knew of a hollow log not far away, and he made straight for that. How he did hope that that log was not buried under snow!

It was, but some one had dug Peter's way open at the open end. Peter dived in. He was just in time, just in the nick of time, for Reddy was right at his heels. That log was just big enough for Peter to get into and one small for Reddy. Peter was safe. He knew it and Reddy knew it. Reddy was used to such disappointments. "Next time, Peter, I'll get you next time," he growled, and trotted away.

Jumper had watched. He hadn't moved. "Peter is lucky not to be as big as I am," he muttered. "He doesn't have to run and dig to squeeze into and be safe. I envy him. Yes sir, I envy him. How if Reddy had seen me I would have had to trust wholly in my legs."

As soon as Peter felt it was safe to do so he poked his head out and looked over to where he had left Jumper. Jumper was still there looking like a little heap of snow. Peter sighed. "Cousin Jumper is lucky," thought he. "I wish I had a white suit like his. "Yes, sir, I wish I had a white coat. Reddy never didn't see him at all. I envy him. I do so."

So those two silly cousins sat there, each envying the other and each quite forgetting his own blessings. Ah, lot of people are like that.

The Beauty Box

One beauty frenzy follows another. They're fun. keep women wide awake and gabby. There was the henna rage, lop-tempers all afire. Now it is the platinum effect, which is gradually giving way to the silver rage. Both are exploited in beauty shops, and the gals went round the town with mud on their faces. The fiercest rage of all was the bob which made its way into home and sent crowds of married warriors into divorce courts. Eye shadows and gaudy finger nails are quieting down, but lacquered hair is likely to start a new commotion. Fine to stir up the circulation, anyhow. You can't get hardened arteries if you're all het up on beauty aids.

It won't do to neglect pimples, they must be routed. If the infection burrows down into the under layer of tissues, the condition becomes chronic and a complete cure is likely to be a prolonged business. Soap, water and friction help remove the pores of their burdens of blackhe:ds which are incipient pimples and which lead to acne. Laving with a solution of boric acid is a reliable treatment.

Wind-blown duckies are doing their aerobatic hair in a new manner. They're bringing down a forelock suggestive of the manner in which Napoleon Bonaparte wore his tresses. With the difference that the modern girl has arranged illusion in her forehead lambrequin and before each ear is a fairly fat pokhook curl which sticks to the skin tight in adhesive plaster.

Finger nails as well as the cuticle about them, need some sort of apple-sauce. They are to remain thin and delicate and of good color. If no cuticle cream is convenient at the moment hot olive oil. Slip the hands in old white cotton gloves and wear all night or make a thimble for each thumb and finger of absorbent cotton.

In the reducing diet there must be no cream sauces, butter, or fat meats. It is required that the bonbon box be relegated to a dark corner, and that tea and coffee be taken clear.

FINANCIAL NEWS

STOCK RANGE VERY NARROW

Toronto Market Slow. Canada Paving Co. in Voluntary Liquidation

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 19.—This morning's market on Toronto Stock Exchange was a repetition of that of the last few days, with the slowest trading for the bear market. There was no price change of importance this morning, that is changes which would indicate a trend. Practically all the important stocks were selling exactly where they had closed last night. One or two issues slipped better ¼ of a point while others were up about the same amount.

It was announced this morning that Canada Paving and Supply had gone into voluntary liquidation but the market took the news without visible disturbance.

Brazilian and Loblaw A were two of the issues showing any activity, both losing ¼ point, the former to 12⅜ and the latter to 10⅛. Steel Canada was the strongest industrial point to 64. Nickel was easier and Standard Mining moved to 9½. Most other issues were unchanged.

GRAINS FAILED TO HOLD OUT

Market is Irregular and Has Tendency to Lower

Toronto, Jan. 19.—A little indifferent activity reflected the dullness in early trade on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange market today but failed to hold beyond the first hour. Mid-day changes were limited to a few issues and showed an irregular tendency.

Beatty Bros. Oil met good buying interest on the opening, price touching 19, and showed a gain of 2 points 18 when taken at noon. Also favoured up a cent to 3½ while Canadian Malartic sold 2 higher at 81.55.

Gains rose 10 to 10.10 on publication of the preliminary 1931 earnings statement showing profit, before depreciation, etc., of $1.77 per share. Pioneer at 2.5. C. regained 60 to 63.10, but Lake Shore, Teck Hughes and Granada were slightly easier. Coniagas held fractionally with Buffalo up a cent and Bidgood and Dome Mines were unchanged at higher.

Hosanda, recovering 10 to 816.50, recorded the only movement among those Mining issues.

Announcement was made that the annual general meeting of members of the Standard Stock Exchange would be held after the close of business today. Officers have been practically elected by acclamation, G. W. Nicholson succeeding F. J. Crawford as president.

HEAVY GLASS NO BAR TO BURGLAR

Surprised By Policeman Plunges Thru' Glass Door

Grimsby, Ont., Jan. 19.—Summoned by a telephone operator shortly after four a.m. police arrived at Dyment's drug store to find the door ajar and a burglar in the act of smashing the cash register with a sledgehammer. The shopbreaker took flight as the police entered the store from the rear and plunged through a glass panel in the front door, a quarter of an inch in thickness, disappearing in the gloom.

The man evidently escaped without serious injury as no blood trace could be discovered around the door.

N. Y. MARKETS SHOW STRENGTH

Rails Advance 1-3 Points While Gain is Weak

NEW YORK, N.Y., January 19.—The long head of steam, the rails share moved forward in today's stock market, after sliding down gradually yesterday and Monday.

A firm tone was imparted to virtually the entire list, and net advances of 1 to 3 points were numerous. The market was healthiest in the "second grading," but soon began a slow climb, trending with the rails.

Issues up about 2 to 3 points included Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and New Haven. Other groups yesterday had made an exceptional advance of more than 5. Some up a point or so included U.S. Steel, American Can, Case, Sears, Allied Chemical, American Tobacco, Public Service of N.J., Alaska Juneau, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Chesapeake and Ohio, and others. General Electric, however, was a soft spot, dropping about 1 1-3 points to within striking distance of its bear market low, accompanying the uptrend in the list was a fresh wave of hopefulness over the prospects of a satisfactory agreement at the Chicago Conference on wages. One rumor circulated in brokerage circles was that the Brotherhood might accept a 10 per cent cut, leaving the counter demands subject to mediation. News that the Reconstruction Finance had voluntarily offered to accept a 10 per cent reduction was regarded as a good omen.

The money market was anything firm, with virtually no offerings of call money reported under the official rate of 2½ per cent. Funds from outside funds had been offered at 2 per cent repeatedly, but the strong tendency appeared to reflect Primary Bank's declared statement at the Federal Reserve. Federal funds were in somewhat more active demand.

Two Days to Select Jurors

Pembroke, Ont., Jan. 19.—Wintin Ruth Judd was called into Superior Court today to answer a charge that she murdered her two "best friends." Agnes Anne Le Roi and Hedwig Samuelson.

Superior Judge Howard Speakman will preside over the trial of the slender auburn-haired woman who escape the gallows.

A panel of 85 jurors was summoned. Court officials and attorneys estimated it would take at least two days to select the jury, for which only 12 will be eligible.

Mrs. Judd, the wife of Dr. W. C. Judd, Los Angeles physician, in a present trial faces prosecution only for the slaying of Mrs. Le Roi. Should she escape the death penalty the State will try her later on a charge of having killed Miss Samuelson.

The fortunes of the unit are bound up in the fortunes of its class.

MORE RICHES MAY BE FOUND IN OLD TOMBS

Treasure Unearthed in One Tomb Now Under Guard

LOST CITY

Archaeologists Believe They Have Discovered Old City

Campeche City, Mexico, January 19.—(AP)—In the "gold fever" atmosphere which brought the conquistadores across the Atlantic and turning them into treasure seekers, the knights almost exactly 400 years ago, swept the whole of Mexico, as they do today.

Following the discovery of a forgotten tomb of a group of ancient Mexican nobles last week and the subsequent unearthing of dollars worth of gold and jewels, the belief grew among the people today that further fabulous treasures awaits the excavator's spade and pick.

A party of the government's principal archaeologists has arrived to study the treasure, which is now under heavy military guard.

Treasure Under Guard

The treasure trove lately is headed by Hayzadas Vertis, Mexican archeological director, Professor Gamio, director of prehistoric monuments, and Fernando Borbolla, director of anthropology for the National Museum.

It is the potential treasure that still awaits whoever may be able to find the lost Mitzteca Royal City, however, that has fired Americans' imaginations. The present find is outside the Mitzteca realm proper and the ancient capital, where the remainder of the Mitzteca Kings held court and were buried, holds the prospect of discoveries much greater than the present one.

The Valley of Oaxaca, which has been worked and shaken for ages since long before the coming of the Spaniards, proved the latest surprise over which the Mixtecans and Zapotecans fought for supremacy in that territory until the Spanish conquest.

The discoverer of the Mixtecan Tomb, Prof. Alfonso Caso, said today the principal tomb of the seventh invaded by his excavators, and the first to give up extensive treasure.

Excavation work in other places around the Alban Hill has also been pushed in an effort to turn up further treasure, before the work is halted a month from now by extraordinary rains and by the beginning of the rainy season.

The experts were attempting to decipher earthy on human bones inside the tomb which seemed to be of both sexes and ranged in reverence to some Mixtecans had a ceremonial dwelling near the Alcazar, was found in the tomb.

GENERAL STRIKE IS THREATENED

Rioting, Burning and Labor Troubles in Spain

Madrid, Jan. 19 (AP).—Rioting burning and labor troubles in doubt the streets of Barcelona, Spain during the past 24 hours was followed today by threats of a general strike next Monday.

In several sections of the country city workers walked out upon the land and began to till it, the Socialist party called for a mass protest. The workers declared they were ploughing only enough land to provide food for their own families.

The general strike reports which spread out from Barcelona to communists and Syndicalists, who have been responsible for several revolutionary attempt to implant "Liberal Communism" in Spain.

Supporting the Socialists, following a revival of the anti-Catholic demonstrations which resulted in several deaths in rioting and the burning of buildings, ordered 200 workers at the Loyola Novitiate at Bilbao to pack their clothing in readiness for leaving in case the government declared the order closed.

Thirty-two Socialists and Communists were injured at Pamplona in a fight with the workers' own groups of both organizations. The fight grew out of a political argument.

The government strengthened its forces in the north of the provinces against possible reaction here from the Barcelona disorders. Troops throughout the rest of the country. The cabinet met to consider the enforcement of laws for the defense of the republic.

RIVER SHANNON FLOODS LANDS

Ireland Has Worst Floods in Thirty Years—Heavy Rainfall

Dublin, Ireland, Jan. 19.—Ireland is having the worst floods in thirty years because of unprecedented rains which have inundated thousands of acres of farmland and forced many families out of their homes.

The River Shannon, in the Shannon area, is higher than during the serious floods of last fall and the low-lying areas along its banks the land is under water.

In Ulster and other countrysides in County Derry along the Claudy River is like a lake and in North Mayo the old-fashioned method so bad a flood.

The River Foyr has isolated the town of Foxford and the River Robe flooded a church near Clare morris and the Priest held mass in an old cowshed. There are floods also in counties Cork, Limerick and Kerry.

Premier Laval Confers

Paris, Jan. 19. — France cannot give up any of the reparations due her unless there is an equivalent reduction in the war debts she owes, Premier Pierre Laval declared in the Chamber of Deputies, told the Chamber when it reassembled today.

"I feel that I may affirm that our country cannot abandon credits due her without a guarantee of equivalent reduction in our debts," he said. "France never has ceased to show her desire for peace, manifesting it by collaboration with international institute particularly with the League of Nations; by creation of the European union and by elaboration of the pact renouncing war.

"But because we are animated by a spirit of conciliation and although we are open to the new adjustments dictated by necessity, we cannot permit the unilateral abrogation of agreements be denounced by the decision of a single signatory power."

Provisional Delay

Paris, Jan. 19.—The French government let it be known today that it was envisaging at least a provisional postponement of the German Reparations Conference.

A semi-official note was issued at midnight after Premier Pierre Laval had talked with Leopold Von Hoesch, German ambassador to France.

The elections due this year in France and the approach of United States were given in the note as the reasons for the provisional postponement of the conference, which is tentatively scheduled to meet next Monday.

"The opinion is becoming more and more general in the international sphere," the note said, "that it is impossible to arrive at a detailed and definite solution of the problem of reparations and war debts.

"It seems to be agreed now in Paris and London, that the whole continued, "to renew purely and simply for the time being the agreements of Lausanne. Moratorium expiring July 1, 1932, and which would be prolonged under the same conditions for six months or a year.

"At the same time, the European debtors of the United States, who also are creditors of Germany, should make a common declaration asking the American government to grant them the same treatment as a condition of and during the new moratorium accorded Germany.

"Early Worms" Are Stirring Radioland

Radio fans who sit up all night and twist and fiddle with dials trying to get China or Greenland on their sets may have better luck. One of the forbidden circle prescribed by officers of the "Early Worms Club," in Toronto, of which Ernie Swan is "Chief Worm," and which has a membership established by records in DX for residents in all parts of the world, providing they live at least one hundred miles outside of the circle of which Toronto is the hub.

The new club goes on the air each Saturday morning at 6 o'clock with its "secret" session and will broadcast from station CKGB, instead of from station CKCL. The first broadcast will be made on January 30 and starting, but as no advance notice was given of the intention of the new club for reasons already explained, were aware of the fact. This coming Saturday morning the first program of several good selections from various dance orchestras, interspersed with "a lot of nonsense, merriment and foolishness."

So far, with only a week's operation behind it, telegrams have been received from hundreds of places all over the North American continent urging a continuance of the feature, and also asking to be admitted to membership. Membership, incidentally, costs nothing except a postage stamp or a telephone call.

Girl Convicted Of Assault Charge

The assailant admitted the attack. She charged Boehler had cast aspersions on her character. Evidence in the case indicated the assault arose out of differences over treatment of a boy, identified only as George, who has been employed by Boehler for some years.

FIRE LOSS IN CITY IN 1931 IS $18,645.95

Seventeen More Calls Than Last Year

Loss is Down Over $15,000

Consideration of Pumper Purchase Brought Up By Chief Lynch

Fire Chief William Lynch presented to the council on Monday night a comprehensive report of the year's activity of the Fire Department. Although the Department answered seventeen more calls this year than last the fire loss was some $15,000.00 under the amount of the preceding year, which is matter to be proud of. In the report the fire chief makes certain recommendation to the council for their consideration and these will be dealt with at a future meeting. The complete report is herewith given.

His Worship Mayor Yeo and Members of the City Council, Belleville, Ont.

Gentlemen:—

I beg to submit herewith a report of the activities of the Fire Department for the year ending December 31st., 1931.

The Department during the year responded to 194 calls, classified as follows:

Dwellings	28
Business Places	19
Factories	1
Garages	4
Grass	43
Cars	1
Barns	1
Chimneys	3
City Dumps	2
False Alarms	2
Store Flues	1
Outside City	10
Hydro Poles	1
Furnace	1
Motor Cycles	1
Warehouses	1
Rubbish	1
Awnings	2
Bonfires	2
Ammonia Plant	1
Cold Storage Plant	1
Miscellaneous	1
Test Runs	4

In responding to the calls the Department had 31,750 feet of hose and raised 364 feet of ladders. There were 1300 feet of chemical hose put down and 320 gallons of soda and acid, with 5 gallons each of Foamite and 1 quart of Pyrene.

The Department has 3 ladder drills and 3 hose drills. There were 900 feet of hose laid and 780 feet of ladder raised during the year.

In the fire zone, 64 inspections were made and in most of the places were found to be in a satisfactory condition. Many of the inspections have resulted in extinguishers as requested by the inspectors and this will help to lower down fire hazards.

I am pleased to report that our Department has met with no accidents during the year to either men or equipment.

A large reduction in the amount of fire loss for the year 1931 is noticed. For the purpose of comparison I submit the following:—

Year	No. of Prop-erty	Value of Amount of Prop-erty	Loss by Fire
1923	111	371,218.00	30,784.75
1924	78	178,080.00	26,887.50
1925	72	497,075.00	40,847.50
1926	88	946,100.00	34,946.25
1927	96	825,215.00	17,000.00
1928	99	448,388.00	8,066.00
1929	131	1,837,140.00	125,365.00
1930	147	895,276.00	3,881.95
1931	164	663,670.00	18,645.95

Four life escapes have been credited in the city this year.

Regarding the Belleville General Hospital, I would draw your attention to the matter of fire escapes here. This should be looked after as soon as possible.

The Waterworks Department have given special attention to the fire hydrants and none have been found frozen or out of condition during the year.

The members of the Police Department have also given full cooperation at all times.

As a means of strengthening the efficiency of the Fire Department might I be allowed to suggest for your consideration the following:—

The purchase of a Triple Combination Pumper of a standard size which has passed the Underwriters' test; also the purchase of a 9 foot 11/8 net, 500' of 2 1-2" standard hose and ten larpaulins 8'x15' for the purpose of covering stock to save water damage in business places and 100' of 1" Chemical hose for chemical tank.

In conclusion I beg to express my appreciation of the general co-operation and courtesies extended by all city officials and citizens of Belleville in assisting in the discharge of the duties of this Department.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

William Lynch,
Fire Chief.

Pan of Grease Upsets, 3 Children are Suffocated

Fatal Accident in Small Bakery at Rear of Buffalo Home

THREE UNCONSCIOUS

Buffalo, N.Y., Jan. 19.—Three children were suffocated Sunday night when a pan of grease boiled over in a stove in a small bakery in the rear of their home. They were carried from their beds by firemen and physicians worked in vain for hours in an effort to resuscitate them.

One of the victims was a girl 12 years old. The others, boys, eight and five, and their two year old brother, Joe Carrieri Jnr., was revived without great difficulty.

Pasquale Matacio, 36, father, conducted the bakery and was preparing the "grease for the manufacture of doughnuts when the accident occurred. The man was severely burned by the boiling fat. At the hospital it was said he might not recover.

SEAT SALE FOR "DUMBELLS" IS VERY LARGE

Judging from the advance, seat sale for "The Dumbells" which has broken all local records, there will be a capacity audience at The Capitol theatre when the talented local popular entertainers on their return engagement present several years from Belleville.

Thirteen may be unlucky for some, but not for the Dumbells. Their thirteenth annual revue bids fair to improve the luckiest and most successful of their long career before the Canadian public. Their season, now well under way, has proved a regular series of packed houses and delighted audiences.

Captain Plunkett's latest production, "Dumbells Over Dixie Way Were", covering in that snappy military form the good news that it is an all-man troupe again." As they were in France and as they were during those first never-to-be-forgotten years as a full-fledged theatrical company in Canada.

"As You Were" brings back those serious impressions, Ross Hamilton and Glenn Allan, of fond memories, and Don Romaine of international fame as a delineator of ebony hued humorities.

The new all-men show also brings back the stage orchestra once so popular a feature with Dumbell followers. The present band is composed of ten of Canada's leading musicians.

"As You Were" also serves to unite those three original stars, Al. Plunkett, "Red" Newman and Ross Hamilton, at the head of the finest cast that ever frolicked under The Dumbell bells trade mark.

"The Dumbells" will present their latest offering at the Capitol Theatre tonight (Tuesday) when they will undoubtedly duplicate the ovations which have been accorded them in other cities on their triumphant march across Canada. They come here direct from their holiday engagements in Toronto and Montreal.

CROWN ARRESTS TWO FOR ARSON

Third Arrest Probable Through Enquiry Into Barn Fires

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 19—I. A. Humphries, K.C., solicitor to the Ontario Attorney General's Department, said yesterday he had made his report to Hon. W. H. Price. Attorney General, on the investigation into barn fires in Wentworth County which concluded last week. He said there was little likelihood of the probe being extended into Wellington County, where a number of barn fires also occurred. Mr. Humphries acted for the Crown in the investigation, at which E. P. Heaton, Provincial Fire Marshal, presided. Possibility of a third arrest in connection with the probe was admitted by Mr. Humphries. John Berta, Berrytg township farmer, and James McConnell, farm hand, were arrested on charges of arson as a result of the inquiry.

BRITAIN NOT INFORMED OF LAVAL'S MOVE

Seek to Extend Hoover Moratorium Till End of Year

NO DISCUSSION

No Criticism Offered on The Action of Premier Laval

London, Jan. 19 (AP) — Great Britain has not been officially informed of Premier Laval's action in seeking information for France regarding the attitude of the United States toward a proposal to extend the Hoover moratorium until some time toward the end of this year.

Reports from Paris that M. Laval had sounded out Ambassador Edge on this plan were interpreted here as indicating an action prompted solely by the domestic political situation in France. It was understood that there had been no discussion of the plan between French and British representatives.

Throughout the preliminary conversations regarding the Lausanne conference tentatively scheduled for January 25th, the British opinion has been that no approach to Washington regarding the possibility of extending the Hoover moratorium would be necessary.

The British view has been that after the European powers had met at Lausanne they would discuss their own proposals, then the European plan would be discussed with Washington.

There is no criticism of Premier Laval here for sounding out the United States on extension of the moratorium. All along the British government has been trying to accommodate its views on the Lausanne meeting to those of France and Washington. And postponement of the conference depends more on the French and German attitude than on the British, but a final decision is expected tomorrow or Thursday.

Melting Coins Is On Increase

Fear Foxes Will Develop Complex

Is the cunning fox temperamental? Are his habits in reverse quality by the sputtering noises of passing motor cars?

These are two of the questions that will have to be decided by the Public Service Commission as the result of developments in an application once heard on Saturday.

The Renardiere Royale, Incorporated, has asked for a fur farming lish near Ste. Rose, is demanding damages totalling $50,000, claiming that if the Provincial Government brings the proposed highway nearer the foxes the animals will develop a complex which will cause them to eat or breed and will also develop other self deteriorating eccentricities as a result of the noise from speeding automobiles.

Roman Relic is Found Under Church

VATICAN CITY, January 19.—An ancient and probably pagan, crypt was discovered yesterday under an altar in the Church of St. Stephens of the Abyssinians. Three marbel steps leading to the crypt were uncovered in excavation work. They indicate that the old floor was taken as evidence that the crypt antedates the church, which was built in the eighth century. The capital of a Roman column was found in the crypt, leading to the belief that the crypt was pagan. It is said it would be the first pagan monument found in this part of Vatican City.

Paris Unemployed Not Particular

Paris, Jan. 19—Unemployment has brought competition, with fifty men seeking the job of official city executioner in charge of the Paris guillotine, vacated recently by Anatole Deibler who retired to raise chickens.

It was announced that Deibler's own son-in-law, Andre Verdel would be named, but there were many objections to keeping the job in the family.

Pontiff Greets Children Upon Streets of Rome

For Third Time in 61 Years a Pope Leaves Vatican

IS RECOGNIZED

Vatican City, Jan. 19 (AP) — Pope Pius XI. has made his third trip outside the walls of Vatican City, the first time formally treading the streets of Rome.

Notwithstanding the importance of the event—only twice before in 61 years has a Pontiff emerged from the Vatican premises—it remained unknown to the general public for many days.

The Pontiff was accompanied on the trip by one court prelate and a works superintendent, and the excursion was both unexpected and informal. It was on December 8, and was incidental to an inspection tour of construction jobs inside the city.

The three inspected a circular staircase being installed to give direct access to the Vatican museums from the Viale Vaticano, which runs around the city just outside the walls. Descending the stairs thru a temporary opening in the wall, they entered Rome.

A dozen small boys playing in the street were attracted by the kindly old man dressed in an immaculate white cassock, and they gathered about him. He greeted them with kindly words and a fraternal smile, but they did not know to whom they were talking.

A passerby, however, recognized the Pope and snapped a photograph. Weeks later the significance of the event impressed itself upon him and he sent the picture to the press authorities, who permitted its publication in the Vatican illustration.

"HUSBAND'S HOLIDAY" REALASTIC REVELATION

"Husband's Holiday," feature attraction at the Belle, commencing Wednesday, is the story of a man who loves two women—his wife and the friend of his two children, and another woman, an attractive sophisticated woman whose pleasant, easy going mode of life intrigues him. It is the drama of a husband and wife who, through circumstances overcome incidentals, are forced to face a crisis in their married life.

In "Husband's Holiday," however, the manner in which this husband and wife face their problem is well off the beaten track. For the wife is a clever, intelligent, courageous woman who, in spite of her husband's momentary straying, loves him dearly. She also has her children to think of, and the home she has helped to make so pleasant and comfortable. She refuses to give them up without a real fight.

Needless to say her surprising stand recalls reference to her husband's infidelity makes many unusual developments, all of which are dominated by a powerful and convincing climax which brings man and woman will understand.

The principal roles in this enjoyable, provocative drama of united and marriage are entrusted to Clive Brook, who plays the role husband; Vivienne Osborne as the loyal wife; Juliette Compton as the "other" woman; and Charlie Ruggles as the interesting family adviser. Others include the late Mildred Dicke Moore, Charles Winniger and Harry Beresford.

Karl Dane and George Arthur in "Lease Breakers," Rudy Vallee and his famous orchestra in "Musical Justice," Saturday's all-talking Sono Sound News, and an entertaining Novelty Film with Medbury in Africa" will be exhibited on the same program.

At The Capitol

RONALD COLMAN AS A RECKLESS ADVENTURER

Reckless adventurous rather than romantic, Ronald Colman comes to the Capitol Theatre in "The Unholy Garden," as Samuel Goldwyn's first screen presentation of the year.

For the first time in two years Colman is no longer the suave polished English gentleman. Instead he is an outcast and a renegade hiding out with a dozen other refugees from the law in a remote outpost at the edge of the Sahara Disheveled and unshaven, hair long and clothes unmated, he is a sharp contrast to the immaculately groomed hero of "The Devil to Pay," "Raffles" and "Bulldog Drummond," his earlier starring vehicles.

Estelle Taylor and Fay Wray have the principal feminine roles. As the action violently develops, Miss Taylor has the biggest part since her famous appearance in "The Queen." Miss Wray is the protected child and clothes mannequin who reaches hiding at the inn.

An extraordinary gathering of character players appear as "the family," the exiled criminals whose plottings and scheming give added animation to the yarn. Warren Hymer, Willy Maskell, Russell Hopton, Gran, Ullric Haupt, Kit Guard, Henry Armetta and Mischa Auer are among the theatgan menates of the yarn.

Charles MacArthur and Ben Hecht, who authored the outstanding stage success, "The Front Page," wrote the story and also prepared the screen adaptation. Edmund Goulding, who has been Colman's most successful director since the days of "The Dark Angel," is the responsible for the newest Samuel Goldwyn picture. Goulding also directed and produced the settings, which depict the Sahara in all its desolation, the native life in Algeria at the borders of the Sahara's sun-baked sand dunes.

It is there, in Graze, the odd assortment of crooks, adventurers and renegades gather to await the capture of the old Baron's hidden diamonds. The Baron, a man of fine physique, has planned to force the secret of the hidden treasure from Stach and his daughter. Barry Hunt (Ronald Colman), pursued by an alias warrant, and Lucienne Dufrais (Estelle Taylor) appears to propose skill and cunning to outwit the plottings of the Baron's daughter, Camilla (Fay Wray). Barry begins his wooing of her, wild desert rides, the excitement of life-or-death gambling, cat-like cunning on the part of Stach who is drawn for fortunes or a woman's love, the final end of the Baron's feats and flesh—these are among the essential ingredients of Stach and MacArthur's lurid yarn.

It is the first picture of this kind, or of such a background, that Ronald Colman has appeared in since he did "Beau Geste" four years ago. "The Unholy Garden" will continue at the Capitol Theatre today.

BRINGING UP FATHER

MR. AND MRS. — TOO MANY CLEAN SHIRTS ARE AS BAD AS NONE

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN, No. 16.

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service)—

By Edgar Rice Burroughs.

On one occasion as they were dining upon the carcass of a bear that Sheeta had killed, Numa, the lion, grim and terrible, broke through the tangled grasses close beside them. With an angry, warning note, he sprang forward to chase them from their feast. Sheeta bounded into a nearby thicket, while Tarzan took to the branches of an overhanging tree.

Here the ape-man unloosed his grass rope from about his neck. And as Numa stood above the body of the boar, challenging head erect, he d'opped the sinuous noose about the lion's neck, drawing the stout strands taut with a sudden jerk. At the same time he called shrilly for Sheeta, as he drew the struggling lion upward until only its hind feet touched the ground.

Quickly Tarzan made the rope fast, and dinging upon the earth beside the infuriated lion. The panther tore and rent Numa on one side while the ape-man struck again repeatedly upon the other with the mighty clawing of the k'ng of beasts had succeeded in parting the rope, he hung quite harmless and dead in the noose. And then upon the jungle air there rose the victory cry.

In unison from the savage throats of Sheeta and Tarzan, came blended one frightful, uncanny scream of the bull-ape and a panther who had made a kill. Struck again repeatedly upon the tree-trunk and wall, a score of painted warriors, pulling their big war-canoe upon the beach, halted to stare in the direction of the jungle and to listen in petrified amazement.

"Harms the buiter, in the act of dropping the customary two pounds of sugar into Crooked Bill's cup regarded his master with concern. It appeared to Harms that the old gentleman was about to have some sort of seizure for he had closed his eyes, thrown back his head, opened his mouth and gasped.

"Anything wrong, sir?" Harms demanded.

"Ha!" yelled Crooked Bill. "Hah!" The channels of his devious sense of humor having thus been cleared, Crooked Bill laid his head down on the table and gasped and shook and wept and roared.

"Good news, sir?" Harms suggested politely.

"Harms," cried Crooked, "did you ever hear of Pandora?"

"Oh, yes, sir! You art referring to the lady of mythology who unlocked the box of troubles?"

"Exactly. Miss Sweet Roberta has unlocked a similar box. Harms get Mr. Hackett on the telephone."

He read Hackett Roberta's message and wailed for a hearty laugh. It did not come. "Do your cats, Glenn," he protested, "where's your sense of humor?"

"I see no humor in the situation, Mr. Latham. I can only sympathize with Roberta. There she is, the guest of the man who killed her uncle, and who has had the hardihood to make a jest at the expense of his victim. Not satisfied with that exhibition of bad taste he has, apparently, commenced to pay his court to Roberta immediately, which is most embarrassing and distressing to her. She will be forced to leave his house, of course, and decline to permit him to continue to serve here in the matter of conserving those cattle."

"You tarnation monkey, you. Is not that exactly what I planned should happen? The situation works out to make you shine by contrast. In the reflected light from this little cat Higgins, who will probably be a knockout with a Texas country girl as a whole, will find Roberta a poor loom up like a lights."

"Roberta, practically admits it already. She's anxious to clean up on those sheep and returns and those sheep and returns and she does, boy, you'll certainly look good to her."

"You think so?"

"I know so."

"I wish I could be as confident as you, Mr. Latham. Roberta has one weakness, and this is her sense of—diabolical."

"Nonsense. Why don't you see she's mad at me? She knew now that I knew who Higuenes was, or at least that in all probability I suspected that he and Jim Higgins might be one and the same person. That Don Jaime was only about three years old when I left Texas and I took a chance that I was forgotten there by now and that he had never heard of me, or, heard of me, would not recognize me as his father's old friend."

"Who shot you in the heat sh' A peculiar friend, I should say."

"Served me right. I insulted him."

"I wish I had never joined in this conspiracy with you, Mr. Latham."

"Faint heart never won fair lady. My boy, don't you realize you have a chance to be a hero?"

"I do not."

"You're singularly dull. Motors is still climbing and you need more money to protect me. So you've decided that those sheep should be sold to get ready cash. Consequently you've had two important cases continued, which will enable you to go to Texas and arrange the sale of the sheep."

"Who will I sell them to?"

"To me, fool, to me. I'll give you more money for them than anybody else, and with the more money you realize on them the stronger you'll be with Roberta! Also, you'll arrive in time to put a crimp in the aspirations of Don Jaime Miguel Higuenes."

"He might shoot me, Mr. Latham!"

"He might, indeed, but if he should, that would be entirely your fault. If he's at all like his late father, he'll fight you with his weapon, you men, from Shillalahs to guillotines, and fight you fairly. You were no mean hand at that, weight boxed in college and you've kept yourself in condition. Why, boy, you could make a monkey out of Higuenes—and in defense of Roberta —wowlAfter that, all you'd have to do would be to get her to name the day."

"But how can I be assured that he will be jealous of me?"

"But how can I be assured that he will be jealous of me?"

"He can't help it. It's in his nature. And you know Roberta. Right now she's busy working on him. She'll make him fall in love with her and then, when she has him helpless, she'll put her foot in his face. The man who makes love to Roberta is a fone hombre, but the smart fellow who refuses to take her seriously is bound to win her. And, once won, she'll make the finest and most loyal wife in the world."

Glenn Hackett pondered. "There may be something in what you say, Mr. Latham. Higuenes wrote her that a chap named Jim Higgins had killed her Uncle Tom, and having sold her that information, he has had the audacity to invite her to his ranch. That was poor strategy and I think, with you, that Roberta will punish him for it."

"In her own little way, my boy, in her own little way—and you know what way is. You'd better jump to Texas muy pronto."

"Well, to make good on your debt you've rented Hillcrest, so why not go to Texas with me? Shave your whiskers and dress like a rancher and play the part of the sheep buyer?"

"By golly, I'll do it, Glenn. It's a good idea and I think I should be on the ground to advise you in case you run into snags. When can you start?"

"In one week."

"Fine. That's giving Bobby more time than she requires, but on the other hand Miss Roberta has a slow starter. Meanwhile I'll keep you advised if anything more turns up—Hey, don't hang up yet. Harms has just handed me another telegram....It may be from Bobby.... No. It's from Higuenes. Oh, Glenn, will you listen to this and then read over the telephone:

"When you see your ward again I should be a proud man to hear you address her as Mrs. Higuenes or Higins whichever s uits you best stop to that end I request your permission to pay my respects and know the going will be hard but I have never been unsuccessful in getting anywhere without a bottle so I will take the liberty of you know my people so I do not have to furnish formal references stop can furnish financial references and please any save most exacting."

SLEEPS WEEK NOW IS AWAKE

During Time Has Been in Many Institutions For Observation

Montreal, Jan. 19—After sleeping most of the time for the past week Ernest Lemay is awake again in St. Luke's Hospital. Weakened by his long sleep, which was broken only for short intervals as he was shifted from hotel to hospital, to police headquarters and back to hospital Lemay will rest a few days to build up his strength.

Lemay registered in a motel as a Springfield, Mass., resident. After he had been asleep 36 hours the hotel authorities called in the police. Lemay went to hospital and then police headquarters. As he continued to sleep without taking food, the police got worried and sent him back to the hospital. Physicians have not announced the cause of his condition, but intimate there is not much cause for anxiety.

Rotarians Hear Story of Development of Maritimes

FIFTH INDUSTRY

Ontario folks know all about the Golden West where the setting sun drops out of sight in the Pacific but seem to know very little about the Silver East, where that same sun starts the day's work. This defect was more or less remedied as far as Belleville Rotarians were concerned Monday by R. W. E. Burnaby, Trade Commissioner in Toronto, for the Maritime Provinces. Mr. Burnaby painted a beautiful word picture of the tourist attractions in the Maritimes, with its wealth of bewitching scenery and background of historic romance. He also drew attention to the trade possibilities and urged greater attention to interprovincial trade in the building up of a greater Canada. Canadian exports to the amount of one million dollars a day were leaving foreign ports, while Canadian shipping lay idle, said the speaker. Imported lumber was used for making boxes in Ontario when the Maritimes had all kinds of lumber for sale, and had to face the unfair competition of Russian lumber. Sardines, the finest in the world, were packed in the Maritimes, but did Ontario folks care to inquire where their sardines came from. Asbestos, Gypsum, Coal and other commodities were also cited in a plea that Canada buy Canadian goods.

Potatoes were raised in great quantities in the Maritimes but the situation today was that the growers would be glad to get twenty cents a barrel, about the price of one potato in a railroad dining car.

King's County, Nova Scotia, grew more apples than the whole of Ontario, a fact which does not seem to be widely known, yet foreign apples are freely sold in Ontario.

The Land of Evangeline, Grand Pre, Annapolis Valley, Annapolis Royal, Halifax, Cape Breton, the Malapedia Valley, with its hunting, fishing and seaside resorts, all were sketched skilfully by the narrator, who finished his talk by taking his hearers to the Garden of the Gulf, Prince Edward Island, just a million acre farm, where all well-to-do and none were poor, connected with the mainland by the largest car ferry in the world, and the birthplace of Confederation. The Fathers and Grandfathers of Confederation met and laid the foundation for the future of Canada.

ENTIRE BASIN IS INUNDATED

More Than 2,000 Waterbound By Levees Crumpling

Greenboro, Miss., Jan. 19—Scores of boats chugged through the flood basin today in a "big push" to rescue 2,000 refugees waterbound by the crumpling of levees on the Tallahatchie River.

New breaks in the past have virtually inundated the entire basin district.

For a stretch of 200 miles through parts of Panola, Quitman, Tallahatchie, Leflore and Humphrey's counties, the river has defeated the week's labors of levee patrolmen and the lands on the east side of the Tallahatchie are drowned.

In the Matthew Bayou drainage district, Eagle Lake abandoned hope of holding the levees against the rising torrents, and today the basin, already deserted by 1,500 farm tenants, was under water probably until April.

No loss of life has been reported. Tenants took warning and carried their scanty movable possessions to high land and now await boat passage out of the flooded basin. Cotton fields are islands dotting the inland lake.

OPPOSE GRANT OF PERMANENT LICENSE

Washington, D.C., Jan. 19 (AP)—Governor Roosevelt of New York, Monday informed the United States Power Commission by letter he was opposed to granting a permanent license to the Niagara Falls Power Company for the diversions of 275 second feet of water from the New York side for large canal.

The commission began hearings on the granting of this license and also on the increase in capitalization which such a license would entail.

The power company has been authorized to use this water for some time through a series of temporary licenses. The commission called for hearings in order to settle the matter before the present temporary license expires in August, 1932.

MUSH TRAIL FOR DEMENTED NORTH TRAPPER

This is Third Trip Made to Arctic to Arrest Man

HAS STRONGHOLD

Posse Carries Ammunition For a Long Siege

Aklavik, N.W.T., Jan. 19 (CP)—Ten stalwart constables of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police today were mushing through the darkness of the Arctic night toward an old cabin on the Yukon trail, near Rat River, some 80 miles north of here. The patrol will attempt for the third time to arrest Albert Johnson, demented Arctic trapper, barricaded in his cabin stronghold. Johnson twice has driven off patrols which sought to arrest him.

The posse carries sufficient ammunition, food and provisions to make a long siege. On December 31st, Johnson, it is alleged, shot and wounded Constable A. E. King when the latter approached the cabin to question him in regard to complaints of interference with Indian trap lines. King received a serious wound over the left side of the heart. The bullet broke two ribs as it glanced and two guns on the way out.

Constable McDowell, King's companion on the initial raid, placed his wounded comrade on a sled and after an epic dash of eighty miles through a raging Arctic blizzard, succeeded in winning his way thru to safety. King was placed in a hospital where he is recovering.

On January 5th, a second patrol headed by Superintendent A. E. Eames took the trail in the hope of bringing about Johnson's arrest. Challenged by the police Johnson again refused to surrender and backed up his defiance with a fusilade from two automatics, one in either hand. Three attempts were made to storm the little cabin only to be driven back by a searing fire from loop-holes in the cabin walls.

Finally explosive bombs were brought into play in an effort to dislodge Johnson but these had little effect and after a 15-hour siege the police, hampered by semi-darkness of the Arctic day, decided to retire and return here for reinforcements. Each day's area expected to elapse before the patrol would return here.

It is pointed out that the man sought is heavily armed and a long time may be required before he can be captured. There is practically no daylight at this time of the year in the Arctic where the sun is barely visible above the horizon around the noon hour.

By-Election After Coming Session

SHOT TWICE IN HEAD, LIVING

G. W. Anderson Sees Two Flashes and Then Forgets

Hamilton, Ont., Jan. 19—George W. Anderson, well known Canadian veteran of the World War, who received two bullet wounds in his head on Green's sidewood, off the Niagara highway, carried on his employment as he was moved to the general hospital where doctors believe that he will recover.

Mr. Anderson took his place in the choir of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church last evening as usual. After the service, he disappeared. Yesterday, police gained from him a short account of the events of the evening. He stated that towards ten o'clock he drove down Niagara highway, and turned up the sideroad. As the car moved along he saw two bright flashes from the roadside and that was all he knew.

After being shot, he had evidently wandered back to the car to a nearby house, as the farmer gave the alarm. Police recovered the car where he had left it, the seat soaked with blood. On the highway near the entrance of the sideroad was a wrecked and abandoned car.

ACCIDENT AT DAM

Message of Accident Sent From Shack Where Calvert is Caught

Constable Stringer of the Belleville District Office of the Ontario Provincial Police, returned Tuesday night from Gunter in the northern part of Hastings County where he investigated the death from gun wounds of Roy Emerson Bush, 16-year old boy of that locality, who sustained about one-thirty o'clock Monday afternoon. Game and Fish-ery Overseer, George Stringer, of Madoc, accompanied Constable Stringer on the trip of investigation.

The facts learned regarding the sad occurrence, it was said, were that Roy Bush, in company with two companions about a year older than himself, named Edward Chisholm and Herbert Heim, had gone into camp in an old shack on the banks of a creek in Cashel township, where they intended to spend the trapping for several weeks. They had comfortably furnished the shack and had in store a good supply of necessities.

Has Gun on Board

On the creek is a concrete dam and the boys desired to close a small sluice gate and they were engaged in doing this when the accident happened. Chisholm had the job and young Bush was seeing a board floating in the stream, reached for it from the lee end of his gun, and pulled it towards him, turning the muzzle of the gun in his hand. The board hit the dam and discharged. Bush called to his companions that he was shot in the hand and he walked-or-rode the dam where his friends were. Reaching them he complained of a burning sensation in his side. The boys investigated and found he was also wounded in that part of the body. Bush walked to the shack, which was about two hundred yards from the dam and fell upon a cot, where his companions made him as comfortable as possible.

Young Heim then drove and started to walk about three and a half miles through the bush to the shack of Ernest Vanness, a trapper and part time Forestry Officer, where he knew a telephone was. Once over which he could summon help. This is the shack where Provincial Police captured Gordon Calvert, who escaped from Belleville penitentiary a short time ago. The capture of Calvert was made on Saturday evening, January 16 and Provincial Constable Stringer, when he arrived on Sunday morning, was surprised to find that it was he who had acted as the guide in taking him through the bush to the Vanness shack where he got Calvert.

Team and Sleigh Used

Heim telephoned from the shack to Dafoe's store at Gunter and friends from there left immediately for the scene of the accident with a team and sleigh. Later, Bush's rescue party had to travel eleven miles through the bush. Very good time was made considering the nature of the trail. It was about eleven o'clock at night when the wounded boy was taken at once to the General Hospital, Madoc, where he is large car from near Gilmour was finally secured to convey the wounded boy to Belleville. It was about two o'clock Tuesday morning when the start was made and the party had covered about half the distance to Millbridge, when the boy's condition became very much worse. Dr. Nichol was called to meet the party, but he had made a stop in order to have a look at the boy and when the party came up to him he discovered that the boy was dead. The party then returned to the boy's home which is about one and a half miles outside Gunter.

Story Told Police

It is said that the boy told his parents and Dr. Nichol how the accident happened and it is not thought an inquest will be held.

Dr. Bealy, coroner, of Madoc, visited Gunter Tuesday night but did not give his decision regarding an inquest at that time.

The unfortunate boy is survived by his parents and three brothers and two sisters, all of whom are young, except one brother who is a little older.

POLICE CHIEF FACES CHARGE

David Murdoch Held in Jail in Connection With Death

KELOWNA, B.C., January 20 — (By the Canadian Press)—Chief of Police David Murdoch late last night was charged with murder in connection with the shooting to death of Archie McDonald, ex-constable, at Cherry Creek, 24, also known as Marie Lalonde, formerly of Vancouver and Calgary. Both were shot to death about 5.30 o'clock. The bodies were found in the hotel where she lived, and McDonald at his home, a short distance away.

NATURE FORCES ONE ELECTRICITY CALLED EQUAL GRAVITATION

Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 20—The scientific mind of Dr. Albert Einstein, described by contemporary scientists as "the greatest thinker since Newton," has brought together a union of gravity and electromagnetism.

Wearing a loose-fitting suit topped off by a batwing tie, Dr. Einstein, in addressing a group of scientists at the California Institute of Technology yesterday said:

"You see, we had the wife, electro-magnetism, and the husband, gravitation, but they were separate. Now we have them together and what could be more natural?"

Dr. Einstein said he had worked out new mathematical equations by which gravitation and electro-magnetism are logically unified. This is considered an important link in his "unified field theory," which is to prove that there is but a similar background for all material activity in the universe.

To complete the wholesale union of nature's forces, Dr. Einstein set out to show that gravitation and electricity are so closely welded that they may be considered theoretically as one and the same thing.

GUN BATTLE IN KENTUCKY

Willie Johnson, brother of "Big Henry" and Earl, was the only member of the Johnson family present who survived. He was wounded in the arm. Willie was the cause of it all according to the Crooks, who accused him of wronging their 17 year old sister Ruby.

Anglican, Old Catholic, Bodies Intercommune in St. Paul's Cathedra

First Time Anglicans Enter Into Such a Relationship

UNITY, DIVERSITY

Archbishop of Canterbury Hails Signs of Rapprochement.

London, Jan. 20 (CP)— In the words of the Archbishop of Canterbury, speaking at St. Paul's Cathedral today, this is the first time in history of the communion with another church.

It was the Archbishop who put the question to a vote, "We are setting up a new horizon for ecclesiastical relations," he said, looking forward to relations with other churches.

"I hope that there may gradually be built up a great organism of churches throughout the world, each fulfilling its own function, yet united in essentials, not by mere sentiment but by a definite unity of structure both in faith and order. The resolution provides that while inter-communion between the Church of England and the old Catholic churches is permissible, "this step does not involve the formal acceptance of all doctrinal opinion, sacramental devotion or liturgical characteristics of the other, but implies that each believes the other to hold the essentials of Christian faith."

The Name

The "old Catholics" is the name which was assumed by members of the Roman Catholic Church who refused to accept the Vatican council decision of 1870 regarding papal infallibility, and who set up a separate ecclesiastical organization.

As an outgrowth of the deliberations of the Lambeth conference of Bishops of the Anglican church in 1920, an important conference was held at Bonn last July between representatives of the Anglican communion and the old Catholic churches. The Bishop of Gloucester presided. Subsequently, the old Catholic congress meeting at Vienna resolved that intercommunion should be permitted between the members of the Old Catholic churches and of the Anglican communion.

Various circumstances in the years immediately following 1871 combined to cause a rapid decadence of the new body, whose supporters ever became numerous. Congregations of old Catholics spread in Germany, German Switzerland and Austria, but the first congress at Cologne was attended by representatives from the English Church, the Bishops of Ely and Lincoln and other distinguished members. Herr Professor Johannes Friedrich, one of the leaders in the movement, died shortly after the congress was "directed against the whole papal system."

The first synod was held at Bonn in 1874, yearly thereafter until 1879, and then twice a year in a series in which the doctrine and discipline of the new church were gradually formulated. The synod adopted a Catholic creed, and containing several articles fundamentally differing "from the teachings of Rome," and also provided for the fasting optional, pronounced in favor of the use of the vernacular in public worship, permitting the marriage of priests, and allowing them to dissociate from the communion in both kinds to members of the Roman Church.

In Germany the body has more than 50,000 members; in Switzerland over 50,000; in Austria about 13,000; in Holland about 8,000; there are small congregations in France, Italy, the United States, Poland, Chicago, and a few other countries.

CITY ENGINEER GIVES RULING

Motorists Must Not Make "U" Turns in Front of Upper Bridge

Motorists who have been in the habit of using the street in front of the Upper bridge in order to make complete turns on the street with their machines will in future be forced to do a detour around the boulevard at that location and use the intersection of Pinnacle street for that purpose. City Engineer Frank Mott is at present having a sign made to be set at the end of the new island policemen which were delivered to the department of public works today and which has been placed in position at the Upper bridge intersection, forbidding "U" turns at that spot. Several near accidents have resulted from the new setup made necessary to turn at that point and it is the intention of the motoring public that these traffic guardians have been placed at these spots. A check-up will also be made to determine whether or not another one of the four crossings which have been delivered will be set upon the intersection of West Moira street and North Front. Here at Front street, motorists about to turn down West Moira street from the bridge travel very close to the south side of the street and as it is practically a blind corner as far as visibility is concerned for traffic coming from one or two accidents have occurred. The new traffic markers resemble the old type with the exception that they have red, glass reflectors set in the post at the top.

JACK MINER TO LECTURE

Will Deliver Address at The Collegiate Auditorium

The man who is internationally known as the greatest conservationalist of wild game this or any other country has ever had; who can make friends immediately with the shyest creature known, the Canada goose, and who at his great game sanctuary in Kirkeville, Ont., has multitudes of these creatures visit and remain for periods hundreds of other varieties of feathered folk, will visit this city today and spend the afternoon and evening with the residents of Belleville and Quinte, with the aid of colored lantern slides some of the lesser known facts of wild life.

From boyhood he has devoted his life to the study of the wild game of which this country was so well endowed. He has the unique distinction of having given over 2,000 addresses before the fact that he is a speaker of considerable reputation, and is evidenced by a ready wit, should provide the audience at his lecture with one of the most entertaining evenings that could be imagined.

In the afternoon the school children of the city will meet at the Collegiate Institute and take part in the lecture especially provided for them. In the evening at 8 o'clock the auditorium will be thrown open to other residents of the city who have not already had the opportunity to hear him. The lecture will be exactly the same as the ones that have been given in all the large cities of Canada and the United States. In the latter country, particularly, he has been in great demand.

Die After Accidents for Want Artificial Breathing

Doctor Gives View That Artificial Aid Should Be Given

MANY SEEM DEAD

NEW YORK, January 20.—Death by electrocution is not immediate. In fact, the heart and circulation of persons keeps on beating at intervals for 20 minutes or more after the shock. During that time resuscitation could often be accomplished.

This pronouncement on a subject which has caused much controversy between officials and persons interested in methods of carrying out a death penalty is made by Dr. S. R. Benedict, chief surgeon of the Alabama Power Co.

"By the use of the electrocardiograph," he said, "regular contractions of the heart are observed to continue as long as 20 minutes after physiological death.

"Physiological death is that death which results from an accident so that respiration ceases and the heart stops functioning normally.

"I am convinced that in certain cases following trauma or injury, a person by proper methods of artificial respiration can be restored to life," added the doctor.

"I would say from the standpoint of physiological death many of those persons who are electrocuted, drowned or asphyxiated from gases and in a certain proportion of cases those who have been rendered unconscious and apparently dead from trauma, can be brought back to life, if not all.

"I am also convinced that thousands of people have died for want of artificial respiration following electrical drowning or asphyxiation, but also that large numbers have died for want of artificial respiration following injuries which produced what apparently dead, when in fact only physiological death existed."

Joseph Marshall, Brockville, Taken Off Passenger Train

Upon searching the man the officer found a loaded revolver on his person and immediately placed him under arrest taking him to the local police station where a charge was laid against Marshall.

When arraigned before Magistrate Mitet this morning the charge of unlawfully, not having a permit, having upon his person, other than his dwelling place, a revolver, contrary to the Criminal Code, he was not asked to plead as the court asked for an enlargement of the case for one week and Marshall was bailed without bail.

When the train pulled into the C.N.R. station at Cobourg, last night Constable Jerome arrested Marshall's two companions on a charge of trespassing on railroad property. Marshall pleaded that the officer at the Cobourg station but was apprehended here after Officer Jerome telegraphed ahead and informed the Belleville constables.

Plays Havoc with Coal Trade when Winter Looks Like Spring

Twenty to Twenty-five Per Cent. Shrinkage in Consumption

WOODBOX BUSY

Two-thirds of the month of January passing and Jack King Winter has as yet failed to make a permanent appearance henceforth. A fleeting visit, only now and then for a day or so's duration. "What effect has this continued open winter had on the coal business?" a reporter asked several coal dealers. The answers varied, but the consumption of coal has materially lessened from that of the preceding winter, from 20 to 25 per cent. However, there has been an increase in the use of lighter fuels. Coke sales are reported up and also the burning of wood, both hard and soft, have increased. The annual voluminous offering of hard wood by cord or load by the farmers of the district has been missing this season from lack of snow and the ensuing extra labor in getting it out of woods and back into the marketing it by wheeled vehicle or truck, instead of sleigh. Some wood is being sold on the market, but not in the quantities of former years. A goodly amount of this fuel has been trucked to the city and peddled about the streets, to a greater extent than heretofore. Railway employees report, also, that they have noted the decrease in the amount of coal passing over the railroads. Installation of oil burning heating devices has also a certain effect, though as yet a minor one, on coal consumption in the city.

The long-continued mild Autumn and the continuous open winter have made the heating of factories, schools, business premises and homes a relatively easy matter this season, in fact over rather than underconsumption has been the problem. It has been, only, the occasional day of sharply spaced intervals, that has necessitated a rush order home to stir the water the using of coal has been either of negligible, a wood fire in the kitchen stove when required for cooking or other purposes, and a like fire occasionally in the living room above through the day when the house was deemed habitable but often comfortable. On the days that the temperature fell to zero or little in the afternoon has sufficed to answer all warming purposes.

All in all this winter has seen very little coal time coal heaving and ash carrying.

PERUVIAN CITIES SHAKEN BY QUAKE

One Death and Several Hundred Injured is Reported

LIMA, Peru, Jan. 20.—(AP)—The cities of Lima and Callao, with a number of others in the surrounding area, were shaken unsteadily today after a night of terror following an earthquake which tipped steeples and buildings and resulted in at least one person's death and many more or less serious injuries.

The newspaper El Comercio reported one person killed in the crumbling of a house at Huacho. The shock was felt as far south as Huasa and Huacho and was felt strongly also at Chao, Canete, Ica and other towns.

The British citizens said was the most severe shock they had felt since the days of the earthquake of 1913.

Walls of buildings cracked, cornices fell, roofs crumbled and the streets rolled as if in waves. They were soon filled with carousing automobiles, out of the drivers' control in the uneasiness of the pavements underneath.

Simultaneously, the lights in the city flickered and went out. The darkness which followed was torn by hysterical screaming of thousands who fled in panic from homes, churches and theatres into the unlighted streets and open squares. The crash of breaking glass added to the tumult.

The United States armed 1931 with a favorable trade balance of approximately $344,016,000.

Mammoth Cave, Ky., has been equipped with 12 floodlights and 18 smaller projectors to illuminate the interior of the cave.

Despite the fact it advertises the best climate in the world, the Los Angeles club will do its spring training in Pasadena.

RETROSPECT OF KIWANIS CLUB LUNCHEON TALK

Past Presidents' Day Thoroughly Enjoyed By Members

MANY PRESENT

Activity of Club Since Inception Fully Reviewed

Progress in a certain given time is a fine thing to conjure over but to sit back and view in retrospect the life an organization since its inception gives one a thrill as there is always so much to remember. The Kiwanis Club is not an old organization in Belleville but it has kept pace with the life of this community for the past nine years and on Tuesday at the weekly luncheon the hour was devoted to reviewing the life of the club. The day was called Past President's day and those, who have occupied the chair since the club was formed told of high lights of their year of office. When the whole business of the Kiwanis Club is summed up, their effort has been worthwhile and something has been contributed to the community.

F. C. MacLaurin is Chair

F. C. MacLaurin, one of the first presidents of the club and a charter member was the presiding officer for the day, and there were gathered about the festive board, charter members of the club, guests and members now active. It was a pleasure to see such familiar faces as "Abie" Ketcheson, "Duke" Smith, Charlie Ryde, "Dick" Ponton, "Dick" Philips, "Art" Praat and many others and they were given an enthusiastic welcome. Those now deceased were not forgotten as six members of the club since its inception has passed on and fond memories were recalled as all silently stood as a toast to the departed members, was proposed. The charter members, Davey Dafoe, Sam Cronk, Fred Deacon, George Griffin, Bob Gorman, Charlie Hanna, Andy Davis and others were not forgotten and loudly applauded as they rose to be introduced.

The presiding officer in a few words told of the formation of the club after the Lions Club had ceased to exist. "The Lions Club would have still been active but there were no neighboring clubs in the district" said the speaker. George Griffin was the first president of the Kiwanis Club and he was followed by Tom Collister, P. C. MacLaurin, Chas. E. Hanna, William Lattimer, Russell Wooten, Harry Greenleaf, George A. Lee, Joe Imlah, Jack Mc-Intosh, George A. Cole and the present incumbent of the office, A. B. Collins, but not in the order named. Each of the past presidents were asked to say a few words respecting their year of office and many a good laugh was had and also some serious moments as the boys recounted the years. Charlie Hanna told of painting the hydrants, Sam Cronk failing to use a brush and on another occasion, the time being the U.E.L. celebration, Bob Gorman played the hurdy gurdy on the main street to collect funds for Kiwanis work. He also told of the inter city visit to Toronto and the friendly joke, that was played on Fred Makell. Jack McIntosh followed explaining the various activities. It was in his year of office that the Potato club was formed, the Irish, Scotch and other days of the year were celebrated and the many fine Ladies Nights, that were held. In that year over $700.00 was raised for the V.O.N. Harry Greenleaf told of helping to organize the first Carnival and the grand success accomplished. Joe Imlah spoke of the cottages, that were built at Moira Lake, the inter city visit to Hamilton, and the inception of the first ice carnival. More money was raised in 1930 than in any other year and over $800.00 was given to the V.O.N. Joe explained that over $1,000.00 was spent in the treatment of two girls, one burned and one, who lost her sight.

Last Year's Work

George Cole reviewed the work of last year speaking of the several fine luncheons, which included Farmers Day, Veterans Day St. Patricks Day, and Boys Day. He also referred to the starting of the Sea Cadets, which has proved to be a fine opportunity for service in the club. Two more cottages were added to those already at Moira Lake. Ernie Pinkle, one of the presidents of the Victorian Order of Nurses told of its organization in 1924, the presidents in order being J. S. Findlay, George Griffin, P. C. MacLaurin Ernie Pinkle, W. I. Cole, Ernie Parney and Fred Smythe. "So successful was the Order conducted last year that not one cent of direct contribution was requested from the Kiwanis Club," said the speaker, and this statement received hearty applause. Between $2500.00 and $3500.00 has been collected since the V.O.N. was instituted in this city. Two cars have been purchased one costing $500.00 and the last one $995.00. The cars are owned by the Kiwanis Club and the money was supplied for the Baby Clinic by the club and at the last meeting 3 there were 68 babies present, a wonderful showing" said Ernie. The nurses in charge have been Miss Shand, Miss Mary Shore, Miss Grey, Miss L. Weeb, Miss Greer and the assistants have been Miss Florence Fitzgerald, Mrs. J. Orrill and Miss Germaine Dumais.

Secretary's Report

George Griffin, secretary treasurer of the club and a charter member surprised the members and guests, when he stated that over $25,000.00 has been raised for welfare purposes. This amount is entirely apart from the dues and assessments upon each member for club purposes. There has been 191 members on the rolls since the Club was organized with an active membership of 65 at the present time. During the year 1926-27 the sum of $600.00 was donated to the Boys Training School at Bowmanville. Enumerating the work the speaker stated the club has been interested in V.O.N., Boys Camp, Children Shelter parties, Child Welfare Scholarships, KI-Y baseball and softball in summer and hockey in winter, Boy Scouts, Sea Cadets, High School Band and street decorations. From these figures and facts it can be seen the work of the Kiwanis Club has come and with an active membership the lub will go on to greater effort.

Moved Vote of Thanks

The president of the club, A. B. Collins moved a vote of thanks to those taking part in the programme. James Bankier led the gathering in community singing with Ross Hunter at the piano and Joe Imlah collected the several fines imposed. The club is away to a good start in 1932 and the members no doubt will be behind every worthy cause.

A QUIETER GENERATION ARRIVES

For some years there has been intense anxiety over the "roaring" generation. While a younger generation has always been looked upon as a source of anxiety to its elders, the present attention seems to have focussed on the present-post-war generation which is slowly finding its way into the ranks of another generation. Now whatever has been said of the generation of post-war dissatisfied boys and girls may be—in the mass—be grouped as one studies what is occurring in France where a real "new" generation has come on the scene with an attitude of reverence towards the older set ideals of the generation which has so bitterly attacked its successor.

A fine example of young industrious generation has arisen in France. It is among the schoolboys and the schoolgirls of that country, according to the New York Times. They "show a happy harmony in the development of their faculties, not sacrificing their studies to physical culture. Study for study's sake seems to appeal to them more than it did to their slightly older brothers and sisters; they are not so keen on violent competition. It is interesting to note that they are attracted by professions recently spurned by youth—they want to become public functionaries, magistrates, teachers, or go into the army.

"Almost everything which seemed to the post-war generation dull, narrow and mediocre attracts them. Perhaps it is the present crisis in business and industry which has influenced their minds, or suddenly regilding the divinities dear to the French' which were abandoned by the post-war generation, 'black market profitude.' These prudent, cautious youngsters are all for a work-and-win policy. Adventurous careers in the colonies or gold-rush quick business successes still have their glamour, but many will follow the well-worn path.

"In this trend toward safer, calmer, steadier occupations the Temps writer sees a benefit to France. 'For her Government posts she has always found plenty of men. But in this reversion to older ways there is one new element. Among the candidates there will be many women as well as men. Recent years have shown that girls are thorough students, and careful preparation for examination is right in their line.'

This phenomenon has probably just been noticed in France, and probably it is manifesting itself in that country first of all. Whether this be a new generation which is coming or not, the fact remains that the next to the younger generation can scarcely be the same as the present "younger" generation which has been brought into the midst of a world unrest and a world expansion in industry and in means of enjoyment. Some say this has swept the young people off their feet. Whether this is a correct analysis or not the fact remains that another generation may come into a quieter world, a world in which people are accustomed to new things as a result of some strange wave of psychological change which will leave its mark upon the newcomers.

The present younger generation alas! does not remain 'younger' long, for a new generation is already clambering at its heels.

"FAIR WEATHER MODERNISM"

'Fair weather modernism' was attacked by the noted preacher, Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick on Sunday. It means the powerful spiritual driving force of the old-fashioned religion, he says.

Dr. Fosdick says that some of the old theology is hardly tenable, but he declares that "while modernism has breadth and easy-going complacency and generous goodwill, it lacks moral grip to lift men above the ordinary levels of daily life and give them the courage, if necessary, to defy the world."

One of the marks of modernism is a easy world. The gospel of modernism has been largely work. But Dr. Fosdick says, Our forefathers understood that religion is not simply activity, it is also receptivity. They did not read so many books as we do, but they often thought more about those which they did read. They did not do so many things as we do but they engaged more after the spiritual uses of solitude. They did not join so many committees as we do, but they were better use of prayer, and sometimes the consequence emerged in personal, spiritual power, which puts us to shame.

"In comparison with the hard-headed candor and fearlessness with which the old theology faced the terrific facts of life in world, our modernism often seems soft, and lush and sentimental.

"We, fair-weather modernists, with our too easy gospel of God as a sentimental lover, would better salute those old Christians."

Those who recall a generation which ice inhabited these parts and filled the churches in the old days when church attendance was no effort but a love, cannot but thank Dr. Fosdick for this presentation. He has struck the weak point about the present day attitude, in church attendance and in the power to inspire. Some of course that the one thing mentioned by Dr. Fosdick, some things in the old theology which are thought untenable and the failure to face this are largely to blame. But of course a scientific religion never stirs the people as the old time religion would do, because it is largely intellectual while religion is made up of emotion and sentiment, which should be of the highest type. And yet many scientists have been the most devout of men and firmest of believers in the ultimate good.

GOLDEN HARMONIES

By Aline Michaelis

There is music which brings a message
More sweet than the call of the flute,
A word that echoes within the soul
Long after the viols are mute.
It hints of melodies rarer
Than the masters ever wrote;
And it leaves a glorious thrill that lingers on,
Throbbing after the final note.

There are poems which open vistas
Of glamor to charm the gaze,
And lead the thought into splendid spheres
Too bright for a world's weak praise,
They beckon the laggard fancy
Into regions before unguessed,
And they give to the heart the boundless joy
That comes with a dream possessed.

Oh, weavers of words which quicken
A glory within the breast,
Oh, makers of golden harmonies
Never fully in song expressed,
We, who hunger and thirst for beauty
Not-shaped in an earthly mold,
Give you thanks for the music none can write
And the words never no lines have told!

OUT IN HOLLYWOOD the repression is felt in reduction of salaries and some of the stars are feeling it. At this stage in the film industry will be introduced to the cake line. A GREAT SCIENTIST

It was characteristic of that man of action as well as scientist, Professor J. C. McLennan, that he should mark his farewell to Toronto by announcement of a further important discovery of potential value to industry. The retiring head of the Department of Physics and Dean of the School of Graduate Studies of the University of Toronto informed the Royal Canadian Institute of new methods of overcoming the resistance of metals to the transmission of electric current.

The importance of this may be inferred from the fact that an eminent British authority declared only a generation ago that transmission of electricity from Niagara Falls to Toronto was not possible if it is now transmitted longer distances, though with a considerable loss of power. The practical side of the experiment mentioned by Professor McLennan is that, by perfecting the effort, by finding the proper alloy for the purpose, resistance may be so reduced that the power consumed in Ontario will be saved millions of dollars yearly.

This is a fitting conclusion to the work of as much a physicist as Professor McLennan, a thinking in the realm of pure science, Professor McLennan's discoveries may not be spectacular, but we have only to look around us today and say to the British Admiralty during the war in connection with submarine menace and his service in liquefying helium gas, which is non-inflammable, to realize how the allied lighter-than-air craft,—Toronto Star.

("THERE IS NO PEACE")

Sir Arthur rightly points out that it is too late in the day to advocate anything like total disarmament. There is no chance of the unpractical dream of the arch-pacifist who reckons all war as hellish hates. But nobody will deny Sir Arthur's sincerity when he says the way to dispel the attitude of fear which the nations at present manifest one towards the other is to do what can be done to bring about a frank mutual disarmament.

As Sir Arthur says in his personal view, "the 20th century is to bring about disarmament as the greatest factor in the establishment of universal peace," but this can only be realized by the nations of the world working in harmony and mutual regard and faith. Assembled next week, and Geneva this week after will reveal to the world the extent to what chance there is of the realization of such an ideal within the vision of practical politics.—Montreal Star.

HEAVY LOSER BY DEBT COLLECTIONS

The return of the whole world to renewed prosperity depends in large measure upon the attitude of the United States towards national war debts and reparations. The most enlightened men in the United States have realized and state plainly that the nation has not and will not continue to lose a great deal more money by insisting upon the payment of the war debts than it would have lost or would lose by wiping them out. Speaking on this subject the other day, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University said:

As events have turned out, for every dollar that the American people have received on account of so-called intergovernmental war debts they have lost many, many dollars of their own capital and income, largely because of the arrangements which created the artificial intergovernmental war debts reflect and evidence. Wholly apart from the stupendous destruction and the losses of markets which have resulted from the existing international situation, the public treasuries of the nation and of the various states have collected hundreds of millions of dollars less in income tax than there ought to be. What, then, can possibly be the use of continuing the machinery under which the American people lose many times what they collect? It is the foolish plea that if they do not continue to collect they must make good the amount as an annual tribute. Are the American people so, unintelligent that they will continue to prefer to receive $5 and to lose $50, rather than to receive $50 and the $5 and to have back the $50 from which it was made good the $5?

This is the absolute truth of the situation, but the question is: How long will it take the American politicians and the great Middle West to perceive it? In the last session of Congress has twice forbidden President Hoover to discuss debts with the European nations. Their purpose evidently is to win this year's Congressional and presidential elections by boasting to their people back home that they have succeeded to allow the burden arising out of the war to be transferred from foreign to American shoulders.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

LONDON LIFE'S BRIGHT YEAR

Assets Show Huge Gain and Reach Total of Over 72 Millions

Another bright spot in business and financial activities was revealed by the fifty-seventh annual report of The London Life Insurance Company, submitted to the directors and policyholders on Monday, January 18. The statement shows that the Company has written up volume of new business during the past year and is in a very strong position.

The assets showed a gain of $4,-$78,000 and now amount to $72,221,-000. They consist of first mortgages on improved real estate (66%); high grade bonds and debentures (30%); policy loans and liens (11¼%); miscellaneous items including stocks, real estate, etc. (2½%). The fine condition of the investments is further indicated by the fact that of the mortgages invested in the year up to $45,360,000, the gross overdue interest is only $66,076, or one-seventh of one per cent. of the principal outstanding.

A valuation of the Company's securities was made on the exceptionally high basis of 31st December, 1931, and sufficient investment reserves are provided to take care of all except a few minor market values.

The premium and interest income showed a gain of $1,100,000 for the year 1931, amounting to $17,700,000. This is an increase of more than 6.90% over 1930.

The rate of interest earned on the entire invested assets of the company was 6.45%. The gross rate has not been less than 6.45% for more than 20 years.

The statement which appears on the following page shows that London Life wrote the large sum of $95,101,910 of life insurance during 1931. An idea of what this large amount of new business means can be gained by the fact that $50,000 of new insurance was issued by the Company for each business day. The insurance in force is now $461,-207,000.

The Actuary's report showed that the Company's ratio of liabilities to assets under policies issued by the Company is greater than the ratio required by the Dominion Insurance Act. The task of raising this ratio to 100% has been completed in 1931.

The policy holders, the Five Surplus of $2,811,721, have been increased by the substantial sum of $2,812,000.

W. H. McEwan, superintendent of the local Industrial Agency, is greatly pleased with the report, full details of which he has just received his office. Mr. Edward E. Reid, the Managing Director of the Company, has commended the local staff for their splendid contribution to the year's record.

SIR W. MULOCK 88 YEARS OLD

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 20—Sir William Mulock, Chief Justice of Ontario and senior active administrator of the province reached the 88th milestone of an active life today. But birthdays have not dimmed the vigor of Ontario's judicial head and today he showed up at his accustomed place on the Appelate Court bench as usual.

"Life has been as one pleasant dream", Sir William commented for a brief moment after an exchange of felicitations in which his brother judges and counsel in the court joined. "Much of that is due to the splendid association which I have enjoyed with members of both bench and bar. The administration of justice should ever be a peaceful feature in the life of our province."

Congratulatory messages poured into the residence of the popular Chief Justice from all over the country today.

Ice Breakers Not Needed This Season

St. Lawrence River Open Most of the Way to Sea

Montreal, Que., Jan. 20 (CP)—As late in the season as the second week in January weather conditions have reported milder and there was less ice down the St. Lawrence ship channel to the sea than there had been for forty-six years, as long as records have been kept.

"The channel is clear from Montreal to Sorel," declared an official of the Signal Service on January 14. "There is some ice in among the islands around Sorel and there is some ice piled up at Point du Lac at the further end of Lake St. Peter. After that the channel is clear right to the sea. I believe that if a game of hockey could be continued, and a ship had to get out from Montreal, it could do it even now with the aid of the ice-breakers."

The last winter helm ice-breakers the "Lady Grey" and the "Sorel" were at work at this time keeping the channel clear, but so far this winter they have not been put into commission.

Officially the season of navigation on the Montreal closed on November 30 last and on the same date the winter helm ice-breakers the last ship did not sail for the sea till December 11, 1930, and December 12, 1931. According to the reports of the Department of Marine the "closing of navigation for Montreal Harbour" was as late as January 2 in 1878 and 1902, and as late as January 3 in 1913 and January 5 in 1929.

Though Montreal business streets were as busy as ever, the air was mild-summer, and though snow was practically absent from the ground for distribution at those points where sleighs were wearing out their runners by scraping over cobbles and asphalt, the weatherman was still hopeful of a plentiful supply of snow, while material which would give hundreds of unemployed men a day's work for a few days in cleaning it up.

LEAFS MAKE RECORD, SCORE ELEVEN GOALS

Toronto Entry Sitting Pretty at Top of Division

ALL RAN WILD

Conacher Scores Five to Put Him in Lead of Scorers

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 20 (CP) — Eclipsing scoring records of the past two seasons by banging up a record onslaught of 11 goals in their game with Americans last night, Toronto Maple Leafs are today comfortably seated at the top of the International division in the National League, five points in the van of Canadiens and Americans who are deadlocked in second place.

While 4th Toronto club went thoroughly trouncing Eddie Gerard's hospitals, Canadiens' classic cage went to work in real earnest in New York and Boston and when the games finished each managed to leave for home with two points safely tucked under their belts.

Chicago's 3-2 victory over Bruins placed them in sole possession of second place in the American group while Canadiens 6-3 triumph over Rangers hoisted the world champions into a second place tie in the International division with Americans.

Ringing from their 4-0 reverse in New York Sunday when they bowed to the Americans, Maple Leafs returned to the Gardens last night and after 30 minutes of interesting but one-sided play, clearly demonstrated they are one of the strongest machines in the N.H.L. defeating Americans 11-3. Although eleven goals were scored against the valiant efforts of defencemen Allen Shields, who relieved Wentworth in the nets in the middle period, when the Midget goalie was forced to retire with a knee injury, the Toronto club clearly outplayed the amazing Americans and compiled their total by scoring twice in the opening period, five times in the second frame and four times in the final stanza.

DEMPSEY TO BOX IN QUEEN CITY

Will Sign Articles to Meet Two Opponents in One Night

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 20—(CP)—Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion of the world, and the greatest individual box office attraction the sport's world has ever known, will box in Toronto for the first week in March, Flaylar Brown, promoter of the Shamrock Athletic Club announced last night on his return from Buffalo, where he conferred with Dempsey's manager.

Although no contracts have been signed as yet, the Manassa mauler's manager will visit Toronto next week and look over the situation before drawing up the documents.

Dempsey will box to a decision, unless a knockout is scored, against one opponent for four rounds or two opponents for two rounds each. Opponents for the former idol of flatic fans have yet to be chosen.

A CHIP OFF THE ICE BLOCK

It's a case of "like dad like daughter" in the family of Philip Taylor, famous British figure skater now here arriving in New York with his more famous 11-year-old daughter, Megan. The tiny miss is England's youngest Olympic entry and will show the veterans of the ice scrambling new in-figure sights when she competes at Lake Placid next month.

JUNIORS CAN AT LEAST TIE

Game With Campbellford Not to Be a Push-over

At the request of the Belleville management the Campbellford juniors are coming to Belleville on Thursday night, instead of Friday, the original date set for the junior group fixture. For the locals can pull through this game with a win they will be assured of a tie for first place in the local junior loop. If the Cubs win this game on Thursday night then the Trenton team must win their remaining two games in order to get into a tie with Coach Thompson's "pets."

The locals do not want to think that this Campbellford team is any pushover, as they have some real classy junior players. Hendy and Bush are good enough for any man's junior team and these two lads are closely followed by Eddie Holmes and Holmes. The rest of the team are not to be taken with any degree of inability as they all know what it is all about and play a real smart game all the time.

Roy Oddie, in the nets, is playing his first season in O.H.A. company and is fast proving his worth to the team. Holmes and Wilkes, on the defence, team well together and will stop many of the locals' rushes. Hendy, at centre, is ably flanked by Bush and Dailey on the wings. The alternates will be picked from boys like Eddie Holmes, Ken Oddie, Milne and Lambert. The Campbellford kids have yet to win their first game and are coming to town for that express purpose, according to dispatches from the Hydro Town.

Coach Thompson has had his proteges out to practice every night this week and feels that they are in the very best of condition possible. Scopis or McGee will guard the twine defended by Ehmer and Sherry on the defence. These two lads are getting better each time out and it will take a real smart team to pass them. Neal McDonald will be seen at his usual position and this lad is fast proving a big asset to the club as he carries the puck well and can also is fast learning the art of a classy poke-check. Harry Morgan and Jimmie McGuire will be the starting wing players and these two kids are a real asset to the club. Jimmie has struck his stride as a goalgetter and is fast proving his column of goals into the double figures. The subs will be Carl Morgan, Nichol and Goyer with Pointer as sub goalie. The three boys on the second line are beginning to team well together and will no doubt score many goals for the Cubs before the curtain is rung down on the current season. In all, Belleville has a team of juniors to be proud of and will go considerable distance in the O.H.A. race if they do not get careless like they did against the Trenton boys last week.

The local intermediates journey to Kingston on Friday night where they battle the Queen's boys for the league leadership.

A DEFENCE STAR

Fans often wonder why Wentworth is called "Cyclone" as he is a defence player for the Chicago Black Hawks. Well, one reason is, he learned his hockey at Oshawa, Ontario, and the other, well, watch him when the Black Hawks are in town and you will see a good cyclone in action.

SAILORS REGAIN SECOND PLACE

Toronto, Jan. 20 (CP)— Port Colborne Sailors last night regained second place in the big seven group of the senior O.H.A. when they came from behind in the third period to score a trio of goals and defeat Hamilton Tigers 3-2, in one of the wildest games ever witnessed in the Sailor town.

After Loach had twice tallied for the Tigers in the middle period, once on an unassisted effort and again on a pass from Hayhoe the Ports netted setting down as the third period got underway and before the frame five minutes old the game was tied 2-2, on goals by Hyslmrr and Shannon. The winning marker came late in the period, when Wade combined with Quibbett to beat Marsh on a hard drive.

Both Tiger goals came toward the close of the middle session when Hudson was serving a 10-minute penalty for hitting McGowan when they collided at centre ice.

Current Sport

By The Observer

On Thursday night the Campbellford juniors invade the Belleville Arena to try and stop the local Cubs in their winning streak. The locals are out to make it three games in a row and a merry battle will no doubt be the outcome. The boy, Bush on left wing for the Hydro Town juniors, is one real hockey player and is closely followed by Hendy at centre. Although the visiting club have not won a game to date, they must win Thursday night's battle or step down and out of the picture.

On the other hand the Belleville kids are out to win their group without losing a game, if possible. Coach Thompson's driving his players at top speed and the visitors will know they have been in a game before the sixty minutes is over. The combination players of MacDonald and McGuire are a treat for any fans to watch as these two lads seem to know just where the other is at the opportune time for a pass. MacDonald is fast learning the art of poke-checking and breaks up many a rush at centre ice. Bill Sherry has at last struck his stride and the teams well with Ehmer, who has improved wonderfully.

Looking back over Monday night's game at Kingston we did like to see that we were perched up on the top rung of the ladder and that Kingston seem to play better hockey on the road than they do at home (why?). (Figure it out for yourself.)

Johnnie Leachman was "the star of the lot and the pick of the ones" in the game and we wish to inform our readers that he is the "Babe Ruth" of hockey in the eyes of the Kingston fans. At the start of the game, they said that Doc was either good or lucky but at the end of the first period we could hear it said that he wasn't lucky. (Figure that one out.) The intermediates face the acid test on Friday night when they go to Kingston to play the Queen's team. The "students" have a real smart club and the locals will have to be right on their toes to beat them. The combination of Squires and Murphy have been defeated before and there is no reason why they should not be likewise again. If the locals don't fall by the wayside they will let the Queen's "rockers" know that they have been in a game, to say the least.

The local intermediates do not have a home game until one week from Friday night when the R.M.C. team comes to town. In the meantime Belleville are scheduled to play in Campbellford on Monday evening.

The opening game of the Eastern Ontario Basketball Association will be played at the Y. M.C.A. tonight when last year's provincial champions, R.M.C. come to town to battle the local Y's Men Trojans. The Trojans have been practicing faithfully for the past month under the direction of Coach Ralph Morden and expect to start the season off with a win tonight. Last year the Cadets only nosed the locals out by one point in the league playoffs.

One thing noticeable on the part of the Belleville Intermediates is the fact that they start well and then seem to fade in the last half of the game. In all of their games, to date, they have slumped after their opponents in the first period only to let them come right within striking distance later in the game. Whether they get careless or not we do not know but we feel assured of the fact that if they don't remedy this fault pretty soon they will literally toss a game away one of these fine nights.

It is not our intention to criticize too severely but merely to mention the fact that offensive hockey is the best defensive game yet known. This idea of resting on a two or three goal lead will surely spell defeat for the locals for when they try to play the Cubs' game next night, well, it may be too late. The fans like to see goal scored, so why not "bag" as many as possible when the opportunity arises. There is an old saying, "tomorrow is another day, so, make hay while the sun shines." This also applies to scoring goals.

The softball moguls had quite a successful meeting on Monday night. The main issue at present seems to be the location of the playing field. Walt, with the defeat of daylight saving it looks as though Belleville will have to have a flood-light stadium if they wish to carry on girls' softball this year. The idea of interviewing the various men's league, relative to getting their support in such a project, may be alright, but, men's softball in this vicinity is simply "taboo."

Capital investment in mines, smelters, refineries and other mineral industries in Canada totalled $387,420,859 at the end of 1930.

"I get a greater kick out of hockey than any other sport I've ever played," says George Owen, former Penn Brain defenceman and regarded as the greatest all-round athlete Harvard ever had. "Hockey supplies that extra punch that is missing in other sports," says the former Crimson gridder. "Of course I've always enjoyed football and still do but it can't measure up to puck chasing as a thriller maker. There is something about the speed and roughness of hockey that gets into your bones. There are some veteran hockey players who will be forced to retire soon because of old age. I'm 2 to 1 however, that they will still be engaging in friendly matches twenty years from now." Owen starred in track, hockey, football and baseball while at Harvard and won nine letters in sport, as well as being a first class scholar. Now he is captain of the Bruins and is playing a bang-up game both on defence and on the attack. During summer months he works for a prominent Boston brokerage firm.

Unique Hockey Contest

Offers $15,000 in Cash Prizes

With hockey now at the peak of interest as the eight teams surge on through the final half of the race towards the National League title and Stanley Cup play-off, ninety percent of Canada's population follows the games with keenest interest, and analyzing the form and figures is the most popular of winter pastimes, apart from watching the matches. Under these circumstances, and with the three Canadian entrants in the major league battling along in powerful fashion, the Turret Cigarettes Hockey Contest seems likely to develop into a gigantic affair.

Hockey, Canada's real national game and most popular sport by far, centre for winter-long argument and discussion from coast to coast, will give its myriad followers an opportunity to turn their theories to practical account through the medium of a great forecasting contest announced today by the Imperial Tobacco Company, manufacturers of Turret Cigarettes. The contest involves the sum of $15,000, including some five hundred cash prizes, to be distributed among hockey followers who can correctly, or nearly correctly, forecast the scoring totals of National League hockey teams in the current campaign. It is by far the richest contest from a monetary standpoint ever staged in Canada, and conducted on a scientific basis is the most far-reaching.

The Turret contest is simple enough in its fundamentals, the confusing elements which frequently surround contests of this kind being entirely eliminated. The contest calls for estimates of the total number of goals which will be completed by each of the eight National League clubs during the current season, exclusive of play-offs. As the Turret contest has been started with the teams in the major league having passed the half way mark, the matter of forecasting the goals total is simplified to a very considerable extent, with a good basis for opinion which to compute future performances.

Shaping Figure to Suit Styles

Shaping Figure to Suit the Styles Outside the realm of the stage and the cinema, feminine shapes aren't anything to go by these days. Cruel words these, but the mirror in the fitting rooms almost and the cinema audience is a state of fears. The old figure was all right when the smart robe hugged it tightly and hip line weren't so snug. Now slim'ys shedding 'em more and more, flatting them closer, and every bone and bulge that shouldn't show does—unless you're old Mrs. Wise and are locked neatly away in a foundation garment or corset that has been made to order, or at least selected by a professional corsetiere who knows how to solve figure problems.

What the fashion designers have done is to put the modern corsetiere's wonder in a style of dress that was designed for stays. Willowlining dress, one would say, and hips—unless one is gracefully, beautifully slim—the average woman doesn't appear to best advantage. Women are fed up about hearthy-looking, they talk figure reducing, follow any crazy new diet that comes along, but they haven't figure snap. Not many of them.

Next to too much adipose upholstery, the most ordinary cause of this state of affairs is lack of interest in posture. Tell a girl to carry herself like a queen and she will tell you that she hasn't any money any more. You can run along and roll your hoop and the further away you roll it the better she'll like you.

It was inferred that when the old-steel-riveted corset went into the silk rubber bands will suffice.

Miss Skinner Acclaimed in Novel Monologue

Portrays Six Women Led to Altar By King Henry VIII.

New York — For nearly two months now, one woman, and one handed, has held theatre audiences spellbound while she played six wives to one man!

She is Cornelia Otis Skinner and her one-woman show is called "The Wives of Henry the Eighth." The story behind this unique stage play like the saga of a genuine pioneer, a woman who had the courage to do original things naturally.

Miss Skinner, daughter of the famous Otis Skinner, trained for the stage at Bryn Mawr and in Paris, and has had plenty of experience both in a number of productions.

But before she appeared after her parts in these plays, she was most interested in finding characters or clues that she herself wrote and gave. Coming back from Paris, she used to amuse her friends with her monologues and authoring being gratified and delighted to have a woman's club call her up and offer her money for appearing in an entertainment.

Found a Theme

For the past few years she has been seeking a theme with which to embody her conception of a technique which would carry her character sketches deeper than the stage. Several years ago, in England, she attended a play about the love life of King Henry the Eighth. In the vast libraries there she did research on the one subject. Her idea was to pick out the most dramatic incident in the life of each of his six wives and to present each in their lodgings in a way to show just what each woman really was like.

She wrote the sketches herself, tried them out in Knole, Sevenoaks, by permission of Lord Sackville, and met with such acclaim from the critical English that she decided to bring them over here.

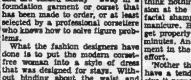
All of her friends and former managers advised against attempting any single-handed performance that winter on account of the depression. But Cornelia Otis Skinner had made up her mind.

She didn't want to put a whole fortune into her production. So, as she explains it:

"I studied Holbein's paintings of these women and ever again, this time not for character but for their costumes.

"I went to the public library for every bit of information on materials, colors, styles to make their exact authentic. Then I accumulated many trunk and closet I needed. I was ready to be used.

"My most successful costume, the one worn by Anne of Cleves, cost only the making! For years my husband has had a beautiful gown that he adored, but one that I disliked tremendously, because it was such a hard green and such a fashion pattern. In looking at paintings of Anne, I discovered the very use for that bedspread.



"So I took it and designed the dress with it. Of course my husband adored it when it was about time, so I told him I had found a dressmaker who'd do it to come to the theatre and see."

Outgrew Small Theatre

Other costumes were evolved in much the same fashion, and the audience that she had inherited, piece of gorgeous brocades she had brought back from the orient, along with other materials she had collected, all went into the making. And when she started her performance on Broadway, she modestly took under a small theatre that within a week she had to move into a larger, filled one of New York's largest.

Night after night she plays the gentle all of Henry's six wives. By day she is a Social Registrite, lives in the exclusive East River section, and finds her greatest pleasure in playing with her young son.

Just as Otis Skinner hoped his daughter never would go on the stage, so Otis Skinner's daughter hopes her young son never will. But time will tell whether this family tradition can be stamped out easily.

WAIST LINE GETS HIGHER

Has Come About Gradually; Will Be Featured in Spring

Have you noticed the gradual elevation of the waistline? Perhaps not; it has come about so quietly But there it is, and when Spring clothes are ushered in it will be the usual fan-fare, you will see that many of the youngest, slim-looking things have a subtly higher-waisted effect.

Not every one, of course, will go high-waisted because not every figure will allow it. But those who have kept up their homework in the matter of diet and exercise will be sure to specialize in these new highs Others, to whom the really full-up skirt is forbidden, may achieve this new effect in cleverly contrived diagonal cuts which stimulate it without being too unkind to the mature figure.

Youngest Likes It

It's hard to say just how it all started—this new high-waistline influence. Vionnet, for one, has been sponsoring it for quite a time and in her famous up-lift dresses and the 9-around small-of-the-back tight lift up under the bosom. Then there was her linen dress—and how that had a black soft wool skirt giving right on to an attached silk blouse top, very short-waisted with a Persian lamb bordered chest out with one side and three-quarter back boulder. This was really the grandmother fashion for the high and waisted skirts and suits now on their way from the designers.

Corset Skirts

Some of the new skirts have been called "corset skirts" because they have a three or four inch waistband inside the top which is corseted. They sound uncomfortable but they are not. And they look so much smarter with their low-waisted sweaters and blouses you have been seeing—and now you have also been told that remind you of the shirtwaist-ing days. Keep long coats in take to get properly harnessed? Maybe two minutes. And certainly the improvement in the silhouette is worth the effort.

The Jacket

Another thing. The new corsets have a tendency to lift the bust and shape the contour, if it is small, to flatten it if it has expanded beyond the limits of aesthetic appearance. Which does away with the woman?

The wrong corset does nothing. Feminine shapes are as different as feminine faces—the corset must be fitted, anyhow selected with judgment. There are garments of this character for the possible combination of pounds and measurements, fitted for them as well boned, and that's a blessing to the lady who has undergone a lot to be spoken of in public and whose proportions are a strain on the tape measure. Also those who have muscles have lost tone the knitted silk rubber bands will suffice.

WHAT ONE GIRL WORE—

By Betty Brownlee

One of my friends is one of the lucky ones who will sail for the sunny South next week. I had a peep at her wardrobe last week and it certainly made my heart go pitapat. One of the loveliest of her frocks I have sketched for you today. Its very simplicity makes for distinction.

Developed in wool georgette in a pale sky blue shade, it boasts a particularly novel and interesting neckline. A band of crepe of the same shade is encrusted on the frock coming from the back around the neck and ending under the arms in back. The same novel bandings are used on the sleeves. A draped girdle comes from a point at the front, twists around and ties in the back. The circular inset on the skirt makes for comfort and gracefulness.

My friend completes this ensemble with a natural straw hat with blue velvet banding and white buck sports oxfords. The finished effect is stunning.

Correct Manners

Initialing the Silver

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would appreciate your telling me which initial I should have put on her linens when getting them marked. Should it be her own initial, or the one that she is going to take?

Mrs. N.

There is much discussion about in these days, the conventionally minded girls preferring the traditional way of marking their linen and their silver, that is, with the initial of their maiden name) and the more progressive ones preferring the initials of their married name, strongly recommend the former as it is interesting to see in after that most of the conservative and cautious linen buyers and trousseau-smiths always suggest the use of the maiden name initial.

How to Serve

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. A few days ago in your column I asked a question concerning serving from the left and that the plates be removed from the right. In this correct? I have always served my guests in just the opposite manner and have never had cause to question my way. Even last evening at a very fashionable dinner party at which I was—serve to the right and remove from the left. I do hope you will put me right.

2. Will you please give the usual form of invitation to a dinner party for ten, two ladies—a lady and a gentleman—and also for the number of the persons involved?

N.

1. The general rule for serving is that it is far more convenient for the food passed on the left of the guest and to have the plates removed from the right. Of course there are no hard and fast rules But if you find the serve-on-the-right way more convenient there isn't any reason in the world why you should not follow it. In a fairly wide experience,—I think you will find I encountered the serve-on the right more than half than three or four times, and then it didn't seem to be a matter of any importance to the left service.

You use only name of the persons being introduced, the thing is to remember when you are introducing a man to a woman is the woman's name is mentioned first. When you are introducing two women, if one is married, and the other is not, you mention first the name of the married woman.

If both are married or both unmarried, you mention the name of the younger woman. If there is an appreciable difference in age.

When we introduce two gentlemen we mention first the name of the older or more distinguished gentlemen.

DAILY BULLETIN UPON HEALTH

When a child has a metallic cough or a whoop in its breath, and the throat is inflamed, there is probability the seriousness of the condition and put it down as a cold. Watch the doctor quickly, for the probability is you are dealing with diphtheria.

Dresses and Hangers

Dresses, especially silk and other sheer ones, sometimes slip off their hangers. This is very annoying. Here is an easy way to prevent this. One will need a "snap" clothes pin, the kind which has a circular wire holding it together. Slip one side of this circular wire over the wire hook of the hanger, letting the clothes pin come at the back of the hanger. Snap the clothes pin to the back of the dress collar of underdress. No strain or pull comes on the garment yet it is held in place and cannot possibly slip off.

GUARD HEALTH BEFORE, AFTER BABY ARRIVES

Advice By Dr. Louis E. Bisch, M. D., Ph. D., Health Authority

Nowadays babies are not brought into the world without the benefits of science; at least not by thinking mothers.

Indeed, really serious parents also look to their respective hereditary family trees before even thinking of marriage. Financial considerations are playing more and more important roles every day in efforts to promote better matings and better offspring. While all the same time reducing the reproduction of stock that is not desirable I rest my case.

But if the average mother is not yet as much concerned with such considerations as perhaps she might be, and perhaps should be, she is regarded as a pretty theory with few practical possibilities — which she should not of course—there is really no excuse for her if she neglects to take the proper prenatal care, which will assure the baby an entitled to. Neither is she excused if she does not avail herself of the expert knowledge on children, that is ready at hand to help her in the most important after birth, to insure that baby having a right start.

The very first thing the expectant mother must do is place herself, and at once, in the hands in the care of a competent physician.

Such a doctor will make a complete examination of the lungs, heart, urine and blood If any bodily defects exist, they can probably be corrected in time. Such procedures are often of the greatest value in the life of both mother and child.

Next the child should be looked after, for the pregnant woman during pregnancy is more subject to dental decay. Perhaps calcium is needed to strengthen the teeth, bones, etc. If any ratic, all repair work must be attended to for the poisoning of the system. Decayed teeth may affect the kidneys and bladder.

The skin, as well as the kidneys, needs attention. Proper skin helps mightily in ridding the body of its waste products. Any skin disease that should be avoided by the expectant mother, such as eczema, psoriasis or "eclampsia", which is so largely due to the retention in the system of poisonous substances. Daily bathing is desirable, but not to excess. Do not bathe during the last three weeks, shower baths should be given up entirely in favor of the tub.

Loose, non-constricting clothing is essential. Elastic garters are bad, impeding the circulation.

Daily exercise, like walking, must be observed. Never should the exercise be violent, such as tennis or horseback riding. Motoring over rough roads is likewise to be avoided. If there are headaches, disorders of daily eliminations, vomiting, swelling of the ankles or face, these symptoms are not to be should at once be consulted.

After the baby arrives the mother should not give up the habit of exercise, but be much more so before. Feeding the baby must be regulated and the milk formulas must be just right. If the child is not breast fed, and artificial factors feeding is the price where only scientific facts in distribution to friendly advice of neighbors, should be followed.

It should be emphasized too strongly, however, that every mother should try to feed her own baby. Such a child always has a better chance for good health than the bottle baby.

And be sure to get the right medical advice. If private doctors cannot be afforded, a maternity hospital center should be consulted and the best advice given should be strictly adhered to.

Paddy the Beaver Lives in Comfort

By Thornton W. Burgess

Who wisely plans nor toil doth shirk,
Is well repaid for all his wok.
—Paddy the Beaver.

Paddy knows whereof he speaks. Yes, sir, Paddy knows. During the weeks of snow and ice, when his neighbors were having hard work to get enough to eat, Paddy and Mrs. Paddy were living in ease and comfort. Let rough Brother North Wind do his worst, and Jack Frost his hardest, Paddy and Mrs. Paddy care not a jot. They were not even aware of it. They had plenty to eat, warm, comfortable house in which to sleep, and little to exercise daily by swimming under the ice and feeding whenever they ever to worry about. And they were pleased as a result, in the great satisfaction, for what they enjoyed while others suffered was the result of hard work and wise planning. They were not lucky, as some of their neighbors seemed to think. There was no luck in it. It was the result of their own wisdom and industry.

"It is queer to me," said Paddy, "that some people are so short-sighted."

"Meaning what?" inquired Mrs. Paddy as she chewed a strip of poplar bark.

"I'm not preparing in times of plenty for the hard times that are bound to come," replied Paddy. "Good times never last forever, although some people seem to think they will. Hard times follow times last forever. Hard times are bound to follow good times and just as surely good times will follow hard times, but some people never seem to learn this. They never look ahead. When the hard times come they forget the good times and are sure that never before were things so bad. Things never are so bad that they could not been just as bad before, and perhaps worse. Do you know what I think?"

"What do you think, my dear?" inquired Mrs. Paddy.

"That if more people used a little common sense, we should have times wouldn't come around half so often, and when they did come wouldn't be half so hard," replied Paddy. "I'm glad I'm not in the season of plenty? We work as hard as if the hard season had already come, and some of the best of the plenty around us by storing away food for the days to come through the days when none is to be found. A good times we never forget hard times and so never really know what hard times are. Hard times are very often the result of what we do or don't do in good times. People make hard times by their silly shortness and laziness in good times. That's how I look at it."

Mrs. Paddy nodded in agreement "Right you are, dear," said she. "I don't know how we could be more comfortable than we are this minute, yet the other day when I saw Billy Mink over by that old hole, near the dam, he said that for some people this is one of the hardest winters they can remember. We certainly did work hard last fall to cut and sink enough logs for our food gifts, and sometimes it seemed to me that we were foolish to toil so hard when possibly the winter might be mild and we could go and eat our food as we needed it. But I'm glad we did, for now we can rest all we want to, and eat as much as we please when we please, knowing that there is plenty to last, no matter how late Mistress Spring may be in coming, and we couldn't possibly be more comfortable."

"We couldn't be," declared Paddy as he pushed a stick from which he had eaten all the bark down through the entrance to their under water tunnel. "I'll take this stick out and work it into the dam. There is a place where it should be strengthened a little, I think. We cannot afford to have the dam break when the spring freshet comes."

"Always thinking ahead and planning for what may happen; it is a wise head that lies on his shoulders," said Mrs. Paddy to her self as Paddy disappeared. "But the Beavers always was a wise and thrifty people," she added complacently as she sat down and curled up for a nap on her comfortable bed of shredded wood.

WARM WELCOME IS GIVEN TO 'THE DUMBELLS'

Return of Favorite Entertainers Marked By Large Audiences

Laughter, loud and long marked the appearance of the favorites of a thirteen months' absence, Al and Morley Plunkett's "Dumbells" at the Capitol Theatre, yesterday afternoon and evening. As Morley said it's a good deal like a very happy one, and great clouds of blues were chased away by the merry men on the stage. "The Dumbells" this season, some of whom are new and some of whom are old friends like Al and Morley Plunkett, Rhea Newman, Glen Allen, Rose (Marjorie) Hamilton more gorgeous than ever, and the inimitable Harold W. Ogle. Plunkett, the best part of a very enjoyable program.

Specialty numbers greeted "The Dumbells" and from the applause and laughter they received a very appreciative audience was assembled. Everybody enjoyed the show immensely. In fact Roy Romaine started a new greeting in Belleville, which was heard everywhere on the street, in homes and business places on Wednesday morning. "How's Your Blues?" Beautifully done as a newcomer, made a big hit and certainly is a worthy addition to the own peculiar way, with his wonderful costumes and marvellous headgear. "Red" Newman, who is now received a warm welcome and was as funny as ever. Rose (Marjorie) Hamilton was more magnificent than ever and more feminine. Glen Allen, dancer and woman impersonator, was unique and highly developed by an ankle sprained in rehearsal recently, and had to do his stuff just lasting evening. "Keep the show going on" and Glen is helping while his ankle heals. The audience was amply assured that his old popularity had not diminished in Belleville, by his hearty reception and numerous encores. Some of the nicest bits of the evening were credited to Capt. Morley Plunkett and the orchestra, especially the very popular "Entertainment, Three's, the late Joyce Kilmer memorial poem by Capt. and Morley Plunkett and played by the orchestra was certainly a gem. Also the presentation of "The Battle of Mine", written by Morley Plunkett eight years ago.

An outstanding feature was "The Bells of St. Mary's" by Rose (Marjorie) Hamilton, (staircase), certainly a lovely presentation.

Scotty Morrison and Joe Carr, newcomers to the "Dumbells", did themselves proud, and showed in their footing as a part of the show, which is evidently what they were helped to keep the laughter coming unceasingly.

"Dangerous Dan McGrew" and "Robin Tom's Cabin", prescient in a jazz setting with the tears left out, made the side from the audience. Al Plunkett's singing of the waves of laughter, very funny and both of them, assisted, as usual by the musical accompaniment.

Then in the return at one Dumbells was a gala event and the audience enjoyable one judging from the applause and laughter. Many of the old well remembered faces were missing and very much missed, but "the show must go on" and it certainly did. Everybody present the long period in which road shows have been giving Belleville the go-by for lack of a suitable place to show.

BLIND SENSE OBSTRUCTIONS

New York, Jan. 20—Blind persons have a curious ability to sense obstructions.

If there is a wall in front, the blind man can sense it without hearing sensation on the face.

Thus, a man, walking the first time, develops, enabling the sightless to avoid obstacles.

This obstacle sense in the blind is produced from the instinct of fear, which is developed in every human person.

Dr. Vladimir Dolansky, a graduate of the University of Paris in experimental psychology, made him-self blind since the age of ten, has described the actuality of this sense and its cause.

In a report of his experimental research he says:

"The blind are endowed with a sense of obstacles that is not magnet assume the existence of a special organ, the function of which would be to perceive obstacles."

Dr. Dolansky says the blind person feels as if something touches his or her face, as the needle comes near. This touch or tactile sensation on the face, temples and forehead, being accentuated by the degree of affected by the obstacle or by sound, or by the current of warm impulse of the skin aroused by fear.

ENGINEER SPEAKS TO LOCAL MEN

Mr. Nicholas Eboqern, of New York City, Industrial Engineer with the Ontario Shore Cas Co. addressed a meeting of the Belleville Manufacturers' Association, at a dinner which was served in the Coffee Room of Dickens and Son's restaurant Tuesday evening.

Mr. Eboqern who was introduced by Mr. W. S. Deacon, a director of the Ontario Shore Gas Co., spoke in a very interesting manner and gave much valuable information regarding the use of Commercial gas in manufacturing.

Jack Martin, 15 Bridge street, reported to the city police that his bicycle was stolen yesterday afternoon. The police are endeavoring to locate it for him.

Today's Verse

THESE THREE

Thy face like a bell is shaken
With thy low voice's chime,
And like a mob brooding white with beauty
Hangs o'er candle Time.

Aladdin's lantern burneth
In the dusk of love's eyes;
They on the night of our pale
Arabia
Conjure Paradise.

Thy mouth's slow round smile gathers,
Blooms as the ful lmoon grows,
Blooms on those lips which thy first word opens
Forming a broken rose.

"Prosperity" Issue of Building Record

Daily Commercial News and Building Record of Toronto, has issued a special "Prosperity" issue, stressing the opportunity which exists for building at present low costs. The issue outlines the ways in which the construction industry contributes to the solution of the unemployment problem. Contributed articles on the construction industry are included and statistical information and charts showing the place of the building trade in national economy.

It is pointed out that the present is the time in which the general public may seize opportunity for building at eighty per cent. of the usual cost which would be required one year ago. Many parties daily can be performed with private grain. Large amount of construction is pending in Canada.

FIRE SWEEPS TIED UP TUGS

Loss Feared Heavy — Upper Works of One Destroyed

PORT DOVER, Jan. 20.—Shortly after 3 o'clock last evening fire was discovered in the tug Ava W., which was lying at the dock of the local marine railway, where electric welding had been carried on during the day.

The fire had a good start and had spread to the tug F. P. Jelly, which was moored alongside, before the fire wagon arrived.

The Ava W. was cut loose from the Alva W., and towed by man power away from the dangerous position. One line of hose and buckets quelled the blaze on the Jelly, though not before the starboard side of the rail and housing of the Jelly was destroyed.

The Alva W., was swept clean of its upper works, although two lines of hose were played on it, and it is probable that daylight will reveal that the hull is badly damaged also. The loss will be heavy.

The Alva W. is owned by Captain Thomas Lowe, and the Jelly by James Mumenny and Sons.

Manslaughter is Charge Laid

TORONTO, Jan. 20.—Two true bills were given by the Grand Jury at the Winter Assizes yesterday. In one true bill the charge against Evelyn Barker was reduced from murder, for which he was committed for trial in the Police Court, to manslaughter. This charge arose out of the death of Pong Lay Yuen, Chinese restaurant owner, from a fire-arm said alleged by the Crown to have been caused by a blow from Barker in an altercation over a bill for a meal on December 30th.

This Chinese, it will be remembered, was employed in a local cafe less than a year ago.

ROBBER EXCITED KNOCKS SELF OUT

Los Angeles, Jan. 20.—John Nelson, 39, self-termed "globe-trotter," is in prison, here, for what police called the "worst bungled" robbery attempt on record.

Walking into a bank through the janitor's door, Nelson demanded that a clerk working overtime hand him $5,000. The employee was reached for the money when Nelson became so excited he started to run.

He banged his head against a door, knocking himself out completely. When police arrived, he was still unconscious and had to be carried to the wagon.

On Sunday night Mr. Geo. W. Guy was taken suddenly ill and is now under a doctor's care at his home with pneumonia. We are the family as Mrs. Guy has been an invalid for a year herself.

Mrs. Wrese read at White's Church in a terrible condition. On Saturday evening, Mrs. Wrese entertained by dragging it down.

Mrs. Guy is home for a time from Oshawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. B. Clapp attended a very enjoyable party of young married people at the lovely home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Spencer on East Lake. Covers were laid for twenty. Dancing and cards occupied the time to pass all too quickly and the merry crowd broke home in the wee hours of the morning. Miss Ruth Jones was the pianist for the pedalers.

A meeting of members of the E. S. T. C. A. will be held at Malone on Thursday evening to appoint officers for the coming year. Mr. Percy Bennett was unanimously appointed again as superintendent, Mrs. Jeffery as secretary of the Sunday School, Miss Edith Harry as teacher of Junior class, Miss Ruth Jones as Senior, Albert Jones, Mrs. Clifford Rush as appointed as pianist for the Junior class, Mr. Albert Jones, alternate. Mrs. Wrese's appointment as pianist was announced by Premier Bennett.

The Prime Minister was speaking before the Toronto Conservative Business Men's Club. Dominion Cabinet ministers, members of the provincial government and distinguished guests in every walk of life completed his audience, which crowded the banquet hall.

The Prime Minister sharply referred to criticisms of Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, on which the Opposition leader had advocated lower tariffs and had criticized meetings of the Transportation Commission in camera. Through the policies of the present administration, the Prime Minister declared, a viable unfavorable balance of trade amounting to $73,755,000 for the 9 months from April 1, 1930 to December 31, 1930, had been turned into a favorable balance of trade of $10,000,000 for the nine months from April 1, 1931 to December 31, 1931.

When Mr. King was in office, every question concerning railway affairs of the Canadian National Railway system were not answered in Parliament on the ground that the information would disclose business to another system. How then could the presidents of the two railway systems be called upon to disclose intimate details of their business systems in the course through public meetings of the commission? Only when this sort of information had been denied by the Liberal party when in office "on high and proper ground," Premier Bennett continued, Mr. King says "this sort of star chamber method should be denounced."

The Prime Minister proceeded: "I leave it to you whether this course is that of a demagogue or than a statesman, of one who prefers temporary cheers rather than the approval of history."

Employment in Canada.

Employment in Canada had been better maintained than in any country in the world during the present administration, Mr. Bennett stated. In addition, upwards of 100 new industries had been established in Canada under the policies of the Conservative Government.

For the Canadian High Commissioner in London—Hon. G. Howard Ferguson—the Premier said he had warm words of praise. "I would like," Mr. Bennett said, "to pay testimony to the fact that he holds the place such as no high commissioner has ever held in recent times." Mr. Ferguson enjoys the highest confidence of the Prime Minister of Great Britain, Premier Bennett declared.

Premier Replies to Winnipeg Speech of Mackenzie King

Toronto, Jan. 20—Canadians will continue to meet all financial obligations in terms of the contracts made. In emphatic terms, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett made this declaration on Tuesday. Unbounded confidence in the Dominion's financial standing and the future prosperity of Canada rang through the remarks of Mr. Bennett. Commendation of Canadian banking institutions through the stress and strain—despite 4,000 banking failures in the United States in five years—and of insurance companies was expressed by Premier Bennett.

Bickerings of Officials Blamed for Shake-up

TORONTO, January 20.—Partial shake-up of the Penitentiaries Branch is the sequel to intrigues, bickerings and jealousy which impaired the efficiency of the prison service, and a Toronto globe-dispatch from Ottawa. No one in authority attempts to deny the details to the public gaze. It is the sort of public hiding no Government seeks and it is the public must have the "inside story" it may have to get it in Parliament.

There has been a lack of harmony among the judicials of the Penitentiaries' Branch for some time. It is no secret that there has been bad blood between Warden Pozaford of Portsmouth Penitentiary and Inspector B. Evans, which has been openly referred Prisoners' Farm at Collin's Bay, near Kingston, Penitentiary, had clashed with Brig.-Gen. W. St. Pierre Finnie, Superintendent of Penitentiaries, who considered Jackson an excellent official.

There has also been trouble at the New Westminster Penitentiary. Tempests in a teapot have been magnified into major scandals. Even the Senate Chamber has been used as a pulpit from which trivial details of alleged favoritism and mismanagement could be broadcast. Even the wives of two penitentiary officials could not agree and have been at one another so far as to publicly snub the other on a public train—one of the Canadian Pacific Railway's crack trains.

The Minister of Justice and the Government were so tired of bombastic bickerings and jealousies and elsewhere that the reorganization was ordered. The Superintendent of Penitentiaries becomes Warden of Kingston Penitentiary are retiring, while Dublin Jackson, who was acting Warden at Collin's Bay, and Commissioner Lewis Westminster, is being replaced and brought back to headquarters at Ottawa.

Present scope of Gordon Calvert from Kingston Penitentiary, probably will complete the shake-up, but the trouble had been coming to a head for some time.

Horticulturists Protest Halving of Usual Grant

It was decided to hold the usual early flower shows as heretofore, viz.: irish, peony, rose. The dates for these exhibitions to be made later when flowering times were more ascertainable and certain. The show will be held in Toronto, powers were empowered to make arrangements for bringing a suitable lecturer or lecturers to the city the coming year.

Mr. C. J. Symons was named as chairman of the prize list committee, the president, Mr. Wm. Harvey, as chairman of the flower shows committee; Mr. A. R. Symons, chairman of the planting committee and Mrs. Ball was made convener of the committee for flowers for the Y.M.C.A.

The officers and directors of the Belleville Horticultural Society held a board meeting, last evening in the rooms of the Y.M.C.A. Nearly a full directorate was in attendance to make committees, to act out activities for the coming year and to plans for pursuing a progressive programme. Mr. H. Tench, first vice-president of the society, occupied the chair in absence of the president, Mr. Wm. Harvey.

A letter was read from the Ontario Department of Agriculture notifying the association that the annual grants to horticultural societies throughout the province would, for economical reasons, be cut in half this year. The secretary was directed to forward a letter of protest against this action to the representatives of West Hastings in the local legislature.

SCREEN ATTRACTIONS

Present and Prospective

Previews and Reviews of Current Offerings at Belleville Theatres

At The Belle

OLD TRIANGLE IN NEW SETTING

Clive Brook, Vivienne Osborne, the stage star who appeared as the "other woman in "The Bachelor Father," Charlie Ruggles and Juliette Compton are the principal players in the new Paramount drama, "Husband's Holiday" now at the Belle Theatre.

"Husband's Holiday" is an intelligent, provocative, entertaining story of a husband who becomes infatuated with another woman and plans to divorce his wife. But the wife, a courageous woman who has helped her husband in his climb is success, refuses to take his "wandering" too seriously. She believes he is merely infatuated and hopes that he will eventually return to her and their two adolescent children. Her surprising attitude and her determined struggle to hold her happiness, family and love if nothing had happened makes for thoughtful drama to strike deep into the hearts of men and women.

The direction of Robert Milton, of stage and screen fame, is swift-paced and dramatic, making the many situations and the dialogue interesting and off the beaten track. And the players of Viola Brothers Shore catches completely the human qualities of the story.

Clive Brook as the erring husband who finds himself involved with two women is excellently cast in one of his best roles. Vivienne Osborne as the wife and Juliette Compton as the "other" woman who has had the misfortune to fall in love with a married man, both play sincere and moving but well interpreted roles. And Charlie Ruggles as the bachelor friend who tries to get a word in ever so politely contributes many hearty laughs to the proceedings.

"Husband's Holidays" is a modern story of modern characters with a modern problem. You should see it. It's a point to see it tonight or Thursday.

Four Star Feature Pictures have been assembled for presentation on the screen program, including, Rudolf Valles and his Rockies, and a colorful novelty entitled "Musical Justice." Earl Dean and George Arthur in "Lease Breakers," the popular Belle singers and revue, and a delightful "TravelTalk: "With Medbury in Africa."

COBALT'S OLDEST RESIDENT DEAD

Husband Fought in The American Civil War

COBALT, Ont., Jan. 20.—(By the Canadian Press)—Cobalt's oldest resident, Mrs. Mary Ann Nicols, whose husband fought in the American Civil War, died, aged 97. The end came at the home of her son-in-law, Mrs. H. M. Lynan and marked the close of a life that formed a link with the United States of nearly a century ago.

She had been in failing health for the past years, but previously had been remarkably active for her age.

Mrs. Nicols came to Cobalt about sixteen years ago. She was born in New York City and most of her married life was spent in Michigan.

Her husband, Mr. Peter Nicols, was a soldier of the 104th Pennsylvania Regiment in the civil war. Her maiden name was Margaret Carpenter.

RONALD COLMAN'S TALKIE CAREER

Ronald Colman thinks that literary craftsmanship has made his career in talking pictures comparatively easy. The successive screen plays under Samuel Goldwyn's direction that have commanded his talents since the inaugural "Bulldog Drummond," were sponsored by a group of distinguished writers—three of them, "Drummond" "Raffles" and "Condemned!" by Sidney Howard, "The Devil to Pay" by Fred erick Lonsdale, currently, "The Unholy Garden", by Charles MacArthur and Ben Hecht, now at the Capitol theatre, and on the horizon, "Arrowsmith," by Sinclair Lewis.

Colman believes that an actor with literary bias, in a play of mature dramatic skill, has an almost unbelievable advantage over the player without it. He has prepared ably handled work of screen plays himself, but has nothing to do with theatrinsale results, entertainment, in bolds.

"Of course, it stands to reason that it is much easier to deliver a line, or to carry on the dramatic business of a situation, when it has been written well, than when it sounds as though a real person were involved.

Actors can be and have been better than their lines and their plays, just as poets and tins have been better than their actors. But there are a lot of lines that no actor in the world can make good."

What has been a tremendous advantage to the writer, Colman believes, is Goldwyn's stout defense of inherent story values and the refusal to permit alterations to a script without the author's consent.

In the extended story discussion between authors, supervising editor and director, and in the production conferences that follow, the story is thrashed around the coffin table. Every change is included in the scenario before the start that, a director's work is not to improve upon script, but to transcribe it in good faith to the screen. The plan is to make the picture as good as the author's. If the script is good, that is.

IM THE CONQUERER

What are you going to say in My, Mr. Latham?"

"I'm going to encourage the boy aviation."

"Why do that?"

"To make him work. Glenn, if I can only have another picture of m Jaime playing the bear under Roberta's tutelage—keeping him awake with his guitar and his Spanish songs, putting an extra man on permanent duty himself and serving her in silly romance, I'd hanged. Oh, the poor, unfortunate devil!"

"No sense of repression, eh?"

"Miss Schuyler," Crooked Bill assured me, "that method of courtship is fine with a Spanish girl, but to modern American girl like Roberta it's nerve-racking and offensive. Remember, Glenn, there was thing Roberta will never forgive, and that's bad taste. You can't be a strict male and then expect push her off her feet; even though it killed in self-defense and in so ing performed a public service. tell you Higuenes doesn't know better than to walk into bright lights and nights. Imagine berta the mistress of a ranch on Rio Grande trying to teach a ido better to deal the grub from bottom!"

Evidently Glenn Hackett promptly imagined it, for he laughed briefly for the first time. "But this chap ems to be educated and to have considerable degree Americanized," warned, as an after thought. "I saw his old man. Texas has been under six flags and the tribe Higuenes has fought under them all."

Outwardly they're plain, ordinary Americans, and no Yankee can take him into camp, but inwardly, I tell you, they're still Spanish. They prefer their beef jerked and they're stewed on red chilli peppers and brown beans. Spanish is their native tongue. They speak it perfectly but think in Spanish. While Higuenes could have undoubted his ranch during the Spanish-American War he'd have enlisted to Madrid. He declared that he was an outrage against civilization."

Crooked Bill hung up and immediately dictated the following telegram to Don Jaime Miguel Higuenes:

"You have the nerve of a lion-tamer stop thanks for the compliments implied in your telegram but have nothing to say about it stop however you have my best wishes and will even give you some good advice stop pile on the high romance under the old Castilian rule your good old father knew so well stop there is anything in Mendez's eye you should be dark-haired and dark-eyed like Alma and with these nests a fair singing voice and a good scene moonlight and a peahysterics kid I should say that you and slightly more, chance than a enkindled of chasing an asbestos st through the internal regions.

"CLAYTON."

"And," he murmured, "having done my duty by all concerned, I think I should return to my breakfast."

Well had he been, nicknamed Crooked Bill!

Twenty-Second Instalment

Mignon awakened Roberta at seven o'clock next morning. As her mistress's tub was filling, the maid announced, somewhat grimly, that somebody had turned her out of the 2-litthry, which hour Mignon reiterated as unreasonable and unreasonable. She complained that she had eaten dinner the preceding night in the servants' dining-room with persons to whose general color-scheme and table manners she was not accustomed.

"They might, with equal justice, find the same fault with you, Mignon," Roberta chided her. "No room grousing, if you please. We are in the Far West where men are men and women wore steers and beat wild horses. What did you have for dinner?"

Mignon recited the menu. "You ate precisely the same food that I had. Did the others have it too?"

"Good heavens, no, Miss Roberta! They had brown beans, baked chilli peppers, steak, black coffee and a sort of thin tough pancake."

"It must be good food. Don Jaime told me last night that he had practically been raised on a string of chilli peppers and pictures of the saints."

"I think he's wonderful," said Mignon with fervor. "And I'm sure he'd make much more money in pictures than down here on this lonely ranch."

"I do not think I should like Don Jaime in pictures, Mignon."

"I'd adore him. Wasn't he wonderful on his horse, shooting at that ugly Mr. Dingle?"

"I fear," said Roberta, slipping down out of the huge high bed, "that you have a romantic strain in you, Mignon.'

"It's Sunday," Mignon reminded her pleasantly. "And will you wear, mist?"

Roberta had given considerable thought to that very subject the night previous. That sports suit I bought just before leaving New York," she answered promptly.

"You don't think him drad with that," Mignon assured her.

It occurred to Roberta that it is a very difficult task for one woman to consult the innermost thoughts from another. She eyed Mignon speculatively, and the maid, observing the challenge, tossed her head and declared that knocking him dead today would be an easy task, seeing that he was already wobbling on the two legs of him.

Breakfast was ready on the gallery when Roberta came out looking for her host. The table was set for two and Don Jaime was waiting for her.

"You are as beautiful as an army with banners, Miss Astrim," he announced in the matter-of-fact tone in which one proclaims that two and two make four or that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points. Not so much a compliment or the natural desire of a man to declare a woman, as a definite statement of fact. Nor did he look to see whether his statement pleased her or otherwise, he was diving out her chair, in fact, and wondering if she had seen what he now saw, to wit—a fly in the cream jug!

Roberta flunked—and hated herself for it, because it was not her habit to exhibit such apparent pleasure at compliments from men.

He tucked her into her seat, sat down opposite, looked at her casually and said: "I see you had a good night's rest in the gigantic bed of my ancestors. You appear much refreshed and I am very glad of it. And you arrive for breakfast prompt at eight. Punctuality is a paramount virtue, particularly in women, so look for that you are a rose." And he leaned back and plucked one from the vine that clambered around a pillar of the gallery. "You are too red for red roses," he rambled, handing it to her, "so this lovely mauve rose is just the right shade."

"I'm not red. I'm sallow. Thanks for the rose, however. It's lovely."

"Well, whatever it is, it suits me fine." An order in Spanish and the cream jug disappeared, clutched in the dusky hand of the serving maid. "How does one say in Spanish 'Senaus mit the cream jug; There's a fly in it'" Roberta queried innocently.

Instantly his guard was down. With all the carelessness and indifference of a brittle boy he said; "You and I are going to be the best of friends, Roberta."

"Well, I like them fast on their feet—and I'm going to be the best of my. I've been trying very hard to dislike you, but I must confess I've an up-hill job."

"Of course, it's very unethical to like me," he admitted demurely.

"Let us say it is unusual and let it go at that."

His eyes devoured her. "Roberta, you're really mean. I think, if I may, I'll call you Bobby."

"My friends all do, Manus. Fire away, old-timer."

She saw him swallow something, and it was not food. Then she observed his guard come up, as it were. The fire in his eyes died out, and the sudden, wistful, little-boy look faded and was replaced by a certain sternness masculinity. "He's nice," the girl thought. "He wouldn't like advantage of the fact that I'm his guest to appear a rush me."

Oh yes, Roberta knew that. She could read their faces and conversations. Dear Aunt Sarah, Don Jaime Miguel Higuenes just assured her she was a beautiful as army with banners!

His two servants slouched apologetically to the table and he appeared to forget Roberta, to become absorbed in the dark, handsome countenance of bacon grease, talking affectionately to them the while as if they were human. Roberta reminded herself that Don Jaime was the first young man who had ever neglected her to curry favour with a pair of English setters, and was interested to discover that she did not resent his action.'

— MR. AND MRS. — JUST A MERE COINCIDENCE, THAT'S ALL

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN, No. 17.

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service)—

By Edgar Rice Burroughs.

One day Tarzan and Sheeta came upon the tribe of Akut. It occurred to the ape-man that it would be an interesting experiment to attempt to reconcile these hereditary enemies. It was hardest to impress his purpose upon the panther. But by fastening his rope about Sheeta's neck, by using his stout cudgel on the sensitive nose and by the compelling force of his man-mind, he succeeded.

Now the man, the panther, and the great apes roamed their savage haunts side by side, making their kills together and shafing them with one another. And of all the savage band none was more terrible than the smooth-skinned, powerful beast that had been but a few short months before a familiar figure in many a London drawing room and exclusive club.

Sometimes the beasts separated to follow their own inclinations. It was one of these times that the ape-man lay stretched on the beach, basking in the sun. Down-wind, so that the scent was not carried to him, a savage poured at him from the forest's edge. For a moment he looked in astonishment at the dozing white man; then turned and made a sign to some one behind.

cautiously through the rank grass a score of hideously decked, big black warriors advanced silently upon the sleeping white man, their heavy war-clubs swinging menacingly in their hands. They were almost upon him before he sprang startled to his feet. With savage yells and raised clubs the warriors leaped for him—only to retreat in sudden panic.

Ten Millions per Day Spent Upon Armaments Declares Principal Fyfe

Calls Armament Outlay Cause of World Depression

CHIEF FACTOR

Principal of Queen's University Addresses Council of Women

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 20 (CP) Denunciation of armaments by Dr. Hamilton Fyfe, principal of Queen's University, Kingston, and Lt.-Col. George A. Drew, commissioner of the Security Frauds Prevention Act of Ontario, marked a meeting yesterday of the Toronto Local Council of Women.

Dr. Fyfe contended armaments, instead of proving a basis for security, were exerting the opposite effect and that their continuance was a barrier in the path of prosperity and a factor in world depression. "Ten millions per day, $12,000,000 daily was being spent on armaments throughout the world."

Private manufacture of armaments must cease, said Col. Drew, declaring the point had been omitted from the covenant which was to be considered at the forthcoming disarmament conference.

At the conclusion of the Great War, said Dr. Fyfe, the victorious nations had told Germany her forced disarmament was only the first step in that direction yet money was still being poured into production of arms for the "failing" that arms brought security. The United States would not be responsible to cancellation of war debts, he said, unless its debtors showed sincerity in that matter.

The League of Nations had done the best it could in the Manchuria-Chinese conflict in Manchuria, said Dr. Fyfe. Japan could not get the rights of a treaty made with China in 1919 without "countries with whom she engaged, and which China felt had been forced upon her."

CENSURE GIVEN HEALTH OFFICER

At Stormy Meeting of Peterboro Health Board

PETERBORO, Ont., January 19.—Censure of Dr. W. L. Sutton, District Officer of Health for his alleged failure to co-operate with local health officials was expressed to day in a resolution which will be sent to the Minister of Health by the Peterboro Board of Health.

One of the stormiest meetings in the history of the Board was held this morning after the members had heard charges from Dr. Sutton that local medical officials had failed to report to him as required by law cases of tuberculosis. Dr. Sutton refused to take any action in securing such reports and then charged Dr. Sutton with having refused to report a case of tuberculosis to Dr. T. W. H. Young, City Medical Officer of Health. Mayor Roland Denne declared that for years Dr. Sutton had failed to co-operate with local health officials and that he intended to ask for an investigation into the management of the district health affairs in Peterboro.

JESUIT ORDER IS DISSOLVED BY SPANISH

Thirty Million Dollars in Property Subject to Seizure

MOVE FORESEEN

Trouble Continues in New Spanish Republic, Says Despatch

Madrid, Jan. 20—It was learned from a high Government source that President Alcala Zamora had signed a decree dissolving the Jesuit Order and confiscating its property in the name of the State.

The informant said the decree, which is to be published in to-morrow's Official Gazette, also would prohibit the setting up of Jesuit centres or chapters of their order.

The Cabinet discussed the decree today. It was said, but made no announcement of its deliberations because of a wish to consult first through the Official Gazette.

The Jesuits have been expecting such an order for some time, have made preparations in Rome and plan to leave Spain with their personal effects as soon as the decree is published.

Sends Held Privately.

According to officials of the order, the amount of Jesuit property which may be confiscated totals, roughly, about $30,000,000 and consists principally of church edifices and their contents. The total holdings are estimated at about $100,000,000, but this includes stocks and bond holdings, which are held in the name of private individuals and companies, and hence cannot be confiscated.

Dissolution of the Jesuit Order would end 400 years of virtually unchallenged existence. The order was founded in Spain in the sixteenth century by Ignatius Loyola, who later became St. Ignatius.

The Jesuits were expelled, once in 1767 by Carlos III, who believed they were becoming too powerful. The later was proved to be false, and the Jesuits returned to Spain after seven years.

The Jesuits and the radical political elements in Spain have always been at odds for a long time, the radicals maintaining that the Jesuits are too friendly with the aristocratic classes.

Tamworth Protest On Hydro Rates

Tamworth — A special meeting of the council was called by Reeve Black. It was moved by C. L. Wagar and Lynch that the Hydro-Electric Power Commission be notified that the township of Sheffield duly charged for light and will not install street lights at the present high rates.

It was moved by T. Carroll and C. L. Wagar that a by-law be prepared to appoint William Carscallen as agent of the township of Sheffield for the year 1932 at a salary of $10 per month, and $5 per day to be paid to Reeve Black for his services February 1 and that all former by-laws referring to the clerkship be repealed.

On motion of T. S. Howes and T. Carroll a by-law be prepared to appoint Vincent Barrett as tax collector for the township of Sheffield for 1932 at a salary of $95.

Through Ill health, John E. Parks has been forced to give up the clerkship of the township of Sheffield. He held this position for the past nine years and was township treasurer for twenty-three years, and still holds that office.

"A bathtub in every school" is a slogan of the cleanly in Sweden.

Preliminary estimates place the value of the mineral production of Canada in 1931 at $227,769,000.

Wm. J. Taylor, Journalist, Dies, One Time Owner of Tweed News

Proprietor of Woodstock Sentinel Review Passes

WIDE EXPERIENCE

Has Had Active Part in Many Community Enterprises

TORONTO, Jan. 20.— Canadian newspaperdom lost a prominent figure last night in the death of William James Taylor, proprietor of the Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

Mr. Taylor died in the Toronto General Hospital, after a surgical operation performed last night.

Prominent citizen and man of many public and business interests Mr. Taylor was well known in Canadian publishing circles for his vigorous editorial writing. In addition to the Sentinel-Review, he was a former publisher of other daily and weekly newspapers and monthly magazines. He was a Past President of the Canadian Press Association, and a former director of the Canadian Press.

Chairman of Publicity

Resident of Woodstock since 1904, Mr. Taylor recognized as a leader in its development. For two years he was President of the Board of Trade, and continued an active member of the board's Council. In the war period he was Chairman of Publicity for the National Victory Loan campaign, and always prominent in patriotic and other public activities of Oxford County. His newspaper contribution was a main factor in the success of many community enterprises of his time and the surrounding district.

Born in Preston, Ont., 61 years ago, he completed his high school education there, and for a few years was a public school teacher. He entered the newspaper business in 1891, when he bought a weekly in Tweed, Ont. Seven years later he joined the staff of the Montreal Herald, and eventually became business manager. He moved to Woodstock in 1904 to take over the Sentinel-Review, and continued publication there also of the Tweed Post and Gun in Canada, which he had purchased in Montreal. For a time has had interests in the Chatham Daily News and Stratford Beacon-Herald.

Held Staff's Affection

A typical instance of the manner in which Mr. Taylor won and retained the affection of his staff was revealed in the following incident which occurred about five years ago. A reporter, who had asked for a salary increase that was not immediately forthcoming resigned from the Sentinel-Review to join the staff of a Toronto newspaper. His made arrangements to move his household goods to Toronto, and, on entering Mr. Taylor's office to bid his former employer farewell, Mr. Taylor mentioned the requested increase in salary.

Perhaps you are making more now that will be in your best interests," he told the reporter. "I know you are not anxious to leave Woodstock but Toronto is your home, and, after all, you may be happier there." To which the reporter agreed.

Helps Boss' Express

"However" added Mr. Taylor, "I'm sorry about that raise, and I expect that you are incurring expense in moving back to Toronto."

To which the reporter agreed.

"So", Mr. Taylor continued, "you can just tell the cartage agent to stop moving your furniture to charge it to me; that will make up to some extent for the raise you didn't get."

Mr. Taylor was unmarried. His mother died last April. There are three brothers, all living in Woodstock, Melvin of Napanee, and Donald W. of Toronto, and a sister, Mrs. F. S. Rutan, died some years ago.

The funeral will be held Friday afternoon from Mr. Taylor's late residence, Woodstock.

With Tweed News

Mr. Taylor was born at Napanee, his father being a well known manufacturer for many years in that section. In the early nineties Mr. Taylor came to Tweed as editor of the Tweed News and later purchased that paper. While there he was appointed clerk of the Montreal Herald as his business ability had been so clearly demonstrated on the News which he had built up to a very large circulation, and about 1900 he went to Montreal to assume the position of assistant manager of the Herald. Later he became manager of the business manager of the Herald. His brother Dan Jr. had left the service of the Tweed News and he did not dispose of that journal until after 1905 or 1906.

From Montreal he went to Woodstock Sentinel, which he purchased. Later he amalgamated with it the Review, which publication was acquired and added to the papers under his control.

Mr. Taylor was a genial, bright and clever man and possessed remarkable ability in journalism and in finance.

He is well known in Belleville and in the part of the province, where he spent his early years.

MILLION IN BILLS

Philadelphia, Jan. 20—Philadelphia has $1,000,000 in water bills all ready to mail, but no stamps and no money to buy them.

Director of taxes Arthur D. Bremner, made this startling revelation when he disclosed his city had no money on hand to buy stamps. There will be no funds available either for this purpose until Controller Wm. B. Hadley opens the city's books for 1932, said Bremner. Meanwhile City Council is trying to balance the 1932 budget so Hadley can close the 1931 accounts and start on 1932.

MAROONED BY ROTTEN ICE

Island Caretaker Goes Through Ice Trying to Reach Mainland

Midland, Ont., Jan. 20 (CP) Joseph Boyle, caretaker on Beausoleil Island in Georgian Bay, is accustomed to thinking himself in heavy snows and stormy weather in the winter months. This year he was marooned by mild weather, resulting in rotted ice.

With his supplies running low, Booth set out recently to mush with his dog the five miles to the mainland. On the way the soft ice gave way, precipitating him into the water. He succeeded in pulling himself out and made his way back to the island. The dogs escaped a ducking.

Word of Booth's plight reached Midland through two French Canadian settlers, who crossed the ten ice to Beausoleil Island. Yesterday the tug Strathlorgh, loaded with provisions, left here and broke a way through the ice to the island.

Women's Institute Enjoys Unusual Entertainment at Meeting

Bonarlaw, Ont., Jan. 20.—On Friday evening, January 15, a very successful social evening was held by the Springcreek Women's Institute at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Williams. The large house was filled almost to capacity and all enjoyed the splendid program which was arranged by Mrs. Allan McComb, convener of community activities. This program included group games, contests, vocal and instrumental music, community singing, etc.

A very unique spelling match was engineered by Miss Evelyn Bailey. More than a dozen were chosen by a captain to compete against a like number on the opposite side. The match was conducted much the same as usual except that when the speller went down to a word they were to say their last name instead of that letter. Thus Mary Smith would spell the word "here" as H Smith, N Smith. Some good spellers went down on very easy words.

About the time that party-goers usually get hungry a bountiful lunch appeared on the scene. No one ate however with the girl of their choice. Dinner partners were decided by numbers on the back of the plates. A boy holding a plate number ten ate with a girl holding a plate with the same number written thereon.

Before the close of the evening the president, Mrs. W. J. Barlow, thanked Mr. and Mrs. Williams for the invitation to their home and led in "Pur They Are Jolly Good Fellows" and gave three hearty cheers and a tiger. Mrs. Williams replied that it was a pleasure to have the party and hoped they would come again.

SNOW GEESE ALWAYS SAME

No Change in Number For The Past 25 Years

Quebec, Que. (By The Canadian Press)—The one known flock of Greater Snow Geese in the world which has for the past 25 years consistently belied its name and refused to become greater is a source of deep gratification among the ranks of the members of the province of Quebec Association for the protection of Fish and Game. Neither does the flock become any less and on this account there is mystification in the ranks of nonmembers as to why the Association should concern itself with the affairs of a bird that so patently is in no need of protection.

This flock of Greater Snow Geese migrates between the coast of Carolina and Iceland, stopping for from four to five weeks in spring and fall on the St. Lawrence river below Quebec. It numbers approximately 10,000, and despite both the inroad of hunters and the expected natural increases through breeding, its numbers remain almost constant. Whatever the answer, it must lie in Iceland since the ranks of the geese seem little depleted by hunting between fall and spring.

89 YEARS OLD

Binghampton, N.Y., Jan. 20—Fanny Read, who left the seclusion of her home only four times in 67 years after her father forbade her saying goodbye to her soldier sweetheart in the revolution of 1862, is dead here.

She fell in love with an officer of the 103rd New York infantry encamped near her Hancock home preparatory to going to the southern battlefields. Her father disapproved and refused to permit her to say goodbye when the regiment marched away.

Miss Read shut herself in her room and left it only four times—each time for the funeral of a relative—during the ensuing 67 years. Two years ago she was taken to the Binghampton State Hospital. She was 89 years old.

Escape Not Reason For Retirement

KINGSTON, January 20.—As far as is known here, the retirement of J. C. Pansford as warden of Portsmouth Penitentiary was not due to the recent escape of a prisoner from that institution. There were rumors some months ago that he was to be retired, and the recent news did not cause surprise. Ill-health is given as the reason. He has been in the penitentiary service since 1912.

ANGRY CROWD THREATENS BOYS

Albert and Alphonse Preville Face Murder Charge

Montreal, Que., Jan. 19— Provincial Detectives have brought Albert Preville, 24, and his brother Alphonse to Montreal after an angry crowd had threatened them as a Bailiff was arresting Albert for the fatal shooting of Mrs. Joseph Mondor in the village of St. Admien near St. Gabriel de Brandon yesterday.

Mrs. Mondor was found dying on the floor of her home after a fusilade of revolver shots. The two Previlles had entered the house a moment before she was found.

Albert Preville surrendered himself to the Mayor of the village with the alleged confession that he had fired a few shots after Mrs. Mondor had turned a revolver on him. Provincial police found Alphonse Preville in his father's house nursing a bullet wound in the thigh.

Mrs. Mondor's children ran from the house screaming after the shooting and neighbors rushed to the rescue. Joseph Mondor, the husband, was absent from the house when the shooting occurred.

ROBBERY HELD UP, MEN TAKEN

Justice Moves Quickly in Case of Plot to Rob Bank

Hamilton, Ont., Jan. 21—Justice worked with lightning rapidity in the case of Anthony Caputo, 21, Roy Rice, 20, and Roy Kentland, 21, in police court this afternoon. The trio were accused of conspiring to rob the Canadian Bank of Commerce at Ancaster. Caputo was found guilty and sentenced to three years in the Portsmouth penitentiary and Kentland and Rice were also convicted and given a two year term each in the same prison. Their offence occurred but a few hours before sentence was inflicted.

Under the direction of Inspector Crocker, county, city and provincial police concealed themselves in the Ancaster Bank building, acting upon secret information, and remained hidden there all day yesterday. It was expected that three would make attempt to hold up and rob the institution. The scheduled holdup did not take place and late last night the officers raided the house in which Caputo was staying and brought in the three accused.

Inspector Crocker stated in court that Rice came to Hamilton on Thursday of last week and consulted with the other two men on a plan to rob the Ancaster Bank. Monday morning was picked as the time for the crime, and a car owned by George Campbell was to be stolen. They were to proceed to a local gunsmith's store with the idea of stealing weapons. They were unable to gain entry to the store, and the plans miscarried, as they found that skeleton keys they had obtained would not work on the car or the gunsmith's door lock.

BILLOWS MAKE BAY HISTORY

Waterfront Men Know No Such Open Water in Past Years

White-capped billows rolling on the Bay of Quinte Monday last, were worthy of old timers' consideration and comment, and a younger generation's notation in diaries for years to come. Mr. Wm. Lindsay, superintendent of the Schuster Company's yards, stated today, that never, in his fifty years' observation of and close acquaintance with the bay, had he known this to occur before. There was a year when an excursion went down the bay on Christmas year, but that year ice had not formed up to that time. The greatest thickness in bay ice reported this year was about six in.

Ice dealers, however, feel assured that they will have ice to stock up with, for the coming summer. There never has been a year that ice was not cut, and there is every the optimistic view that the end of February will find the usual supply available. A year ago the middle of this month, Mr Harry Smith had his crew of ice handlers busily at work stocking his several ice houses, but Mr. Maurice Callahan did not start cutting, that year, till February 15th. Speaking with Mr. Smith today, a reporter learned, it was his custom to employ a gang of about twenty men for a period of two and a half months, in his ice cutting operations. His own ice houses were first filled, then those of his various customers about them and finally he had two weeks' work for his men in cutting and loading for outside firms. This year he anticipates he will only be able to look after city demands as his time limit is measurably lessening.

Although ice of seven-inch thickness has been reported, this must have formed in some particularly cold and sheltered place. Five-inch ice has been more the prevailing thickness and some ice that has been cut to aid refrigeration in certain butcher shops has been of an even less than five-inch thickness.

A SHOCK ARMY?

Says Budget Disguised to Raise Money For War

Paris, Jan. 21.—Charges that Germany was secretly preparing for war were made before the senate foreign affairs committee, last night by Senators Bourgoin and Eccard.

Senator Eccard declared a disguised budget including provision for war finances was being prepared in Germany. Senator Bourgoin told the committee non-commissioned officers of the Reichsehr constituted a shock army of considerable effectiveness.

Senator Eccard further charged Germany was violating the Versailles Treaty. He said military expenses were being camouflaged as pensions for former officers and that appropriations for the German police are in reality the financial structure on which the "shadow army" is being built.

EINSTEIN TALKS OF DISARMAMENT MUST BE GUARANTEE FROM ATTACK

Whittier, Calif., Jan. 21—Dr. Albert Einstein, the little German scientist whose thoughts are largely occupied with the mysteries of the outer reaches of the universe, also does a bit of thinking about the world on which he lives.

Addressing a gathering in German in the local high school auditorium, Dr. Einstein spoke briefly on the coming disarmament conference.

"The goal is not to be reached through promotion of disarmament alone," he said. "The nations must have guarantee against outside attack. The nations must also obligate themselves to meet economically, or even with force the disturber of peace, who does not appeal to the court of arbitration or does not abide by his decision.

"The goal can, therefore, only be reached when the nations abandon in part their sovereignty in favor of the safety of the whole."

Is it Wrong to Steal When Hungry,? Guardian's View

Editorial in United Church Paper Deals With Problem

DAVID, SHEWBREAD

TORONTO, Jan. 21.—The teacher that if you are hungry it is not wrong to steal is ventilated in an editorial published two weeks ago, and is prompted by a letter from Rev. R. Pollitt of Surry, Que. The seemingly plain teaching being enunciated in this editorial led Mr. Pollitt to make submissions, and have raised an issue of terrific importance. Mr. Pollitt says in interpretation of a social action of dire consequence if this interpretation were followed out of its logical conclusions," Mr. Pollitt writes.

The editorial referred to this letter cites the instance of David eating the shewbread, and Jesus disciples rubbing out the heads of wheat and eating the grain as Scripture through the fields. "They were hungry and that was the justification given for their act. We were not starving," the editorial says.

Law as to Property

In answer to Mr. Pollitt's query that such teaching as enunciated in the editorial of two weeks ago seemed a direct flowing at law and order and morality, the New Outlook replies that it is the law to regard property that is not necessarily undermined. . . . If the law is flexible to fit the needs of the human situation, so much the worse for the law. Our correspondent thinks there are terrible risks in talking this way about things, but are there not terrible risks in undertaking to follow Jesus in anything?" The New Outlook quotes St. Thomas Aquinas, great schoolman in connection with the above editorial, teaching that it was not stealing for one in extreme necessity to take food in his own use though it belonged to another if such appropriation seemed necessary for one's personality.

MANY TUNNELS IN OAXACA

Used For Quick Communication Between Principal Cities

Mexico City, Jan. 21—A declaration that ancient tunnels underlie much of the western half of the State of Oaxaca, where last year the tomb of a high priestess was found in an ancient tomb, was made here today by Professor Ramon C. Robles, pure Mixtecan Indian, who is the State's chief archaeologist.

The professor declared that old Mixtecan Hieroglyphs tell of tunnels connecting all the principal cities, including one 100 miles long from the capital and royal city of Tilantongo, that the longest of these subtunnels was more than thirty miles.

They were used, he said for protection and quick communication by warriors between the principal cities.

"HEX DOCTOR" CRIME BELIEF

Curious Markings Put on Face of Dead Man

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Jan. 21.—The hand of a pennsylvania "Hex Doctor" was sought by authorities today in the mysterious slaying of Norman H. Bechtel, Mennonite church worker. Weird symbols were found carved on Bechtel's face by head.

The man, found dying early yesterday on a wooded estate in the Germantown section, was a native of Boyertown, Pa., and spent his youth in a region where "Hex Doctors" and other witchcraft cults have held sway.

For hours after the victim was found, police were completely baffled in their search for a motive for the murder.

Late last night, examination of Bechtel's body at the morgue, however, brought to light the curious markings on his forehead.

Small crescents had been cut on each side of his forehead and a horizontal cut about an inch long was under each crescent. Another cut, starting just before the hairline, ran through the bridge of the dead man's nose and two others ran diagonally upward from each eyebrow.

Police said the slayer had deliberately marked his victim with a razor blade or scalpel.

TRUCK CASE IS DISMISSE

Charge of Infraction of Motor Law Regarding Hours Heard

As a result of evidence given by R. R. Milford, two charges of infraction of the commercial Motor Vehicle's Act and regulations were laid against Mr. D. D. Wood, printer of the Dew Transportation Company today.

The charges were dismissed Magistrate Millel in the local police court this morning as neither evidence of Mr. Bush or Mr. Foster the two truck drivers employed by Mr. Work, proved to the satisfaction of the court that they worked more than ten out of 24 hours.

The case arose out of an accident which occurred some months ago. It was clearly shown that the drivers had ample time to rest while they were in Montreal from 7 until 2 p.m. thus the case was missed.

Wages Case

Another case was heard by His Worship when Nick Corvo a Greek, sued his employer, Joseph Another Greek, for wages due him while working in his restaurant. The amount was for $60.00.

Corvedis charged that Chagaris had hired him at the rate of $15 a month but that he had only received one week's full salary. He also testified that he worked 14 to 15 hours per day.

Chagaris testified that Corvedis was not capable of serving the public and he (Chagaris) had therefore dismissed him. He could receive $33.00 per month he had paid him his first month's wages. He also stated that he was refused his wages at the end of the second week as Corvedis rather complicated and Magistrate Millel ruled that as Chagaris hired Corvevis at $50.00 per month he was liable and handed down judgment to that effect. Defendant was called upon to pay costs of the court along with $60.00 sued for.

Snow Banishes for Time Fair Weather Playthings

Many Hail Snow With Relief From Drought of Few Days

HOW LONG SNOW?

Marbles, roller skates, skipping ropes and other warm weather playthings so much in evidence for the past few weeks have once more been laid aside and the younger generation are again busy shovelling their snow shovels and sleds as the soft white snow in large flakes that driven by a strong north east wind began to fall over the district shortly after ten o'clock this morning. A swollen Moira river also runs higher than ever as the anchor ice formed by the snow lends to the volume of water which is almost at flood proportions.

For some the arrival of the snow will be a welcome relief. Those who expect to get an odd day's work shovelling it off the streets of the city are hoping that it will continue to snow for some time—"until it is six feet deep," as one of the town said, and merchants frankly welcome it. Seasonal articles which have been available for the Winter that so far has been conspicuous by its absence have been on the shelves of their stores. Down coal dealers who have been tempted for some time to look up the doors of their office and go off down the bay fishing in the warm sun, hate once again taken heart with the arrival of new orders to be filled by the dozen. It is explained by them that no matter how cold it is if there isn't any snow on the ground people do not seem to want to buy coal, but as long as there is snow they will buy.

Whether or not the snow will last seems to be a matter of considerable debate. A few of the local weather fans claim that a snow fall which arrives accompanied by an East wind will not last, that it will only be temporary, and what little does fall will not amount to anything However even the meteorological experts who have been predicting various forecasts for coming weather changes only to see their predictions go hay wire, have been fooled so long by old man Weather that they have given up hope. Nobody, is seems, knows just what's going to happen next, so it seems the only thing to do is to wait and see.

COW STRUCK BY MOTOR CAR

Animal May Have to Be Destroyed Following Accident

Mr. R. T. Philbin, 200 Victoria Avenue, Belleville, was travelling in his motor car on the highway, about two miles west of Redcorville, shortly before one o'clock Wednesday afternoon. A herd of cattle being driven in the same direction as he was going and when passing the herd, one cow left the other cattle and came suddenly on to the road immediately in front of the approaching motor car. Although Mr. Philbin was travelling at a moderate rate of speed, he could not stop the car, it is said, in time to avoid striking cow, which was badly injured and will probably have to be destroyed.

The cattle were the property of Mr. John Underdown. Mr. Philbin's car was slightly damaged.

Provincial Constable Frink investigated the accident.

C. E. HOGLE NOT GUILTY

Magistrate Gives Man Every Benefit of Doubt

On a charge of breaking into the C.N.R. freight shed at Mohawk Station, by night, on December 28, 1931, A. C. Hadgley, of Thurlow, and C. E. Hogle, were arrested before Magistrate Mikel yesterday afternoon. The accused were charged with stealing seven tons of coke, wire fencing and other articles belonging to the C.N.R. Mr. Hadgley pleaded guilty to the charge and was remanded without bail for one week.

Mr. Hogle pleaded not guilty and after hearing the evidence of various citizens as to his integrity and conscientiousness as a truck-driver and economy, His Worship deemed it necessary to acquit the accused as he found that there was no direct evidence to the effect that Mr. Hogle was implicated in the actual stealing as he was hired to draw the coke, etc., from the depot.

After a very severe warning his Worship informed the accused, Mr. Hogle, that he should be careful in the future before he hired out to truck any articles.

It was also proven that Hogle was hired by Hadgley to do the carting and under such circumstances his warning gave the accused, Hogle, any benefit of the doubt when acquitting him.

ORGANIZATION USES NAME OF LABOR ASSOC.

Will Request Ald. Morgan to Attend Meetings in Future

VARIOUS CLAIMS

Name "Unemployed" is Dropped From Association Last Night

Acting on the suggestion made by Mr. E. Baldree that the Unemployed Association of this city "has outlived its usefulness" a motion later put by Mr. Baldree at their meeting in the city hall last evening, that the organization which then existed under that name should be known in the future as the Belleville Labor Association was seconded by Mr. D. Barriage, and unanimously adopted after a poll to vote of the members present; the change to take place immediately. This will not constitute a reorganization of the association but means that the name alone will be changed, and is aimed primarily for the purpose of having the Chairman of Labor, Ald. Morgan of the city council, present at all future meetings of that body so that proceedings which have been brought up by the members may be placed before him for adjustment.

The meeting was sparsely attended last evening and in the absence of Mr. Chas. Hanna, president of the association, Mr. Parks took the chair and dealt with the business which came up. The first matter was that of Frank street crossing which was brought up by a resident of that street last Wednesday night and which was laid over for the executive to handle. This matter requires a circulation of a petition among the ratepayers of that street which will sign it and in turn present it to the city council. Mr. Duncan who brought the matter up last meeting was not in evidence last night that Front street merchants were bringing in outside help, were also discussed. It was said by one man present that one store in particular had discharged two local men and had replaced them with outside help. This was referred back to the officers who will conduct further investigation.

On the report of the deputation who had met the city council at their last meeting to draw attention to the fact that there were still men working for the city on outside jobs who had not taken their proper turn on the list, such as snow shovellers and odd job men who were picked up indiscriminately, the answer received from the chairman of public works regarding this question was scarcely criticized. In the future all complaints of this nature will be brought to the attention of the chairman of labor who will be handled only by the Executive of the association. Mr. Chas. Hanna, to attend future meetings. Several members claimed that this did not come under the jurisdiction of the chairman of public works as regards hiring the men, and was a matter to be handled only by Alderman Morgan. While Mr. Hanna was present at last night's meeting he was asked to attend the next meeting to the chairman of labor.

Another committee formed last evening of members Lusk, Parks, and Symons will meet both the chairman of the Board of Education and the chairman of Labor, Alderman Morgan, regarding complaints made of a man who, it was claimed was not a resident of this city, but had a home some other place and was at present working in one of the schools as a carpenter. This committee will enquire into the facts of the case and if substantiated, will urge that action be immediately taken.

Feeling that the recent small attendance which has characterized the recent meetings of the association has been due to the lateness with which it is opened, caused by the meeting of the ladies' auxiliary which is held in the same place before the meeting of the men, the officers had decided to appropriate the hall for their own use at the hour of seven-thirty every evening. Question by Mr. Oster: "Does that mean that the ladies will have to shift for themselves, and find another place to hold their meetings?" It was answered by Mr. Ayling, secretary: "While it is regretable that there is not another location available for the meetings so that the ladies could carry on any time they wanted, still the parent association is really the one that should be taken into consideration in the matter. We fostered the ladies' branch, and they have done very well. Now I think that they should be given the responsibility of finding a place for themselves. Possibly they will be able to arrange some other night in the hall."

A suggestion to Mr. Baldree about having another dance put on was met with the answer that arrangements had already been made by him to help the ladies with their dance and that it would probably be held in a week or so. Advertisements would appear later.

REJECT PROPOSED YEARS EXTENSION

Germany Will Insist On Definite Adjustment of Reparations

BERLIN, January 21.—The German Government yesterday definitely rejected the new French proposal for a year's extension of the reparations moratorium granted to Germany under the Hoover holiday year, and will insist that a definite adjustment of reparations be undertaken by the creditor powers before July 1.

The official notification of the German position was communicated by Dr. Bruening to Sir Horace Rumbold, the British Ambassador, when the latter called at the Foreign Office to learn whether Germany would consent to a twelve month prolongation of the present reparations regime pending final action.

The proposal that the formal conferences be deferred to some date next autumn before the Allied war-debt payments to the United States are due was also rejected.

THREE DAY FAIR

For some years, Belleville Agricultural Society has had the habit of holding four day fairs. The extended period has been tried out so that patrons and exhibitors in the city could have a fairly clear notions as to the merits and shortcomings of the four day exhibition.

The Ontario Intelligencer suggests that a three day fair would be a more intensive success, that it would have increased interest which today is scattered because the dates are so extended. It is well known that the crowd is smaller on each of the four days and smaller crowds mean less and less interest. Men and women attending a fair want to there on the days when the crowds are there, for despite attractions the day of slim attendance is not nearly so interesting.

A four days' fair demands that the exhibits be on the grounds for four days. Many exhibitors feel that they are put about too much to leave their exhibits such an investment as they have invested. It must be remembered that exhibiting at the fair demands certain sacrifices and most of these are borne by exhibitors. A three day fair would mean one day less of sacrifice on their part.

Those contemplating a return to the three day exhibition feel that the total of crowds for the three days would be as great as or greater than the total of the four day exhibition because the events would be crowded into a shorter period and a greater programme of fun for crowds would want to come every day were the fair extended so that the program will be full and the crowds large.

Outlay for entertainment would be less for three days than for four days and better entertainment if packed into three days could be had. The annual fall fairs with little more than three quarters of the money now spent on entertainment. Economy would result.

A three day fair, successful every day, is more desirable than a four day fair with one day with a slim attendance. At the present length of the fair some of the programs are going to be slimly attended, that much seems certain. Better every day a large crowd and a steady attendance and no let-up in interest!

The directors will shortly be making their decision as to the date of the fair and the above is submitted merely as a suggestion and is firmly believe it would meet with the unanimous approval of exhibitors and be appreciated by the general public.

STRANGE FATE

How strangely fate comes to some persons was demonstrated in Tuesday's fatality on the railway track when the collision of a gasoline jigger with a dog which was running across in the front of the car caused the death of the spectator.

Destiny comes sometimes unexpectedly. Many men who have fought through war after war without a scratch came back to the old scenes, to die of a pin prick, a slip on a walk, a falling brick or in some such incident.

It is not only in the collapse of an empire as in the Russian revolution but in the minutest form, the agent of the destiny which ends the breathing being may come.

LATE WILLIAM J. TAYLOR

The death of William J. Taylor, publisher of the Woodstock Sentinel-Review removes one of the most remarkable figures in the field of journalism in Canada. From the latest days of his early life when he gave up school teaching to assume the editorship of the Tweed News and later to purchase its owner, through the period of his association with the Montreal Herald and throughout the strenuous business life in Western Ontario which found him merging newspapers and building up strong dailies, Mr. Taylor's life was one of intense activity. He was a colorful figure, who made a success of the newspaper business because he knew it from both the news and editorial side and from the financial angle.

In Hastings County, he is of course mourned not so much as the financial genius who built up strong newspapers but as a genial, affable and sociable man to know whom was a pleasure. Though he broke his business associations with this country years ago he never lost his interests in this district.

Mr. Taylor made a valuable contribution to the journalism of Canada in the smaller cities as he sensed the trend to union of newspapers in these centres. His financial acumen was of a class rarely to be found and his native social characteristics added to this made him one of the most brilliant figures in the newspaper field of the province. His influence has been felt everywhere in Ontario.

NO PLACE LIKE HOME

There is many a mighty river rolling onward to the sea,
With its waves a-flashing, leaping in the wind,
But I know a little lakelet that is glorious company,
And it brings a sense of solace to the mind.

There is many a road that wanders over mountains steep and high,
There are highways thronged with traffic night and day,
But a little road that bends and dips between a country sky,
Has often lured my vagrant feet to stray.

There is many a modern mansion, there is many a stately hall,
Where tower and turret in the sunshine gleam,
But a little country cottage is to me the best of all —
My little house of memories and dreams!

THIRTY-TWO YEARS AGO R. W. E. Burnaby was a student at the Ontario Business College, Belleville. Last Monday as Trade Commissioner for the Maritime Provinces he addressed Belleville Rotary Club. They always come back and it seems that the lads and lassies who have been educated in Belleville in the arts, sciences, and commerce, are as those whom the years do not age, nor the winds of adversity smite to wither. Brother Burnaby is a good sample of the type. Born in one of the hills and valleys of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island. One can hardly believe that the same blood and robust and active appearance that he is more than a thirty-year-old.

STARVED FOR ROAD SHOWS the return of "The Dumbells" to Belleville gave the Plankets yerbas for most appreciative audiences they ever played to, and also brought forcibly home to the theatre-going public of this town that a steady diet of picture shows certainly whets the appetite for a real up-and-doing stage show. The rumor that Sir Arthur Hawkey may play Belleville in "The King's Messenger" awakens the hope that the local entertainment diet may soon be varied by an occasional road show.

"THIS VEHICLE STOPS at all railroad crossings," displayed in large letters on the back of a Belle Telephone service truck is a healthy sign of respect for these mighty steel monsters hurtling across the country at a mile-a-minute speed or greater. Folks are beginning to realize that the thrill received from a reckless effort to beat a modern express train to the crossing does not nearly compensate for the reverse feeling which fills the heart and mind in the face with the locomotive. The train has all the best of it. Firmly planted on rails with the weight of tons of steel to thrust slipping off, a little nothing like an automobile does not disturb this metal monster which calmly smashes the trespasser—lighter metal which dares to dispute the right-of-way and without losing a wheel. revolution keeps on its course while the mangled remains, metal and human, slithers into the nearest ditch. Every vehicle could have that slogan as part of standard equipment and every motor vehicle driver should carry the slogan as part of his or her personal equipment, and grade crossings would have fewer horrible tales to tell. After all, what's the hurry?.

It seems there were an Irishman and a Swede. He came from Cork and she from Minnesota and they met in South Carolina and they were to be named Amos and Andy months ago, and two weeks ago twins arrived. The proud parents announced that the twins would be named Amos and Andy.

Newspapers printed the story, the news services spread it. And the thing happened that we had feared. Would you believe it—321 papers featured the yarn, 152 editors headed it "Check and Double Check", 67 entitled it "Awah! Awah!" and 101 put "Ain't Dat Sumpin" over the story.

One lone, but courageous soul, wielding a stout editorial pencil, scribbled this: "I se Regusted!"

A CRADLE SONG
O men from the fields!
Come gently within,
Tread softly, softly,
O! men coming in.

Mayourneen is going
From me and my joy,
Where Mary will fold him
With mantle of blue!

From reek of the smoke
And cold of the floor,
And the peering of things
Across the half door.

O, mags from the fields!
Softly, softly come thro
Mary puts round him
Her mantle of blue.

STEALING THE CROWN

In the cable from our London correspondent, Mr. Hector Johnson, relative to the removal from the jewelled room at the Tower of London of the King's crown, for repairs. Incidental reference is made to Colonel Blood's stealing the crown. The details of that daring robbery is well known. Colonel Blood's purpose was an Irishman, who had sided with the Republicans against the king in the Great Rebellion. At the restoration, he had forfeited his large estates, and from this time on his hand was turned against the monarchy. He conceived the idea of at the head of a rebellious faction which included the Duke of Ormonde, the king's viceroy, and assassinating him. His accomplices were betrayed, however, and most of them were captured. He moved to Scotland, and organized a number of unlawful exploits which made him notorious. He was at one bear of him in Scotland fighting with the Covenanters, and he distinguished a price of 500 pounds is placed on his head for an attack he made with three friends on an armed escort, most of whom he killed. In 1671 he and his friends again visited England, and the same Duke of Ormonde, whose life he had previously attempted to assassinate in Ireland, was one of the guests at the court celebrations. On the occasion, as the duke left the palace, Colonel Blood and his gang attacked the coach, dragged the duke from it, and placed on one of the party on horseback. Blood himself went to Tyburn gallows to make ready to take the duke, but the latter struggled free. Again the latter got away, still planning vengeance against the Duke, but the most exploit was the most famous and boldest of all—no less than to steal the King to ransom by stealing the crown jewels.

It is interesting to note that at this time the jewels were not numerous, some of had been presented by King John in the Wash, and others had been given by other unions sovereigns. the crown itself having been pawned at six times. There were, however, in addition to the crown, the orb and the sceptor, in charge of the keeper of the jewels a Mr. Edwards. In the Tower of London, Blood had received a visit from two persons who expressed a desire to see the royal treasure; one was dressed as a country parson, and the other was a woman representing herself to be his wife. The parson was disguised. While Edwards was looking at the jewels the lady affected illness and was supported to by Mrs. Edwards. A few days later the two returned to the jewel room with a present. This led to many visits, culminating in the introduction of other friends, the nephew of the keeper, the future of the crown and sceptor. Blood had pursued the recovery of the jewels and the crown, and as the Colonel Blood. Then came the most astounding theft of all. Colonel Blood refused to talk, except to King Charles II himself, when he actually flattered into granting a pardon and the return of his estates.—Hamilton Spectator.

BENEFIT OF LOWER WAGES

It is reported by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics that the general level of retail prices in Canada decreased by 15 per cent in the year 1931. Where the fall in prices is called the cost of living should encourage the buying by more freely. Many people who could afford to spend more have been discouraged by the uncertainties of the year.

Talk about the necessity of enforcing drastic economy, of reducing wages and salaries, of dismissing with labor, has the effect of alarming the public. People stop buying; retailers sell less; manufacturers few orders; workers are thrown out of employment; there consequently less purchasing power distributed in the form of wages, salaries and dividends. This balance is kept on the various agreat down to general privation. The flow of goods from producers to consumers is retarded, and the consumer has only himself to blame.

So long as the level of prices can be kept below the level of purchasing power, prosperity is assured. A national drop in the prices of Canadian products to Canadian consumers by thirty percent, without reducing wages, salaries and dividends, would end unemployment in Canada.—Ottawa Citizen.

GIVING TO AID OTHERS HELP TO THE GIVER

Guilt Sense is Strong Motivation to Giving

(By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.)
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Last year's Christmas Clubs rolled up the tidy sum of over half a billion dollars. This year's will likely figure out your own case. You may not have put your pay aside regularly so much per week in the bank, for withdrawal in a lump sum to help pay for yuletide Christmas. Perhaps you used your last month's salary or wages to borrow and repay it; or maybe you ran up your charge account at the store, which amounts to the same thing.

But whether you spent a hundred, a thousand or ten cents, whether it was one or a dozen gifts, whether you came from Tiffany's or from Woolworth's, whatever it was that seemed necessary to satisfy your Christmas spirit—why did you do it?

Far be it from me to criticise, now that Xmas is past. You may be very right at that. I've heard about this whole business of presents, Christmas and otherwise, from the enthusiasm waned, may have left you mentally impoverished, especially if the unpaid bills are still coming in. But if you are wondering why you did it, every person who should read this article.

First, let us consider what would have been and experience if we did not give. If the giving spirit were not so deeply part of the very fabric of civilization, what would take care of orphans and the poor? Who would help and we do about providing for libraries, for hospitals, for schools and colleges? Surely the gift habit takes care of a lot of the world's most necessary things, and we think society could not well afford to do without it.

Specifically, however, the spirit of Christmas is the spirit of giving that goes with it embodies the spirit of Christ, so those of Christian faith, who endeavor to model his life to save us. So should we be willing to make some sacrifice. And whether we are adherents of a Christian belief or of some other, or of none at all, there is no doubt that much of the making of presents, great or small, satisfies a very fundamental need.

Psychologically, this all fed a sense of obligation toward our fellow man. Giving at Christmas, is consciously or not, a having been a sinner according to the canons of his church, not only because of religious belief of some kind is more or less universal, but because it is supposed, but because the guilt sense stems from the sense of childhood wrong doing, is also a strong motivation.

In other words, there are few who do not feel guilty about something in their past, and Christmas is some of it is not. Therefore we give to help the unfortunate conscience, so to speak. And it is good for us.

Do not stifle what remains of the Christmas spirit. Let it live. Giving on gifts and good feeling is better than this to make you feel that you are at peace with the world as well as with yourself. And the size of money behind the gift is not the amount of money behind the gift that counts, but wholly the spirit behind the gift.

"I'll Take That Cat for a Ride," Says Ten Year Old, Using Language of Gangdom, Not of Jesse James

"Desperate Desmond" it seems has chased the last girl to the helm of the loitering prejudice; "Headeye Harry" has gone to his grave, and no more will he stand with his back to the wall while the blood hungry mob surround him and he snaps the trigger on an empty revolver at them; "Diamond Dick" has fanned his last gun at the evil doers, and we have been chasing him for days over the plains and mesas of the woolly West and "slinky Sam" has slunk off into an obscurity that has covered him for years, but it is if the information we have secured after diligent search in the depended upon.

The information we sought was whether or not the old diamond-back rattler was being farmed out in as great a number as they used to be or if they were even being used at all. Rattlers are necessary if small boys still get hold of them and hid them under their pillows, or sneaked off behind the barn to read them when their mother wasn't looking. Dime novels, so some of the book store owners tell us, are a thing of the past. Back in the days when dime novels were the last word in modern attire for the flapper who reigned in that period; when gasoline was something you cleaned your clothing in, and oats were grown for old Nellie grown in the barn more than for breakfast foods, they were as much in style as anything else, and while, perhaps, you may have harbored somewhat of a reputation as being a man who was easily satisfied when it came to a choice of reading matter, and mother and the teacher conspired to keep them away from the hands of the younger ones, still they were entertaining reading and harmless as books go, and many an hour has been spent by many a boy who is a bank president now perhaps, with one of them in his hands. While they may have contained a lot of slang and made others fingers itch to feel the butt of a trusty forty-five and want to jump in and help Diamond Dick who stood off the whole gang of cattle rustlers single handed as he leaps jump a horse and ride away across the prairie with a blonde maiden clinging to a cattle thief a half mile ahead, still after the book was gone the hero lived to allure for them. They know that all a cowboy has to do now is to curry the cows and milk them, and that the rolling prairie rolls only for the movies, and that "desperate" is for the "last desperate charges, and they have turned to other heroes: Al Capone, Jimmy Hoyo Diamond, and Bugs Moran and lesser lights of the gun-toting fraternity have put the story writs, and we, their short memories of life expires, die in a hail of slugs with a "Tommy gun" singing a chattering requiem over their quivering bodies. In place of the old dime novels new are the blood curdling tales of slaughter, hi-jacking and holdups have taken their place on the bookshelves of the counters of the stores. Those are the kind of people the young folks like to read about—"And why shouldn't they," asked one store owner. "You somehow have to carry what the people want to read and as it is only the younger folk who seem to read about these "heroes" and "big shots," some of the papers which trickle into this country carry glowing accounts of, and we would be a very old fashioned store if we didn't. Of course we don't like to sell some of the number kid all over the world with wooly stories of how Al Capone put the Indian sign on six rich chemists, and someone all stepped up with a machine gun in the heart of some big city and mowed down a dozen or so of some other gang, but what are we going to do about it—all the kid has to do is to say that the book is for his father or some and we'd have to sell them. Every else at home and we'd have to sell them. Every else at home and we'd have to sell them. Every and big gang leader is the idol of every boy's heart and I don't believe one going to take a certain cat for a ride" if she didn't stop scratching him, and he be only about ten years old. That's about how far the modern influence has extended. Where it will lead to I don't know.

Gone are the heroes—the real heroes—of the West. They stood up like men and died like men, too. In those days they didn't need machine guns to wipe the sneer off a leering face. A man's life was cheap, and he was ready at a moment's notice to jump into a hail of any man instead of giving him straeners in a lot the metropolitan newspapers of to-day represented wasn't too bad a guy, and if he did chase the villain across the plains he was a hero and also in the sections she generally hung out, maybe she wanted to be chased. Dead-Eye Dave Kerry, in a handy book-case, stepped off some innocent guy who was only a bad man, and he was a hero to his girl friend, and there were strangers around, and a wise man took no chance. He didn't know much about Dead-Eye Dick or a few more of the lesser lights, but there was Jesse James. A lot of books have been written about him but in nearly every one of them you'll find that he felt his home was the best place to be when he knew such a bad man after all. Anyhow they're gone and even the books that were written about them will soon be only curios which will be bespeciated collectors will wrangle over. There are a few still left in remote sections, but as a rule Sally Rand and Al Capone has the stage and the machine gun has displaced the six-shooter.

"Yes, madam, I am an official of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals—what can I do for you?"

"I wish to draw your attention to the inhuman practice of scratching racehorses; my husband, who is by no means a kindhearted man, is much disturbed about it, too!"

CHEQUES were mailed to many women in 1931 by this Company. These cheques were the proceeds of matured endowment policies —money saved through the yearly premiums, increased very considerably by dividends.

If they had died at any time while the policies were in force the principal sum, plus dividends payable, would have been paid immediately to their beneficiaries.

Y'S MEN WIN OPENING GAME IN BASKETBALL

Score 28 to 24 Victory Over R.M.C. of Kingston

UPHILL FIGHT

Cadets in Better Condition Than Locals But No System

With a delayed start the local Y's Men's Basketball Team, under the direction of Coach Ralph Morrow, came to life in the second half, and defeated R.M.C., last year's provincial finalists in the basketball circles, by the score of 28 to 24. The game was hotly contested as the score indicates and the fans present received many a thrill throughout the battle.

The locals opened the season last night, without much warning as they did not have a practice of the game, in Belleville, would be played until last Monday. Laboring under this disadvantage they went to work to demonstrate the fact that they could play the game and managed to come out on the long end of the score.

The game was filled with thrills from the time that Referee Ritchie started the play until the final bell sounded the finish. No quarter was asked or given by either team and a merry battle was the result, as both teams gave all that they had and substitutes were used many times throughout the game. Vern Weir, the veteran of the team, played the entire game and led his team-mates on many rallies which resulted in victory. "Bunky" Calber and Ellis Reid, two of the team's junior game, displayed the courage and ability of veterans while Fraser and White were also good.

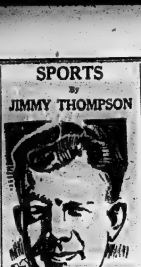
Close In Battle

Kinne the fast centre player of the visiting quintet was responsible for keeping the first four points for the Cadets. Play was rather fast and there was little time spent to find their bearings until Faulkner shot from centre and knotted the 4 to 2 for the Cadets. Vern Weir scored the ball the length of the floor to even the score 4 all. At this stage of the game Bellerive bounced shot after shot off of the basket but could not seem to score a very thrilling game to the fans in color. On a long shot Skirroff put the R.M.C. boys ahead once again the score of 6 to 4. Not to be outdone Vern Weir pulled a perfect pass in front of the basket and "Angus" did the score once again. Vern Weir then pushed the ball in the centre of the floor and got into the clear ahead for a time. Oakes took the ball off of the back-off and shot through the score. Calber, on a pass from Vic White, put the locals in the lead and Vern Weir again scored from the centre of the floor. The half ended with Bellerive leading by the score of 13 to 8.

Second Half

A mere second after the second half opened Vern Weir again managed another for the locals. On a foul shot Vern Weir put the locals in the lead by the score of 18 to 8 and Calber again scored and on White's assist, put the locals in the only scored one point. Don Ridley ran the ball the length of the floor made the score 19 to 9 for Bellerville. Time for two substitutions, a smart play, when he scored a basket, but was closely followed by Vic' White who also scored a field in 11 for the "Service Men."

The ball was the style of the game, now basket after basket being scored by both teams. Reginald Skirroff, Oakes, ay, they staged a rally in the dying moments of the battle but it was a little too delayed and the locals emerged victors in their first O.S.A.A. game of the season by 28 to 24 over the fast R.M.C. quintette.



Line-ups:

R.M.C.—Kinne, Simon, Oaks, Ward, Robertson, Skirrett, Ballard, Sierns and Bush.

Bellerville—Davison, McPee, Faulkner, White, Weir, Calber, Ridley, Whitesides, Evoy and Clarke.

"Andy" Reikie of the Albert College refereed a fast game and Ritchie Bridge St. Wes.

Previous to this game, the Bridge Crest "Midgets" won their league honours when they defeated the St. Michael's "backsteers" by the score of 26 to 4. Both teams had won a game in the league play-offs, and as this was the third and deciding game, considerable interest was shown. The Bridge Street boys showed a little better system

With a member of the family in each division of the Ontario Hockey Association, the Cuthberts of Port Colborne are made worthy to enter the hall of fame in Canada's major sport. This unique representation was accomplished this year when Steve, the youngest son, signed on the dotted line. With the season's first eldest brother, Jack, at centre for the Allan Cup aspirants—Jack became a star early when 13 years of age, playing in his present position on the Junior team of 1917. He was a member of the O.H.A. intermediate champions of 1923. Two features mark his play — masterly poke-checking and clean play. Next in order is Les, stellar net guardian for the intermediates. He began his hockey at the age of 11 and was a member of the Rounds trophy winners of 1931-32.

Last but not least is Steve, 16, who has followed in the footsteps of Les and is turning in a smart exhibition between the posts for the local Cub Juniors. Coach Thompson says that Steve has been the hardest worked their lads every night this week in preparation for tonight's battle.

News is being broadcast, said Jack Hydro Prem., of the quintet that they intend breaking into the win column for the first time in 1932 this tonight. They have been practicing for the past two nights as the weather turned cold enough to make ice, and the fine combination of Hendy, Bush and Emslie are going great guns, while Hawkins and Wilson, the new recruits, have improved vastly since their last game. Ken Odell, the lad with a fine tendency of no mean ability and it will not be surprising to score on him.

Belleville fans will welcome "Eddie" Runions when he steps on the ice tonight. He is the only ex-star of Belleville's ex-wing player. Doug Runions, his brother, now plays for the West Toronto in the "Big Six" junior group in Toronto. Eddie will be equal to a fine game as Runions and do not weaken the team when on the ice.

Coach Thompson will trot out either Scogin or Mickie in the rink. Sherry and Ethier on the defence, and McGuire, Mickie and Harry Morrow are the regular front line. Carl Morgan, Nickel and Goyer will form the second line and these three kids are fast showing their ability as junior hockey players. Jimmy McGuire is the scoring ace for the locals, while "Red" MacDonald is the play-maker and poke-check artist. Ethier is a fine all-round player and is headed for better company in years to come. Sherry Morrow is coaching "Shud" Ethier along and these two boys are fast learning the art of teaming together as one takes the puck and the other one takes it off. A peppy game tonight's game will be no exception to the rule.

CADETS SCORE FIRST WIN

Defeat Campbellford in Kingston By 4 to 1 Score

Kingston, Jan. 21.—R.M.C., O.H.A. intermediate champions, scored their first win of the season here last night when they defeated Campbellford by the score of 4 to 1. The visitors fought the better team in the first period, when they scored their only goal. Lack of condition and practice told on them in the second and third sessions, when the Cadets were the aggressors and ran through the visitors' defence at will.

Pop Irvin, stellar midgetman for R.M.C. was the best player on the ice, while White, in the nets, played a sensational game. Teams:

Campbellford—Goal, Marrett; defence, F. Durrand and E. Ingram; centre, Davis; wings, Whitton and McKay; subs, Cowell, McArthur, Hinde and Hudson.

R.M.C.—Goal, White; defence, Irvin and Kennedy; centre, Carr; wings, Peck and Blanchard; subs, Carling-Kelly, Cranston, Salmon and Corbett.

Current Sport

By The Observer

Tonight sees the only O.H.A. game of the week in Belleville as a matter of fact it is the only game that will be played in Belleville until January 29th when the R.M.C. team comes here to battle the local intermediates. The hockey fans should take advantage of tonight's game as the juniors always give the fans their money's worth and plenty of action to boot.

This boy Bush, who plays left wing for the Campbellford team, is a player of no mean ability and will be seen in much better company before many seasons roll around. He is following closely in Hendy, at centre ice, who is one smart hockey player. The rest of the team are all young boys battling their way to fame and always give the fans plenty of hockey action.

The local fans do not seem to realize the fact that Belleville has a junior team which will be heard from before the curtain is rung down on the present season. The local juniors boast of one of the best forward lines that has been seen in Belleville in quite some time. It is a fine trio of local players as Jimmie McGuire and "Red" MacDonald are rapidly rounding a team together like veterans. Bill Sherry and Ethier are fast shaping into line for one of the best pair of defence men ever seen in the junior ranks in Belleville. As a whole the juniors will be a team to fear in Eastern Ontario a battle that they never will forget."

We are sorry to report that Ken Scott, Belleville junior left winger, had the misfortune to have the bone in his nose severed yesterday afternoon. Just the cause of Scotty's accident is unknown, but after parking his car at the C.N.R. station returned to find the windshield smashed and after investigating found that the rear windshield were also. No serious damage was reported and a few pieces of cushions will be necessary.

Tomorrow night the local intermediates journey to Kingston and the fans will look for the Queen's hockey team for the leading aspirants in the "Big" group. Coach Holway is taking all of his players to the Limestone City for this important battle. Practically the entire roster will be on deck for this game. As the locals have not encountered hockey in the Eastern town, they expect to emerge victors if the fracas with a win to their credit.

The Y's Men's basketball team started off with a bang when they defeated the fast R.M.C. team by the score of 28 to 24 last night. The locals deserve a lot of credit as they came from behind in the last half to defeat the Cadets when the final whistle sounded. The game was hotly contested from start to finish and Sherry and Ethier on the defence, and McGuire, Mickie and Harry Morrow are the regular front line. Carl Morgan, Nickel and Goyer will form the second line and these three kids are fast showing their ability as junior hockey players. Jimmy McGuire is the scoring ace for the locals, while "Red" MacDonald is the play-maker and poke-check artist. Ethier is a fine all-round player and is headed for better company in years to come. POLICE SEARCH FOR SWINDLER

Does N. Scotia and Manitoba Farmers Out of $12,000

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 21.—Police all over Canada are searching today for Henry Anderson, alias Henry Anderson as he was known in Nova Scotia—who police say swindled Manitoba farmers out of $5,000 and Nova Scotia farmers out of $7,000 within the last year.

Adams came here last December and set up a fake milk producer Co." He advertised he was prepared to pay more for cream than any other dealer. Manitoba farmers responded by sending him more than $5,000 worth and Adams sent them worthless cheques in payment. He sold the poultry as it was delivered to him and decamped.

Adams, working under the name of Henry Anderson, is said by police to have worked the same trick in Amherboro, N.S., before he came west.

JACK MINER TELLS SIMPLE CREED TO ALL

Speaks on Behalf of Jack Miner League in Hastings

BIRD LOVER

Kingsville Sanctuary and Environments Shown By Slides

His life work a constant example of his simple creed, that man was meant to be a friend and protector to the birds and not their foe, the beasts of the field, Jack Miner, of Kingsville Bird Sanctuary fame, last evening, in an interesting address in Belleville Collegiate Auditorium explained how his work with the birds, at first discouraging, became a wonderful success, with visitors from throughout the continent.

Mr. Miner told of his early life in Kingsville, of his mother, a born naturalist, who brought with her from the United States many varieties of flower seeds that prospered in Canadian soil. His father was a manufacturer of bricks. Their first home in Canada was a rude log cabin on whose outer walls there soon appeared the vines and the climbing roses that his mother had cared for. Owing to her "crimson" disposition, Jack Miner was an unruly scholar and learned little at school. Grown to manhood and in charge of a Sunday School class, he was asked to be excused from him A. R. C's and Science Lessons and to substitute Scripture, that are still his favourites today.

Conceived Idea Early

In April, 1908, he conceived the idea of encouraging the wild geese to come yearly to his spot in the country. His preparations and long wait for them made them a subject of jest to his neighbors, but as you can see by a few moments came until now they arrive in thousands regularly each spring, the tender question, "Jack, have your geese come?" was heard no more.

Each year Mr. Miner plants a thousands of birds' nests, as one variety after another arrives they here, indeed, is protection and love. To the English starling, however, Mr. Miner has a dislike for these birds have proved themselves an enemy to every other bird, usurping the branches of the Miner woods. A twilight visitation of these starlings showed them dying in thousands, making a smoky cloud against the sky. Unless repelled they carry all before them.

Pictures Shown

Through a series of slides and motion pictures, the audience saw just what is being done in the Miner Sanctuary for the wild geese and the small birds. A wire fence, donated by Henry Ford, protects the area from dogs and the geese is fenced in from the road with gorgeous flowers. At the side of the pond, there is a fine walk on which country children can feed in all kinds of weather.

"We build wonderful roads for birds," Mr. Miner said, "not seem concerned about the safety of our little children using these roads with care." Applause greeted Mr. Miner.

Wild geese flying over the sanctuary, lighting on the broad pond, protected by the low fence, feeding and leaving at last for their winter home made a fascinating picture. Mr. Miner advocates a bird sanctuary every fifty miles. Bird lovers have been urged to encourage by the feathered folk, and hunters can turn the wild geese between the sanctuaries. Mr. Miner pointed out that it seems that the hunters are doing more to aid the sanctuary movement than bird lovers.

Attaches Verses to Tags

Attaching to his tags, verses of the Bible, Mr. Miner has banded his birds misanonries. Not only were views shown of wild geese, but there were also interesting pictures of robins at Jack Miner's home. These can be readily banded, and have become great pets, returning year after year. As they come back from the south they show a little timidity but soon overcome it and after some treatment, soon return to their easy ways. Robins become so attached to people, that they follow them about, and Mr. Miner explained how he stirred and dug the fish worms. Robins love to be with humanity.

Mr. Miner's talk was the venture, Mr. Miner encouraged Belleville in the further bird sanctuary project. In the afternoon children of all school's gathered in the Collegiate Auditorium to hear Jack Miner and the young audience was widely enthusiastic over the words of the speaker. In fact, dozens are planning to form clubs in the spring. The distinguished naturalist was tendered a hearty vote of thanks. Rings County Jack Miner League of Belleville, Mr. Walter Turner is the president.

Sen. G. Robertson Likely to Resign

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 21.—The Toronto Globe says today it is understood the resignation of Senator Gideon Robertson as Dominion Minister of Labor, is in the hands of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett.

Senator Robertson is now on his way to the West Indies for a recuperative trip.

The Globe refers to the report concerning the minister "as a reminder of the heavy demands which are made by the duties of office upon their public men." It is recalled that within the past 12 months five members of the Bennett cabinet have been stricken with serious illness, probably largely over due to heavy governmental tasks. Three or four members of the late Mackenzie King Government also were stricken with serious illness.

HOARDING GOLD IS DANGEROUS

Statement Made By President of Barclay's Bank

LONDON, Jan. 21.—(Canadian and Associated Press Cable)—F. C. Goodenough, chairman of Barclay's bank, one of the "big five" today issued a warning against the hoarders of hoarding gold during an address at the bank's annual meeting.

Many debtor nations are in actual default, Mr. Goodenough said, and others are unable to meet their payments with great difficulty. These developments, he added, are due to a considerable degree to the unwillingness of certain principal creditor countries of the world to invest payment in goods, the only form in which debts can now be paid.

The alternative method of making payment in gold, he said, has become virtually impossible because the greater part of the available stocks of monetary gold now are concentrated in the United States of America.

"In these two countries heavy surpluses have been accumulated largely of their earning capacity and the hoarding in both cases will close the year with substantially fuller stocks. Unless some means can be found for the gold to circulate more freely it would seem that gold will not long remain the basis of the world's monetary system."

Mr. Goodenough said he faced inevitably with enormous losses.

MEETING HELD BY MEN'S CLUB

Wilson Bird Takes Place of Dr. Edwards in St. Thomas' Ch. Club

A largely attended meeting of the Men's Club of St. Thomas' Church was held in the Parish House Wednesday evening. The first in the evening was passed in a social way and later a business session was conducted with Mr. R. Brown the energetic president of the club in the chair. Owing to Mr. Norman E. Edwards having been recently elected People's Warden of the Church, it was necessary to appoint a new secretary-treasurer in his place, as Mr. Edwards, who has filled the position most acceptably, could not carry on conveniently in both offices.

Mr. Wilson Bird was the unanimous choice of the meeting and the members were very pleased when he consented to assume the position.

The Vicar, Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne addressed the club in a very interesting manner on the aims of the club and its place in carrying on the work in the Parish.

STRIKE FEARED AT WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 21.—(By the Canadian Press)—Long-drawn-out wage dispute between the Winnipeg Electric Company and its street railway employees neared another crisis today when the company promptly replied the 1,000 tram workers would go on strike if the company did not reconsider its stand before January 29.

An immediate strike was averted last week when Mayor Ralph H. Webb obtained an agreement from both parties to delay action until a civic investigation into the dispute had been held.

Women's Interests in the Home

Beauty.....

BY HELEN JAMIESON

In Step With Beauty Parade

TO travel along the gay beauty way, putting up a smart and snappy appearance, is not entirely a matter of keeping in touch with new fronties; it is also a matter of knowing when a certain beauty fad is as dead as Cleopatra's needle—and so drop it. Women were quick enough when it came to shuffling off the knee length kilt and covering their shanks discreetly. They aren't so speedy in divesting themselves from make-up that is passe. Too bad! Because the wrong make-up does them.

In 1918 the lipstick came into full power and flaming glory. It has been used cautiously before that time. Then it blazened out, got bold, made no apologies for its presence. Since it has been going like a house afire for thirteen years, it does seem as if the poor old thing is entitled to a rest. Scarlet lips are not fashionable. They're dowdy and cuddy, especially when they look like Chinese red vermeil.

One's lipstick is still an item of the beauty kit. It is of a natural shade. It is best lightly over the lips, imparting a slightly deeper tint. But it is skilled artifice, not blatant show.

o o o

Eyebrow wielding to the extent that an eyebrow consists of not more than a dozen hairs is also old stuff. It was declared so by beauty fads that ever gained popularity. But it is still being done. Not by the up-to-snuffers, however. Stunning women, who get what you know the beauty ropes, pluck away stray hairs but the eyebrow itself is in the normal state. It may be darkened to serve more perfectly as a frame for the flirtatious eye, it must glisten, but it conforms to the original line it was designed so perfectly and beautifully by Mrs. Nature, smart lady.

o o o

Another silly notion has flickered out; we refer to blood red finger nail lacquer. It was never in good taste. It attracts attention to defects of the nails and the hands. It is an affectation; those femmes who like to be a bit conspicuous, even resort to purple or silver or black. We still have shining talons but they glimmer with the luscious flesh tints which become them.

o o o

Strong perfumes held sway. The daring darlings liked to see nostrils quiver when they flounced in on the noisy party. None of that old fusty lily of the valley stuff for us, said they. Well, that beauty star is also waning. Perfumes are more subtle, more delicate and of course more expensive. But better one ounce of sweetness than five ounces of nose-disturbing essence.

When spiked heels—another foolishness—get canned there will be rejoicing among the medical profession and those women who have an understanding of the value of good posture and perfect health. As long as women hobble painfully on their toes, they are no credit to the human race. We're hopeful. Shoe manufacturers say the demands are for comfortable shoes with moderate heels. Time will tell.

JANE ADDAMS RECOVERING

Winner of Nobel Prize is Recuperating After Operation

Baltimore, Jan. 21. — Completely recovered from the major operation she underwent at Johns Hopkins Hospital in December, a few days after she had been awarded the Nobel Peace Prize for 1931, Miss Jane Addams, internationally-known welfare worker and peace enthusiast, plans to recuperate for six weeks at Winter Park, Fla.

She expects to reach her home in Chicago, where she is the principal figure in the famous Hull House settlement work, early in March and will remain there about a month before leaving for a spring and summer in Europe.

While abroad she will attend meetings, in several foreign countries, of Women's International League for Peace, the organization of which she was president from its formation in 1915 until a few years ago.

It is her affiliation with that group, she believes, which brought her the Nobel award and she intends to devote her share of it—she will divide the award with Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler—to the work of the league. While abroad, also, she plans to comply with one of the Nobel stipulations—that each recipient, whenever possible, deliver a lecture at Oslo, Norway, on the work which led to the award.

GOOD POTATOES ARE CHEAPER

The low cost of potatoes is something that interests the housekeeper when adding up the grocery budget. Today they are about fifty cents a bag, and while some members of the family may be "off" potatoes as a vegetable, the housekeeper can use potatoes other than the usual way of boiled, fried or roasted at a meal.

The making of homemade potato chips is not hard to do if one has a thin slicer. These are served in quite elegant manner on a platter arranged with salad and dill pickles for a light refreshment snack to be served in the evening with coffee or some beverage.

Tea biscuits made with potatoes are delicious and the following recipe is excellent.

Potato Biscuit

One cup of sour milk, two teacupfuls of mashed potato, two handfuls of chopped suet, two teacups of flour, sifted with one level teaspoonful of soda. Rub the flour and suet into the potato, roll out, cut into biscuit shape bake for twenty-five or thirty minutes.

To vary the waffle recipe do one that includes potatoes.

Potato Waffles.

2 cupfuls boiled riced potato, 1 cup full milk, 2 tablespoonfuls baking powder, 1 cupful flour, 3 eggs, 1 tablespoonful melted butter substitute, 1 teaspoonful salt.

Beat eggs until light, add potato (which have been boiled, riced and allowed to cool), butter substitute, salt and milk, then flour sifted with baking powder. Bake at once on a hot, well greased waffle iron. Serve with maple syrup.

Weddings

MYLES—MORTON

The home of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Morton, Sidney, was the scene of a charming house wedding last evening when their daughter, Willmore Ruth, became the bride of Mr. Charles Horton Myles, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Myles, Trenton. The ceremony was performed at eight-thirty by Rev. Newton Lord of Stirling.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, made a lovely picture in her French gown of pale pink satin, fashioned in princess lines and long flaring shirt. Touches of silver lace in her satin slippers and suede gloves were the only trimming. She carried a shower bouquet of butterfly roses and calla lilies. The ceremony took place beneath an arch of evergreens and fern.

Miss A. J. Morton, Cleveland, was bridesmaid, and her picturesque gown was a Lelong model in period style of Alice blue crepe with which she wore silver slippers. Her arm bouquet was of Premier roses.

Little Miss Joyce Morton, niece of the bride, was flower girl and wore a demure Kate Greenaway frock in white net, with wide pink satin sash and she carried a nosegay of pink roses. Master Jimmie Watson, nephew of the bride, acted as ring bearer.

Mr. Gerald Richardson of Toronto, was groomsman.

During the ceremony wedding music was played by Mr. Charles Allen of Toronto, and a delightful vocal solo was given by Mr. Marsh Magwood of Toronto.

After the reception, the bride and groom left on a wedding trip to New York City. The bride travelled in a smart costume of maroon and black. Her dress was of maroon crepe with hat to match and the wrap was of black bouclé with lynx collar and cuffs. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Myles will reside in Trenton.

The many guests were most cordially welcomed by Mrs. Riggs who was assisted by Mrs. Buchanan, president of the organization. Mrs. Robert Hall and Mrs. Lester Riggs presided at the tea table which was very attractive with spring flowers and old brasses. Those assisting were most attentive, making the dining room a very happy place in which to linger. A table of delectable home cooking was readily disposed of.

Paddy Has a Chat

By Thornton W. Burgess

"Are the times so hard?" asked Paddy

Few know and even fewer care What others need or how they fare.
—Old Mother Nature.

Paddy the Beaver, lumbering under the loe in the pond deep in the Green Forest, had carefully wedged a stick, from what he had eaten the bark, into his dam. It was at a place which his sharp eyes and keen ears had shown him was not quite so strong as it might be. He knew that if he was to be food sticks after they had been stripped of their bark. Thus nothing was wasted. Paddy, who is nothing if not thrifty, cannot bear the thought of waste.

When the stick was placed to suit him Paddy swam to an air hole near the dam and thrust his head out for a few breaths of fresh air. He always did this when he visited the dam. He could get air under the ice, but there was nothing like good fresh air above the ice. Besides, he enjoyed having a look around. Occasionally a neighbor would be near with whom to have a chat.

There was one this time, one for whom Paddy had no liking, but of whom he now had no fear. It was Old Man Coyote. Old Man had been making his way across the dam when Paddy's head popped out of the water. Old Man Coyote stopped and sat down. "Hello, neighbor!" said he and grinned. "How do you like these cold times?"

"Are the times so hard?" asked Paddy, "I don't find them so. I never have spent a more comfortable winter."

"Each to his own taste," replied Old Man Coyote. "Now I should think that being kept a prisoner would be anything but comfortable. It wouldn't suit me at all. No, sir, it wouldn't suit me at all. I couldn't stand it."

"Who is a prisoner?" asked Paddy, pretending not to understand.

"Why you are, aren't you?" retorted Old Man Coyote.

"I am, I don't deny it," replied Paddy. "I go and come as I please under the ice, have plenty to eat, don't care what the weather is, sleep when I please, get all the exercise I need and have no worries. Can you say as much?"

Old Man Coyote grinned. "No," he admitted rather heavily. "No, I cannot say as much as that. In fact, it is a long time since I have had really enough to eat at one meal that I have quite forgotten what it seems like."

"You do look rather thin. Yes, sir, you look rather thin," said Paddy. "Are the times really as hard as I have heard?"

"Worse," declared Old Man Coyote. "Much worse. You cannot possibly have heard how bad they are. You really ought to see for yourself. Why not come out and take a little walk with me just to see how things really are in the Green Forest? I would love to show you around."

It was Paddy's turn to grin. "I don't doubt it. I don't doubt it in the least. I tell you what, you come with me first and let me show you how comfortable Mrs. Paddy and I are under the ice, and then I will go with you to see how matters are in the Green Forest," said he.

"That wouldn't be fair," replied Old Man Coyote. "You know perfectly well that I cannot live under the ice, but you can travel on land."

"True enough," replied Paddy. "Sure enough. But isn't it also true that I couldn't live long on land traveling in your company?"

"You don't know that that is so; you never have tried it," retorted Old Man Coyote.

"I don't intend to," said Paddy. "What makes your mouth water so?"

Once more Old Man Coyote grinned. "It was just wondering what a good dinner would taste like," he said sorry, but I can't help you find out. Paddy, and then he grinned as he added, "I really can't replied Paddy, and then he grinned as he added, "I really can't. You may be at a dinner of bark down in my cellar."

HELD BY POLICE FOR U.S. OFFICERS

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 21.—Harold Fontaine, charged by United States authorities with having been the man who smuggled guns and ammunition to seven inmates of the Federal Penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan. December 11, was held by Ontario police.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Health Suggestion

Many women suffer from what they call a "lump in the throat" or from tight and constricting sensations. These are usually due to a nerve disturbance which should be treated.

TO SAVE A LIFE

Late at night, a child seriously ill with pneumonia was threatened with an attack of the dread infantile paralysis. The family doctor immediately telephoned to the London Institute of Public Health, stating that if he could obtain the serum that night the child's life might be saved. The C.N.R. was appealed to by Long Distance telephone, and the train at London and the connecting one at Stratford were held.

Before dawn in Seaforth the London doctor arrived. The Long Distance telephone calls in the dead of night from the child's bedside, the prompt action of the London doctor, and the ready aid of the railway company undoubtedly saved a life.

FINANCIAL NEWS

STOCKS ARE LOWER AT NOON

Trading at a Minimum. Public Not Investing Funds in Stocks

Toronto, Jan. 21.—Leaders on the Toronto Stock Exchange were mildly reactionary this morning. Those issues which had made the best gains and closed at the top prices Wednesday slipped fractions this morning but the market turned dull on the first sign of reaction.

Several of the pivotal stocks did not appear on the tape the first couple of hours, indicating the lethargy of the investing public. Walkers and International Petroleum were two of the prominent stocks in this class.

Among those selling fractionally lower at midday were Brazilian down ¼ point at 12¾, C.P.R. off ¼ at 17⅜; Ford of Canada off ¼ at 19½; B. A. Oil off ¼ at 10¼; Nickel was unchanged at 10; Smelters up ¼ point at 71 and Canada Bud and Distillers both up fractions, the former at 8⅜ and the latter at 6¾.

Standard Exchange.

Toronto, Jan. 21.—Standard Stock and Mining Exchange listing pursued an irregular course during a dull forenoon session today. Price changes were all within a narrow range.

The one bright spot of the day was in B. G. Pioneer, stock sold at 2 cents higher to $3.07 in active trading.

International Nickel and Noranda above and below previous closing prices. In light trading, Kirkland Townsite eased, while Bobjo improved slightly.

In the golds, Sisco and Teck Hughes scored small gains, with most of the others selling unchanged.

Nordon, Homestead, and Dr. Ott were all shares in advance while Ajax dipped below its previous closing price.

Frank Orr Wins Prizes

Mrs. Harry Vanover on behalf of the congregation, thanked the Bible class for the evening's entertainment and complimented them on their flourishing condition, and their part in raising funds to carry on the work of Synagogue.

In connection with acquiring funds the class had instituted a contest, Mayor Tice was, here, requested to draw the card of the winner, who was entitled to an order for three tons of coal. This was No. 173, the ticket of Frank Orr, 135 Catherine St., the president of the organization, Mr. L. Enoch, said he was glad a gentile friend had been the fortunate one, and as Mr. Orr was a fireman, he would, doubtless, be in touch with the prize property. He wanted also to thank the girls and boys of the Bible class, on behalf of the older folk, for the splendid work they had done, especially for the remaining part of the programme which was about to follow.

A supper of a substantial nature was then served most ably by the young ladies of the class, and an hour or more of jolly social intercourse ensued, thoroughly enjoyed by all.

General Increases Follow Mutualization

North American Life in a preliminary statement issued regarding the operations of the Company's Fifty-First Year reports a successful year in business, the total amount paid for, reached a total of $20,747,243. The amount of paid for business over that of the previous year was 15%. The total assets of $107,289,671. The assets of the Company amount to $98,833,113. The investments are composed of high grade securities that guarantees to the Company's policyholders a safe and reasonable return. They are diversified as follows:

29% in Government and Municipal Bonds.
29% in First Mortgages.
17% in Policy Loans.
13⅓ in Corporation Bonds.
5% in Bank, Loan, Trust Companies' and Consumers' Gas Stocks.
4¼% in Preferred Stocks.
2% in Real Estate, Cash in Bank, etc.
½ of 1% in Common Stocks.

Payments to policyholders during the year amounted to the handsome figure of $4,950,871, being an increase of 11% over the total of 1930. Of this amount $3,776,497 was paid by death or matured endowments, representing a substantially larger total than that paid during the previous year.

No less than $1,974,634 or 14.5% of the whole was paid to living policyholders, which attests to the value of life assurance, namely at death but during the life time to the policyholder. Since the commencement of business in 1881 the Company has paid to its policyholders and beneficiaries over $58,295,000. The total income for the year amounted to $9,726,497, an increase of over 6% in excess of the 1930 total. Of this amount $373,901 represents premium income and $7,682,596 was received from investments.

The policy reserves maintained on a strong and conservative basis amount to $87,016,665. The surplus funds are in excess of $7,000,000. Assets represent 118% of liabilities.

The interest earned on invested funds was at the excellent rate of 5.92%. In March of 1931 the North American Life became a purely mutual life assurance Company, owned and controlled by the policyholders—one in which all profits and benefits accrue to them. This action no doubt has contributed to the excellent results attained during the past year.

WILL HAVE TO OBTAIN SEEDS

Nearly Three Million Bus. of Oats Required For Seed

Regina, Sas., Jan. 21—Saskatchewan will be required to purchase from 2,500,000 to 3,000,000 bushels of seed oats for drought areas of the province, stated A. E. Wilson, an official of the Saskatchewan Relief Commission, commenting on a Calgary report that Alberta would supply Saskatchewan with 1,500,000 bushels of seed oats.

All available seed oats that can pass the inspection of seed grain inspectors will be purchased in Saskatchewan before any such purchase will be made in Alberta, he said. Of oats purchased outside the province, those from the Peace River country will be given preference as that country is newer and the oats carry fewer wild oats and other weed seeds.

Though there has been correspondence concerning the available supply of Alberta oats, Mr. Wilson said that there had been no purchase of oats from the western province.

U. F. A. Condemns Gold Standard

EDMONTON, Jan. 21.—In a smashing frontal attack on existing financial system, United Farmers of Alberta, in convention here yesterday, condemned the gold standard, called for the immediate nationalization of the monetary system, and the extension of credit to industry on a basis of cost, not of profit.

The farmers refused, however, to declare themselves in favor of nationalization of the banks. They thought, with a National credit system, the banks either would not be needed or would come to accept good service as the National System.

Jimmy O'Regan Once Runner in Kentucky Derby

10 AT TRENTON

Trenton, Jan. 21 (Special)—A hobo colony seems to have gained a foothold in Trenton. They have gathered from some of the old boarding cars belonging to the Canadian National Railways which, seem to be of no use and have been run back into a disused siding.

A reporter paid them a visit on Wednesday morning at the first hostelgiances and words greeted him but on explaining that he wasn't a 'cop' he was made him welcome.

A stove has been fixed up and a cheery fire was burning and about ten men lying around on the various bunks.

The boys say Trenton is rather a good spot as so far they have had plenty to eat: bread, tea, sugar and milk. Meat seems to be the hardest thing to get. They have secured two rabbits from somewhere and an invitation for dinner on Thursday was extended to try a real rabbit stew.

A little wizened up chap, who gave the name of Jimmy O'Regan, claimed to be an old newspaper reporter himself, having worked on the Montreal Standard and Evening Telegram in Toronto. At one time he claims to have been a jockey and to have ridden, "Louisville Lou" in the famous Kentucky Derby, but being thrown from a horse in Miami suffered injuries so that he was unable to ride again.

Chaps from Ireland, England, Nova Scotia all on the "bum," some of them really willing to work but unable to find employment.

One of the things which stood out was their absolute faith in Canada. When even the hoboes have faith in a country surely the will come out of the present slump.

COL. W. H. PRICE DEFENDS GOVT

Addresses Women's Conservative Association of Kingston

KINGSTON, Jan. 21.—Capital expenditure of Ontario was defended as a necessity under present conditions by Hon. W. H. Price, attorney-General of Ontario, addressing the Women's Conservative Association here last night. Unemployment conditions must be met no matter what the cost, asserted Colonel Price.

At the same time, he declared, retrenchment is necessary in order to ensure a balanced budget and lower taxation.

Importance of the development of water power and the completion of the St. Lawrence Waterways project was stressed by the Attorney-General. Increasing cost of the St. Lawrence river, he said, would result in a decrease in cost of power in the province.

Assailed Liberal Leader

Col. Price assailed charges of Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., for Elgin West and other Liberal leader, that the government was making unnecessary expenditures. Mr. Hepburn was doing Canada a great deal of harm by declaring the country was in a bad financial condition he said. His statements regarding provincial debts were misleading.

The attorney-general urged the people of the Dominion to put the good of the country before the party affiliations. He implored his audience to work for the best interests of the country at large.

There will be no election in Ontario for at least two years, he said.

Discussing the attitude of the provincial government to the municipalities, Col. Price, said the administration wanted to co-operate with, not dictate to them.

Discussing the operation of the Liquor Control Act of the Province, the minister said, consumption of liquor in Ontario had been materially reduced in the past two years. This decrease was due to the success of the Act, he contended. The lowered consumption had resulted in a cut in liquor sales amounting to $8,085,000 between 1929 and 1931.

All airplane flights in Siam must suspend after 2 p.m. because of the storms that sweep across the country.

Elmore Philpott May Be Liberal Nominee

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 21.—The Mail and Empire today said Captain Elmore Philpott, Hamilton, may be Liberal candidate in the forthcoming provincial by-election in West York necessitated by the death of Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, former member, if a union of Liberal and Labor forces can be effected.

John W. Buckley, secretary of the Toronto district Trades and Labor Council, has already been named to contest the seat for the Labor Party.

LARGE EXPORT IN TOBACCO

May Replace Cheese as Largest Overseas Export Product

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 21.—Tobacco is likely to overtake cheese as Ontario's foremost overseas export product, according to Hon. T. L. Kennedy provincial minister of Agriculture. Value of Tobacco grown in Ontario this year, it is estimated will be more than $4,500,000, two years ago, it was $6,000,000. About 15 years ago, it was negligible, he said.

"There is no doubt that tobacco will rank as one of Ontario's greatest industries, if not the greatest," said the minister. "The British market is taking an increasing amount of Ontario-grown tobacco and the domestic consumption is also increasing. I have been in touch with the Canadian High Commissioner in London (Hon. G. Howard Ferguson) and he informs me that our tobacco is highly regarded there," said Col. Kennedy.

The 1931 tobacco crop was the best in the history of the province, he said.

"OVER THE HILL"

A drama that takes love from the cradle to old age and deals with many of its most important manifestations, "Over the Hill," marking the second screen appearance of that delightful pair of lovers, James Dunn and Sally Eilers and the return of the silent day favorite, Mae Marsh, comes to the Belle tomorrow for two days, matinee daily.

The love of a man for a maid, the love of a mother for her child, that of brother and brother, father and son, all have their place in this romantic story of a human heart.

The central story itself is twofold, telling the boy and girl romance between James Dunn and Sally Eilers, a romance that is said to exceed in heart touching appeal their magnificent portrayals in "Bad Girl," while Mae Marsh and son tie that bind Dunn to "Ma," the character played by Mae Marsh. Based on Will Carleton's classic poems, the theme of "Over the Hill" is as true today as when it was originally written.

In addition to Dunn, Sally Eilers and Mae Marsh, a hand-picked cast includes James Kirkwood, Edward Crandall, Claire Maynard, John Howland, William Pawley and Joan Peers. In the prologue of the picture which Henry King directed for Fox, a number of Hollywood's most capable juveniles, Audiences at the Belle last night got a real intimate view of family life, for such as in real life would not even be vouchsafed to near relatives of the principals involved. The things that happen in this animated picture of minor and major tragedies, small and grave joys are things that even intensive neighbors in real life would never dream could take place in "that house next door," we refer to Ernest Truex's story, "Husband's Holiday."

But not alone because of its splendid, realistic story to this picture's fine production, the acting is great.

Clive Brook, heading the cast, is superb as always. He is the husband who goes astray. Vivienne Osborne lends a most interesting sympathetic skilfulness to the role of the wife

Juliette Compton, puts color, vigor, and dramatic realness into the role of the girl in the case. Charlie Ruggles, as a relative of the family, provides many rib-tickling comedy bits. "Husband's Holiday" will be repeated again tonight for the last time.

At The Capitol

COLMAN RECKLESS ADVENTURER IN "UNHOLY GARDEN"

Ronald Colman returned to the screens of the Capitol Theatre yesterday in a stirring, rip-snorting adventure yarn, "The Unholy Garden."

As stories go, here is stern and racy stuff from the pens of Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur, coauthors of "Front Page" and outstandingly successful contributors to the screen and stage.

"The Unholy Garden" refers to an outpost at the edge of the Sahara wastes, where renegades from the law hide, and from the police and extradition. The decayed splendor of a once magnificent hotel gives sanctuary to a strange gathering of wreckage, awaiting forgetfulness or forgiveness. Civilization offers each of them jail or worse for a different reason.

The suave, polished and mannerly bearing that came to be known as Ronald Colman in "Bulldog Drummond," "Raffles," and "The Devil to Pay" is gone, and in his stead, the English star is a recklessly minded and recklessly dressed adventurer, as indifferent to dress and deportment as he is to words and manners.

Down north, "The Unholy Garden" is Samuel Goldwyn's answer to the fans demanding Ronald Colman in a picture of action. For "The Unholy Garden" is nothing if not as much action as his memorable "Beau Geste."

Yet in "The Unholy Garden," as in all Colman pictures, the light dramatic touch is still there. The English star is still a persuasive fellow, exceedingly gallant even as a philanderer.

Goldwyn has given the picture his usual lavish production, with rich color and Algerian scenics oasis as an inspiration to desert dwellers. Fifi Dorsay and Capt. Richard Day, wedding camels, Bedouin horse traders and Arab sword makers, minaretted towers from which the faithful are called to prayer and buttressed walls from which the proud tricolor flies, guarded by leather-skinned Legionnaires —these are details in the picture's magnificent backgrounds.

Always fortunate in his leading ladies, Colman's luck continues in the entertaining person of Estelle Taylor and Fay Wray. Miss Taylor is seen in the sensuous voluptuary of the story, "the tomb of a lady," and Miss Wray, demure and decadent English aristocrat, the Hon. Mrs. Beaumont Cosley-Eyre. She is the grand-daughter of the recluse and blind old embezzler the Baron de Jongh, and Cosley and Estelle/Lee are to her merely pictures in the fascinating yarn. Years

Railway Coordination with Trucks and Busses Urged

Two Rail Systems Are Twin Spinal Columns Says Hon. L. Macaulay

Says Governments' Bid Required By Situation

RAIL PROBLEMS

Bus and Truck Obligations Pointed Out By Minister

Toronto, Jan. 21—While feeling that Canada's railway systems were the "twin spinal columns of her economic life," and that the interest of every government" would ever be to see the railways as an integrated part of the country's transportation system, Hon. Leonard Macaulay, Provincial Minister of Highways, strongly favors co-ordination of the railway and bus and truck operations, and believes essential that the operation of provincial and federal governments to assist this end.

Addressing the Rotary Club of Toronto luncheon, Mr. Macaulay suggested that if "trunk and feeder traffic were making inroads upon the business of the railways, the railways themselves are partly to blame." He revealed that Hon. Mr. George S. Henry (when Minister of Highways) and he himself had urged the railways to operate bus and truck feeder lines, or co-ordinate with existing services in Ontario, but without success.

"The advisability of co-ordinating and inter-relating not only the two railway systems, but all phases of transportation, would become increasingly evident at this time," said Mr. Macaulay believed. He "looked to see" an increasing pressure of suggestion to this end, particularly from the railway commission, as existing problems became more acute.

Speed and Flexibility

"The short and medium haul traffic being lost to trucks and buses by the railroads is being lost, he believed, not because of possible cheapness of motor transport, but primarily because of the greater speed, convenience and flexibility of the newer form of transportation. Heavier taxation or other restrictions upon the motor transport agencies, he suggested, would not alter these advantages found in motor vehicles by shippers and passengers.

Touching on other phases of transportation developments in Canada, Mr. Macaulay remarked that the same limitations of waterway transport in Canada which do not lessen the necessity of the railroads would also apply to navigation aspects of the projected development of the upper St. Lawrence and the Great Lakes. The main limitation would be, he thought, the climatic conditions which annually block river and lake channels, and force river and lake harbors to seasonal operation. The greatest potential port development, he believed, would continue to be Vancouver and other sections of the Pacific coast.

Twin Spinal Columns

Speaking of the railways he said: "The Canadian Pacific Railway has become the greatest trans-Canada, the greatest complete transportation system in the world. The Canadian National is the greatest railway system in the world. Within Canada, they both function as the backbones of the movement of natural resources for economic and commercial life. It may appear unnatural even to the layman for anyone or anything to have two backbones, but I think he will analyze that both units must remain as the twin spinal columns of Canada.

IMPORTATION PROHIBITED

Cattle From England Cannot Enter Canada

Ottawa, Court, Jan. 21 (CP)—An order prohibiting the importation of livestock from England was issued by the Federal Department of Agriculture today following a report that an outbreak of foot and mouth disease had been confirmed at Stockton-on-Tee, England.

The order issued today does not interfere with importations from Switzerland, the Irish Free State and Northern Ireland.

A method for the coloring of trees while they grow has been discovered.

Homemade Ballots Used, Others Short

Toronto, Jan. 21—Unofficial ballots improvised at the last minute paper by the deputy returning officer with be found in the ballot box for Polling Sub-Division No. 3, Albion Park, North York municipality, when Capt. James Farber begins his recount in the deputy-mentality contest at the city hall Friday morning.

Thomas James, Gordon Ave., Weston, who was D.R.O. in that subdivision last night declared that he made his own ballots out of scrap paper after running out of printed ballots on hand, in instructions from someone "higher up."

2 BARNS BURN AT CANNIFTON

Dan Mason and Dr. Honeywell Suffer Loss Being $2500.00

Two barns, one owned by Dan Mason and the other by Dr. H. Honeywell, Cannifton, were destroyed by fire last night, the cause of the blaze being yet unknown. The loss is estimated at $500.00 for the two buildings and there was no insurance on the barn of Dr. Honeywell.

Mr. Honeywell erected $200 on his building. In order to protect the rest of the village, a call was sent to Belleville fire department and after permission was received by Fire Chief Lynch from the council, he proceeded to the scene with equipment from Number 2 hall and was successful in confining the blaze to the two buildings in question. At one time it was feared for the safety of Heyward's store and barn, but Mr. Heyward speaking today stated that the roof of the building next to the fire was covered with sheet steel and at the time the wind was favorable for the lighting of the blaze.

Discovered by Holgate

The fire was discovered by Arthur Holgate, who stepped from his house and saw flames shoot and a dense issuing from the Mason barn. He immediately raised the alarm after investigating and at once a force number on hand to fight the blaze. The fire department had a car in his barn, which was saved, while some of the hay and a quantity of wood out of three cords was saved from the Mason barn. Quick work on the part of all in the village and the help of the Belleville fire brigade probably saved a serious situation.

Composer and Wife Divorced Today

Riga, Latvia, Jan. 21 (AP)—Eugen D'Albert, widely known composer and pianist, and his wife, Hedwig Tagger D'Albert, were divorced today. The proceedings were private.

Detective's Memory is Cause of Barrister's Arrest

Toronto, Jan. 21—An almost uncanny ability to piece together from his memory the details of a hunted man's description led to the arrest of Mabled Inspector John Miller of headquarters' staff of the provincial police to arrest a man sought throughout Canada on charges of fraud and theft charges. Last night Miller and Detective Crump, prominent 55-year-old Edmonton barrister and bench solicitor, were held without bail pending advices from the capital city of Alberta.

Inspector Miller, who merely repeated a fact yesterday which has been attributed to him before and was walking down Bay Street, Toronto, when he noticed a face in the passing crowd which struck a familiar chord in his memory. Without pausing to speculate, the star-

DEBTS PARLEY AT LAUSANNE IS POSTPONED

Doubts if Conference Will Even Will Be Held

DELAY OPPOSED

Church Asks That Action Be Taken to Clean Slate

London, Jan. 21.—The government announced last night in a foreign office statement that it was "evident" the Lausanne reparations conference could not begin next Monday, as originally had been planned.

The announcement raised doubts among responsible commentors about whether the conference would be held at all, and one point the official statement was extremely guarded.

"The conversations which have been taking place between the governments chiefly concerned with the conference at Lausanne are not yet complete and it is evident that the conference cannot be begun as early as next Monday, the date which has been provisionally arranged," the statement said.

"Further conversations are now in progress and the British government trusts the hope it may be possible to come to a satisfactory agreement as to the procedure to be adopted in the course of a few days."

The announcement, which came at an unusually late hour, by no means was unexpected in the best informed quarters here.

Feel Postponement Inevitable.

Earlier in the day those in touch with political developments noted the prevalence of a strong feeling that postponement was inevitable in view of the French government's decision. Not until tomorrow will Premier Pierre Laval know whether the new government has the confidence of the Chamber and it was felt there scarcely was time for the conference arrangements to be completed between then and the beginning of next week.

Sixteen bishops of the Church of England and a number of prominent figures in the established and free churches issued a petition last night appealing for outright cancellation of reparations and inter-governmental war debts.

"We make an earnest appeal to all who owe allegiance to Christ in their country and, so far as their words can reach them, in other countries also," the petition says, "to use their influence to press for cancellation of reparations payments and of international war debts."

CHANNEL OPEN TO THE SEA

First Time For Such An Event in 55 Years

Montreal, Jan. 21.—The St. Lawrence ship channel is open to the sea. Government records for 55 years diligently searched by Dominion Government Signal Service officials fail to reveal a case where the ship channel was open so late in the winter. Only a thin sheet of ice covers the Montreal harbor basin and commercial shipping activities are being carried on. In the last to years the latest date the channel was open was on January 5, 1929. There is no shore between Montreal and Sorel, the Signal Service reports, and from Sorel to the sea there is neither shore ice nor floating ice.

WORK TOGETHER TO BRING RELIEF

Red Cross Enforces Public Health Measures

Glendora, Mass., Jan. 21 — The United States Coast Guard and Red Cross worked together today to relieve suffering in the flood-stricken Mississippi delta and its thousands of refugees.

While a squad of Red Cross workers moved swiftly to alleviate suffering among the homeless and enforce public health measures in refugee centres, coast guard boats and crews, hurried here from the Great Lakes and gulf stations, gave reassurance to marooned householders in the water-bound back country.

Wholesale vaccinations in the crowded, half-flooded towns of six counties where farm families sought comparative safety after seeing their homes inundated by overflowing Mississippi delta levee systems were ordered by the Red Cross and were proceeding rapidly today under the direction of the county health officers. Scores of resident physicians cooperated in the work.

HOOVER PLAN SEEN AS DOLE TO WELL-TO-DO

Bondholders of Huge Trusts Likely to Benefit Most

LA GUARDIA'S VIEW

Business Expansion, However, Will Add to Purchasing Power

WASHINGTON, January 21. — Representative La Guardia of New York has a biting tongue but he was never more bitter than when he derided Mr. Hoover's programme of economic relief as a "dole for the millionaires." No doubt, many millionaires will profit by it but that is inevitable in any great business expansion. The Hoover programme, if successful, will result in such expansion, but its immediate beneficiaries will accrue not so much to the millionaires as to the well to do. It may be said that the entire legislative programme will not be for terms provide a single meal for the hungry or a single job for the unemployed. It is hoped, however, that the business expansion it is designed to promote will add to the purchasing power of many people and thus give jobs to into many industries. In judging the programme we must always bear in mind that the Hoover administration does not hold that the federal Government has any responsibility for the relief of destitution. The programme, so quote Mr. Hoover, does not create new jobs but seeks indirectly to restore to the unemployed the jobs they had before the depression.

Those for example, like Colllton Moller bill which creates the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. That corporation is authorized to loan money to banks, trust companies, building and loan associations, agricultural and livestock credit corporations and other financial institutions. It is also authorized to lend money to closed banks which appear to be in fact solvent, and to banks which have taken over the assets of banks which have suspended. However, the primary benefits from this gigantic extension of governmental credits will accrue by its own terms of financial institutions of such strength as to make their endorsement of collateral securities of practically commercial value.

In the case of the railways the loans made by this governmental corporation will go to the benefit of the bondholders. There is no pretense that any of the money so loaned will be expended for construction. There is no hope that in the present state of the law rail ways will pay higher wages or shorter hours. On the contrary, rates have been advanced for the temporary period with the permission of the Interstate Commerce Commission and at this very moment the railway employees are being pressed to voluntarily accept a ten per cent. reduction in their wages. However, these loans will materially improve the situation of the bondholders. To this there may be no objection, because the banks and the insurance companies are loaded up with railway bonds and it is important to the "dough" of the banks, the trust companies and the insurance companies be maintained in a favorable position. President Woodlock, of the Baltimore and Ohio, recently stated that railway bond issues aggregating one billion and a quarter dollars would mature within the next two years, and it would be impossible for the railway companies to refund these tremendous obligations without at least temporary assistance from the public treasury.

CRASH OCCURS ON BRIDGE ST.

Intersection Scene of Early Evening Crash on Wednesday

An accident occurred shoe five o'clock on Wednesday afternoon at the corner of East Bridge Street and William streets, with a car, going north on William Street, and driven by Louis Bashotte of Trenton, and a car of the Checker Taxi Service of the City driven by Carmen Sloan, proceeding west along Bridge St.

The Belleville car was thrown up on the boulevard at the northwest corner of the intersection and swung by turned about. The rear right wheel was smashed, the left running board damaged, the front fender damaged and head lights shattered. The Bashotte car was more fortunate and the apparent damage done to it was a dismantled rear bumper.

In the Tweed car as well as the driver, were two women and two little girls. It might have been an accident with serious results had the car moved farther north and received the impact of the taxi service car.

Bashotte claims he made the stop at Bridge Street and though sighting the other car thought he had time to cross.

The accident was reported and Sergt. Bowman responded, and after ascertaining the drivers' names and car numbers directed both to report at police headquarters, where they were questioned and then permitted to leave.

CASSIDY TO HANG

Human Skeleton Is Found in Pit

Woodstock, Jan. 21—A complete human skeleton, identified as that of a woman, has been discovered in a gravel pit in the west of the municipality of Wolverton, the bones being found about 18 inches below the surface of the ground. The discovery was made by Gordon Murphy while excavating the pit.

Mystery surrounds the whether is unknown even for as far as the older residents of the community can remember there has never been a cemetery on the hillside, which was covered with bush until a few years ago.

Another perplexing point is the fact that the bones, which are the thigh of a grown woman about five feet tall, were found in a grave little more than three feet in length, with no covering other than that afforded by the earth.

SAME BANDITS SAME TRICK

Hail Family Out of Bed And Rob Bank Twice

Chicago, Jan. 21—"Come on, get out of them beds," said five bandits early yesterday in the home of Cashier M. C. Metz, of the State Bank of Mondelein. They emphasized their demands with guns.

So the sleepy-eyed Metz, his wife, and their four children got on their clothes, wearily, because they knew what was coming. Only last April they had been routed out of their home, and driven to the bank, where Metz said the same robbers took $10,000.

Into the bandit car the Metz piled again, at 4 a.m., to be driven to the bank, and there placed in the vault. It was only a few hours the opening of the automatic time lock of the vault.

The robbers got hungry about 7 a.m., and two of them drove back to the Metz home for coffee. They brought it to the bank, drank some of it, and then drove off with Metz back to the Metz home. Two of them waited for the teller to arrive, walked him and forced him into the basement of the home with the Metz family, and the robbers cleaned out the vaults, obtaining $7,500.

They took Paul Metz into their automobile, and released him, he said: "If you raise an alarm for an hour, we'll kill this boy of yours and your family, too." Then the Metz Motts did not report the robbery until it was found unharmed from the robbers' car.

Farmers of Alberta Score Gold Standard

Edmonton, Jan. 21.—In a smash-to bring this about. A resolution ing attack on the existing monetary and financial system, the United Farmers of Alberta, in convention here condemned the gold standard, called for the complete nationalization of the monetary system and the creation of credit to industry—on a basis of cost, not of profit.

The farmers refused, however, to declare themselves in favor of nationalization of all the banks. They thought, with a national credit system, the banks either would not be needed or would have to render as social service as the national system.

Coincident with the demand for a national credit system came a proposal for intensified political action

O'Connor of Marmora and a student of Marmora Continuation School was successful in winning the silver trophy given by W. H. Moore, M.P. The awarding of the contract for the construction of a dam across Crows river makes all anticipate the opening of the year 1932 for Marmora village council. It was freely predicted that no tender would be received at a price that would be considered by the council, but the amount of the tender accepted was $9,286. The contract was given to Mr. H. D. Duff a competent engineer, who has associated with him Mr. McCamp, another qualified engineer. A bond is to be given for the completion of the work, according to the plans and specifications and another for one year for the maintenance of the dam. The completion of the dam will give Marmora unrestricted fire protection and concerning that is of a perpetual power right it will be much the cheapest fire protection it has been able to secure. It will also do much to maintain Crowe River level and Crowe Lake at a uniform height cost of the year which will be a added advantage both from the standpoint of health and as an attraction for summer visitors. If it fulfils in the grist mill again being started the year round it will be a asset to the village as well as to Pearce company.

The work of building the dam could do much to relieve the unemployment in the village during the balance of the winter and early spring. With the exception of the foreman work will be done entirely by local labor, if enough suitable help can be secured. Material will not be bought locally as far as possible.

In spite of the fact the tenders varied from $10,286 to $9,286, the contractors and the council are satisfied the work can be done at the lowest price and yield a profit to the contractor.

A very enjoyable dance was held Wednesday evening in aid of Marmora Hockey Club. There was large attendance, a number of out-town people being present. As the newly-weds left the church they were showered in true Russian style with rock candy. The wedding banquet was served at the home of the bride's parents after also the Russian custom of celebrating was observed. Money gifts were presented in turn by the guests who drank to the health of the young couple. Steve Vhescko with violin and Mike Hruby, with flute, played Russian airs and several of the lady guests sang snatches of Russian songs in concert. Mr. and Mrs. Glimbiski will reside in Marmora.

A high class concert was given at the Deloro Hall on Thursday evening to employees of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company and their friends at the last of the banquet tendered in previous years to members of the Deloro Social Committee and other guests.

As in the case of the banquets this concert was given, the cost of the concert was borne by the management and all present felt a deep sense of indebtness to the company long before the program closed. Before the first group of numbers were given, Mr. R. A. Elliott, chairman of the Deloro Safety Committee made a very able speech.

Having in mind, the presence of the ladies for the first time at such an event, he gave an outline of the rise and growth of the Mail safety movement. He mentioned the fact that safety worked commenced in Deloro seven years ago to function by concentrated effort instead of the haphazard style. In Deloro they were out to preach, teach and demonstrate Safety First in every day work. The ladies should be interested in this as they have a duty with the men of their homes to be concerned with safety at home and should start their children's eyes with thoughts on Safety-first principles.

After explaining the nature of the two charts as at the annual meeting on Monday evening, Mr. Elliott paid a fitting tribute to the work of W. S. Reynolds, chairman of the Publicity Committee who had made arrangements for the concert and asked him to preside for the rest of the evening. Before announcing numbers, Mr. Reynolds made a very apt address.

For the next fifteen minutes the gathering was much enlivened by Percy David, baritone soloist of Toronto who was accompanied on the piano by Miss Florence Hudson. Then James Bankier, Belleville's famous hyic tenor was heard in good effect in "Arise, O Sun" and "I have a Lassie". Mr. Moorman, fellow member of Mr. Bankier on the Radio Quartette followed with two well rendered baritone solos in response. Percy David in police uniform revived old memories of concert and song enthusiasts as he sang "Send for a policeman" and a couple of funny parodies. These were interspersed by a nicely executed pianoforte number by Miss Hudson entitled "Rain". Two more pianoforte duets were artistically played by Leo Riggs, accompanist for the members of the Belleville party which was assisting in the program. Well rendered solos by Charlie Spaulding and Mr. Hillman of Belleville followed. Humour on riot again, as Percy David returned to the stage dressed in Spanish costume for his third group. Further excellent numbers by James Bankier and S. R. Moorman well finished Belleville's contribution.

Then Mr. Reynolds with the clever use of simile referred to the good services rendered the Safety Committee by the social secretary. He called upon Mr. S. B. Wright, manager of the company to speak a few words to Mr. Paquet and to the audience as well.

Secretary Honoured

Mr. Wright said he was pleased that the success of the organization depended to a large extent on Mr. Paquet's labors for it. He was not going to say it did not largely depend also on the work of others, but in fulfilling his particular duties as secretary Mr. Paquet had considerably helped the movement. Calling Mr. Paquet to the platform, Mr. Wright then presented him with a beautiful pen and pencil set as a token of service rendered. Genuine surprise was writ upon the countenance of the recipient. "I am glad to have been of some help to the Safety First Committee" he replied after expressing thanks. "On the whole it has been a pleasure to be associated with the others in this work."

Mr. Wright continuing his remarks said, that on behalf of the company he could say they were behind the movement in every way. He thanked the members of the committee for their work and remarked that Mr. Elliott had proved himself to be an efficient leader, such as an organization of that kind called for. Mr. Reynolds voiced the thanks of the committee to the Belleville artists for whom S. B. Burrows fittingly replied. Then come three days late following the most severe storm of the winter.

Reports indicated that some of the vessels were trying to weather their bows held in the wind walls storm was at its height.

Love's Stampede

by Arthur R. Scott

Where the way grew narrower, and the landscape was darkened by the sudden storm, Stella Flanders pulled her team to a abrupt stop. Her shining hair was reflected in the angry glow of her eyes as she turned to her companion.

"And what if I refuse?" She fixed this young man she had known for years with a level look. "What are you going to do about it?"

"That's about all there is to say, I suppose." But Mason's hair was plastered, but his determined eyebrows and a resolute chin that could be always at "Stella it's advisable to turn back before the storm gets any worse."

Stella was still for a moment, her lips curling, her eyes twin sparks of light.

"You're afraid!" she said with a tone of her head. "That's the trouble with you, Dick Mason: you're fainthearted."

Mason looked stunned, her the intensity of this girl's remark. "But Stella, listen—" he began.

"I've listened enough: there's nothing more to say. I started out to ride to the Colby's ranch, and I'm going to keep on." As if to punctuate her statement, Stella spoke to her horse, flicked him with the end of the rein and without looking at Dick, rode into the narrow descending trail that led down the deep walls of the canyon.

Mason looked after her, troubled. He had been engaged to Stella Flanding but two weeks, and they had not been easy weeks; not easy for an impetuous young man who also liked his own way about things. And to think that they must have another quarrel in the midst of a storm. Suddenly decided that it was useless to humor her in the present as he had been compelled to surrender in the past. Dick urged his horse along until he had reached the girl's side.

They moved on together without a word, the young man stealing a glance now and then at the girl's set face. Soon the storm was falling heavily; but they continued silently on their way, the gallant horses following the trail, bucking the wind with staunch shoulders. Ranch fires—ranch women. There was something fine in both: something that this session, he bought, that only could be won.

Suddenly Dick Mim, the girl with the strong, sweet mouth and frank, fearless eyes. Oh, what a presumptuous fool he had been to think that he could hold her! He thought with a shudder of a few of the girls he had met, especially of the last one that he had momentarily fancied!

Bored, languid, idly lounging in a beautiful home; a girl of nothing, but a taker of everything. That he could have thought Ann Mountford wonderful was now unbelievable. It was women like Stella who were wonderful, and she had been his—almost. She might have loved him, too, been the fearless, devil-may-care type of man. Fool-heedless fool!

He was also a fool to think that a woman liked to be cared for and protected. It was more modern to fling challenge to the winds with bold following, throwing out all in outward signs of love, because it meant wearing the aspect of a bond. Fear for a woman's safety? Such thoughts never gave birth to a woman's level! Dick meditated over this as they ploughed through the storm.

Suddenly he missed the click of the other horse's hoofs as he reached a rocky trail blown bare. And though he urged his mount forward in much faster pace, there was no sign of Stella. The wind had suddenly increased in velocity, and there came a thundering pound of rhythmic drum beats. Then Dick saw them—just a little to the left—a herd of cattle in stampede.

With a mighty rumble that could be heard above the wind, the herd came running against the storm. A frenzied bulking wild mob demant and unreasoning. In their midst silhouetted against the powdery snow flung high by their hoofs a running horse with a rider.

In an instant Dick and his horse seemed as one. He spoke sharply to the animal and like a shot it leaped. Swift as an eagle powerful legs throwing back the half-frozen sod, nostrils dilated and fighting for breath against the tearing wind. Dick's horse ran down the slope and through a narrow draw, toward the thundering hoofs.

"They've got her—God, they've got her," he muttered through his clenched teeth.

The herd had turned slightly and were running nearer now, their hoofs flinging gobs of snow in Dick's face. In the foreground was Stella, partially hidden by those tearing hoofs, snatched along helplessly, but still in the saddle—her loveliness, her soft slimness. Dick felt his heart stop in a short time before was there in that desperate plight.

Where the stampede had started from he had no way of knowing. It seemed to him that the frightened herd must have come up suddenly as Stella had emerged from the canyon, and swallowed her in an instant. As the mad horse burst almost fell, that Dick remembered his automatic and drew it from the holster.

With the cold weight of the gun sliding into his hand, Dick breathed a word of prayer, and leaning far out on the side of his horse he fairly hurled the animal until it was abreast the leading steers. Then, with the reins in the rear of the horse, he fired.

He missed the near leader, but another steer, high-headed and well in front, loomed his horns skyward and fell. Simultaneously there was confusion. Three additional shots in rapid succession hit as many steers, while other animal bumped into the wounded and fell into a whirling mass of kicking legs. Then the rest of the herd swept on from this spot, milling off to the left.

Almost blinded from the pelting snow and earth thrown up by the stampede, Dick pulled up just as Stella's horse stumbled from the last of the running herd and before he could leap from his saddle, a group of ranchers who had been pursuing the herd, reached the half-fainting girl and took possession of her.

Realizing that Stella was in safe hands, Dick turned his horse's head about, gave him the rein and rode rapidly away. At midnight he reentered the "Bar Z" ranch of Flander ranch, disgusted with himself and all things pertaining to love. As his riders-like saddling up, in the light of a lantern, to go in search of the herd, Dick soon brought Stella home, they told him. She was not hurt; only scared and some bruises, they said.

Dick sent word to his host that he was safe, and went to his room, without seeing anyone, and had decided to leave the next day. He would go back to his prospecting for gold, the work in which he would try and forget about Stella. Back to the wilderness was law, excepting his Aunt Belinda, who loved him better than he knew himself.

He packed his bag in the morning and went down to say good-bye. Never a whine would he utter; Stella was free to do as much as to be happy anyway. He would have to see her before he left, and then she would return the ring he had given her. But he wouldn't take it back; no sir. She could keep that in memory of a foolish man! Then, on the ranch porch, he saw her.

She wore a green sweater and a glue sport skirt, with her black hair tumbling around her little head in the same rebellious way. But her eyes did not have the same saucy expression that he remembered—they were very brown depths.

"Dick," she said softly, "I haven't seen you since—since yesterday, and it's eight years!"

"Yes," he replied, trying to appear indifferent. "I'm all right, thank you." He waited for a moment, as though he expected Stella to say something, then added, "Well, when are you going to tell me goodbye? I am quickly waiting for my waiting papers."

"Waiting papers? Goodbye?" Her eyes opened wide. "Dick, what do you mean, Dick?"

"Oh, I know that you are not satisfied with me, the young man said sorrowfully; "I don't come up to your standards. And you called me a coward!"

A queer expression came to her mouth, and her eyes looked hurt-dark with pain.

"Stella!" Somehow it happened, just as those things usually happen—she was in his arms, green, blue, shaded, but very sweet. Dick tried to say something, but couldn't. "Oh, Dick!" She was clinging to him, burying her face in the young man's coat sleeve. "When the time's same—and you was awaylowed up—I thought I'd never see you again—"

Arson Charge Not At This Assize

Hamilton, Ont., Jan. 20 — John Berta, Beverly farmer, charged with arson, as a result of fires here first during the epidemic which terrorized Wentworth County, will not be tried at the present Assizes, it was indicated today. The Grand Jury completed its duties today but was not called upon to bring in a bill in this case, indicating that Berta's hearing would likely be postponed till the Spring sittings.

HEAVY LOSS IN BARN FIRE

Owner Will Ask Fire Marshal to Conduct Enquiry

Gall, Ont., Jan. 21 — Fire of mysterious origin early Wednesday destroyed the frame house and barn of John Rafferty, three miles west of Blair, with a loss of between $5,000 and $6,000 partly covered by insurance. In addition to the contents of both buildings, Mrs. Rafferty lost two cattle, a horse, three hogs, chickens and two automobiles. When he discovered the barn on fire, he ran across the road to the Dickis settlement school house and ran the bell to attract neighbors. Mr. Rafferty said that from the rear of the school he heard a man's voice say "go to it," but he did not see anybody. Mr. Rafferty declares he will ask the Ontario fire marshal's department to conduct a probe to establish the origin of the blaze.

Financial Counsel Discusses Question of Rail Merger

VALUATION

Says Decision About Made on Tentative Offer By Gov't

Montreal, Jan. 21 — Financial counsel of Tuesday says: "The report from London suggested that a tentative offer to the Canadian Pacific Railway Company on the part of the Dominion Government had been fairly well decided upon, had an influence and effect on the London Exchange yesterday. On making inquiries in railway circles, however, Financial Counsel was informed that no consideration of the problem, either by the Government or by the Board of Commissioners, had not reached anywhere near a point where a definite plan could be formulated, at least one which, when it would appear, would be required to develop any solution of the problem.

"It is admitted that the question of ultimate control of the two properties, if these be brought together in any form, is the most difficult one. The political aspect, with two schools of thought, private ownership and public ownership, active at Ottawa, and political parties, is certain to prove highly contentious and already the Leader of one party has issued a vigorous protest against the elimination of the Government-owned road. What appears to be sought is some form of amalgamation of the two systems that will function as efficiently as possible, the two roads were brought together physically, and the present duplication of costs and services wiped out. How that can be done without the Government practically taking over the assets of the C.P.R. and giving some guarantee to bondholders and shareholders, or the C.P.R. assuming control of the C.N.R. is a problem that, so far as can be learned, has not yet been solved.

"No matter what offer is made to C.P.R. shareholders—if, indeed, this is done—there will always be the question to be debated as to how far the valuation set on assets and on earning power should be determined by the Actual results shown prior to the business depression, and the extent to which an average estimate of possible earnings should be set above the current situation at what is hoped to be the low point of the business slump and the earnings of the railway system."

Asks Censorship Be More Rigid

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 21 (CP) — More rigid censorship of motion pictures was urged by Rev. Canon Sawyer, Anglican student, speaking here last night. "Movies of a sinister kind are the most insidious and greatest menace in Canada today" so far as the ideals of children were concerned. Children were entitled to see the movies, but they should be of the right kind, he declared.

A Long, Long Trail

by David Nowinson

From a distance it looked like a rushing but a naturally flesh plunging through clouds of dust rising from the long, narrow dirt road that squirmed snakily through the country. The flesh grew, took on wheels, a windshield, a large figure.

You knew then that it was an automobile, a roadster, of the most the complacent pure of a motor quite superior to most of its kind.

The girl at the wheel might have been 25 years old, no more. She was slim and muscular as a boy. Her hair, golden-blond topped a face of amazing beauty. It might have brought her success on the screen. It had already achieved that success. The girl was Sally Arden, darling of theatre patrons the world over.

"If he only comes," she whispered to herself. "Please, God, make him be there!" And then, enigmatically, "Ten years!"

The thought which Billy Wayne had produced from his absurd little narrative on that memorable evening ten years ago still echoed in her ears now. She had sat there with that under the broad elm: she a girl of fifteen bidding her sixteen-year-old lover good-bye. She could see him yet as he hunched over and cupped the harmonica in his two hands, playing gay tunes at first to conceal his dejection at which she had told him.

He was always full of big ideas. He was going to be a great man some day, maybe a president. He would travel all over the world, acquiring great fame, and incidentally, fabulous fortune. He would luxuriously have yachts and race horses. And then, of course, he would return to the farm and marry her.

But just then, she understood, she couldn't do all this. He was too busy helping his uncle fill silo.

She was leaving the farm first, however. Her photograph entered by chance in a nation-wide beauty contest, had been adjudged the winner. She was going to Hollywood. There was some likelihood that she would be given a contract with the film company sponsoring the competition.

"I've got to go," she told Billy. "Don't you see? Maybe I'll be a big star.

"Oh, that's all right." Billy replied with elaborate unconcern. "I don't care. By the time you're a big star, I'll be an aviator or a president or something. Then I'll drop into a show, sometime, and I'll look at one of your pictures."

But it was sheer bravado on his part, whistling to keep up bravely. His expression proved that. He looked miserable.

"Honest, I'm sorry to leave you, Billy, even if I am getting a chance to go in the movies. I'll miss you honest, I will. But I'll write all the time."

"Do you have to go? He frowned at the harmonica. "Gee whiz, you'll probably get sick from the train ride."

She sat enchanted when he played the song that expressed far better than he could ever say it, all the longing, the sorrow, the mingled fear and hope that welled within him.

"There's a long, long trail awinding

Into the land of my dreams,
Where the nightingale is singing
And a white moon gleams."

It had been a gorgeous evening. It was a long, long train ten years. Each year the trail extending farther. Would they meet again tonight? Had they come to the end of that trail and were their adolescent dreams to materialize to some true now?

She laughed a little. Maybe I'm too sentimental, she thought. Perhaps it's too much to expect. After all, ten years meant a long time. Undoubtedly he was married or no longer alive or in some foreign country by this time. Their correspondence had languished. She hadn't heard from him in years. It was not impossible that he had completely forgotten that youthful promise to meet her again, exactly ten years from that evening, at the same spot under the big elm.

"Hi," she dismissed her fears with ruthless insistence. "He won't forget. I know he'll keep his promise. He never broke his word."

What could he be like now? A banker? A business man? No, she couldn't picture him occupying any prosaic position. He was destined for something extraordinary. He would have grown big and strong, gone to college, and become a mining engineer or even an aviator as he had promised.

She could see him plainly in fancy. His hair would still be as unruly brown thatch. He would be wearing the blue flannel queer, quizzical grin. He would listen attentively and when he spoke it would be in a low, whimsical tone.

Again there was a doubt. "Maybe I'm only an optimistic idiot," she told herself.

Not a word from him during all these years. Her own work, of course, had kept her almost constantly occupied. Once, a few years ago, it was true, she had mused out this way, had stopped to inquire at a nearby town if they knew anything of Billy Wayne. They didn't. He had left the farm a long time ago, when his was seventeen or eighteen.

The car rolled smoothly on into the velvet dusk. The actress switched on the headlights. In a few minutes now she would be there at the elm, greeting her schoolboy sweetheart, saying hello to Billy Wayne. Only he wouldn't be a schoolboy any longer. She mustn't forget that. He would be a grown man and men are sometimes different than the boys from whom they have developed.

A black shadow stood in the middle of the road. Sally Arden applied her brakes suddenly. The car skidded to a halt. She was looking suddenly into the muzzle of an enormous revolver.

"This is a stickup, lady. Pull over to the side." He was a broad, burly figure. His voice was harsh and guttural. Above the handkerchief covering the lower part of his face gleamed cruel dark eyes.

She swung her car to the side of the road, noted with some wonder that she was under the old elm.

"Reach for the sky. Climb out of there, sister."

"What do you want of me?" She was surprised that she could speak at all. Her voice, even, had tones of her voice. "I have nothing."

"Yes?" He leered at her. "Lady don't tell me how to run my business. What-have you got on your hand?" He pointed to the ruby, glowing blood red, encircled by flashing brilliants.

"It's—it's an imitation."

He pulled it off. It slipped it from her finger, pocketed it. "I know you wont mind it if I take a fake."

The car engine motor coughed asthmatically.

"Quick!" commanded the burglar. "Get into the car. I'm getting in with you. We're leaving, see?" His tone was menacing. He prodded her with the gun. "If you say anything to whoever's coming by, they'll send you flowers."

She climbed into the car. The bandit followed, gun in hand.

The driver coughed his way up the hill, came alongside, stopped. It was a huge, lumbering car of ancient lineage. The driver could look down into the interior of the low roadster. He was a stocky man who wore a ridiculously large brown mustache.

"Having trouble?"

"Yes. Just a little loving', said the bandit hastily. "You know how it is. Don't need any help."

The stranger laughed. "No, I hardly expect you do."

"So if you'll scram—"

An automatic appeared suddenly in the stranger's hand. "Keep that gun," he snapped. "You can't fool me. Get out of that car."

The thief complied.

"Hand me that revolver, mister. I see it from where I was sitting. Youll find some rope in back of my car. The his hands behind him."

Perplexed, thrilled, "How can I ever thank—" she began.

He waved gratitude aside. "Just tie them knots tight."

Impulsively she asked, "Do you—do you happen to know anybody by the name of Billy Wayne?"

Billy Wayne? I heard of somebody by that name who was killed in a Nevada mine explosion last year. Why?"

"Ooh—nothing." She climbed silently back into her car. "Goodby. Thank you very much." The motor roared. Inexplicably, it was gone.

The young man shoved his captive into the seat beside him.

He removed the big brown moustache.

"You know," he told the bandit, "there was once a fellow who wouldn't let his girl recognize him because she was rich and famous and he was a no-good rolling stone."

"He's goofy!" thought the bandit.

His opinion was confirmed when the queer young man drew a harmonica from his pocket and started to play, "There's A Long, Long Trail A-Winding."

NO BICKERING SAY OFFICIALS

Ponsford and Jackson Both Declare They Are Friendly

Kingston, Jan. 21—Emphatic denial of charges of bickerings was made today by Inspector E. R. Jackson and Warden J. C. Ponsford, when they appeared before Ottawa despatch which alleged that: "It is no secret that there was a split last between Warden Ponsford of Portsmouth Penitentiary and Inspector E. R. Jackson who preferred Prisoners Farm near Collin's Bay." Warden Ponsford declared that he had given escape of Gordon Calvert from Portsmouth Penitentiary was in no way responsible for the charges made. Inspector Jackson in a statement affected the officer in charge of the man," said Warden Ponsford. "It was not a matter of conduct considered the reason for the charges made."

When asked about the statement in the despatch that there was no love between himself and Inspector Jackson, Warden Ponsford said that there certainly had been bickering as far as he was concerned.

Inspector Jackson, questioned concerning the same statement, said that he did not consider it at all accurate. The best of relations had always existed between himself and Warden Ponsford, not only when he was discharging his duties as an Inspector, but also at the time he assumed control of the construction work in the Preferred Class Penitentiary as Acting Warden.

It is known that at the time of the recent escape of Gordon Calvert from the institution Warden Ponsford invited the assistance of Inspector Jackson, and the officers of both institutions worked together for the apprehension of the escaped inmate. Inspector Jackson went on to say that all his reports concerning Portsmouth Penitentiary were open for public investigation at any time.

Concerning the other reasons given in the despatch for what is termed "the Penitentiary feud" Inspector Jackson stated that he had no comment to make.

Vesuvius Suffers Internal Pains

Naples, Italy, Jan. 21. — A light earthquake accompanied by loud explosions rumbled from Mount Vesuvius' stupendous crater at 10:30 o'clock last night. Somebody suggested to him that perhaps the volcano and its peculiar behavior caused uneasiness among the inhabitants, although no casualties or damage were reported.

A series of loud explosions were heard from deep down in the volcano at exactly 10 p.m., at the same time an earthquake of perpendicular motion shook the city for four seconds.

Then, Vulcanely crater, which always has been illuminated at night by internal fires, went dark.

The earth shock was light, but together with the ominous sounds was sufficient to make many of the inhabitants of the surrounding region.

The Vesuvius observatory reported that the earthquake apparently had its epicenter under the mountain. No explanation for the disturbance was advanced other than whatever happened evidently was deep down in the volcano.

DEBATE FOLLOWS 20 PER CENT CUT

Are Judges "Servants of the Crown" Question Asked

(By Thomas T. Champion)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 21 (CP cable)—Are His Majesty's Judges "servants of the crown?" and are their salaries liable to review by the House of Commons? These questions were being hotly debated by men of the law, of all ranks, following the cut of twenty per cent. in judicial salaries under the national economy act.

On the one hand it is maintained the act cannot apply to judges who are only removable by a petition of both Houses of Parliament. The judges themselves have made no open reference to the matter but it seems certain the bench as whole feels aggrieved, because the government appears to some extent to have ignored the peculiarly independent position the judiciary holds under the constitution.

The judges' view apparently is they should have been approached with a request to submit voluntarily to a temporary reduction. Judicial salaries have not been altered since 1870.

The Economy Act of last year is the measure authorizing the government to reduce the salaries of civil servants, which preceded cuts in pay of the naval, military and air forces, teachers and clergymen, as well as of government office employees.

Charge Reduced To Manslaughter

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 21 (CP) — Charge of murder against Everett Baker was reduced to one of manslaughter by the Grand Jury which returned a true bill in the case yesterday. Barker is held in connection with the death of Pong Lip Yuen, Chinese restaurant proprietor, who was fatally injured in a scuffle on December 30th last. Three others are held as material witnesses.

Bullet Near Brain Cannot be Moved

Hamilton, Ont., Jan. 21—Suffering a relapse during the night, Geo. Anderson, the choir singer, who was the victim of a murderous attack on Saturday evening, was in a critical condition at the General Hospital today. X-ray examinations showed that one bullet lies close to the brain and the physicians in attendance have not dared to remove it. A second bullet, believed to have been fired from the same gun, has been detected dangerously close to the spinal column.

FAMILY DRIVEN OUT IN MORNING FIRE

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 21.—(By the Canadian Press)—Mr. and Mrs. Mike Komunoff and their six children were driven out of their home when fire broke out early Wednesday. The fire is believed to have started when a spark from the stove ignited a pile of wood nearby.

JIM THE CONQUERER

by PETER B. KYNE

"What are you going to do about Robbie?" she inquired presently.

"Oh, Robbie. Nothing! very much wrong with him. He requires sunlight and lots of it. Every day he lies out in the sunlight, I save it to him in small doses, so he would not suspect. Now he's tanned. One arm and one leg are affected but not very badly. The muscles are weak-atrophied. I'll build up those atrophied muscles slowly but surely. Then Robbie has his growth, he'll walk with a slight limp, because one leg is going to be a trifle shorter than the other, but otherwise he'll make a hand. It's going to be lots of fun to make Robbie over."

"Is that why you have never married? Or have you?"

"I haven't. When a Higuenes marries, it takes. And I haven't married because you've been such a long time showing up at my ranch."

"Why, Jimmy!"

"I thought for a while I'd surely have to go to Hillcrest, Dobbs Ferry, Westchester County, New York, and peek out to you the error of your ways, but thanks be unto Him, I was spared that expensive journey. Then, too, probably subtle ways showed to such good advantage in your country, because of the competition. I loathe competition. It makes me just a little bit jealous."

For the life of her Roberta could not help laughing. She had a habit of laughing at men when they were proposing to her or on the brink of it. To her chagrin he laughed with her, and instantly a horrible suspicion crossed her mind. Was he merely telling her the compliments any things he thought she desired to hear. A hot rage swelled in Roberta's heart and her laughter ceased abruptly.

"This is very sudden, Jimmy". Her voice was cool.

"That habit of being sudden is a trait that runs in the Higuenes blood. By the way, may I photograph you after we return from church, and may I have a print? Just one, please. Then you may destroy the plate, if you will?"

"I never give my photographs to gentlemen on such short acquaintance."

"That isn't answering my question."

"Oh,"

Then I'll have to get along with the one I have. It isn't so good but it will do."

"Where did you possess yourself of my photograph?"

"I got it out of a magazine. It's on sale where you're jumping at high humor and low prices. By the way, I don't think much of your horse. Now if you give me a new photo of yourself. I'll give you a horse that's a horse."

"You keep your horse and I'll keep you the photograph, Jimmy. I had some taken just before I left and I'll send for one."

"Thank you, but I also want you just as you are this morning. I want you standing in that doorway. Then, after you go away, I can look at it and think how fine it would have been if you had stayed —there in your doorway looking out at me. Perhaps I may be able to fool myself into fancying you standing there watching for me to come home."

"Not that, Jimmy. Think of me standing there awaiting the arrival of one of your men with the information that the rest of the boys will be here with the bob yuletidy."

"Have another egg and some more bacon." Don Jaime urged hospitably. "We're talking too much and there goes the first bell for mass."

Twenty-third Instalment

The bell in the cupola of Don Jaime's little adobe church was calling its last summons to the faithful when Roberta and Don Jaime left the house on foot. The street of the pueblo was crowded with a dense semi-naked babies and an uncommonly large number of our dogs.

Mass passed through.

As Don Jaime's firm step sounded in the tiled entrance the congregation, which had been seated on benches, on mats or squatting on the padre had not as yet appeared for the altar, but when Roberta and here was a gesture of profound respect to the lord of their holdings.

Don Jaime led her down the main aisle and crossed with her over to his organ loft at the back against the wall." The choir sat on benches in the rear of the organ and a number of bolstered chair stood beside the organ seat.

"For company," Don Jaime murmured, and indicated that Rob should occupy one of the chairs by the organ, pulled out the stop and started the prelude. Some half-dozen fifty he stood erect and peered back of the organ, and now Roberta realized why her host kept a short buggy whip on top of the instrument. He was using it to keep administered a smart tap to something hidden from view.

"Si, Don Jaime, si," a voice cried mischievously.

"The trouble with my people," Don Jaime whispered, "is that I permitted to lean against anything they fall asleep." Pry, organ-pumper is no exception."

The padre, in his vestments, entered from the sacristy, and as he advanced to the altar Don Jaime's little organ crashed into a solemn pe prelude; then his brown choir, taking the cue from a vigorous nod of the master's raven head, sang:

"Come, Holy Ghost, Creator blest, And in our hearts take up they rest"

The girl watched Don Jaime, who knew not one note from another but who played amazingly well by ear because God had created him a troubadour. His dark face was alight the delight he gleaned from his simple task; for all his huge body, there was in his attitude and in the luster of his eyes something that proclaimed to her again the odd, little boy quality in him, touching her as she had never been touched before.

She grand about her. Dusky fat women, in bright print calico dresses and gay shawls, men in over alls and clean gingham shirts, sane neckties, their sombreros on the floor beside them; little barefoot boys and girls, their black eyes bent upon Roberta with frank, primitive curiosity, knelt on the hard red tiles.

The people! Never before had she met a man who claimed as his people those with whom he could not claim a blood relationship. Never before had she met a man whose clannish instincts, whose reverence for the traditions of his ancestors, was so strong as in Don Jaime. A part of the man dwelt in the remote past, content with the riches of simplicity and health, contemptuous of money for money's sake, scornful of its power—a sort of spiritual world ring chained to his environment by the obligations it thrust upon him. yet not wishful to avoid or decrease them—rather relishing them in fact.

"Strange strange man," the girl reflected. "There is his still a look of exaltation on his face, and yet I know he has not the most remote interest in the ultimate disposal of his immortal soul. He killed my uncle Tom and is too honest to think of pretending to me that he regrets it. This man could be said he loved me—yet he has not made love to me nor will he. I imagine if that was just some of his Irish blarney or his Castilian instinct for conveying compliments for their own sake. He's a strange mixture, yet there is nothing complex about him. He thinks straight, talks straight, and acts straight. He couldn't dissemble if he wanted to. Oh, dear, I'm afraid I wish I had never met him. He's one of those terrible men one must take seriously."

The service proceeded. Roberta dreamed on. Don Jaime's low voice reached her. "Now, then, Bobby, do your stuff."

She sang as she had never sung before. "Bee their eyes," Don Jaime whispered as she sat down. "The poor devils. They loved it. Bandit's Wherever You Walk isn't sung in our church, but who here knows the difference, and who cares? An encore, Bobby."

She sang it. Then she sat through a sermon in Spanish at the conclusion of which the padre, addressing Don Jaime,' begged him to convey his thanks and that of his protectorate to the American senorita. Don Jaime translated his message, and a few minutes later she saw him stooping over the lap of a girl and lifting therefrom an infant. He carried it over to Roberta. "My soon-to be godson," he explained. "Little brown rascal. He's as a woodchuck, and when he grows up he will be an ingrate. I call him Gerright lazy. Well to the baptismal font with him. Then comes the padre."

She watched him holding the stolid infant while the sacrament of baptism was administered; she marked the pride and pleasure in the young mother's face at this signal honor conferred upon her and hers when, the ceremony over, Don Jaime kissed the infant and handed the mother the customary largess.

To the godmother, too, he made a gift of money; then, with a pellet pat on the shoulders of all concerned, including the padre, he saluted Roberta and together they walked back through the throng to the residencia. En route women curtsied to them, men removed their hats and bowed and there was a murmur "Buenos dias, Don Jaime," our dogs sniffed him, and over and over again hands were thrust into his.

At the house the majordomo greeted Don Jaime's people; he declared. "Small talented people," he declared. "Small talented people." Then he gave a simple oven for the tortillas; a tiny fireplace for coffee and lettuce and beans, labor exchanged for bright calico and red bandanna handkerchief cost at the ranch commissary; no debts, no rents, no lawsuits, freedom from the intricate code of morals. Nothing to annoy them save a little labor for the man who supplied them and pays them starvation wage who when they are naughty whips them. Sometimes I could wish I, too, were a peon. Roberta vil and the padre and the bear bothers them not, nor takes nor notes at the bank."

"No sheep," Roberta suppleme mented.

"Speaking of which," he continued, "I'll have to ask you to visit the woolies after luncheon if you care for a ride. We've kept holy the Sabbath common as it is to enjoy the Sabbath afternoon."

Crooked Bill meanwhile was wandering why his niece was such a long time correspondent, when Harris, the butler, entered with the mail. Two envelopes, one slim and the other fat, bore the return address of the Rancho Valle Verde, so Crooked Bill opened the slim one and read:

MR. AND MRS. - THE SYSTEMATIC MAN IN THE MORNING

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN, No. 18.

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service).—

By Edgar Rice Burroughs.

The foremost of the charging warriors went down to quick death beneath the long, stout club of the ape-man. Now his little, sharp figure was among them, striking right and left with mighty power and fury. Then over the frightful din, Tarzan lifted his voice in a series of sudden weird screams, a sound so terrible that the savages could not believe their ears.

Yet with their own eyes they had seen this white man open his mouth to pour forth his awful cry. A moment they hesitated. There came a mighty crashing in the jungle behind them. As they looked in the direction of this new noise, there broke upon their startled vision a sight that may well have frozen the blood of braver men than these black warriors.

Leaping from the tangled vegetation of the jungle's rim came a huge panther, with blazing eyes and bared fangs. And in his wake a score of ponderous, shaggy apes lurched rapidly toward them. Half erect upon their short bowed legs, their long arms reaching to the ground, the frightful horde advanced. The beasts of Tarzan had come in answer to his call!

No wonder the Waganbi blacks scattered for their lives. Heavy spears were hurled and apes went down, never to rise. Sheeta's tearing claws ripped and torn at black hides. Akut's yellow tusks found the throat of more than one slithering savage. And Tarzan of the Apes was here, there and everywhere, urging on his fierce allies, and himself taking a heavy toll with his keen knife.

BRIDE-TO-BE IS HONOURED

Stirling Young Lady Entertained at Shower by Her Friends

St. Paul's League met as usual with an attendance of nineteen. President Hollin presided over the devotional period which was unusually interesting. It opened with "Oh, worship the King", Dorothea Thompson gave a brief exposition of Sir Robert Grant, the soldier's life 1835-1892. "The day thy graces, Lord, is ended" was sung most heartily, then Donalda Shillington commented on John Hunter's life 1825-1863, this, too was most interesting; John Monroe read Psalm 18, after which Fred Hollin, Vice President of the Bible Side took the chair and discribed the life of the author Cecil Frances Alexander, 1820-1895. The day "Jesus calls us" which was then sung. Mrs. Roberts sang "I was a happy mean" very acceptably, accompanied on the piano by Gertrude Allan. Bob Patterson rendered several public selections in the Auto Mart and received a hearty encouraging number.

Mary Hollin then read the official magazine of the League "The Bible Outlook" which had many instructive and interesting items. Lawrence Scott gave a reading piano solo also Mary Hollin, Jack cock pull on a "Prover" contest and the Minute Benediction closed the meeting.

Pre-nuptial Activities:

One night recently, the "Entre Nous" club and some other friends made a visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Morton to do honor to Miss Wilhelmina Morton, their youngest daughter. In the course of the evening a nice sized saucer answer was tendered the bride-to-be and great merriment took place to the unwrapping of same, and Miss Morton gratefully acknowledged the gifts. Cards and other amusements were spent in games, after which dainty refreshments were served.

St. Andrew's Guild

St. Andrew's Guild met on Monday night with a large attendance Mr. W. J. Anderson presided over the meeting. After the opening hymn, the scripture lesson was read by Treneida Eggleton and the Lord's Prayer in unison. After the roll call, Mr. E. S. Spinks gave an excellent address on Russia. Solo-ists, and spoke largely on Leningrad, Stalyne and other leading characters in Russia.

Miss Pirie, Misses Lenora Ward, Treneida Eggleton, Olga Tulloch, Mae Johnston, Iva Chambers and Christena Farpey sang "He will hold me fast". At the conclusion of the evening was the presentation to Miss Wilhelmina Morton of a walnut chesterfield end table from the guild. Mrs. Harper Hollin read-ing an address and Mrs. R. W. Mc-Nichol on presenting the gift, Miss Morton very suitably replied.

Evening Service

Wright, President of the Women's Association, Mrs. G. Macklin, President of the W.M.S. and Mrs. C. W. Thompson. The invocation prayer was taken by Rev. Rowland. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Macklin and prayer by Mrs. Rowland. The ladies choir of St. Paul's led by member "Our Father's Care" and the choir consisting of women only, sang an appropriate selection. Mrs. Cafley gave a very instructive address dealing with the work of the W.M.S. especially in foreign lands, should Mrs. Cafley again visit our village she may be assured of a large attentive audience. Mrs. C. W. Thompson gave the closing prayer.

St. Andrew's Day of Prayer

St. Andrew's W.M.S. observed the annual Presbyterian Day of Prayer on Jan. 19th, 1932 at the home of Mrs. W. L. VIVID WEATHER CONTRAST SEEN

Bay Presents Extremes in Sports During Winter

Frost of Thursday—A number of the members of the Women's Institute of this locality met at the home of Mrs. R. Bell on Friday evening to cut out and make garments to be sent to Coe Hill Hospital. A very satisfactory evenings work was accomplished after which Mrs. Bell served a dainty lunch.

Mrs. Parker who resides with her daughter Mrs. N. Dentsor is very seriously ill.

Mr. I. Barley of Havelock spent two days last week with his niece Mrs. J. Bunnell.

Mrs. Andy Reid and Morris are improving after their recent illness.

Choir practice was held on Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Cory Mitchell.

Owing to the storm there were no services held at Front Road Church on Sunday.

Miss Kathleen Bell spent Sunday with friends in Oshawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Bell and Helen spent the ten hour with Mrs and Mrs. G. Winters, Bell Ames on Sunday evening, later attending the anniversary service at the Methodist church of that place.

When the Bell boys launched their punt on Saturday to go to the mouth of the creek to retrieve the water fence which had drifted away during the high water of the week, they saw a fish shanty on the bay, which, while they watched, it gradually settled about three feet in the water. Further out on the bay they noticed a number of boys skating, while on shore an fisherman was fishing with a hook and line. There was a large gulf on the creek as well. Surely a curious combination for the middle of January.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Bunnett of Bellevville spent over Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Edward.

Mrs. Weaver and Miss Weaver from Picton also Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mitchell and family spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. Mitchell.

Mr. Jack Hall returned from Toronto Monday night after visiting for a few days at his home there.

25 Years As People's Warden

Mr. E. Terry Re-elected Hillier Church Official

3rd Hillier—The weather man certainly puts on lots of changes. Friday quite cold, Saturday a lovely day with a heavy sleet storm early in the morning on Sunday, the storm continued, and on Monday the frost is all out of the ground. Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Hagerman had held for a few minutes to appoint the wardens for the coming year. Mr. L. K. Leavens is the Rector's Warden, Mr. Ernest Terry the people's Warden, Mr. Terry has held this position for nearly 25 years. He feels enough of a gale to cheat Elaine's father out of his Sunday blackfishing.

Elaine met him promptly at the door, yielded to his strong, young embrace and sweetly returned his eager kiss.

"Hi, Darling," he said sadly as they walked into the library. "I probably can't see you after this all. To begin with, I am not going to be your father's general manager. And, for the same reason that I'm not going to be that, I most likely can't be his son-in-law.

Elaine stared at him with wide and startled blue eyes. "What do you mean, Wayland? Are you crazy?"

John drew a deep breath. "It's this way. I shut the safe door, not knowing the lock won't work-ing. My luck would have it that very night the watchman scared away a couple of bums, who had they gotten in, could have walked off with the safe entire records. Oh, no, there was no money in that particular safe. Just papers that my father isn't riding me for anything but carelessness, same being worse, according to him, than actual criminality."

Elaine sat down beside the library table, cupping her chin in her slender hands. "There is a way out of this, if we could find it, honey," she said, after a moment. "I'll figure up a scheme over night. You can come down tomorrow afternoon."

"Say, if your father catches me here too often, I'll not only lose my promotion and you, my dear, but my job as well!"

"You won't be here. It's going blackfishing."

"It's going to rain" declared John.

"Rain it may darling," retorted Elaine. "Nothing short of a Wet Indiana hurricane keeps father off Haycock Rock when blackfish are running."

Father will not be here.'

"Under these circumstances," John commented with a grin, "I'll come!"

John proved a capable weather-prophet. A wet wind stormy skies and tumbled seas ushered in Saturday. Elaine, however, made no mistake in promising her father's absence.

"He's out on the Rock now," said Elaine. "He is the glasses are for yourself." She was still sitting, as John had found her, on the railing of the lee side of the verandah with a large pair of binoculars in her lap.

John for the moment not interested in his employer's (and would be father-in-law's) Sunday sport, did not trouble to look for him. Weather matters were foremost in mind.

"What scheme have you figured out, darling?"

"Suppose," smiled Elaine gently that we simply let things take their cougse?

John frowned. "That's a dumb way to do, Elaine. I could do better than that myself."

Idly Elaine lifted the binoculars to her eyes, then, one jumped from the rail and grabbed John's arms. "Father's boat is adrift! It's nearly to the lee of the Rock! Quick standing on Haycock Rock waiting his arrival.

John seized the glasses. "By Jupiter! You're said it. Badly clogged its anchor and the dinky pull it up high enough or something. Father will be drowned even at high tide in a storm, so he's safe enough, but I suppose it's up to me——"

"Exactly, darling. Take our rival neighbor's boat and go to their rescue."

There was something in the girl's tone which made John stop in the very act of putting on coat and cap. "See here" he began in a puzzled sort of way, "but Elaine would not that way——"

"Time enough later, old dear. Get on 'it of my paces' before she starts swimming ashore!"

It took John very nearly two hours to collect undamaged boat the drifting rowboat and his stranded employer. When, however, the act of salvage had been finally accomplished, he listened curiously for the answer to Elaine's first question.

"Daddy whatever happened?"

"The ring that holds the anchor rope let go. Held in the bow."

"Bolt must have been loose when you started," Elaine shook a finger at him reproachfully. "Awfully careless of you, Dad, not to notice it when you started. And rare[easnces can be worse, far, far worse than criminality. Why, if I were a man and a fine young man wanted to marry my daughter and he didn't notice something like well, like a loosened bolt or a—a broken lock on a safe—"

Mr. Barton stared at his daughter. Then he flung off his hare's in a gesture of surrender. "So that's the way the wind lies!"

Afterwards John wrung confession from Elaine. "If there had been any real danger in it for Dad," she insisted, "such criminality would not have been justified. As it is——"

"As it is, darling," John chuckled, "it looks like wedding bells—jolly wedding bells for the criminal and the accomplice."

FATHER IS SAVED

by H. Louis Raybold

"I am extremely sorry that this has happened, John." Incorporated, Mr. Barton Pshiik.

may have meant, what he said, but for the moment, John Wayland doubted it. "To my mind, carelessness is a worse fault than actual criminality."

"You are telling me, Mr. Barton that I have lost my chance at the job of general manager because a broken lock kept the safe door from closing properly?"

"Exactly. You should have noticed that the lock was broken, have reported the fact, have attended up the matter to see that repair was made."

"I dare say you're right, sir" and John dejectedly opened the door of his employer's private office and went out. What a rotten break! Just when he and Elaine Barton were planning to spend the news of their engagement to her father, and on the strength of the expected promotion, to set the day of their wedding.

That evening John drove madly along the river boulevard to Elaine's home.

The Barton home stood on a point of land that jutted out into the Sound, and, as John left the highway and drove down the long driveway, the wind from the Southwest foretold heavy seas over the reefs and John was moved to remark to himself that he hoped the blow would be over into Herbert long enough of a gale to cheat Elaine's father out of his Sunday blackfishing.

Elaine met him promptly at the door, yielded to his strong, young embrace and sweetly returned his eager kiss.

"Hi, Darling," he said sadly as they walked into the library. "I probably can't see you after this all. To begin with, I am not going to be your father's general manager. And, for the same reason that I'm not going to be that, I most likely can't be his son-in-law.

Eliminate the Frills from Advertising!

FOLKS who are in the position to know where sales are made, where results are immediate and who demand action from advertising—continue to use space in the daily newspapers.

While others argue about the efficacy of various media, the retailer who sells direct to the consumer consistently invests his money in daily newspapers. The retailer demands dividends, and he gets them—rich dividends.

The medicine that is good for the retail outlet is equally good for national advertisers whose aim is to reach the same consumer through the retailer.

The biggest advertisers in the world use daily newspapers day in day out, year in and year out, and they must know something about successful advertising.

THE most successful national advertisers in Canada have always made the daily newspapers the backbone, if not the entire structure, of their merchandising set up. They too have found frills costly and non-productive.

There are still those who must learn by a series of experiments—do you want to be one of these in 1932?

Make no mistake, the retailer knows where results are sure, where sales are made. National advertisers will do well to keep this in mind when making plans for increased sales in Canada this year.

We suggest the elimination of frills in advertising and the focussing of attention on the markets afforded by daily newspapers where the audience is always assured.

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting

Hemorrhoids, or protruding piles are caused by bad circulation of the blood in the hemorrhoidal veins. The parts become weak flabby and stretched. Only an internal remedy can remove the cause—that's why salves, suppositories and cutting fail. Dr. Leonhardt's prescription, HEM-ROID succeeds because it removes congestion, restores circulation, heals and strengthens the diseased parts. HEM-ROID has such a wonderful record of quickly ending even cases of long standing that McKeown's Drug Store says one bottle or HEM-ROID tablets must end your piles agony or money back.

CHURCH HAD SPLENDID YEAR

Encouraging Reports at Madoc United Church Annual Meeting

Madoc—The Annual Congregational meeting of Trinity United Church was held in the Sunday School Rooms on Wednesday evening, 13th., and proved to be the best attended and most enthusiastic meeting held in some years.

After the annual committees conducted by the minister, Rev. G. W. Rivers was appointed as chairman of the meeting, and Mr. Robt. Bristol as Secretary. Mr. Rivers in a short address spoke of the fact that he had conducted 4 baptisms, 4 marriages and 4 funerals during the year, and cared for the spiritual interests of the bereaved people. Mr. J. A. Caskey and Mr. C. J. Smith reported for the Session, giving an account of the Membership Roll and of the alliances respectively. Little Miss Sadie Rivers delighted with a vocal solo, which was appropriate and much enjoyed.

Mrs. S. S. Ashley, President of the W.M.S. and Mrs. Frank Foley, Secretary, told of the splendid success of the Society during the past year. Their full allocations was raised, and valuable bales of clothing, etc. were sent to Coe Hill, Saskatchewan, and to the Supply Secretary at Napanee. Lovern Bennett reported for the Mission Band, and was followed by Mrs. J. F. Rutherford who gave some account of their work.

Mrs. F. E. Brown, President of the Ladies' Aid, read the financial report of that organization, which has had a very successful year. Mrs. Ogle Devolin, treasurer of the Young People's Society, showed that the Society had a balance of $72.06 on hand, after contributing $150.00 to Missions during the year. Mrs. J. W. Hulin, the newly appointed Superintendent of the Sunday School, reported the splendid work of his splendid violin selections.

Mr. Gray Rivers, as Sec. Treas. of the Young Worshipper's League, reported that the Y.W.L. had contributed Ten Dollars to the Anniversary Offering, and over Seven Dollars to the M. and M. Fund.

Mr. Wm. Scrutton, then delighted the congregation with one of his splendid violin selections.

The report of the Sunday School, Mrs. Geo. Huffman, treasurer, reported an average attendance of 96, and an average offering of $2.35. Mr. James Keene, the retiring Superintendent, spoke of the great value of the Sunday School and appealed to the congregation for more support. Later in the evening, Mr. Wm. McBain was requested, by a vote of the congregation, to act as Superintendent. Mr. McBain felt that he was too busy a man to do justice to the position connected therewith, but he has been a faithful helper for a few months.

The Auditor's committee, consisting of Mrs. L. Ashley, Mrs. Hulin, Miss Salsbury and Miss Parr, favoured with a beautiful sacred selection.

The Church Treasurer, Mr. William McB ain, gave a report of the financial standing of the church and Mrs. Hulin reported for the Missionary and Maintainance work. Both reports showed liberality on the part of the congregation, although additional contributions are required to close the year without a deficit.

The selection of Stewards was proceeded with, the elders acting as scrutineers. The following were elected for the year 1932—T. E. Burnside, S. Fox, R. F. Bruzol, J. F. Rutherford, W. A. Wyper, G. F. Mayhew, Jas. Irvin, Geo. S. White, W. A. Bracken, J. Ashley, C. J. Ross, J. W. Hulin and Jas. Keene.

The congregation were sake vote on the question of amending the Basis of Union to allow women to act as men to be members of the Session. The vote stood 31 for, 26 against, with 15 not voting. Only adults were allowed to vote on this matter.

Mrs. L. Ashley, Organist and Choir Leader, reported for the Choir and thanked the congregation for the successful carrying on of this department. The Y.W.L. Basket Social was voted by the minister for the splendid assistance of the Choir.

Messrs G. S. White and W. E. Connor were re-appointed as Auditors for 1932.

On motion of Mr. Wm. McMechan seconded by Mr. J. A. Caskey, Rev. O. W. Rivers was invited to remain as minister for another year. The motion was carried unanimously.

Mr. Rivers responded by expressing his appreciation of the continued kindness of the congregation, and of their co-operation in the work of the Church, and accepted the invitation.

A fine piano selection by Miss Ruth Ashley concluded the musical part of the programme. During the social hour, the ladies served bountiful refreshments, and the Fellowship Family Gathering concluded with the Doxology and Benediction.

New Utopia Promised Russian Labor in Second Plan

Second Five Year Plan About to be Launched to Create New Utopia

"Final Uprooting" of Capitalism in Russian Villages Announced

STANDARDS RISE

Second Plan to Complete First Five Year Plan

Moscow, Jan. 22 (AP)—"The final uprooting" of capitalism in the villages of Russia was officially announced today as the most important result of the first five-year plan at the same time instructions were issued for the beginning of the second plan, in which workers, it was declared, would fare two or three times better than under the first.

Under the second plan, said the report, the living standards of the workers must be raised and the people must be supplied with two or three times the amount of the principal necessities of life they had during the operation of the first plan, which Russia hopes to complete this year.

Orders Published

The instructions contained in reports of Vyacheslaff M. Molotoff, president of the Council of People's Commissars and V. V. Kuibishev, vice-president of the council and head of the state planning commission. These were approved by the political bureau of the communist party and published in Moscow newspapers.

The second five-year plan, the report said, would be a completion of the first which was designed as a basis for the more powerful growth of socialism in the Soviet Union. It placed heavy industry on a firm footing and transformed Russia from a country of little agriculture into the largest farming nation in the world through the application of collective farm and machine technique.

Socialism Viewed

Declaring the most important result has been the uprooting of capitalism in the villages, it added that Lenin's question, "who will lead whom?" has been answered conclusively in favor of socialism, both in the cities and villages, and that the material standard of the workers has risen steadily.

During the second five-year plan, it said, the classes must be finally and completely abolished and all causes of class differences destroyed because the country's socialistic reconstruction depends upon machine, the report said. It is necessary to increase the output of machinery at least five times and a half times.

During the first five year plan, it said, the Soviet republic solved the grain problem: during the second the same problem must be solved by increasing herds and the production of industrial crops, especially flax. The output of cotton and flax must be doubled, sugar beet trebled and grain production must total at least 1,300,000,000 centners, about 2,150,000,000 bushels.

MURDER SUIT CASE EXHIBIT

Defense Protests Submission of Exhibits in Trial

Court House, Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 22—Winnie Ruth Judd's second started a court battle today when the state offered its exhibits of receptacles in which the bodies of Agnes Anne Leroi Ladu and Hedvig Samuelson were sent from Phoenix to Los Angeles.

Prompt objection was made by Paul Schenck and Herman Lewkowitz of the defense as the State brought to the court room in the murder trial the trunk and other physical evidence—a suit case which contained parts of Agnes Ladu and Samuelson when it was found on October 19 in a Los Angeles railway station.

The State contends both women were slain by Judd on October 16th.

Argument threw the court into recess while counsel and judge consulted authorities.

Attorney Lewkowitz argued the suit case did not come under the rule by which the other receptacles might be admitted in evidence, since it contained only parts of the body of Miss Samuelson, and nothing else. He objected to its trial value for the murder of Mrs. Leroi in the present case.

TRANS-CANADA FLIERS FOUND

Left Ottawa For Sudbury —Forced Down on Henry Lake and Unhurt

NORTH BAY, Ont., Jan. 22.—Earl Grubstrom and W. H. Cross, attempting to fly across Canada, were forced down yesterday afternoon by engine trouble and are still marooned at Henry Lake, near Mackey, Ontario, about 93 miles east of North Bay.

They are reported to be unhurt though direct communication with them is not possible.

Workers on the Trans-Canada Highway at that point gave them some assistance and reported their landing to the station agent at Mackey about two miles to the West.

The men were on the second leg of their flight from Ottawa to Sudbury when they were forced to land, having left Ottawa at 8.30 a.m. Thursday.

NORTH BAY, Ont., Jan. 22—A large cabin plane passed over North Bay yesterday bound at 12.30 p.m. today and it is believed to be the ship carrying the fliers who left Ottawa, Ont., for Sudbury, B.C., on Wednesday and were unreported after leaving Ottawa yesterday morning.

A report sent out by workers on the Trans- Canada Highway said the fliers, Jarl Grubstrom and W. H. Cross made a safe landing at Henry Lake near Mackey, Ontario, but were forced down there again to take off again today.

Sudbury, Ont., Jan. 22.—(By the Canadian Press)— Jarl Grubstrom and W. H. Cross, Montreal-Victoria fliers, were reported to have landed at Lake Ramsey near here, this afternoon.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 22.—No news of the Trans-Canada fliers, Jarl Grubstrom and W. H. Cross, who took off from here at 10.15 a.m. yesterday for Sudbury, Ont., had been received here early today. The airmen left Ottawa on a flight since leaving Ottawa. An airplane flying over Petawawa, Chalk River and Brent yesterday afternoon may have been that of the two transcontinental travellers but of that nothing definite was learned today.

AUTOS CRAWL LIKES VESSELS IN HEAVY FOG

Horns Blare Warning to Complete Illusion on Highways

SOME ACCIDENTS

Farmers Welcome Snow To aid in Hauling in Bush

Motor cars crawled like ships in a heavy fog, and horns on the machines blared forth their warnings to keep up the illusion, as weary drivers tried vainly to pierce the road ahead through the windshields that were matted with the wing driven sleet which froze on the glass in an instant after the first mile or so of travel, in all early morning dash and evening.

Several accidents in outlying districts have been reported owing to the poor visibility caused by the blinding sleet, but the car lights and the fact that machines approaching loomed up before sufficient time could be given to clear his right of way, the wind shield wipers were useless as the light sleet froze on the glass at the moment it struck and electrically heated glass accessories for the purpose of keeping the windshield clean were in great demand. Those who were cautious experienced more difficulty than those who were headed west going to the fact that the east wind which had been prevalent all yesterday continued on throughout the evening. Trees and telephone lines all through the county suffered under the weight of sleet which formed on the branches and wires, but no trouble has been reported from local officials. The storm commenced early in only a few cases have the branches of the trees broken off, and the telephone service which fell has been eagerly welcomed by residents in the outlying districts who have been waiting for it in order to haul their wood from the bush on sleighs. This has been impossible so far and cutting and hauling has been delayed all Winter. The crust which has also formed on the snow will aid the duration of time the snow will stay.

Tariff Problem Put in Hands of Commons by British Cabinet

Premier Macdonald Given Freedom For International Problems

SUDDEN ACTION

House Probably to Put Through 10 to 15 Per Cent. Impost

(By Thos. T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Writer)—London, Jan. 22.—The vexed question of a tariff for Britain today was placed by the Cabinet directly in the hands of the House of Commons, which reassembles next month. After a cabinet-council which reported inability to agree on means to remedy the adverse balance of trade, a cabinet announcement gave dissenting ministers liberty to express their opinions by speech and vote.

The Cabinet action, paving the way as it does for a free vote on tariffs, is unprecedented in British constitutional procedure. Rt. Hon. George Lansbury, leader of the Labor Party in the Commons, described it as "the most amazing statement ever issued by a British ministry." Thinking people, he said, would "marvel at the impudence of men who take such a step in the name of National unity."

"Unprecedented".

The sudden turn in handling the tariff situation frees Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald temporarily for full attention to international problems. It is expected he will be visited in London tomorrow by Premier Pierre Laval of France. If the two Premiers meet they will probably discuss whether the reparations problem may be settled before or put off until May or June.

Probable adoption of the subcommittee's recommendations is understood to propose a flat tariff of 10 to 15 per cent on manufactured and semi-manufactured imports—is indicated by the preponderant Conservative majority in the House of Commons. The Cabinet "crisis", rumored as imminent by alarmists, has been staved off and the matter put up to the Commons.

This confirmed reports the cabinet, and the sub-committee itself, split over the general outline of the tariff proposals that are to be submitted to parliament shortly after its reassembling on Feb. 1 with the two-fold object of raising revenue and curbing cheap foreign imports.

The Cabinet is not expected to meet again until next Wednesday. Because of the over-worked term "cabinet crisis" so frequently premature, it is felt. The discussion over-night and today is expected to demonstrate a general tariff on manufactures and semi-manufactured goods. General opinion is the Cabinet has been concentrating on an all-round tariff of ten per cent, to which Viscount Snowden (Chancellor of the Exchequer) who is Lord Privy Seal in the National cabinet, is hostile.

ROBIN CHEERY EVEN IN SNOW

Even the white snow that lay on the ground below the street in the rain this morning did not dampen the song a robin trilled up at Mr. J. Colling, Queen Street, who is wondering whether or not it might be the same bird that has been reported in that district before, or whether it is one that has merely returned from the south. Kindly neighbours in the district have visitors and welcome his appearance as a harbinger of an early Spring.

FIXING LIGHT CAR STRUCK

James Anderson Slightly Injured When Car Overturns

Thursday night about nine o'clock Mr. Charles Saylor, R.R. 3, Trenton, was proceeding to his home on the Belleville-Trenton highway and when about three miles this side of Trenton, he stopped the car on the north side of the road to adjust a headlight which had gone out of commission. He was engaged in this work when his car was suddenly struck from the rear and forced into the ditch where it turned over on its side. Both Mr. and Mrs. Anderson were sitting in the car when it was struck and Mr. Anderson sustained a nasty cut on the head. A physician was summoned from Trenton and his injury was attended to as a nasty bruise and shock.

The car which collided with the Saylor car was being driven by Mr. Albert McKinnon of Brighton, and it is said that Mr. C. McKinnon claims that owing to poor visibility caused by sleet, he did not see the Saylor car parked on the roadside. Both cars were quite badly damaged and were later towed into Trenton. The persons involved in the accident were conveyed in cars to Trenton by friends.

Provincial Constable Byles investigated the accident.

BOTH SQUADS "RARIN" TO GO

Game in Kingston To-Night With Students is a "Natural"

Just previous to leaving for Kingston this afternoon Coach "Bouncer" Hollingsworth said that all his players would make the trip and all felt in the very best of condition. As the locals have defeated Queen's city in the Jock Harty Arena they expect to come through tonight's game with a victory to their credit.

A goodly number of local hockey enthusiasts will journey down to Kingston tonight to see them battle the Queen's team for the league championship. It is also said to be expected that the Kingston rink will be filled to the limit to-night for the game starts. Although the fans of Belleville would like to see the locals trimmed there are a certain amount of local followers in the Limestone City who naturally "root" against the Queen's Students and therefore the local will have the benefit of their support.

"Benny" Gilbert will be in the nets for the Students and will be defended by that well known defence, Squires and Murphy. "Barney" Neal, Hollingsworth and "Pat" Patterson will start on the forward line for the locals. Demodie Hurgins and Gibson doing the relief work. Queen's have not lost a game in the league, so quite justly anxious to "take" the locals tonight.

On the other hand the game is a perfect natural as both teams have yet to lose their first game and Coach Holway will don the outfit to try and "bring home the bacon." This will be in the nets and he always turns in a real good game in Kingston. "Herbie" Morris will no doubt, be on the defence with Alex Weir, while Shannon will also be present if needed. Cecile McKeekin, Archie Campbell and Bob Scott will be the starting front line with Jack Leaman, (Kingston's white-haired boy), lining with Pete Morgan and Bob Hull will make up the second forward line. The locals can take undisputed lead in the loop by defeating the Students tonight.

Johnnie Mitchell of Hamilton, has been appointed referee for the game.

PREDICT GAME SCARCITY FOR N.A.CONTINENT

Scientists Seek For Diseases Which Kill Animal Life

NO CLUE AS YET

Snowshoe Rabbits and Partridge Are Chief Sufferers

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Jan. 22—One of nature's puzzles still baffled science today as trained minds pressed a three-year quest for an answer dispelling the menace to small game in Canada and the United States.

A serious shortage of snowshoe rabbits, ruffled grouse, and Arctic hare, Dr. E. O. Green and R. T. King of the University of Minnesota disclosed today, will result in a few years between 1932 or 1933 in the whole northern half of the North American continent unless the solution to the puzzle is found.

Investigators and scientists are not to follow when the scarcity, they said is inevitable, occurs in territory bound by the northern tier of States from Oregon in the West to the Atlantic coast and the Arctic and as far north as the Arctic.

Dr. Green, professor of Bacteriology, and King, of the Department of Agriculture, have sought to ascertain what disease kills such wild life by the thousands and to effect a cure.

They are not prepared to claim full but investigation have enabled them to trace the approximate four years when such shortages will occur and to put them on trail of the cause. The cure has yet to be determined.

G. L. STRACHEY BIOGRAPHER, DIES AGED 51

Attains Eminence In Field of Drama and Biography

WORK IN COUNTRY

Social Demands in London Too Great For Writer

London, Jan. 21 (CP cable)—The English world of letters lost a brilliant figure in the death today of G. Lytton Strachey, who within the last decade achieved a commanding position as a biographer.

Mr. Strachey, who was ohly 51 years of age, died after an illness of two weeks.

His first important work—"Eminent Victorians", was published in 1918, although it had appeared in volume on French literature six years earlier. His "Queen Victoria", in 1921 established him as a writer he followed this with "Books and Characters" and "Portraits".

Searching Dramatist

Strachey's "Elizabeth and Essex", a searching human portrait of the virgin queen and the irresistible Robert, Earl of Essex, who was finally executed as a traitor in 1601, is perhaps the best known of Strachey's works. He was not a prolific writer.

Mr. Strachey was of scholarly appearance with the dark, thin figure and long narrow face of the cloistered thinker. He wore a huge red beard. He used to say that when he wanted to work he shaved himself in the country, "not so much because of the London noises but because of the incessant social demands on one's time." It took him three years to write "Elizabeth and Essex", nothing of which this summer he issued "Portraits in Miniature".

Last December Mr. Strachey was taken ill with para-typhoid fever and was confined to his home at Marlborough. He was the son of General Sir Richard Strachey and Lady Jane Strachey, who is considered one of the brilliant women of the older generation. St. Loe Strachey, editor of The Spectator, is a cousin.

NEW MANHUNT IN HONOLULU

Woman Allegedly Attacked By Escaped Murderer

Honolulu, Jan. 21 (AP) — Honolulu was aroused today to a fresh manhunt by another attack upon a woman.

Mrs. Toka Okazaki, 29, mother of two children, complained to the police she had been assaulted near Moanalua Airport by a man she identified through a photograph as Daniel Kiwaha, escaped Japanese-Hawaiian murderer.

This assault occurred as authorities were preparing to place before the grand jury evidence in the lynching of Joseph Kahahawai, Hawaiian alleged attacker of a navy officer's wife, and as the territorial legislature, in special session, was erecting a formidable barrier to enforcement to control hoodlums in Honolulu.

It was the third serious assault case reported to authorities since August September when Mrs. Thomas S. Massie, strolling alone early in the morning after leaving a party, was the arrested victim of five youths. The five later were freed by the jury disagreeing as to six. The four still alive are awaiting retrial.

10,000 B.C. MEN GIVEN WORK

Negotiation Between Federal and Provincial Gov't Completed

Victoria, B. C., (By The Canadian Press)—Successful termination of negotiations between the Federal Government and provincial authorities under which approximately ten thousand men in British Columbia could be given limited relief work in return for their board and a small monetary allowance monthly, appeared likely today according to Hon. R. W. Bruhn, Minister of Public Works and member of the unemployment committee of the cabinet. Work, however, will not be started until official ratification of the plan has been given by Ottawa.

If the British Columbia proposals are accepted by Ottawa, the men would be employed at work on Provincial roads.

OLIVER REID RUNS INTO CAR

Taken to His Home and is But Slightly Injured

Oliver Reid, ten years old, residing at 67 Dundas Street, east, received slight injuries when he ran into the side of a motor car shortly after noon today.

Mr. Wm. A. McDonald, 488 Concord Avenue, Toronto, was coming west in his car and when near the corner of Dundas and John Streets, he noticed a boy start across the north sidewalk, to cross the road. The boy apparently was not looking east but straight and Mr. McDonald moved the speed of the car, which, he says, it is safe, was not travelling fast, and the car skidded on the light snow. The boy came in contact with the right front fender and fell to the pavement, bumping his head on the hard surface. Young Reid was picked from the snow and when Mr. McDonald took him in his car to his home. A doctor was called and after examination he pronounced the injury received by the boy to be of a minor nature.

Mr. McDonald visited the city police station and reported the accident.

DEBT PARLEY ONLY DELAYED, BRITAIN SAYS

Conference Not Abandoned and Work Continues

RAIL BOND PLAN

Press Feels That Early Action is Essential to Save Situation

LONDON, January 22—The British Government's announcement that the Lausanne reparations conference will be postponed does not mean that the conference was being abandoned, it was said today in official circles.

Preliminary work for the meeting is actively continued, a competent spokesman said, and the Government hopes that the conference will finally be held and will prove to be successful.

No one in official quarters took seriously what one of the London newspapers described as a "new" plan to solve the reparations problem by allowing Germany to meet her obligations with railroad bonds instead of cash.

According to the published version of this report, the Cabinet had given very considerable consideration to the plan, but this was denied. The scheme is not new, but has been discussed on several occasions most recently in Paris. One author- ity described it as a "dead issue".

It was announced that Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald had been forced by the failure of domestic affairs to decline with regret an invitation from Premier Laval, of France, to discuss world financial problems over the week-end.

The Times feared that, because Germany still is anxious for the Lausanne meeting to be held, Chancellor Bruning is anxious to suggest that the invitation should not have been cancelled, and that Germany should be given an opportunity of saying what it has to say, and that creditors and debtors, in common deliberation, should consider whether it can be done at once."

A practicable solution of the reparations problem is impossible at present, The Times said, and it asserted that Germany has had sufficient reason for an attitude of helplessness such as abandonment of the meeting would suggest."

"It is the duty of European countries." The Times continued, "to be prepared with ideas for making headway, however small, toward a solution of the problem. . . It is better than that Europe should treat a mere delay can bring improvement."

The News-Chronicle warned that "unless some method is speedily devised to wind up definitely and finally the reparations liabilities, Europe will drift from its present position to absolute catastrophe."

Boy Scout Does His Good Turn

A well-known resident of the east end was awakened about six o'clock p.m. and on Bridge street hill he overtook some ladies, whom he knew quite well and of whom he enquired: "Do I look in any way unwell?" and the ladies could impress you as that of an 'old boy'."

"Most decidedly no," replied both the ladies.

"Well," said the east hill man, "a young boy—a little chap—just now helped me up the hill on my road and asked if he might carry my parcels for me. I let him accept and said that I could manage them quite nicely. The boy—a little polite little fellow—said, 'You know Sir, I am a Boy Scout and I have to do one good turn a day and I haven't done one today'.

"I told him that he had done his 'good turn' all right by offering me assistance with my parcels and off he went, delighted with a clear conscience, quite satisfied, that he had done his duty as a good 'old one' and that he had done his duty as a good Boy Scout."

Gold Rush to Island Lake, Other Metals Found

Sioux Lookout, Jan. 22.—Reports reached here today that a gold rush was under way throughout the district surrounding Island Lake, about 200 miles to the northwest. Several syndicates from Winnipeg and other Toronto capital have sent prospectors into the Island Lake field around the lake and at Confederation Island, largest of the islands in the lake. Men were travelling into the area by dog-sled and aloof.

Major Cross, head of the geological party, said to be prospecting for foreign interests, who returned here Tuesday in a giant monoplane, told the Canadian Press his men had discovered gold, copper and nickel deposits in the area. Gold-bearing rock Manitoba miners expressed confidence that the discovery of ore indicates Island Lake district has great croppings, and said they thought samples they had brought out did not represent the best ore to be found in the area on the dis- tant islands.

The return of Major Cross and Pilot Harvey St. Martin, Montreal aviator, after an absence of nearly a month, dispelled anxiety regarding the safety of the party which arose when radio communication became well-nigh impossible for flying. St. Martin said his delayed take-off on their party of five geologists, one of whom, they said, had been hurt when they did not explain how the man was injured. They refused to reveal the exact whereabouts of their party, which was believed to be about 100 miles northeast of here although the monoplane, at the time of its return, headed toward Hudson, carried gas for a 1,200-mile jump.

STUDYING THE SOLAR RAYS

A famous inventor of light rays is shown in a new role as he relaxes and sketches some of the rays of Old Sol. Yes, you have guessed correctly. It is Professor Albert Einstein, celebrated German scientist, propounder of the theory of relativity and of the unified field. The savant is shown taking a sun bath at the fashionable desert oasis in Palm Springs, California. It seems that the scientist's alternates between studying light rays and basking in them.

SHORT WORK DAY PROPOSED

One Means of Restoring Prosperity in Canada

Chatham, Ont., Jan. 22.—A shorter working day was advocated last night by Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., Liberal Ken and Kent Federal leader, as a means of restoring prosperity in Canada. Mr. Hepburn held out slight hope for speedy material improvement in the economic situation in the Dominion in an address to the Kent Motor Club.

The Liberal leader declared he was increasing, he said shortening of the hours of labor would mean a cut in the cost of precipitation of revolt towards Communism and the enemies that are ing the country. The latter two he dismissed as unthinkable.

Plowing Proceeds At Queen's Campus

KINGSTON, Jan. 22.—A record for late plowing was established locally yesterday morning when Dr. C. Hyland, in charge of the grounds of Queen's University, had the pleasure in front of Miller Hall levelled, preparatory for seeding. Mr. Hyland reports that the ground was in good shape, and easily handled, and had it not been for the frozen clods would have been proceeded with. The area was in front of Miller Hall and field at the Richardson Stadium seeded, this being far later than any other year on record.

ABSOLUTE CONTROL PREVENTS ACCIDENT

A serious accident almost resulted on the Queen's corner near the intersection of Bridge and Front Thursday afternoon when a lady attempting to cross the road was saved against the traffic lights nearly fell in front of a motor truck which had just begun to accelerate its speed in order to reach the next the light. A quick application of brakes stopped the momentum of the car sufficiently to prevent the lady being brushed by the left front fender and pushed away from the machine. The streets were quite slippery owing to the thin fall of snow which covered them and more serious consequences might have resulted if the driver had not been as alert as he was.

Cassidy Condemned to Die Attempts to End His Life

Hull, Que., Jan. 22—Austin Cassidy, sentenced to death for the murder of Bertram Marshall of Ottawa, attempted suicide in the Hull Jail Thursday afternoon. Cassidy stabbed himself, but the self-inflicted wounds are not serious, the jail authorities reported.

Preparing to make the journey to Bordeaux Prison, Montreal, Cassidy was escorted to the washroom. A guard was posted outside. Attracted by a noise, the guard rushed in to find the room empty. Cassidy had stabbed himself three times with a penknife.

The wounds were not serious enough to warrant his detention in Hull, and he was moved to Bordeaux early last evening.

Speaks on Racial Unity of Canada at Laurier Club

Three Rivers, Que., Jan. 22—Under the spirit of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Canada will rise above present-day troubles to greater heights than ever before, declared Rt. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, chief of the Liberal party of Canada, former Dominion premier, last night in an inspiring address at the ceremonious inauguration here of the Laurier Club, speaking in the packed Capitol Theatre and simultaneously broadcasting to all metropolitan throngs in the City Hall and the Notre Dame Church by loud speakers.

Introduced amid thunderous applause by Hon. Lomer Gouin, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Mr. King paid immediate homage to a noble predecessor in the cause of Canadian advantages, Canada has more than ever before, by the acts of the party the "Laurier touch," she must grow from still greater nationhood, he declared.

Speaks of glorious tradition. Is but at the beginning of her history, King said, in routing the bogey of pessimism to the accompaniment of unvarnished cheers. Drawing on Canada's glorious past, he declared that the future must be built on the traditions of the past and take heart again.

He congratulated the people of Three Rivers on the inauguration of the fine club that was this day being inaugurated, and second, for naming it after Sir Wilfrid Laurier. In Sir Wilfrid, the world could contemplate all that was noble in the Canadian race. Canadians were strongly imbued with the tradition and heritage of the past, and Laurier was the hero of British culture also, steeped in English literature and thought.

At the present time, Mr. King said, Canada is confronted with whose success were far to seek. It is the duty of Liberals, therefore, to she needed the touch of Laurier's hand, the inspiration of his ideals.

Patriotism Stressed

He went on to draw a resume of Sir Wilfrid's career, stressing that patriotism was always his watchword and that he had forged about links of racial unity that con- tributed to Canada's present greatness.

In the afternoon, former Premier King received Trifluvians in the Capitol Hall, Laurier Club being the colony. To the lilt of an orchestra and under the portrait of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Mr. King shook hands with a steadily moving queue for two solid hours, the ceremony being made by Senator Beaubien.

Mr. King addressed the club the evening session at 8.30 p.m., addressing Sir Wilfrid Laurier Branch of Association of Canadian autonomy. The Liberal leader declared Laurier was a militant politics, but the incubation of ideals.

Hits at remedy for depression he recommended a glance back into the past for a cure for present ills self. Hence he called for a re- view of Sir Wilfrid's career and similar days in the past.

Addressing the Liberal, he said: "It won't be long before you come back to the front rank. And then— remember Three Rivers!"

Mr. Dubois congratulated the club on its Laurier name, and on the name. Many were the lessons to be learned from the life of the late "Chief." The turn of the Liberal leader, Mr. Lacoste, mighty fortress for autonomy.

Amid tumultuous enthusiasm, Mr. King rose, smiling, a red rose in his buttonhole. The customary song was given, and the cheers—as the audience rose to a man.

POOR ROBBER ENDS HIS LIFE

Destitute, He Jumps 21 Stories to Detroit Pavement

Detroit, Jan. 22—The outlaw trail led Russell Gamble, 22-year-old bank robber, through a plate glass window of the Book-Cadillac Hotel Thursday afternoon and to his death on the pavement 21 stories below.

It is the only way out when you can't quit the game," he wrote in a farewell note to his sister, Mrs. Lillian Edwards.

A few cents in his pockets, an extra suit and a soiled shirt were all that Gamble left. He had registered at the hotel at 2 o'clock yesterday morning as Leo Weston, New York City.

In the afternoon he telephoned to the hotel desk for a bell-hop and asked her to go to the hotel. When she arrived a crowd was around the body.

Gamble's most recent of convictions was Sept. 30, 1932, when state Edward J. Jeffries of Recorder's Court gave him one to fifteen years in Jackson for robbery while not armed.

THE LOCAL MERCHANT

The Three Lakes (Wisconsin) News in a recent issue deals with the importance of co-operation with local merchants. The editorial in question says:—

Play Fair With Local Merchants

"This year, more than any other year, we have learned the value of co-operation. We have discovered that the failure of one person hurts the entire community, and have taken steps to protect ourselves by protecting each other.

"For this reason those who are so unfortunately situated as not to be able to pay their bills must not fear to ask for an extension of credit if they do so in the right fashion. No merchant will deny a man that right to get on his feet who puts the situation up to him in an honest fashion.

"Mr. Grocer, he may say, 'I owe quite a lot of money.' The income of my household has been cut until I can barely reach present expenses. I don't know when I can pay some back but I think I will pay cash for what I get from now on. If possible, I will pay off a dollar now and then on the old bill, but I want you to know that as long as I have any money to spend I will spend it in your store, and, at least, let you make a little profit of me until I recover."

"No local merchant would turn such a man away. However, some men who find they owe a big bill at a local store, can't face the local merchant. They turn on the man who has been trusting them and to keep their families alive, and pay cash somewhere else because they can't face their benefactors.

"Such an attitude is most unfair, to say the least. The local merchant who has extended credit, and who, if you only knew it, is the greatest friend you have, deserves your cash business. He has dealt squarely with you, has extended favors to you, and should be fairly treated in return.

"There are many families now who would be hungry if it were not for the local merchant. Against his better judgment, against the advice of other merchants, against rule of good business he is extending credit to these families which is enabling them to keep alive. He is taking a chance on these people in whom he believes in them and because he is confident they will repay him when times get better.

"Let the small town merchant who contributes to community funds, makes local celebrations possible, pays school taxes, church taxes, and does his share in the man who fights for improvements and struggles to keep the town's pride alive. His success means prosperity for values and brings prosperity to the district.

"Treat your local merchant fairly. If you owe a bill, make some effort to pay it. If you have some money to spend, spend it with him. He deserves your business at all times, and now more than ever before since every dollar spent with him will help bring back local prosperity."

WERE OLD ROGER ALIVE

If old Roger Bacon and his friend Alchemists were living today they would probably be rivals for Albert Einstein, the German scientist and propounder and enunciator of relativity. Bacon and his ilk tried to change the base metals into gold. Einstein seeks to find the relation of unity in all things. He has declared electricity and gravitation to be practically the same thing. He sees no clear boundground for all the phenomena of nature, a unity behind all the manifestations.

Selentific explorers of these days long gone the mysteries of life received a great impulse from the study of life. They would if they could, take probably ever more keen interest in manifestations of nature.

The age of the alchemist might be looked upon as a wonder age. But surely the present is in more ways than one a wonder age that more wonderful than the revelation of truth!

FROZEN TEMPERATURES

"People who remark that after a hot summer you are bound to get a cold Winter and then are called to account for attempting to an outworn superstition, have now the very best kind of backing. Mr. Scarr, head of the Local Weather Bureau, is a firm believer in the law of climatic averages. Abnormal cold is the prelude to abnormal heat, and vice versa. Records bound to be followed by excessive moisture, in the end it all comes out even," says a writer in the New York Times.

"The only question is one of time. With us in New York the Winter cold account is now overdue five years: we have not had a really cold Winter since 1926. In the first half of this present January we have already accumulated an excess of 180 degrees mean daily temperatures, or the total excess in five years has been 2,406 degrees. In other words, we have had a moratorium on Winter weather, but it is nonsense to speak of cancellation. It will be cold yet.

"Still, when a person henceforth says that the unusual heat will be followed by unusual cold it is only fair that he should state whether he means next Winter or ten Winters hence."

EDGAR ALLAN POE
(Born Jan. 19, 1809)

Still echo from that other nameless shore
His silver bells of immortality,
For from the curtained night peers pale Lenore,
A wraith more real than maidens we can see;
And underneath the very walls of doom,
Where Death has reared himself a throne, there pass
His Helen, Annabel and Ulalume,
As chaste as marble wrought by Phidias.

Wheels caught on wheels are yet oblivion,
Their motions futile and their clatter vain,
And towers built in pride beneath the sun
Are less substantial than the Summer rain,
But genius peoples earth and sea and sky
With fragile dreams that know not how to die.

AFTER OVER EIGHT YEARS of community service the Belleville Kiwanis passed this week to review the past and for this purpose called together Kiwanians, past and present, to Council Fire in the New Queens Hotel. While surveying the past it was not with a view of resting on laurels won, but rather to get inspiration from past achievements to go forward to even greater triumphs in the future. Over $25,000 expended for the betterment of Belleville in the past eight years is the story in dollars and cents of Kiwanis effort but the story goes deeper in the spreading of good fellowship, the human part of Kiwanis, the making of friends and the wiping of tears away with kindly acts, bringing gladness in place of woe. Just one little note of achievement of a young girl being saved from blindness by Kiwanis sympathy and Kiwanis money—if there were nothing else, all the years of Kiwanis effort would have been worth while. If Kiwanis had accomplished nothing more than to bring the Victorian Order of Nurses to Belleville Kiwanis would have been worth while. Kiwanians were determined that Belleville should have the V.O.N., and never rested until it was an accomplished fact. Would have sponsored the V.O.N. as a purely Kiwanis undertaking if that had been possible, but V.O.N. policy insists that this shall be a municipal undertaking in which all may take part. Hence Kiwanis was restricted to active assistance which it cheerfully furnished including a motor car for the nurses to make their rounds in, as well as cash grants when needed. All the great good that the Victorian Order of Nurses have accomplished in Belleville therefore may be shared as a by-product of Kiwanis. With a membership in over sixty now there have been 131 Belleville Kiwanians since inception. All the good Kiwanis has done would make a long story including as it does the $10,000 cottage at Bowmanville Boys School, building bungalows at the Belleville Hospital for Incurables and many acts of charity and benevolence.

FOOTBRIDGE WAS NEVER fully carried away, says Sidelight reader who has witnessed the vagaries of the Moira since 1866, even thereabouts, when there used to be real floods which swept all before them. He remembers the upper bridge being carried away at times, also the lower, but the great mountains of massive ice blocks moving down the river, personifying the irresistible force challenging any supposedly immovable object. The footbridge, according to our informant, who has been an eye witness of moving events in Belleville for sixty years, was the only bridge ever moved out of its orbit several times, with smashed cables, but never went far enough away that it could not come back without much trouble. This reader also recalls a Christmas in the eighties when boats steamed to Massassaga in summery weather and everybody had a merry Christmas including Tom and Jerry. Right after Christmas the ice came up, froze up and teams were driven across the ice on New Year's Day.

Q. When sending a letter of introduction, what obligation does the writer assume?

A. He vouches for the honesty or professional integrity of the person introduced.

Q. May the bridal attendants linger in the vestibule of the church after the ceremony.

A. No; it is extremely bad form.

PATIENCE

Endurance is the crowning quality,
And patience all the passion of great hearts;
Those who can wait and stay, and when the leaden world
Sets its front face against their fateful thought,
And brute strength, like the storm cloud conquering,
Clangs his huge mace down in the other scales—
The inspired soul but flings his patience in,
And slowly that outweighs the pondering sword.
One faith against a whole earth's unbelief,
One soul against the flesh of all mankind.

WOLF! WOLF!

There is considerable interest in news sent out by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics that the wolf has a somewhat prominent place in Canada's export business. During 1931 there were exported 11,788 wolf pelts, valued at $383,632. This includes a fraction of an inch in the business as compared with the previous year, when 11,788 pelts were valued at $1,503,470 were exported. The United States and Britain have been the chief customers of this fur.

This brings the wolf into rather spectacular company, and there may even be some apprehension lest, as hinted in the commercial figures for the last two years, this picturesque of the forest is disappearing. The wolf is not popular, generally, and it appears thus in statistics. He has been regarded as a menace to man; but it is different when he does something to keep himself from the door—and many a thousand dollars in revenue will do a good deal in providing against want.

It may be that the wolf is worth cultivating. The silver fox business has reached large proportions, and provides another important source of revenue. Probably the wolf is more ferocious in numbers, the wolf is a lonely creature, a wanderer, a roamer of the wilderness, and does not take kindly to confinement. Dangerous in numbers, the wolf is a striking example of the maxim: "The strength of the wolf is the pack, and the strength of the pack is the wolf." Nevertheless, with the right kind of personality, a wolf pelt is worth something over $30. If the figures were nothing else, all the years of Kiwanis effort would have been worth while. If Kiwanis had accomplished nothing more than to bring the Victorian Order of Nurses to Belleville Kiwanis would have been worth while. Kiwanians were determined that Belleville should have the V.O.N., and never rested until it was an accomplished fact. Would have sponsored the V.O.N. as a purely Kiwanis undertaking if that had been possible, but V.O.N. policy insists that this shall be a municipal undertaking in which all may take part. MATURED CHEESE

Our cheese exports when at their maximum 25 years ago mounted to nearly 200,000,000 pounds annually to the British market. For the calendar year 1930 the figure was down to a little more than 50,000,000 pounds. What a help toward balancing our trade with Britain if that old rate of exports had been maintained! This is what the Canadian Conference at recent meetings of dairymen's associations in Kingston and London, Ont., Dairy Commissioner, referred to the increasing demand for Belleville matured Canadian cheese. This demand, he said, "is beyond the supply of English and Scottish distributors of high quality is decreasing owing to the shortage of cheese to be had for city consumption. Dr. Riddick thinks that a great deal will be at the disposal of Canadian cheese holders on the other side—particularly because no other cheese imported into Great Britain fills the demand as well as Canadian cheese."

The most serious complaint in the Old Country against Belleville and Canadian cheese made in cold weather, which has caused considerable "yapy, flavorless and unattractive." We are afraid that too much of this kind of cheese is being made in the Canadian market today. As ye editor knows from personal test, it is difficult for the ordinary housekeeper to get cheese when changed from matured Canadian cheese, and we are not convinced that British consumers will not have the same "unflavorless" kind at any price. There is still a chance for Belleville and the Country for the good, matured Canadian cheese not enough to supply the demand Canadian cheesemakers will not only receive a profitable business for themselves but will assist to re-establish the value of the Canadian dollar.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

SIR WILLIAM MULOCK AT 88

Advancing years may be a trial to the body, but they need not cause any visibly falls, spirits droop and friendships languish. On the other hand, Sir William Mulock, yesterday celebrated his eighty-eighth birthday with a full day of honors and honors, but high in the affections of his fellow men. He has had his share of the recognition, but he deserves more. Parliament, Privy Council, Supreme Court, Chief Justice of Ontario, and, last but the very best, although he recently assumed the duties of Chancellor of the University of Toronto, he has been a public figure and administrator of first quality. On the Bench he assumed the judicial role with dignity; but, greater still, he became the Grand Old Man of Toronto, and even Ontario.

Time has mellowed the temper and the vigor of Sir William. He is now a seer, sometimes even a poet, as he looks back on life after ninety-nine decades of experience. Yesterday he met felicitations from the Bar by referring to life as "one strenuous dream." With him there is no "zero and yellow leaf," but happy work, occasional associates, and the experience for which the poet yearned: "Honor, love, obedience, troops of friends."—Toronto Globe.

W. H. Robb's Poetry Given High Praise

Kingstonian Puts His Writings on High Plane

Writing to the Kingston Whig-Standard, "An admirer of the Poet-Laureate" pays high tribute to the poetry of Wallace Havelock Robb.

"Since it is customary to pay tribute to gifted people after they are dead, I am contrary to rule, presuming to write of Mr. Robb while he is living the living memory of a really gifted man residing but a few miles from Kingston.

"One is tempted to inquire, 'What is beauty?' and to find as many as many questions concerning the art of beauty as there are individual conclusions. Why not visit our Poet-Laureate at his home in Dawn, Mr. Wallace Havelock Robb, and inquire? Any enquiries answered for your approach will be cordially met from your own conclusions concerning poetry and beauty. Mr. Robb has expressed his art in his admirable manner. He is a writer of beautiful verse, a gifted poet, but he is unpretentious as a gifted descendant. His finest thought seems to be concerning nature and beauty. He reminds us of no one but himself in his love of word coloring quite approaches the gifted prose author of "The Sentimental Journeys Through France and Italy," Laurence Sterne. He has the happiest method of saying what he has to say in so few words. He is not a poet popular, and he never appears thus in statistics. He has been lauded as a menace to man; but it is different when he does something to keep himself from the door—and many a thousand dollars in revenue will do a good deal in providing against want.

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and pop was starting to take an exam for a new subject and pop showed a fearful amount of writing. Now William, youse been doing a lot of work, said pop, so deny you have a cold. You simply have to. I'll write a note to the teacher to excusing as a chronick habitual cold.

I have got a cold. I cant file off my finger nails any longer, and its no common cold, because I have got a ordenery cold with one hand behind me, and I cant get the end of it, pop said.

Pop looked stunned again, and me said. But my hands William, arent behind me, they're in front of me.

Im sneezing and blowing for it, said pop, and about all it wants me to do for it, and I cant do it, he said. Now William, a cold is nothing to fool with.

Whose sneezing at it? pop said. Im sneezing at it. Im giving it every possible consideration, pop said, and I said, According to modern science a cold is caused by germs, just as much as the most serious operation, and you can call him up and have him come here and he will do it as expensive.

Then I'll go to him and save myself a penny a bizness oppertunity when pop said.

Then me waswked around by Dr. Rovers house and he was just driving off in his car and me chased after him and quick pulled out his hunkerchief to pretend I was sneezing into it, pop saying, Well William, I see you have a cold, what are you doing for it?

Ive got a wonderful perscription, I said, and I will recover from my hankerchiefs every hour, ha ha. Why, William, you cant cure a cold by any chance? he said.

Then me and pop hat taking a little stroll, pop said.

Wich we kepp on doing.

Heard On The Street

Back in 1884 Mayor McIntosh called his council around him, on the fourth day of October, and finally passed the bylaw, which had been hanging fire for some time, permitting the construction of the water works system for the city which had been asked for by a company of American engineers from Waterdown, N.Y. It was a big undertaking and one that called for no hasty decision by the council from start to finish. It would not be they who would have to finance the construction, as the company who desired permission to build it intended to regain the expenditure by water rates levied on the residents who used it. The initial estimate arrived at was somewhere in the neighborhood of two hundred thousand dollars, but when work commenced, the whole thing, including steam pipe, pumping plant and system of mains cost just $199,381.34, which is pretty close figuring on you will admit. The engineers were Messrs. Hodgkins and Clarke, c.E of Watertown. The city clerk then was Mr. D. B. Robertson.

x x x

For fourteen years this company of engineers owned the system and gradually the plant required sufficient customers to show a neat profit for the company. Then the city council stepped in and offered to buy the complete system from them at any reasonable price they might name. After some weighty consideration the company finally decided to offer it to the city—for the sum of $182,000, which had cost to build, and the price was set at $182,000, which was eagerly accepted. Since then the Belleville water works system and part it has been often that there has been a deficit on the books over and above.

x x x

That tank which has stood on the hill overlooking the city for so many years was one of the first things to be built when the work started. The foundation cost $1,194.45. They go ten feet into the ground and rest on a solid bed of concrete and stone, six feet in thickness deep. The tank itself cost $12,500, not including the foundations, and was built by Messrs. Chapman & Co. of the Canadian Locomotive Works, from whom it was bought. The capacity is 1,000,000 gallons, and the water in it is supposed to be the cheapest one ever erected in Canada, or anywhere else, and that is saying a lot. The engineers since then it has proved itself to be of good and sturdy build. Beyond an occasional painting every five or ten years it has never cost the city a cent for upkeep. How many can remember the hours and hours that used to be on top of the water in it years ago, and which used to loom up wistfully when the water was low in the mains? It was a big day when the tank was finished and filled, and it might be bombed some time, probably, and not be missed for a light grey, which color it has had since.

x x x

During the first year of operation by the city the plant turned back to the public who now owned it a revenue of $19,030.16. Good book keeping and good business. The total amount of water pumped in that year was 1,000,000,000 gallons, and the consumers ate up 600,000,000 gallons. Charged that with the total amount pumped by this city last year (1931), which was 902,000,000 gallons and you have the idea that folks in the city have either got the habit of washing their automobiles more often, or else a greater number of different ways. Now with the new filtration plant working the consumption is down to the increase all the time.

x x x

This all goes to show that they did a very good piece of business back in 1886 when they called the company in and told them to go ahead and build the waterworks, and then granted them permission to sell the water at the rates they did. Under conditions as they obtain in it, the city made money, and everybody was satisfied. But the question is, can it be done that way today?

x x x

Whether or not there is any more in town like her is still a question, but there is at least one old lady in the city who is a mean typewriter. She doesn't want her name mentioned—she seeks no publicity, and believes in letting you see her work—but she has never extends herself when she is using one; but she can on occasion step up to the rate of about seventy-five words a minute—also twenty-five words a minute—and when she does that she can copy from a printed manuscript lying beside the machine and talk to you at the same time as she is typing. Her method of typing is unique, but it seems to be successful to you; she spends some part of every day typing the alphabet over and over again, and believes in practising you see. Incidentally, it helps add up a column of figures while he is copying off the minister typed.

x x x

In Trenton the other evening a newly married couple from Belleville was first prize for a special dance. Some of the boys around the city are wondering how some Belleville boys from Lake Simcoe can reach the Bay of Quinte, when that lake is 180 feet above the Bay of Quinte and that there is a high hill between us anyhow. (Get the map then and see). Up on the hill is the water shed which contributes to the water supply. Bottles from angry housewives—but he's going to get a big surprise, the same as he got a surprise when he was in Toronto and was regarding the size of a vacant building in the city on the west side of a manufacturer, and asked an ex-manufacturer who is supposed to be starting some new business. Guess what? Why, a big cotton mill, and the size of it Belleville can be bought at below half price. Suits that were ordered and never called for, and the like. Even a city can get a bargain now and then on the house. However he's well trained and is a pet for all the merchants in the town are trained. He can differentiate between them, and will sing sometimes when he's in the mood. Some of the old days years ago when automobiles were not so common as they are now especially those small ones you work with your feet, he was on the job, and the thought she was stepping on the brake all the time, and the harder she stepped on the brake the faster the car went. Big row on between Belleville fans and Kingston fans over hockey. Two of the boys who left here some time last Fall to spend the winter in Florida have returned back to the city. They said that they saw more flowers here in Belleville and are going to wait until Winter comes before they go back. Even the years are out wandering around the rocks back there.

they had accomplished in the last few years. He said a great many farmers are talking co-operation, also issue with those people we have no depression in Madoc Agricultural Society. This year after the prizes were crying hard times your association paid in a week, after the prizes were awarded $1800.00 in cash for new cattle sheds and $83.70 for new electric line, paid all our other accounts and have a balance of $37.55. Why we should all be congratulated and give thanks a thousand times that we live in Madoc. Our district is so prosperous.

Mr. W. J. Taylor, Woodstock was the guest of honor at a luncheon of men in Canada. From being prominent in local weekly in eastern Ontario, he progressed until he controlled and directed the affairs of one of the largest weekly papers in western Ontario. Belleville Cubs Score 8-2 Victory Over Campbellford and Earn Tie for Group

Game is Uninteresting And Ragged in Spots

McDONALD STARS

Team Play of Locals Nothing to Enthuse Over

Fighting a game but losing battle from the opening to closing bell, Campbellford Juniors were defeated here last night by a score of 8-2, the periods being 1-0, 5-0, and by the win the locals are at least assured of a tie for the group honors and the right to meet Trenton in the playoffs. As a hockey match it was a ragged, dull, and uninteresting contest, the only feature being the bettering of the junior goal scoring proclivities and the battle the Northerners put up against overwhelming odds. The Cubs although they won are not pleased and had the game in hand at all stages did not look particularly impressive and Coach Thompson will have to do considerable polishing if he hopes to win further laurels if he ones from the group playoffs.

Fast and Ragged Hockey

Knowing they had a push over, the team instead of trying to perfect their team play started out to see, which one by individual effort could score the most goals. There were not making solo rushes with long range shots and then just waiting for the pass, that never came ,they were trying to shoot right out the feet of the opposing team for no good reason at all. Harry Morgan in particular had a chip on his shoulder all night and he committed enough fouls that were not observed as the Campbellford kids played clean but hard all night. Sherry showed all and sundry his skating ability but as far as being of real use to his team, he might as well been on the side lines. Times without number his wings went in with him on the play and instead of feeding them the ball to bang his way through the defense and just another good play went wrong.

The McDonald Stars

One player stood ot like a beacon light in the win, that player being "Red" McDonald. The red thatched youth looked checked in centre like a veteran, fed his wings, almost perfectly, and only when he saw a real opening did he try to make the red light flash. He was rewarded for his counting and everyone was well earned. Jimmy McGuire looked like a star and was not as effective as he has been in other games. Carl Morgan chased McDonald for the starring honors and take a bet, that the boy will be a hockey player of class if everything a player needs, size, skating ability, and the desire to take it and get it, when necessary. Nickol was missed from the line up being laid up with a sore hip. Jimmy Folwell, student at the Collegiate and well versed in rugby circles made his first start in O.H.S. competition and did well. He is fast, carries the puck, counters and made himself generally useful. Moore at forward was in the hamp and although he did not have much to do, showed himself like a veteran and he gave the team more confidence than they have had all winter. Jack Wilson played a good game but was inclined to hook and lay it on. Red Mahlon was in the bag anytime the team needed to have the puck. Gar-lord Goyer is improving with every start and should be a star when younger does not uphold the honor of all the Goyers, creditably that have played on Belleville teams in other years. He should have had a goal, and it was a shame to see him skating up and down his wing with the puck in open ice night many times he being uncovered.

Bush and Heady Real

Campbellford put on with a game this year but they have in Bush and Heady two of the best junior players as they come. Both worked like horses and were far from the worse players out there. These lads with proper coaching will make their name in junior ranks. Middle Rumnions is an exact counterpart of his brother Orville, and the boy has the making of a player. Young Cobb in the nets endeared himself to all the fans with his brilliant display between the sticks. Although his head came but little above the posts, he calmly warded off shots from every angle and every goal that beat him, Belleville earned. He was not afraid and his method of sliding out into the puck carrier had the locals baffled for a time. Wilks and Mahlon on the defense played well but were inclined to split, when the puck carrier came in. Both are rugged body check and on the offensive were hard to stop. The boys were plainly shy out of condition and during the last ten minutes of the pastime were playing purely on their nerve.

The Play

It took fifteen minutes before Belleville was able to score the first goal of the game and McDonald made no mistake once he got inside. Campbellford missed many chances in the period through inability to get the puck off the ice and not having good direction, when they did so. McDonald put the game practically on ice in the first eight minutes of the second frame when he scored twice on individual efforts, both shots were beauties from close in. In the last period he scored the deciding goal of the night, when he took a pass from Ritter and shot a hard one net with a waist high drive. Sherry scored on a solo rush in the second period and Jimmy Folwell scored his first goal in O.H.A. company on a pass from Carl Morgan. Campbellford came into the picture when Heady took a pass from Bush and on the fans gave the kid a rousing cheer, Folwell secured another and Bush came in with a nice counter a passout from Lambert. The player at no time was covered and he practically scored in an open net. "Stud Ritter got his hunk on a lone rush and McDonald ended the scoring with the goal previously mentioned.

Game Clean

The game was exceptionally clean only three penalties being handed out, Belleville drawing two of them. The crowd was small and there was little to enthuse over as the cubs got the better of the argument from the beginning. Their experience was too much for the young starters but the Campbellford team gave them a battle and they played the game for the love of the game. Campbellford did not go on the ice her reputation by having the junior team visit the city and they went away with many more friends than they had before.

RULE WILL NOT BE WAIVED AGAIN

Arrangements Nearly Completed For Schmeling Sharkey Bout

New York, Jan. 22—Without a smile, Jack Hacobs and Johnny Buckley announce that they hope to get together some time today to sign a contract for a heavyweight championship bout to be held in June between Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey, for the Madison Square Garden conference that lasted hours yesterday smoothed out all the points of difference, so they announced, with two or three "minor" exceptions.

The "minor" exceptions, it was understood, had to do with such unimportant matters as financial terms.

After the conference broke up last night it was said that the chief difficulty arose out of the fact that Buckley, Sharkey's manager, was demanding a larger share of the receipts than the Garden was ready to grant. Buckley, however, insisted that Sharkey was willing to accept the customary challenger's share of 12½ per cent.

There also were indications that Jacobs was endeavouring to have the New York State's "no foul" rule waived again just as it was when Schmeling won the heavyweight title on a foul in the fourth round of his first match with Sharkey here in 1930. The consensus was that the rule would not be waived again.

INGRAM, WITH ACKERS, STARS FOR STIRLING

Madoc Defeats Stirling 1 to 0 in Clear-cut Game

MADOC PLAY FINE

In a clean, fast game Madoc defeated Stirling by a 1-0 score last night. Each team drew down two penalties.

First Period

Just as the period commenced Blue carried the puck the length of the ice only to have Fox make a wonderful stop on his shot from close in. Blue drew the first penalty of the game, after Blue came back Ingram made a solo rush only to have Hulin save. On a nice combination play with Watson, Blue shot into the goaltender's pads. The period ended with Madoc forcing the play.

Second Period

Henderson missed a beautiful chance when he carried the puck in alone to beat Fox, only to have his shot stopped. Henderson scored the first goal of the game when he batted in his own rebound. Wallace was given credit for the goal, though when he took Fraser's pass in front of the net.

Third Period

Hulin smothered D. Fraser's shot from close in. Blue and Ingram both went off for roughing it. Play was fast at this time. Fox robbed Henderson of a sure goal. Stirling was penalized for too many players on the ice, but Madoc failed to score. Hulin was content to shoot from the blue line all evening.

Madoc—Goal, Hulin; defence, Blue and Moon; centre, Wood; wings, Henderson and Watson; subs, Casserly, Akey, Rupert, Ross.

Stirling—Goal, Fox; defence, H. Ingram, J. Ackers; centre, A. Fraser; wings, D. and R. Fraser; subs, Scott, Ward, Blue, Hulin.

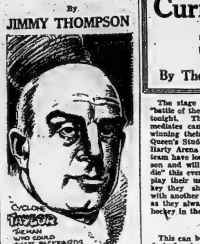
DOT AND DASH MEN BEATEN

Owl League Stage First Game of Season at Arena

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Jan. 22.—Radio is believed to be a scoring record for the season was hung up at the Arena last night when the Bakers and the Canadian National Telegraphs tangled in a pre-season Owl League fixture. With both teams following the famous gang style of play Skinner and Malloy were subject to a veritable barrage of rubber discs and were busy the entire game dodging the shots scored on them. These boys were the real stars of the position, while Walsh, Allies and Burley in the limelight for the Bankers while Rider, Pepper and Robinson were the shining lights for the Dot and Dash boys. Referee Murphy handled a hard game in a very creditable manner, the lineups:



Bankers—Goal Kinnear; defence Allies and Amey; centre Walsh; wings, Burley and Brown; subs—Brown, Clark and Truscott.

C.N.T.—Goal "Allan" Mulvey; defence Christie and O'Callaghan; centre Ridley; wings Pepper and Hales; sub Robinson.

SCORED TWICE GOING BACKWARDS

"The appointment of Fred "Cyclone" Taylor as commissioner of immigration at Vancouver recalls the career of one whose hockey exploits will never be forgotten as long as the foreside leagues keep burning. Fred was a star of the first water in the old National Hockey Association, ancestor of the present N. H. L., Fred was then with Ottawa Senators—Millionaires under M. J. O'Brien wanted him. They weened a game and what a night that was! The crowd threw everything movable at Taylor except the seats, but Taylor stuck to his bet. The play had been going for about fifteen minutes when he took the puck from behind his own net, zigzagged at top speed down the ice, swerved in front of the Ottawa goal, and skating back wards carried the puck into the net. Five minutes later he repeated the stunt just to show it was no accident. Bill O'Brien, present owner of the Montreal Maroons and Montreal baseball club, then with Renfrew, says of Taylor: "Many of the old timers will give you a verbal battle as to whether Taylor was faster than Ernie Johnson, the "Moose", or Didier Pitre. Johnson and Pitre were fast all right, but my vote goes to Taylor. The man who first ragged that baby 'Cyclone' made no mis take. He was fucked lightning."

Current Sport

By The Observer

The stage is all set for the "battle of the year" at Kingston tonight. The Belleville intermediates can make history by winning their game with the Queen's Students at the Jock Harty rink tonight. The local team have lost a game this season and will be out to "do or die" this evening. If the locals play their usual brand of hockey they should come home with another win to their credit as they have excellent hockey in the Limestone City.

This can be especially said of Jack Leacham, for Johnnie just loves to show the Kingstonians how the game should be played. The rest of the players also get a big kick out of beating a Kingston team in their "own back yard." It is to be hoped that the locals do not take the lead and then start to rest on their laurels, for if they do they may get the surprise of their young lives as the Students are always in there trying.

The locals journey to Campbellford on Monday night to do battle with the Hydro Twos in tornedistrict league. Northerners have yet to win their first game and nothing would do their fans any more good than to win from the Belleville packers. Considering the beat they got in their game with the B.M.C. Cubs last Wednesday night.

After last night's victory the juniors can do no worse than a tie for their group honors now. If they win from Campbellford next week they will have won their group which will be the end of the actual game last night, it was nothing to write home about and we might mention the fact that the locals were minus more goals of Bill Sherry would pass the puck once in a while.

"Red" MacDonald gave the fans quite a treat as he was the player, outskated and outgeneralled every other player on the ice. He is fast showing his ability as a junior player and would look in place on the intermediate forward line some night.

With the return of cold weather the local curlers are waiting patiently for ice to be made at the curling rink. They have not had much chance to "sweep her down" of late, but before the season closes they will have plenty of opportunities to "push the old stone" down the ice."

Speaking of queer games—on August 11th, 1916, the Boston "Robins" and the Pittsburgh "Pirates" played a baseball game. At the end of the game the score was 0-0. Each team has 33 men recorded at bat, 13 hits, 32 put-outs, 11 assists and 1 error each. Six men on each score side scored 1 run each. Each team had a two base hit to their credit and each had 3 bases on balls registered. Each team struck out 3 batsmen, each had one batter each hit by a pitched ball. Another queer incident was the fact that each catcher was credited with a passed ball. To cap off a perfect day each team used two pitchers. The final one!

While on the subject of baseball we wonder just when the executive of the Belleville Nationals are going to have their annual meeting for the election of officers?

Next May may be too late.

The O.H.A. must think that there is plenty of money in this section of the province. Johnnie Mitchell of Hamilton, has been appointed referee for tonight's game in Kingston. It is well over 200 miles from the Hamilton City to Kingston. Are there not competent enough referees nearer Kingston?

STILL STARRING

Carson Cooper has been in the Major Hockey League for a good many seasons, and he isn't through by a long shot. Carson is one of the starters of the Detroit Falcons line-up, and although the team occupies a lowly position in the league table, Cooper and his club-mates still turn in some remarkable wins for the Falcons.

FIRST SETBACK ON HOME ICE

Syracuse Stars Have Won Three Games in Row

Toronto, Jan. 22 (CP)—The winning combination which the tail-end Syracuse club have been lacking since the International Hockey League campaign got under way has suddenly found its remedy with the acquisition of Benny Grant, a youthful net guardian, from Pittsburgh, N.-A. international League, for last night the stars hung up their third straight victory by downing Pittsburgh, 5-4, and advanced to within a single point of Cleveland.

While Syracuse were earning their third victory of the week, Detroit Olympics stepped into Buffalo and handed the pace-setting Bisons their first setback on home ice this season. Although the game produced only one goal which came from the stick of Fernand Gillie, speedy Olympic winguan, in the second period it was one of the fastest and most exciting fixtures seen in Buffalo this year with the work of the rival goaltenders a particular feature.

Scenes like the above were the order of the day when the voters of Finland balloted to decide the fate of what is their equivalent of the United States Eighteenth Amendment. T.:e nation-wide referendum resulted in an overwhelming vote being cast for the repeal of the prohibition law. The most remarkable feature of the referendum was the heavy vote cast by Finnish women, most of the credit for the absolution of the unwanted law of prohibition being awarded to them for the campaign shown a prominent woman, an, who journeyed a long way,,to register her protest against prohibition, marching her ballot at a Helsingfors polling booth.
